ROCKET BLAST KILLS SCIENTIST

Tiny 'Stowaway' Rescued

Mangling of Child Averted by Boy, 16

By BOB SANDERS

A 16-year-old part-time concession worker was credited with saving a 2-year-old "stowaway" girl from serious injury and possible death Saturday night when she got her clothes caught on a moving Pike merry-go-round and was dragged 50 feet.

The little girl, Martha Searcy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Searcy, of 11605 E. 209th St., was treated at Seaside Hospital for severe brush burns of the head, back and both arms and legs.

Police Officer Robert H. Brizendine credited William A. Archerd, an employe of a baseball concession at 413 E. Pike, with pulling the girl from under the merry-go-round and holding her away from a safety guard that threatened to dissect her.

Archerd said he looked out from his booth and saw the little girl lying on her stomach on the edge of the moving carrousel with one leg and part of her body hanging over the side.

"I didn't know what to do," the youth said. "I ran out and tried to hold back the merry-go-round. That didn't work, so I grabbed her and tried to pull her away.

"Her dress was caught on something underneath, though, and I couldn't. I ran alongside, trying to hold her away from the edge but dropped her to the pavement several times before the merry-go-round finally stopped."

He told police the girl tried to get on the merry-go-round while it was in motion.

The operator, George H. Pierce, 39, of 32 Neptune Pl., said he didn't know the little girl was on his machine until he heard bystanders yelling at him to stop the merry-go-round.

Mrs. Seacy, 21, said she and her other two children, Fred, 4, and Alvin, 1, had been visiting the Virginia Park amusement

Ike Promises Support to Gen. Chiang

Nixon Arrives at Taipei With Personal Message

TAIPEI, Formosa (U.P.)—U. S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon flew here Saturday night to talk with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on the new Red Chinese bid to negotiate the Formosa dispute. He gave the Nationalist leader a personal message of "continuing support" from President Eisenhower.

Nixon delivered the message to Chiang shortly after he arrived from Saigon despite the lateness of the hour.

"International communism alters its tactics from time to time, but we have as yet no evidence of any change in its objectives," Mr. Eisenhower's message said.

"The American people and government realize this. Likewise, let there be no misapprehension about our own steadfastness in continuing support to the Republic of China."

* * * *

IT WAS THE SECOND such message in as many days Mr. Eisenhower had sent through his vice president to heads of free nations on the frontiers of Communist China. Nixon delivered a similar message Friday to South Viet Nam President Ngo Dinh Diem.

"I am encouraged to hear of the progress which has been made in improving security and well-being to the people of Taiwan (Formosa) despite the dangers and difficulties confronting you," the message to Chiang said.

"I am sure you share my own confidence that the close cooperation which has so long characterized our relations will continue. No problems are too great for solution when the will to work together exists. . . ."

Nixon arrived here late Saturday night and received an immediate briefing from U. S. Ambassador Karl L. Rankin and American military officials before delivering the note to Chiang.

He scheduled a secret conference with Chiang for this morning.

Japanese Electing Senators

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—Millions of Japanese voted today for their equivalent of U. S. senators after a campaign based largely on two issues involving the United States.

At stake were 127 of the 250 seats in the House of Councillors. The upper house is expected to remain Conservative despite rising Socialist strength.

The results of the voting basically a test of strength between Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama's Conservatives and the Socialists, are expected to indicate:

How fast the Conservatives can push rearmament, advocated by the United States but distasteful to many Japanese who remember the terror of World War II bombings.

How deep is the resentment of the Japanese people against U. S. military-base policy on Okinawa. Socialists are demanding the Americans leave.

A definite trend probably will not be established until sometime Monday.

Air-Collision Probe Chief, Aide Disagree

Director of Crash Investigation Says TWA Pilot at Fault

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Two Civil Aeronautics Board officials disagreed Saturday on the question of pilot responsibility in the two-airliner crash which took 128 lives a week ago.

A United Air Lines DC7 and a Trans World Airlines Super Constellation presumably collided at about 21,000 feet and plunged into the Grand Canyon. They had left Los Angeles, eastbound, three minutes apart.

William K. Andrews, CAB director of safety investigation, told a House subcommittee investigating the catastrophe, worst in commercial aviation history, that "TWA had full responsibility for maintaining separation" of the two planes after the TWA ship had changed flight plans.

* * * *

ANDREWS ALSO said, "I would not hesitate to say that it was a definite collision."

Later in the hearing Oscar Bakke, deputy director of the CAB Bureau of Safety Regulations, took issue with Andrews' statement on TWA responsibility, saying that "both pilots were on their own."

* * * *

BAKKE SAID the United pilot was "burdened" to look out for other planes despite his instrument flight rules clearance if he was flying above the cloudy weather.

"Nowhere in the regulations is positive separation (of planes) provided for off airways," Bakke said.

ANDREWS FLEW here from the Grand Canyon where he has been heading the CAB investigation.

N.Y. Poles March on Red HQs

NEW YORK (AP) — Angry crowds protesting the suppression of riots in Poznan, Poland, marched on Soviet and Polish U. N. headquarters Saturday and twice nearly got out of hand.

Outside the Soviet delegation's headquarters at Park Avenue and 68th St., the yelling fist-shaking crowd of 800 surged through police lines and crowded police to the very doorway of the building.

For about one-half hour they surged about, shouting insults, singing patriotic Polish songs, and displaying black-draped flags and placards protesting the suppression of the Poznan riots.

* * * *

THEN THEY marched a few blocks to the Polish delegation's headquarters, the crowd growing to 1,400, and the performance was repeated.

Better prepared this time, police threw a line of 100 men around the building and kept the pressing crowd across the street.

Man Disintegrates in Plant Explosion

REDLANDS (AP)—A scientist was killed Saturday in an earth-shaking explosion at a plant manufacturing rocket fuel to be used in the proposed man-made earth satellite.

The San Bernardino County sheriff's office said Benjamin J. Kimbrig, 51, was apparently disintegrated when the powerful rocket propellant exploded at the Grand Central Rocket Co. in Mentone, five miles east of Redlands.

A shoe identified as one Kimbrig was wearing was found on the roof of a nearby building, and bits of cloth believed to be part of the scientist's clothing were found in the wreckage of the small building in which the blast occurred. There was no trace of a body.

Officials of the company said Kimbrig was inspecting a batch of the fuel in a curing oven when it inexplicably caught fire. The fuel generates about 40,000 degrees Fahrenheit when it burns, it was reported.

It is designed to supply the final boost needed to speed the satellite up to 18,000 m.p.h. and enable it to overcome the earth's gravitational pull.

* * * *

THE FORCE of the explosion ripped a steel roof off the building and tore a crater six feet deep in the earth.

Bits of debris were found scattered half a mile away, and persons five miles distant reported hearing the noise and feeling the ground shake.

Nearly all the work being done by the company is of a classified nature, but it was recently announced the plant was engaged in making and testing a solid fuel for use in Project Vanguard, the name given to the satellite-launching project.

Firing of the Vanguard Satellite is scheduled for next year off the east coast of Florida.

85 Derby Fliers in Race East

Eighty-five of the nation's best women aviators, competing in the 49-plane Powder Puff Derby, ended the first leg of their flights Saturday night at points ranging from southeastern California to west Texas.

The 2,366-mile handicap race started at 9:37 a.m. Saturday, at San Mateo County Airport, 37 minutes behind schedule, due to a low-hanging fog. Planes must cross the Flint, Mich., finish line before 5 p. m. EST, today. Winners will be selected on a time-elapsed basis, taking into account the make and horsepower of the planes.

'Leave Baby in a Church,' Parents' Plea

Second Call Made by 'Kidnaper' Who 'Will Be in Touch'

WESTBURY, N. Y. (U.P.) —The desperate mother of kidnaped 5-week-old Peter Weinberger appealed to the abductor Saturday to leave the child in any church or synagogue in the New York City area. Religious authorities agreed to keep every house of worship open around the clock to receive the child.

The appeal was made and acted upon as the search for the infant entered the crucial stage. Police sealed off a 16-block area around the Weinberger home on Long Island and clamped a tight secrecy lid on their activities while awaiting possible word from the abductor.

In a dramatic television broadcast from the back lawn of the Weinberger home Saturday night, the distraught mother pleaded tearfully with the kidnaper to return her baby.

* * * *

"WE DON'T WANT revenge," the mother said. "We want our baby back. Please believe us when we tell you with every bit of sincerity at our command that the police have given us their word they will not interfere with our attempts to get our baby back."

Peter was kidnaped Wednesday for a $2,000 ransom. A telephone caller later increased the ransom to $5,000 and the family

Truck Driver Offers $2,000 to Kidnaper

CINCINNATI (AP) — A truck driver walked into the Cincinnati Enquirer newsroom Saturday night with a plan he thinks will turn the trick in returning kidnaped Peter Weinberger to his parents.

And Bernard Waterman says he is willing to spend $2,000 of his own money to make his plan work.

Waterman said he figures the kidnaper might be willing to meet some one far removed from the scene of the kidnaping. "I think this kidnaper is too scared of police to try and collect now," Waterman said.

* * * *

THE WEINBERGER baby, only five weeks old, was snatched from his carriage last Wednesday from the family's Westbury, N. Y., home. A ransom note asking $2,000 was left.

Waterman said he is willing to take time off from work to meet the person with the baby anywhere in the country.

He said, "Me being from out of the state, he might be willing to meet me and take my money. And I promise the police will never know who he is."

Waterman said he has $1,000 now and will borrow the other $1,000. "If he can prove to me that he's the person who took the New York baby, I'll give him my $2,000."

If the kidnaper thinks Waterman's offer is good, the truck driver lives at 2350 Losantiville Rd. in Golf Manor, a Cincinnati suburb, and his telephone is Redwood 1-0538.

Baggy Bloomers Stir Uproar in Commons

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Dame Irene Ward served notice in the House of Commons Saturday she is going to uphold vigorously efforts of British army girls to escape wearing government issue panties.

Panties is the government word—the girls call them "baggy bloomers."

"When it comes to undies," said Dame Irene, a Conservative member of Parliament, "women like to choose their own."

She said she would bring up the matter formally in the House of Commons next Wednesday.

* * * *

"WITH THAT MONEY," said Dame Irene, "they can buy their own and not have to wear those horrors presently supplied by the Women's Royal Army Corps (WRAC)."

The pantie trouble has been a simmering issue for two years. The army girls, supported by service chiefs of both sexes, appeared united in their demand for an undie allowance, but the British treasury says the government can't afford it.

* * * *

TWO WRAC GIRLS, interviewed at a London service club, expressed their opinions. The first said:

"Those khaki bloomers are so long that they would show beneath our skirts—if we wore them. Not one girl in 50 wears them. We buy our own."

Said the other:

"No one can feel well dressed in baggy bloomers."

Asked about the bras, she declared:

"We could fasten them over our battledress. They are more like harness."

They said the trouble stems from the fact that the WRAC underwear was designed for World War I and no one has thought of changing it.

L.A.C. Says: The Health Issue

Old-time reporters who served in Washington a quarter century ago recall how closely guarded was the secret of Franklin D. Roosevelt's being a cripple. They report that they never remember a news story or radio commentator referring to the candidate for President being unable to walk or even stand without braces. It was years later before millions of Americans realized the President's condition. It is now recalled how in the 1944 campaign no word was given that Mr. Roosevelt was in such desperate condition his life was despaired of.

Now we find some of these same reporters—some of them columnists with large circulation—almost daily harping on President Eisenhower's health. These men and women, who suppressed all information about Mr. Roosevelt, now set themselves up as health experts. They are columnists who were New Deal supporters all during the Roosevelt-Truman regimes. Their present purpose is to sell the idea that Mr. Eisenhower cannot serve because of his health.

Their predictions are not borne out by the best known specialists on heart and ileitis, the bowel obstruction for which Mr. Eisenhower was operated on. These specialists have stated that there is very little danger of a recurrence of the President's troubles. They state there is no reason why he should not run for re-election. Some of the anti-Eisenhower columnists have deliberately misled their readers with misquotations from these same specialists.

When comparing the complete cover-up of President Roosevelt's health condition with the widespread publicity given that of Mr. Eisenhower, the question arises as to why newspapers did not give out such information concerning Mr. Roosevelt.

Ray Tucker, one of the veterans in Washington and not a New Dealer, says it was considered indecent to play up the physical troubles of Mr. Roosevelt. But during the 1944 campaign, when Mr. Roosevelt had apparently already had a stroke, the news was kept from newsmen by those around the President. It was recognized that Mr. Roosevelt was essential to a victory for the party. Nothing was said of his almost desperate condition until after the November election. Five months later he was dead. Mr. Truman and most of the present Democratic party leaders had a part in the secrecy surrounding Mr. Roosevelt's condition.

The newsmen are not so much at fault as it may seem in the way they handled the news in the two cases. There was planned secrecy around the Roosevelt health conditions. In the case of Mr. Eisenhower there has been a wide open discussion of every possible phase of his case. That means the President has himself set the example of how he wished the people to be informed. He has stated that he will make the final decision as to his standing for re-election.

Because the people have complete confidence in his integrity they feel certain that he will not run again, if he has any doubts about being physically able to conduct the nation's business in a firm and capable manner. That is the big difference in the way the health situation is conducted now and the way it has been conducted in the past.—L.A.C.

said it was willing to pay "any amount" for the return of the child.

* * * *

THE WEINBERGER family disclosed Saturday they had received another call Friday afternoon from the same person who increased the ransom. The call was made after the family announced to the press they would pay the higher sum.

"I'll be in touch with you again," the caller said.

IT WAS LEARNED, however, that the caller had not yet identified himself in a way to make the family certain he was the kidnaper. A reliable source said there were definite means for the abductor to identify himself to the Weinbergers by telephone.

New York police said Nassau County police had not yet sent out the routine 13-state alarm alerting East Coast police to be on the lookout for the kidnaped baby. A police spokesman said failure to send out an alarm was "unusual."

The hopes of some police officials dimmed on the third day after Peter was snatched from his carriage in the family patio. There were fears the boy would never be found alive, but police still worked on the theory he was all right.

* * * *

TWO MEN PICKED UP for questioning Friday night failed to give any useful information, police said, and were released.

In her latest appeal for the return of her child, Mrs. Betty Weinberger asked that all places of worship be available as a point where the baby can be left by the kidnaper. The religious hierarchy of the Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths immediately announced their houses of worship would remain open 24 hours a day.

The church leaders said they would telephone police immediately if a child were left.

Mrs. Weinberger also appealed for prayers in churches of all denominations for the return of her child.

* * * *

THE ANGUISHED parents were near collapse in their $45,000 home in this Nassau County community about 20 miles from New York City's Times Square.

Detectives were assigned to around-the-clock duty in the Weinberger home and police were stationed outside. Other police closed off the entire area extending two blocks in each direction from the Weinberger house. Every person entering or leaving the area was questioned and residents were asked to report any suspicious recent events they could recall.

The Long Island Daily Press offered a $5,000 reward to the person or persons whose information leads to the return, alive, of Peter to his parents.

Hopes for Peter's early return were high Friday night after a telephone caller claiming to be the kidnaper told the father Peter was "alive and well." Then a cryptic telephone message saying only "MW PF OK" was received by television newscaster John K. M. McCaffery Friday night just before he broadcast a message from Weinberger saying the kidnaper's increased ransom demand would be met.

* * * *

THE CRYPTIC message was interpreted in several ways. Police said it could have meant that everything was all right. Nassau County Detective Chief Stuyvesant Pinnell said he thought the message was meaningless, however.

Police became increasingly secretive as they followed up every tip, even all the "crank" calls, in their all-out effort to solve the baffeling kidnaping. It was known that attempts were being made to make personal contact with all callers posing as the kidnaper. Pinnell said "stand-ins" were being used for Weinberger, 48, and his 33-year-old school teacher wife, Betty.

John McDonald, press secretary for the 1,600-man Nassau County police force, said no ransom had been paid and none had been left where the kidnaper might find it.

Many mysterious telephone calls had been received at the Weinberger home, by police, by telecaster McCaffery, and by newspapers.

Yukon Forest Fire Extinguished by Rain

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UP)—Rain has done in two days what a fire-fighting crew was unable to do in two weeks in Western Alaska. It stopped a forest fire that blackened more than 63,000 acres of spruce and brush country.

Lightning was blamed for the fire along the Yukon River, near Nulato. The flames had spread steadily in warm, dry weather.

Hoover Outlines Six Rules to Follow If Your Child Is Victim of Kidnaping

WASHINGTON (LP) — What should you do if your child is kidnaped?

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Saturday that six rules should be followed immediately as the best method to insure safe return of the kidnap victim.

He laid down the rules as FBI agents and other investigators pressed their search for the kidnaper of little Peter Weinberger of Westbury, N. Y.

Hoover said parents should:

1. Call the FBI.

2. "Maintain absolute secrecy" about the abduction except to investigating officers.

3. Hand ransom notes at once to investigators.

4. Not touch or disturb anything at the scene of the crime. Clues invisible to the naked eye might be destroyed.

5. Be calm. Try to maintain a normal routine around office and home.

6. Place full confidence in investigators and provide them with full details on the victim including "personal habits, characteristics and peculiarities."

"When kidnapings occur the first concern of the FBI and other law enforcement agencies is always the safe return of the victim," Hoover said.

* * * *

HE ALSO listed precautions parents can take to thwart kidnapers. They were:

Make certain doors, windows and screens are securely locked at night.

Keep the door to the child's room open so any unusual sound may be detected.

Be certain the child's room is not easily accessible from the outside.

Never leave young children at home alone and unprotected.

Instruct children to keep doors and windows locked. Never admit a stranger.

* * * *

TEACH CHILDREN as soon as possible how to call the police when strangers prowl about the house or attempt to get in.

Keep the house well-lighted if it becomes necessary to leave children at home.

Avoid obvious indications that parents are not at home like leaving garage doors open and newspaper outside the door.

Instruct servants never to admit strangers.

Do not advertise family finances or the household routine.

Hoover said that since 1932 when kidnaping became a federal offense the FBI has investigated 459 cases. Of that number, 457 have been solved. The other two still are under active investigation.

Airliner Collision Blame Put on Pilot of TWA Craft

United Air Lines was traffic. There is no indication that United Air Lines was advised TWA was traffic."

By this, Andrews meant that the TWA pilot had been advised that the United airliner was flying at 21,000 feet before being granted permission to change his elevation from 19,000 feet to "1,000 feet on top" of thunderclouds.

The top of the thunderclouds was estimated at about 20,000 feet, which also put TWA in the 21,000 foot range.

* * * *

ANDREWS, first witness at the subcommittee hearing presided over by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark), also said:

"United was on IFR (Instrument Flight Rules) control as it crossed the airways. The TWA captain was free to go up and down as he saw fit because he was on VFR (Visual Filght Rules).

Pressed by congressmen, Andrews agreed that the only safety factor under the circumstances was "the sight of the pilot given the VFR clearance."

By this, Andrews said, he meant that it was the TWA pilot's responsibility to be on the lookout for and avoid the United plane.

"TWA had full responsibility for maintaining separation," Andrews told the subcommittee.

Test Pilot Bails Out of Jet

Rescued by Amphibian in Channel

A Douglas test pilot who bailed out of his F4D jet Skyraider into the San Pedro Channel Saturday was rescued by the crew of an Avalon Transport amphibian 37 minutes after he hit the water with a ripped parachute.

Pilot Raleigh Guynes, 28, of Los Angeles was flown to Long Beach Municipal Airport and then taken to Seaside Hospital where a spokesman said he apparently was unhurt but suffering from shock.

Guynes, who radioed he was bailing out after his jet fighter went into a spin, parachuted into the sea six miles off Marineland of the Pacific at Portuguese Bend.

* * * *

HE LEFT THE PLANE by ejecting the aircraft's seat. His 'chute ripped when it billowed open, he reported later.

"I came down awfully fast," Guynes described. "When I hit the water I thought I had broken my legs."

Guynes, a veteran of World War II and the Korean campaign, was equipped with a life jacket, and put out a dye marker after striking the water.

A dozen military and civilian aircraft flew to the scene, including the Avalon Air seaplane and the Goodyear blimp. The County Lifeguard boat, Baywatch, put out from Hermosa Beach.

Guynes, bobbing in the sea, first was spotted by Capt. Stewart Kilgour, piloting the Avalon Air Amphibian, and Jimmie L. Harris, the airline's operations manager.

As the pair pulled him aboard, Guynes exclaimed:

"This is the most beautiful airplane I have ever seen."

"The plane went into the most terrifying spin I've ever been in," Guynes said later. "When the water began to look too close for me I bailed out."

* * * *

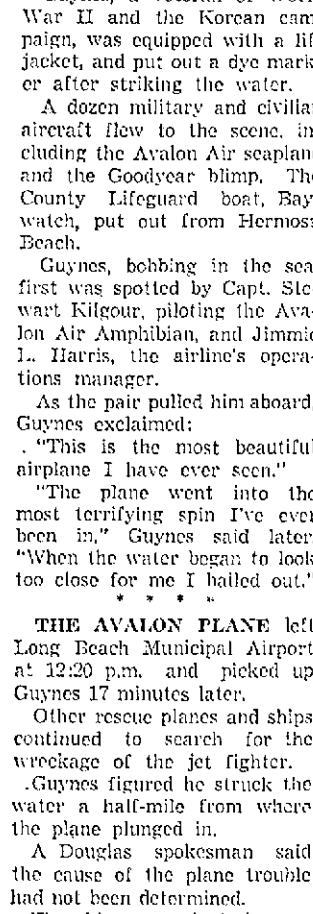

THE AVALON PLANE left Long Beach Municipal Airport at 12:20 p.m. and picked up Guynes 17 minutes later.

Other rescue planes and ships continued to search for the wreckage of the jet fighter.

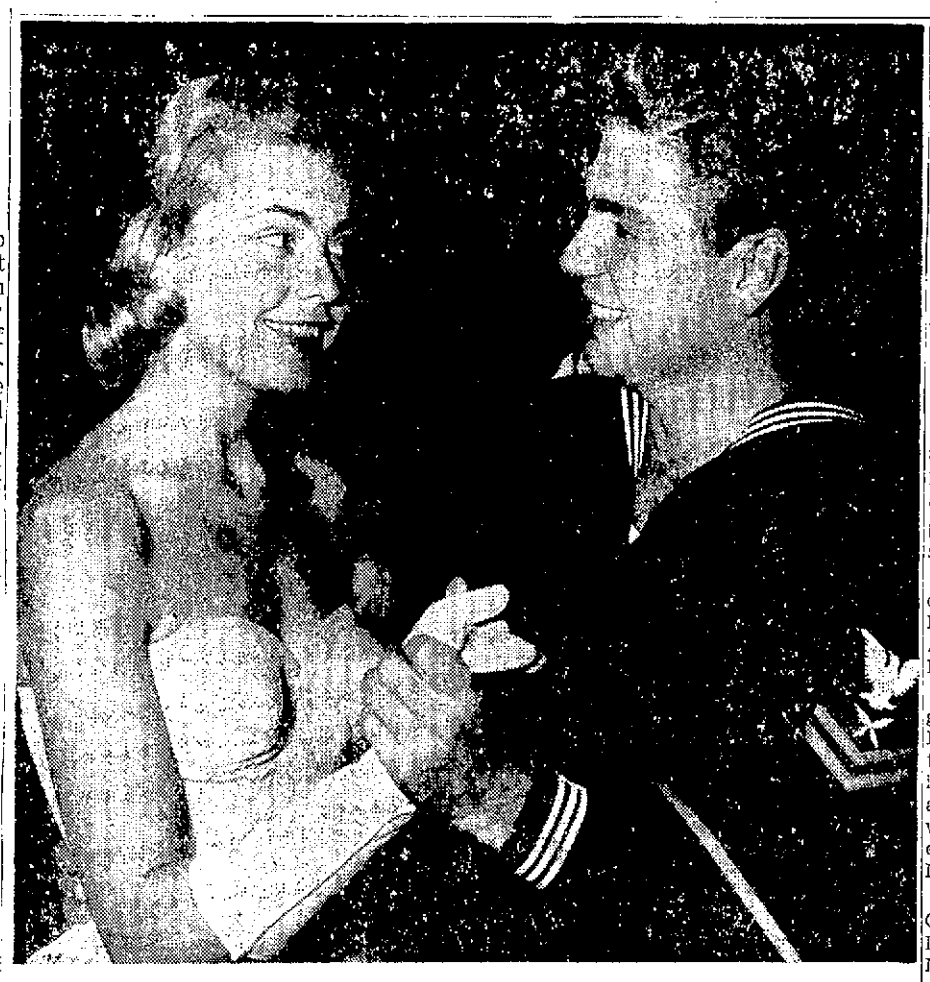

Guynes figured he struck the water a half-mile from where the plane plunged in.

A Douglas spokesman said the cause of the plane trouble had not been determined.

The ship currently is in production at Douglas' Torrance plant.

some navigational difficulties and landed at Daggett, Calif., to refuel.

Miss DeWees later landed her Cessna 140, which she is flying solo, at Needles, Calif., where 19 other planes had stopped to wait for thunderclouds to disperse and were expected to spend the night.

Two of the Long Beach-area entrants also are flying solo: Mrs. Cleo Morrison, 3291 Lewis Ave., and Jean Clark, 14341 E. Flomar Dr., Whittier.

Mrs. Frances Bera, Los Angeles, and her sister, Mrs. Edna Bower, 4913 Dunrobin St., won the race in 1955. Mrs. Bera won in 1953, finished second in 1954, and was co-pilot in the 1951 winner. They were among 20 entries who spent the night at Needles.

Another entrant is Mrs. Iris Critchell, 1604 Via Montemar, Palos Verdes Estates, copilot for Mrs. Alice Roberts of Phoenix, Ariz.

* * * *

THREE AND possibly four planes flew as far east as Amarillo, Tex. Spending the night there were a Piper Apache flown by Mrs. Lois Cassidy, Chicago, and Dora J. Doughterty, Savoy, Ill.; a Bonanza with Joyce Failing, Baker, Calif., and Lauretta Foy, Van Nuys, and another Bonanza with Jane Hart, wife of Michigan's lieutenant governor, Philip Hart, with Mariana Rudolph of Mackinac Island, Mich., as copilot. Hart and Rudolph earlier had set down at Albuquerque but decided to continue.

Also believed at Amarillo was Miss Grace Harris, Kansas City, Mo., in a Cessna 140. All planes were accounted for by 9 p. m., Pacific Standard Time, with 10 stopping at Prescott, Ariz., according to late reports.

Saturn Rings as Observed Through Telescope Thrill Children of L.B.

Know one of life's greatest thrills?

Showing Saturn's rings and Jupiter's moons to children who are seeing them for the first time.

"They hardly can believe their eyes," said Arthur Cook, 1764 Chestnut Ave., who operates a home-made telescope for the pleasure of himself and his friends, many of them juveniles.

"They stand in line to look, and when their turn is over they run around to the end of the line and come through again," he added.

Cook has taken his telescope to Explorer Scout meetings and Sunday school gatherings as far away as Upland and Oxnard. He never has charged a "thin dime" for persons to look through the telescope.

* * * *

THE TELESCOPE is 7 feet long and the lens has a seven-foot focus. It was made by his brother, Samuel G. Cook of McAllen, Tex., who for 40 years taught science in the East St. Louis, Ill. high school.

Arthur Cook, who for 40 years was in the accounting department of the St. Louis Public Service Co., came to Long Beach last year.

"With my telescope," he said, "you can see Saturn's rings and four of Jupiter's moons.

"And our moon is practically in our back yard. Through the telescope you can see the mountains so you feel that you could reach out and touch them.

"That certainly thrills the kids."

$375 Ton Albacore Price Set

Franco Italian Packing Co., San Pedro, signed an agreement with the Federated Fishermen's Assn. Saturday to pay $375 a ton for albacore.

Joseph M. Mardesich, company president, said the figure was arrived at in a negotiated settlement. He said he believes Franco Italian is the first cannery to agree to that price.

The fishermen had been asking $400 a ton and most canneries were offering $350.

"The local albacore is very important to my operation," Mardesich said, "and I have to make certain of getting a fair share of the domestic albacore production to assure my being able to fulfill my commitments."

Five others were injured when the car in which Squires was riding went out of control and plunged off the road and down a declivity.

Squires was dead on arrival at Port Hueneme Hospital.

Driver was a 37-year-old civilian, Andrew Thomas Freborg, San Fernando, who was reported in satisfactory condition in St. John's Hospital, Oxnard.

The other four passengers, all sailors, were taken to Port Hueneme Hospital. They are John G. Johnson, Goebel O. Gregory, Cecil H. Johnson and Gary O. Hornbeck. Their condition was not reported.

Driver of the car, Kenneth Roland Baker, 37, of 902 Kornblum Ave., Torrance, told officers he didn't see the pedestrian, who was dressed in dark clothing, until he was directly in front of his car.

Witnesses said Erickson apparently tried to beat the car and ran directly in front of it.

CITY MOVES SLOWLY ON OVERNIGHT PARKING

Flat Prohibition of Present Custom Regarded as Unlikely

By GEORGE WEEKS
City Hall Reporter

The city intends to proceed cautiously toward the regulation of overnight parking on streets—and a flat prohibition of this prevailing custom is unlikely.

Councilman Virgil H. Spongberg, chairman of the ordinance committee, has made this point clear in a letter to the City Council, made public Saturday.

Although the committee has the subject under review, Spongberg declared:

"The committee is not considering the prohibition of overnight parking; we are considering the regulation of it."

He invited persons who are interested to express their views orally or in writing to the committee, which will take up the issue again at its Aug. 6 meeting.

* * * *

WITHOUT BEING INVITED, many have already told their opinions to individual councilmen. Objectors predominate, chiefly on grounds that they have no place to park except on the street.

Spongberg recalled that at several meetings of the committee two questions arose:

Should cars be allowed to stand on the street for days at a time without being moved?

How many people who have offstreet parking or garages be encouraged to use them at night and thus relieve the congestion on many streets?

Spongberg noted it was pointed out—by himself and by J. L. Bentley, spokesman for the North Long Beach Commercial Club — that many garages are being used for storage instead of for parking.

Latest action of the committee was to request City Mgr. Sam E. Vickers' office to bring in a recommendation "similar to the Milwaukee ordinance that would be applicable to Long Beach."

* * * *

THE MILWAUKEE measure limits street parking between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m. to two hours, except by persons holding permits issued by police at a fee of $4 per month.

In order to facilitate street cleaning, the ordinance further limits 2-6 a. m. parking.

Police Chief John W. Polcyn of Milwaukee reported that, although the ordinance met strong opposition originally, it has proved effective "in building of private garages and offstreet parking spaces in various sections of the city." He added that it has yielded net revenue of $2,033,098.

Long Beach Police Chief William H. Dovey, however, expressed opposition to a similar ordinance here.

"It's impractical," he said. "Administering and enforcing such a permit system would be a big police problem. Of course it would bring in revenue, but how would it cure the parking problem when there's no place to put the cars?"

* * * *

COUNCILMAN TOBY WICK, only member of the ordinance committee to vote against any further action on parking, said he will persist in his opposition before the Council as a whole, if necessary.

Wick cited as a typical protest a letter from a woman living in the downtown district, which he represents.

"I am sure that a short survey will prove that there are not sufficient garages in this area to take care of more than a small percentage of the cars necessarily parked in the streets, and very few lots available," she wrote.

"In addition, women such as myself are reluctant to use alley parking lots, even when available at night, considering it much safer to park under street lights as close as possible to our residences."

Another committee member, Councilman Lewis D. Reese, said his main interest is in reducing the present five-day parking limit to two or three days.

City Council has already taken one short step toward relieving the parking congestion. Last month it enacted an ordinance prohibiting auto dealers from parking their overflow vehicles on streets within a quarter-mile of their agencies. The ordinance will become effective July 13.

Adults Barred From Teen-Age Hangout

"WHAT'LL YOU HAVE?", hostess Georgianne De Palma, 15, asks Norman Slaughter, 17, and Andy Cole, 17. Name card on her shoulder says simply "Georgia," keynoting simplicity of teen-ager restaurant.

SELECTING A RECORD on the juke box holds the attention of Berta Bruno, 15; Helen Perez, 14, and Judy Buss, 13. This is a decision not to be taken lightly by admirers of 1956 versions of variegated jazz.

Father Qualifies for Lollipops at New Restaurant

By VERA WILLIAMS

"Jumping with teen-agers!"

That's what Joe De Palma says of the Sugar Bowl Teen-Agers Only Restaurant he has just opened at 6095 Atlantic Ave.

"Teen-Agers Only" means what it says—adults may enter only as guests of teen-agers. And it can't be more than two adults to one teen-ager.

Let an adult, not in the firm control of a teen-ager, cross the threshold and fingers point:

"Adult!"

That means that someone—probably Ronnie Manda, 18, the more or less official "bouncer"—meets the adult at the door, tells him the rules, presents him with a lollipop, and ushers him out.

Lollipop is right. The lollipops, on sticks, hang on the ice cream bar under a sign "FREE: For adults Only."

It's a subtle way of turning the tables on other places where kids get the lollipops and adults have the fun.

* * * *

"THIS PLACE IS the idea of my kids, especially my daughter Georgianne," explains De Palma, 43, father of three teen-age daughters, who has been in the restaurant business here since 1945.

"We had a lease on this building and no particular plans for it. Georgianne said 'Let's open a place for teen-agers!' "

It opened last week but the formal opening will be at 6 p.m., July 30. City officials will be invited, Kleig lights will sweep the sky, and the teen-agers have promised to "dress" for the occasion. That means that one night there will be no T-shirts, sports shirts, jeans, pedal pushers: The girls will wear party dresses; the boys will wear flannels, shirts, coats, ties.

But now a rollicking, noisy, happy informality prevails. The juke box plays rock n' roll and once in a while sweet music from morning to late at night. The teen-agers play an old, tinkling nickelodeon. They play shuffleboard and skill pool. They put away unbelievably huge hamburgers, stacked-up sandwiches they hardly can get their jaws around, a variety of pizzas, French fries, cokes, root beers, ice cream.

INVADING ADULTS are put in their place by offer of free lollipops.

* * * *

NO ONE NEED spend any money.

"We don't ask anybody to buy anything," explains Joe De-Palma. "If they want anything, they have to go after it."

The room is probably 50 feet deep, 35 feet wide and 150 teen-agers are packed in it almost every evening.

At the left is the ice cream "bar." Flavors are lined up in bottles on the bar, and are poured on the ice cream by means of a shot glass.

"Makes the kids feel grown-up," comments Joe.

Joe's daughter, Dolores, 17, is the cook; his daughters, Georgianne, 15, and Barbara, 14, wait on the ice cream trade.

At the back of the room are the juke box, nickelodeon, skill pool and shuffleboard tables, and an old-fashioned motion picture eye-view affair with scenes reminiscent of Keystone cops and the Perils of Pauline.

Shuffleboard is free; skill pool costs a dime a game. It's a nickel—not a dime—juke box. Food and soft drink prices are comparable to those in other restaurants.

* * * *

"YOU CAN FOOL an adult with a hamburger, but you can't fool a teenager," explains Joe. "Ours are the best we can make. . . . And we make our banana splits like they were 25 or 30 years ago, ice cream all the way through."

No intoxicating liquor is sold, of course, and no cigarettes. Matches are supplied on request.

At intervals Joe hands out free peanuts. He gave out 100 pounds in three days and it is all right to drop the shells on the floor.

Hours are 11 a.m. to midnight, closed Mondays.

What about rules?

"There aren't any. The kids police themselves."

Liquor? . . . Arguments? . . . Bad language?

"They haven't brought any liquor. I don't think they will. The kids promise if they have any serious arguments they'll go some place else to settle them. And as for the language, I haven't heard a swear word or an off color joke here. The kids are so glad to have a place of their own that they won't do anything to spoil it."

JOE DE PALMA, right, holds the basket and Mack Lang, 15; Delmar Nye, 14, and Mickey Mize, 15, grab for peanuts.—(Staff Photos by Bob Shumway.)

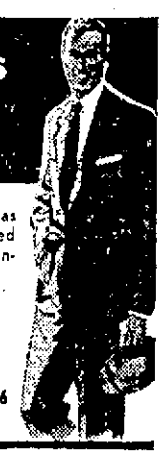

Philip Invents Electric Cloth

LONDON (UP)—The Duke of Edinburgh has invented an electrified table cloth, a London newspaper reported Saturday.

The Evening Standard said it will enable Queen Elizabeth to stick electric candelabra onto the table cloth of the royal yacht Britannia and have them light up without unsightly wires.

The paper said the 58-foot table cloth has "hundreds of yards of wire sandwiched between layers of felt and latex." Each of the candelabra has two small pins in its base which stick into the conductors.

India Envoy Cooper Tosses Hat in Senate Ring at Ike's Request

Former Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper announced Saturday he will run for the Senate from Kentucky at the personal request of President Eisenhower.

It marked the third time Mr. Eisenhower had given his personal endorsement to big-name Republicans in the GOP drive to recapture control of Congress in the November elections.

He previously had successfully persuaded former Interior Secretary Douglas McKay to run against Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), and Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington to oppose Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash).

Cooper is now ambassador to India at a salary of $25,000 a year. He presumably will relinquish that post although that is a matter between him and Mr. Eisenhower. He previously had refused to seek the Kentucky seat but changed his mind after a telephone talk with the President Friday.

* * * *

COOPER WILL OPPOSE former Kentucky Gov. Lawrence B. Wetherby. Cooper said he would seek the office because the President told him "he would be pleased" if Cooper would run.

The Kentucky Republican Central Committee, meeting in Louisville, nominated Cooper by acclamation soon after receiving a telegram in which he agreed to run.

Cooper, now in Washington on diplomatic business, told the committee he acceded to Mr. Eisenhower's wishes only Friday. He said he talked to the President by telephone and "the President told me the support of these (administration) programs in the Congress is of great importance and that he would like for me to be a candidate for the United States Senate, if it was desired in Kentucky."

* * * *

REPUBLICANS are hopeful that a ticket headed by Mr. Eisenhower, Cooper, and former assistant secretary of state Thurston B. Morton will sweep normally Democratic Kentucky in November. Morton is opposing Sen. Earle C. Clements (D-Ky) for a full six-year term.

Cooper is seeking the unexpired four years of the term of the late Sen. Alben W. Barkley, the Bluegrass State's political powerhouse who toppled Cooper from the Senate in 1954.

Mr. Eisenhower carried Kentucky in 1952 by only about 700 votes. Cooper, who was defeated by the late Sen. Thomas Underwood (D-Ky) in 1948, ran ahead of Mr. Eisenhower. He and Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) were the only Republican senatorial candidates to run ahead of the President in their states in 1952.

* * * *

ON THE PRESIDENTIAL political level:

In Raleigh, N. C., Gov. Luther H. Hodges, a Stevenson supporter, predicted New York Gov. Averell Harriman won't get much support for his Democratic presidential nomination campaign when he speaks at a Young Democratic rally July 14 at Asheboro, N. C. Hodges said he will stay away from the rally.

A group of college students and recent graduates opened a campaign to nominate Harold E. Stassen as the Republican vice presidential candidate. Stassen, former Minnesota governor and now an assistant on disarmament to Mr. Eisenhower, unsuccessfully sought the GOP presidential nomination in 1948 and 1952.

H. Brooks Baker, 22-year-old resident of Washigton, D. C., heads the group. He said it is acting without any indication of Stassen's personal feelings about the matter.

Baker said he telegraphed Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall that "we are not certain a majority of the American people and the Republican Party is happy with your choice" of Vice President Richard M. Nixon as Mr. Eisenhower's second-term running mate.

And in Chicago a new third party movement started up.

The Independent Elector Plan, an offshoot of the "For America" political group headed by Clarence Manion, circulated petitions to nominate Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind) and Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) as presidential and vice presidential candidates, respectively.

KENTUCKY REPUBLICAN leaders greeted w[illegible] jubilation Saturday a wire from John Sherman Cooper confirming he will quit as ambassador to India to run for U. S. senator. Reading the telegram in Louisville are (left to right) Dewey Daniel, chairman of GOP State Central Committee; James Park, who withdrew as candidate for nomination; and Thurston B. Morton, a Republican candidate for the second Senate seat at stake in Kentucky in November.—(AP Wirephoto)

Boat Safe After Tow by Navy

A 34-foot cabin cruiser turned up safe, though seven hours overdue, in Newport Harbor Saturday night after Coast Guard ships and planes had scoured the waters off the Long Beach breakwater.

Coast Guard officials said they received a distress call from the Koa Mei, owned by M. C. Graham of Walnut, Calif.

The Coast Guard sent out a search plane and two boats to search the area five miles south of the east end of the breakwater but failed to turn up the missing craft.

* * * *

AT 11 P.M. the Coast Guard was notified that Graham and eight to 10 passengers were safe in Newport Beach.

Graham said the Koa Mei had had a breakdown and that a Navy craft had towed his ship to port.

The Coast Guard said no explanation was available concerning the distress call which said the ship was "breaking up."

Season's High Tides Hit

The season's high tide hit the beach Saturday night but failed to do major damage.

Lifeguards said the Saturday night tides were not accompanied by the large swells which caused considerable flooding of beaches Friday night.

Waters overflowed a sand embankment built along the main beach at the foot of Linden Ave. but did not damage the $28,000 public rest room there.

The only area flooding from the 7.1-foot tide was reported along The Toledo in Naples east of the 2nd St. bridge where several inches of water covered the street.

Russia Behind West in Color Television

LONDON (U.P.)—Russia, which claims it invented the radio, is trailing far behind the West in the field of color television, a Soviet electronics engineer admitted Saturday.

Engineer Mikhail Sobolev, head of a delegation to a color telvision conference in Leningrad, said the Communist world still is in the experimental stage of color TV.

Navy Rescue Team's Plane Wrecked but Man Rescued

SEATTLE (AP) — Five Navy airmen, dunked in the North Pacific when their plane broke apart on a mercy-flight landing, got their mission accomplished anyhow. But they had to hitchhike a ride home by ship.

Lt. H. A. Marlin of Detroit, the pilot, and his companions told of their chilling experience on their arrival here Saturday on the troopship Gen. W. A. Mann.

It was a week ago that they flew 750 miles from Adak Island, in the Aleutians, in answer to an emergency call for surgery for a ship's crew member with a perforated ulcer.

* * * *

"ACTUALLY, we made a normal landing," said Lt. Marlin. "Then some part of the hull gave way."

After the five were rescued from the sinking plane, one of them, Lt. Rodger Alspach, a Navy surgeon from Van Wert, Ohio, performed the operation on the ailing ship's crew member, M. E. Johnson of Seattle. His condition was reported satisfactory as he was taken to a Navy hospital Saturday.

Other members of the dunked plane crew were Lt. V. A. Dauro, the copilot from Long Beach, Miss.; Thomas Johnson, Abilene, Tex., and John Humphrey, Los Angeles.

Illinois Girls Just Overlooked

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (U.P.) — It wasn't a lack of beauty that kept Illinois girls from entering the national "College Queen" competition, it was a lack of entry blanks.

Contest officials at Asbury Park, N. J., said they were surprised last week when no Illinois girls submitted entries.

The Champaign News Gazette said it had received a "lot" of calls from girls who read the officials' statement. The girls explained they were unaware of the contest and wanted to know how to enter.

Boy, 'Mad at World,' Says He Set Santa Anita Blaze

SIERRA MADRE (U.P.) — A 16-year-old boy who said he was "mad at the world" has admitted starting an Angeles National Forest fire which was brought under control early Saturday, Sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said the boy, an inmate of a state school for the mentally retarded at El Monte, Calif., told them he started the fire which burned in Santa Anita Canyon, by striking two rocks together.

District U. S. forest ranger William Dresser said a youth was reported dropping lighted matches in the area shortly before the blaze. He was believed to have scampered into dense brush when firefighters arrived.

The fire broke out late Friday along the trail from Sierra Madre to Chantry Flats. Fire fighters flown in by helicopters, were dropped along the fire lines, and finally contained the blaze.

2 Jets Collide, One Pilot Killed

GLENVIEW, Ill. (AP) — Two jet fighter planes collided over the Glenview Naval Air Station Saturday and one of the pilots was killed.

Sources close to the air station said the other pilot safely crash landed his plane.

Both planes were piloted by Marine officers.

The collision occurred during preparations for an air show to be staged in connection with a 10th anniversary observance of the founding of the Naval Air Reserve Training Command.

The Cook County coroner's office said the dead pilot was Lt. George Crane, 27, Chicago.

Chinese Actress Outshines Sultan in S.F. Arrival

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —Li Li-hwa, a leading Chinese motion picture actress, arrived Saturday aboard the liner President Wilson.

On the pier to greet her was a large delegation from San Francisco's Chinatown.

Also around was a covey of newsmen and photographers. They got quite a few pictures. Miss Li-hwa wielded a shuffleboard stick. She had a split skirt. Nice legs.

She told reporters she might possibly become an American citizen, that she had played in 63 money-making pictures, that she has signed a contract with Cecil B. DeMille and expects to make a pirate picture in this country.

Newsmen got so interested they failed to produce much about another passenger, Sir Abu Baker Tengku Azem T. Omar of Pahang Pekan Pahang of Malaya. He's a sultan.

Mind Patient Called Crazy Like a Fox

SPARKS, Nev. (AP)—Authorities in Sparks and Las Vegas finally unraveled Saturday the strange case of a Las Vegas burglary suspect who slipped into the state mental hospital by posing as another man.

And, they concluded, if 63-year-old Trinidad Swenson needed mental treatment it was only because he was crazy like a fox.

Here's the tale of Swenson's escapade as pieced together by Police Chief Robert Galli of Sparks, Police Chief Raymond Sheffer of Las Vegas and Dr. Sidney Tillim, superintendent of the Nevada State Hospital.

Swenson, with an impressive record of 38 arrests in past years, was in the Clark County Jail, waiting trial on a burglary charge in connection with the looting of a motel room.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, another Las Vegas man was lodged in the jail pending arrival of Sparks attendants to take him to the hospital.

When they arrived early this week, they gathered up the patient's personal belongings and papers and called out his name.

Instead of the patient, Swenson stepped forward.

He reportedly enjoyed the state-financed 440-mile ride to Sparks in the hospital ambulance.

It wasn't until Friday that Las Vegas police discovered the awful truth.

Working on the assumption that Swenson was motivated by a sound belief that it would be easier to escape from the hospital than the jail in Las Vegas, they telephoned Chief Galli in Sparks to collar him at the hospital.

* * * *

GALLI DID SO and Swenson spent Friday night in the Sparks jail.

Dr. Tillim said he had noted some contradictions between Swenson's story of his life and the background the hospital had in connection with the patient it was supposed to receive.

"But," observed the doctor, "we don't call a fellow a liar on the first acquaintance."

He added that Swenson, in his three days at the hospital, had not yet undergone the examinations aimed at diagnosing his alleged illness.

Pedicab Drivers Hit Proposal for Cutback

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Pedicab drivers are protesting a municipal move to cut the number of pedicabs in Taipei from 10,000 to 7,000. Authorities say there is not enough space for pedicab stations and that brawls between roving pedicab drivers and those allotted stations are common.

Star of Graziano Movie in Hassle With Police and Irate Bartender

ROSLYN, N. Y. (AP) — Paul Newman, 31, who plays the part of boxer Rocky Graziano in the movie "Somebody Up There Likes Me," found himself in need of friends Saturday.

He and a party came to the Jolly Fisherman here Friday night to celebrate his successful movie appearance. Sometime after midnight came the need for friends.

* * * *

SOON AFTER Newman drove away from the restaurant bartender Thomas Hutchek complained to police that Newman had knocked down shrubbery with his car. He gave police Newman's license number. They went in pursuit.

Several miles up the road the police nabbed the actor and charged him with leaving the scene of an accident and with passing a red light.

Taken immediately to Nassau County police headquarters for booking, Newman was surprised to find a battery of photographers waiting.

"How did you hear about it so soon?" he asked.

* * * *

THE PHOTOGRAPHERS were not there to meet Newman. They were waiting for a break in the Peter Weinberger kidnaping case in nearby Westbury. They snapped him anyhow.

Newman was kept at headquarters until his arraignment in First District Court where Hutchek demonstrated a change of heart.

The bartender told Judge Kathleen Kane he did not want to press the charge and said he had received compensation for damage to the shrubs. The judge allowed the charge to be withdrawn. Newman pleaded innocent to passing a red light and he was released for trial Aug. 16.

Glimpse of Pope Cures Paralysis, Woman Asserts

TERMINI IMPRESE, Italy (UP)—Mrs. Titi Polito, wife of a post office worker, said Saturday the sight of Pope Pius XII at his study window cured her of paralysis of the right arm.

Mrs. Polito said her arm suddenly became paralyzed in February, 1955, while she was slicing bread in her home. Medical treatment proved no help.

Three days ago, she said, she and her husband went to Rome and mingled with pilgrims in St. Peter's Square, waiting for the Pope's daily appearance at his study window.

When he offered his blessing to the crowd, she said, she crossed herself—with her right hand.

SHERIFF LOSES IN POLL, FIRES HIS DEPUTIES

GUYMON, Okla. (AP)—Texas County Sheriff Jim Tucker said not even his deputies supported him in his unsuccessful bid for re-election. And he fired them.

In Tuesday's primary election, Tucker ran last in a field of six candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for sheriff.

He confirmed Friday that he had fired C. F. (Jake) Gibson, jailer, and Deputies W. L. Hitchcock, and Bill John Pugh.

"I figure the least my deputies could have done was to go to the polls and vote for me," Tucker said.

Negro FHA Aide Quits, Raps Boss

NEW YORK (UP)—Mrs. Corienne R. Morrow, Brooklyn Negro who was fired and then reinstated, resigned Saturday as racial relations adviser to the Federal Housing Administration. The job pays $10,000 a year.

She charged in her letter of resignation that the agency "stands firmly as the last bastion of governmentally sanctioned racism in the United States."

Mrs. Morrow was discharged by Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole on July 25, 1955, in what he called a "reduction in force." But the Civil Service Commission's appeals examining office ordered her reinstatement on grounds her job rights had been violated.

* * * *

SHE WROTE Douglas E. Chaffin, the agency's personnel director, that despite her victory she found it necessary "in good conscience to terminate my services with the federal government."

She has accepted a similar position with a New York City inter-group relations organization.

By discharging her, she wrote, Cole acted "to repudiate and reject the concepts of sound racial relations in administration of the federally assisted housing programs" with which she had been identified since 1936.

* * * *

HIS ACTION, she said, was "an open invitation for the unchallenged pursuit of housing programs and policies calculated to restrict the right of racial minorities in access to housing."

The administration, she said, is promoting a "minority housing program conceived to counteract the effects of the Supreme Court's decision calling for public school integration."

Iwo Jima Division Pays Tribute to Fallen Marines

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., (AP) — Veterans of one of the world's finest groups of fighting men—the 5th Marine Division Assn.—paid tribute Saturday to departed comrades.

It was the division's seventh annual reunion and it ended with election of Dr. Bernard Botsch of Toledo, Ohio, as president.

Vice presidents elected were: Cmdr. Leon Eisman, USN, Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Ill.; Brig. Gen. C. H. Shuey, Newark, N. J.; Col. George A. Roll, Washington, D. C.; and Capt. Paul Preston, Miami.

Maj. States R. Jones, Washington, D. C., was elected secretary-treasurer and the group voted to hold its next convention in Buffalo, N. Y.

It was 11 years and four months ago that the 5th Marine Division stormed ashore on Iwo Jima, a cindery island born in the heat and flame of volcanic eruption.

* * * *

THE DIVISION'S brief battle record—it was created late in World War II and disbanded shortly after hostilities ceased—was as fiery as the forces that created Iwo Jima itself.

Of the 19,000 men attached to the division, some 60 per cent were casualties on the rugged slopes and parched valleys of the Pacific island. The dead numbered 2,500. But at the end of the division's ordeal the stars and stripes were flying proudly from the top of Mount Suribachi. The mission was accomplished.

Unfortunately, as so often happens in the fury and chaos of war, names of the infantrymen who actually took the hilltop are lost.

But there were many in the 5th Division who deserve the name of hero. Many are living today, and those have another mission — that of helping the children of the men who died on Iwo to obtain a college education.

There are only 571 children, for most of those who gave their lives were young men of college age.

Fifth Division Assn. men are contributing as much as they can to this educational fund. At the convention, they invited anyone else who would like to help to send a contribution to "Marines, P.O. Box 108, Miami, Fla."

Lady Athletes --Men, Too-- Nab Burglar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three generations of muscular athletes pounced upon Louis C. Bell, 30, when he was discovered in the Frank Mrak home early Saturday.

The alarm was sounded by Mrak's wife, Mrs. Alyce Mrak—a champion lady bowler—after she allegedly heard Bell enter through a window, police said.

Her cries awakened other members of the household. They included:

Mrak, who was an outstanding athlete at St. Regis College, Denver, where he pitched two no-hitters and played football and basketball.

Fred Mrak, their son, an All-City tackle at Los Angeles High School and a candidate for the UCLA varsity this fall.

Mrs. Mrak's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Gaard, a one-time ice skating champion.

The Mraks' weekend visitor, Fred's fiancee, Mary Hooker, champion girl swimmer.

Police arrived in time to prevent any serious injury and Bell was booked at the Wilshire station on suspicion of burglary.

Stolen $12,000 Rings Returned in Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two rings valued at $12,000 were found in a telephone booth Saturday by a detective who received an anonymous tip that they were there.

Detective George Green said they were part of the loot in a $17,000 burglary in West Palm Beach last Sunday.

Green, who recovered the rings from the booth at the rear of bleachers at Flamingo Park baseball field, said they had been wrapped in tissue paper and placed behind the coin slots of the pay telephone.

One ring was set with a seven-carat diamond and the other set with a huge pearl, Green added. They were taken from the home of a West Palm Beach accountant in a burglary for which Gerald Chesley Bond, 13-year-old Louisville, Ky., boy is being held in New York, the detective said.

Green said he believed an adult who either bought the jewels from the boy or was holding them for him became frightened, hid the rings and tipped the detective by phone.

3 on Tug Killed

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 3,121-ton Swedish freighter Sunnanland rammed the tug which was docking her here Saturday and three of the four members of the tug's crew perished. Witnesses said the tug, the Tyr, exploded and sank in less than a minute.

Court Protects Bachelor

TYLER, Tex. (UP)—A Tyler bachelor asked and obtained a temporary court injunction Saturday to protect him from the apparent romantic wiles of a woman.

The bachelor, Ross T. Phillips, told District Judge Connally McKay of Tyler that the woman had pursued him many days and nights in one way or another.

The injunction was granted and a hearing on it set for July 13. The petition listed the woman's name as Guinndoline Maddin of Smith County. She could not be located for comment.

Phillips said the woman's action had put him "in fear and embarrassment," causing him "great mental worry" to the extent that his health and well-being are impaired.

The bachelor said in his petition that the woman had telephoned him so often that he has "practically ceased to answer the telephone."

Phillips did not give his exact age but one of his attorneys said he was in his 50s or early 60s.

REGIONAL POLITICS

Fog of Indifference Covers Council Race

By THE LOOKOUT

Although the special election there is less than three weeks away, indifference lies like a pea-soup fog over the Fifth Councilmanic District in Long Beach.

That's the word from candidates and others who have started canvassing the area where a successor to the late Councilwoman Ruth H. Bach will be elected on July 26.

One candidate reports he found many people unaware that there is to be an election. When he asked for support, some citizens voiced surprise he was around so long before the next general city election.

* * * *

THERE ARE MORE than 16,000 registered voters in the Fifth District, but present indications point to a small fraction of that number balloting in the special election. More active campaigning in the next two weeks may change the picture, but at present the outlook for a representative vote is gloomy.

The district is bounded roughly by Los Coyotes Diagonal on the southeast, Carson St., Bellflower and Del Amo Blvds. on the north; Lakewood Blvd., Cherry and Redondo Aves. on the west.

Candidates are getting their campaigns under way. Capt. Charles M. Garrison, long-time civic worker who lives at 4315 Faculty Ave. in Lakewood Village, has announced a lengthy list of citizens as "supporters and sponsors."

Captain Garrison said he will devote full time to Councilmanic duties. He stated he will work for cleaning up and lining drainage districts, and for a square deal for the people on the sidewalk issue as well as on taxes, water, gas, transportation and subsidence problems.

* * * *

CANDIDATE Oliver W. Speraw, 2360 Tulane Ave., said he favors increased water pressure to give better fire protection, more water for lawns and reduced insurance rates in the district. Speraw, who is vice president of the Long Beach Board of Water Commissioners, urges immediate acquisition of the Lakewood Power and Water Co., a private utility. Tying in the company's pipelines, he said, will provide a flow of water from the Alamitos reservoir to produce greater pressure in the district. He explained that 8 to 20-inch reinforcing mains also could be installed throughout the network of smaller company mains to help boost water pressure.

Candidate Clarence E. Wolf, engineer at the Pacific Coast Club, has been campaigning by house-to-house visitation. He said he feels his candidacy is steadily gaining headway.

Other candidates, becoming increasingly active, are Fred Russell, 4426 Tulane; Gertrude Anderson, 3225 Charlemagne; Erik Flamer, 2578 Gandia; Murray Striewig, 4325 Pepperwood, and Joseph Strigel, 4528 Warwood Rd.

PARTY UNITS AT WORK

Twenty-eight residents of the Long Beach area will begin their official duties Tuesday as newly elected members of the county central committees of the two major parties.

Organization meetings of the committees will be held in Los Angeles Tuesday evening, with the Republicans meeting in the Alexandria Ballroom and the Democrats convening in the Assembly chamber of the state office building. Officers will be elected, with Republican V. John Krehbiel and Democrat Dor Rose expected to be reelected as chairmen.

Here are the committeemen from the two assembly districts here:

Republican, 44th District — Ward Johnson, Sammie Gilstrap, Dorothy Goodknight, Owen M. Murphy, Edna W. MacGregor, Celeste F. Brougher and Woodrow W. Baird.

Democratic, 44th District — Louis O. Fasnacht, Charles M. Gallagher, Edwin J. Wilson, Carl M. Baker, R. E. Corbett, Ferdinand Suhrer and Elizabeth B. Farrell.

Republican, 70th District — Orville W. Cole, Robert A. Wenke, James K. McCall, Gladys O'Donnell, Grace C. Bixby, Murray E. Striewig and Gilberg G. Wagner.

Democratic, 70th District — Mary C. Rene, George Nye Jr., Arthur N. Sandler, Mary J. Boyd, Jack Feuer, Samuel E. Peters, and Paul Malmuth.

At Tuesday's meetings the committees will plan their roles in behalf of their respective tickets in the November general election.

Native Sons Plan Joint Installation

Ormand P. Rogers will become president of Native Sons of the Golden West, Long Beach Parlor 278, in a joint installation of Native Sons and Native Daughters at 2:30 p.m. today in Los Cerritos Ranch House, 4600 Virginia Rd.

Walter H. Boerner will be installing officer for the Sons, with Harcourt M. Hocker chairman.

Other officers will be Harcourt M. Hocker, Leslie E. Still, Jr., past presidents; Gerald Desmond, Irving W. Duelks, John R. Lawrence, vice presidents; Richard D. Myers, marshal; Frank W. Boynton, Alfred T. Hiefield, secretaries; Joseph E. Sousa, treasurer; Freeman W. Sinclair, Lester Smith, sentinels; John A. Schwamm, Fred B. Dunn, William V. Artman, trustees.

Seashore Vanishing for Public

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Park Service came up Saturday with some bad news for vacationers: Much of the seashore is rapidly vanishing from public use for recreation.

Park Director Conrad L. Wirth based the report on a recreation area survey of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts from Calais, Maine, to Brownsville, Texas. Wirth said:

"The facts uncovered by the survey are alarming. Only a fraction of our long seacoast is left undeveloped for potential public use, and much of this small portion is rapidly disappearing before our eyes.

"The survey will have served its purpose well if public-spirited citizens and local, state and federal governments are stirred to take necessary steps, before it is too late, to preserve this priceless heritage."

* * * *

THE SURVEY report showed:

Only 240 miles of the 3,700 miles of general coastline from Maine to Texas are now in federal and state ownership for public recreation purposes. About half of this 240 miles embraces three areas of the national park system—Acadia and Everglades National Parks and the Cape Hatteras National Seashore.

The major remaining opportunities for conservation of seashore resources are largely confined to 54 undeveloped areas comprising 640 miles of beachfront.

"The supply of undeveloped seashore is dwindling fast under pressures of a booming market for beachfront holdings," the report said. "The number of persons seeking to acquire seashore property is sky-rocketing and so is the price."

Handler Returns, Dog Still Roams

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y. (UP)—Lonesome "Sheba," the vicious sentry dog who has been on a week-long hunger strike, continued to roam the Plattsburgh Air Force Base Saturday despite the return of her handler.

The hunger strike began when her handler, Airman 3/C Matthew Bardsley, 20, of Pawtucket, R. I., went on leave. He was called back to duty Saturday because he is the only person the German shepherd will obey.

The dog has been spotted several times since but no one has been able to get close enough to attempt a capture.

Steel Strike Enters Into Second Week

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The nationwide steel strike marched through its first week Saturday more as a disagreement among friends than a major economic struggle between mighty forces of big labor and big business.

There was no sign of a solution. Ninety per cent of the nation's basic steel production had been halted; 650,000 steelworkers were idle. Their walkout spread its effects to other industries where nearly 50,000 more workers were furloughed "for the duration."

* * * *

IN PHILADELPHIA, the Pennsylvania Railroad declined comment on a report published by the Philadelphia Bulletin that the railroad has ordered a 10 per cent pay cut for all non-union employes as an economy move resulting from the steel strike. The newspaper report said the cut would hit PRR officials, including President James M. Symes, and that employes affected will be granted two extra days off each month.

The total of strike-idled workers was certain to climb swiftly next week as business generally returned to a more normal course after the July 4th holiday week—a widely-used vacation period.

* * * *

CONTRACT TALKS remained stalled on dead center of the deadlock existing when the United Steelworkers struck last Saturday midnight. Even the entry of the federal mediation service, for brief separate talks with union and industry leaders, brought no hint of progress toward resumed negitiations.

$65,000 Loss on Liberace Ohio Concert

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Liberace's concert turned out to be a bad financial tune for its two Youngstown, Ohio, promoters.

The concert, originally scheduled for July 4 but postponed because of rain, was held Friday night with 5,000 fans showing up at the 36,000-seat Rubber Bowl.

Reporters were told the promoters, Frank Gorgie and David McComb, lost $65,000 on the program.

Liberace and his brother, George, were paid $35,000. Variety, the entertainment newspaper, called it one of the biggest fees paid for a single performance.

U.S. Fisheries-Aid Bills Passed by House, Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Saturday passed and sent to the Senate a bill designed to rehabilitate and give federal aid to the commercial fishing industry. The Senate has passed a similar bill.

The House measure creates a new Assistant Secretary of the Interior and upgrades the present Fish and Wildlife Service to include a Bureau of Commercial Fisheries and a Bureau of Wildlife. And in addition, it authorizes a permanent fund to provide loans to the fishing industry.

In reporting the bill to the House, the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee said depletion of fishing resources, rising operating costs and the need for new marketing and research techniques make federal help necessary.

It said the proposed changes in the law will "go far toward rehabilitating an industry important to the well being of the nation."

It cited the New England groundfish Carlifornia sardine and the salmon fishing industries as examples of problems requiring federal assistance.

Under the bill, conservation and control of game fishing is assigned to the director of the Wildlife Bureau to meet needs of sportsmen.

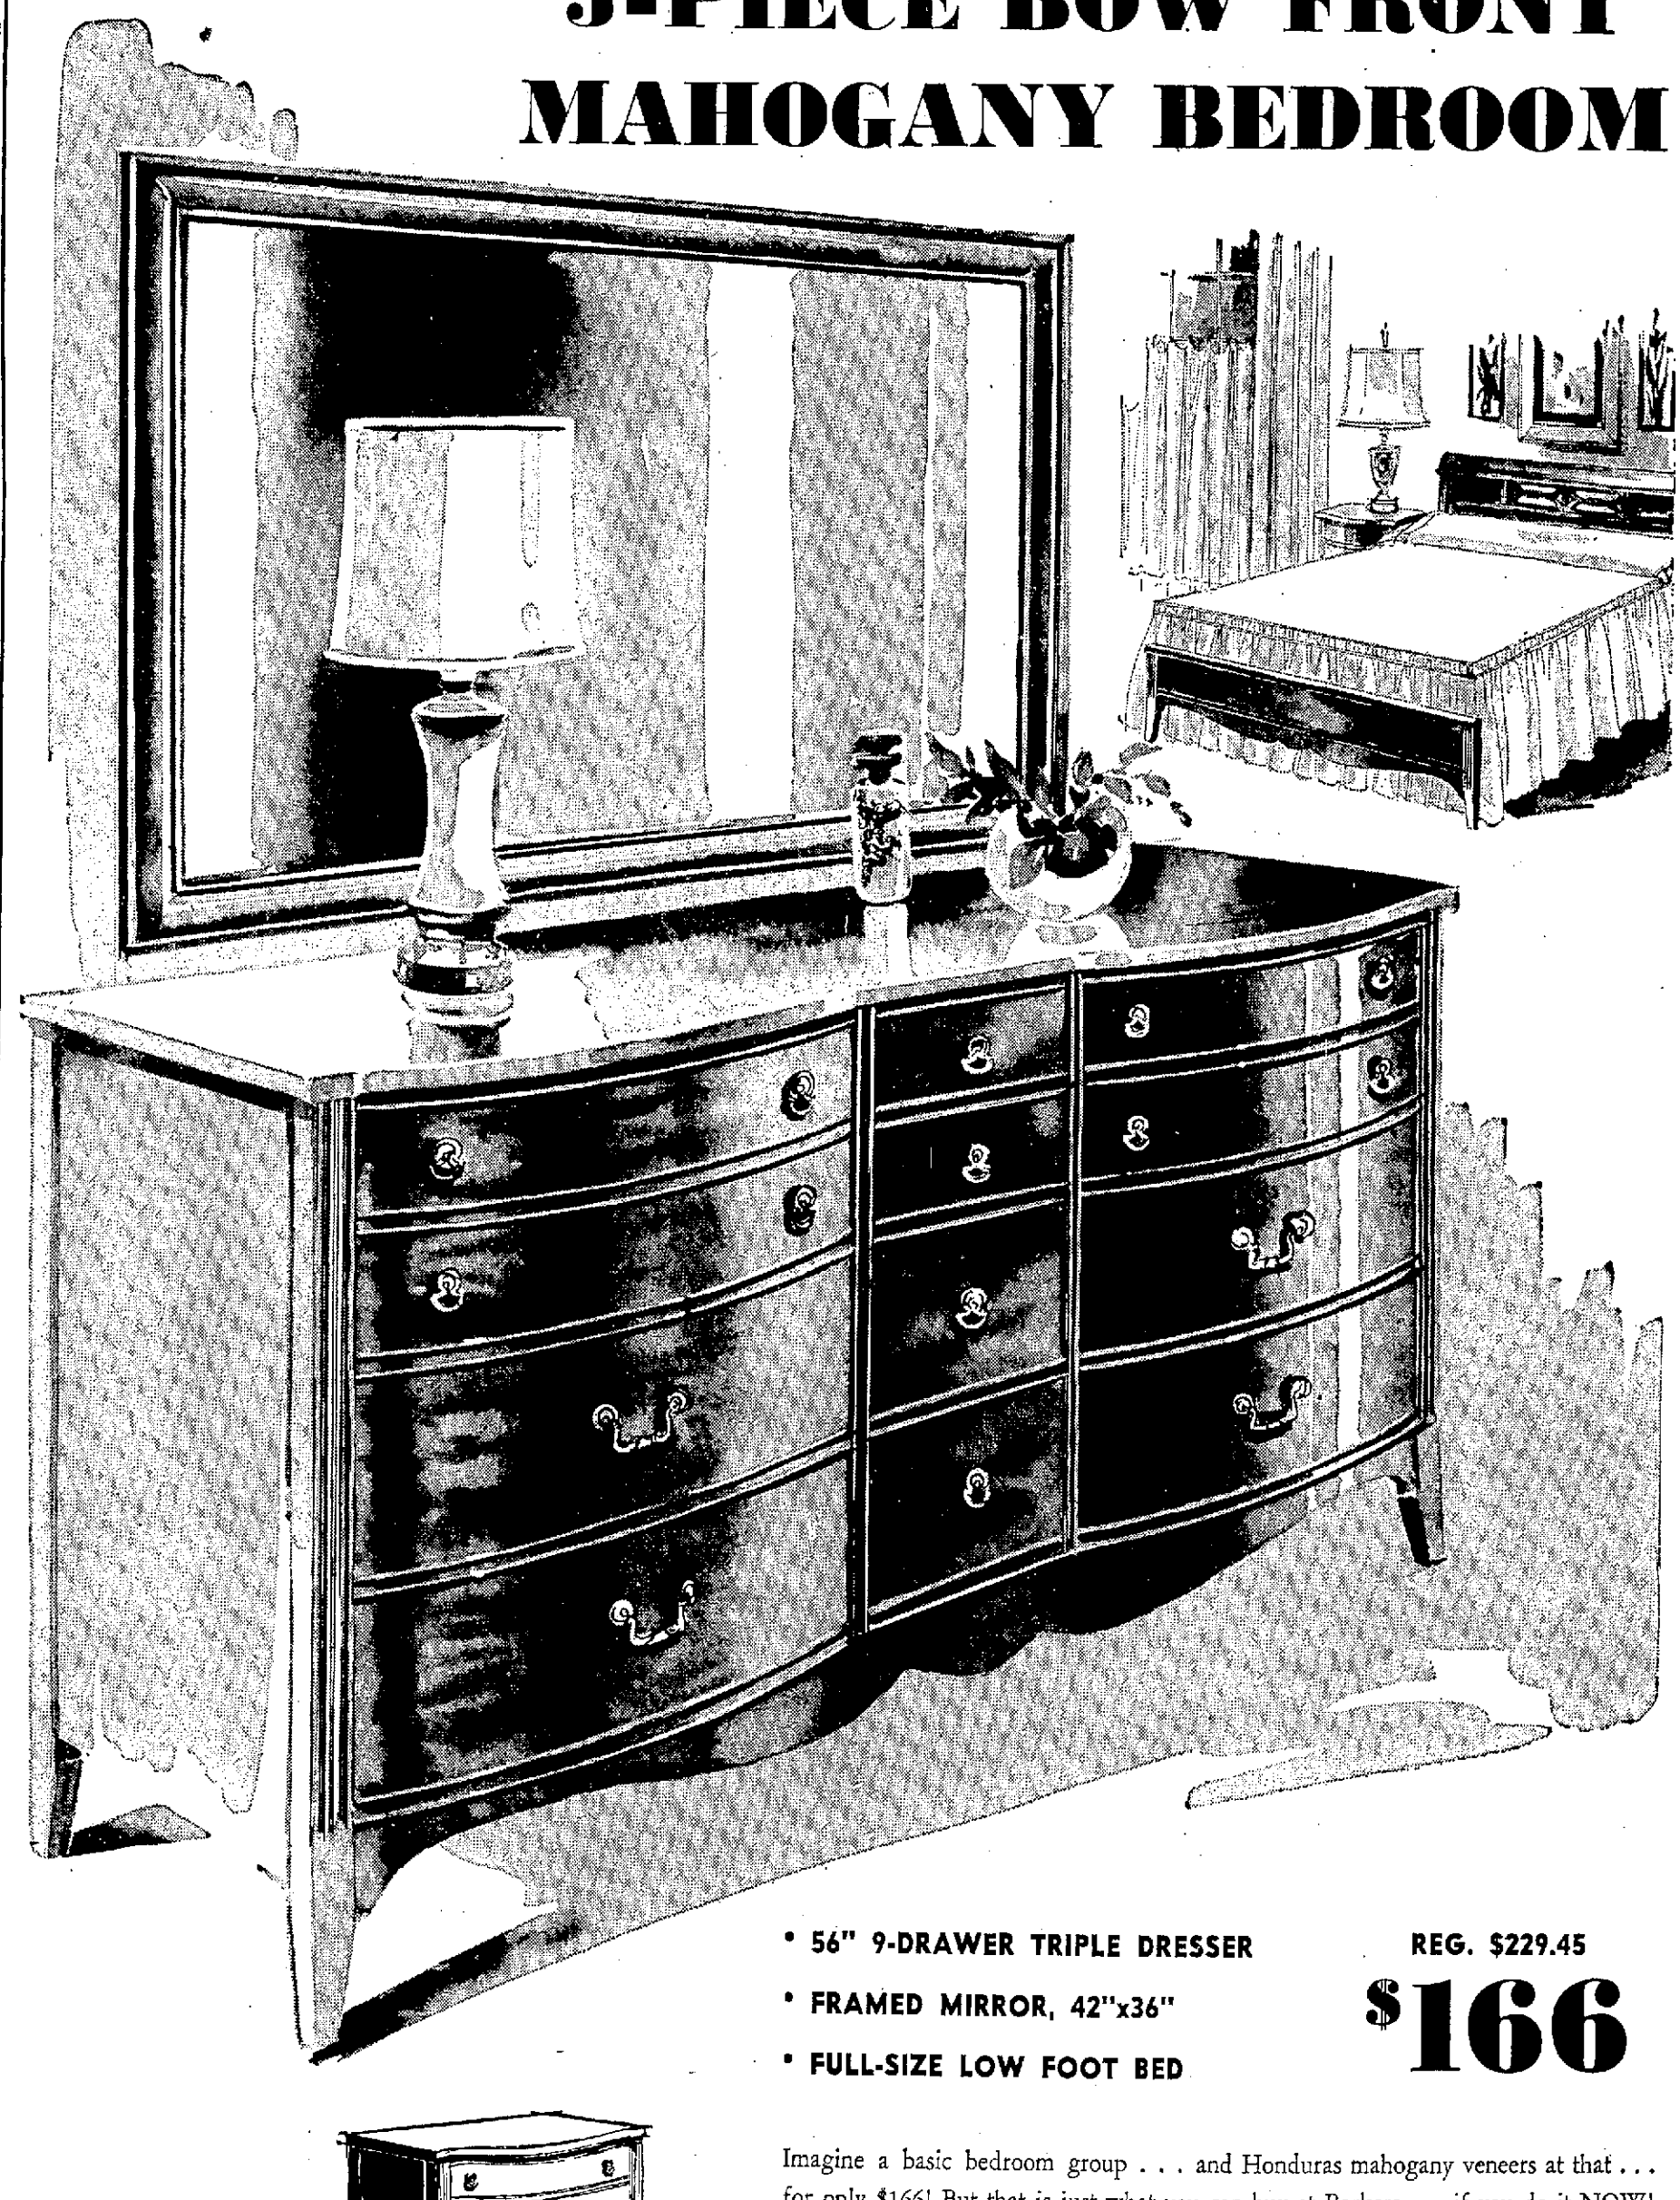

A similar bill has been passed by the Senate.

'Sky Overcrowded,' CAA Warned in 1946

Airline Collision Shows Failure of Control Plan

By BEN PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two commercial airliners crashed into each other over the Grand Canyon a week ago Saturday and 128 people died in a four mile plunge.

In Congress there is concern and alarm. Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla) has asked the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to investigate whether present air operations are keeping pace with developments in the flying industry.

The answer is a clear no. The "why" of it is something else again.

Off and on for 10 years the people concerned with flying have been warning that the air space over the United States is becoming overcrowded. Already there are 90,000 active aircraft in operation. Since 1950 there have been 66 air collisions.

They have been warning, too, that the present control system is being outmoded rapidly by high speed, high altitude planes. The complaint is that the system depends on voice radio control, eats up air space and doesn't provide broad enough supervision. Only 15 per cent of all the air traffic now flies under controlled conditions.

As far back as February 1944 the then head of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Charles Stanton, was warning of the need to improve control equipment immedately after the war.

Last December the air facilities study group headed by William B. Harding, Wall Street banker, reported to the Budget Bureau:

"Our present traffic control system is incapable of handling all the traffic that operates in good weather and any attempt to require all traffic to fly at all times under positive control with tools now available would be chaotic."

* * * *

THE CONTROL SYSTEM now used by the CAA was set up in 1936—Saturday was the 20th anniversary. It is essentially a manual system of tracing the progress of aircraft along 167,000 miles of controlled air space. All plane locations are posted by hand from information received by radio checks.

Harding's group concluded: "This obsolescent system is far too slow and too cumbersome to handle today's high speed, high density air traffic."

The CAA control system, called Federal Airways, was established primarily to handle 160-mile-per-hour DC3s. Now it is being asked to carry planes with a cruising speed of 300 miles per hour. The jet age in commercial availation will begin in 1959 when the air lines begin taking delivery on a billion dollars worth of 500-mile-per-hour plus turbine powered aircraft.

The commercial airlines can foresee the day when coast-to-coast flights will be made at 1,000 miles per hour. Meanwhile supersonic speeds by military aircraft are commonplace.

The future needs of the aviation industry currently are being studied by a special presidential committee headed by Edward P. Curtis, former Kodak company official from Rochester, N. Y. It will be another 18 months, though, before his report is ready.

As for the here and now, H. S. Chandler, deputy chief of Federal Airways, said the situation was something like trying to regulate today's powerful automobiles over horse and buggy highways—along with the horse and buggy.

Chandler also said there is stuff on the shelf—electronic gear already developed—capable of providing faster and safer control of planes.

* * * *

THE BIG PROBLEM at CAA is money, though no one will stand still for direct quotation. One official said, "We simply can't talk about money at this time. There are too many other interests involved."

In the records of the Senate commerce committee are figures introduced by Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel (R-Kan) indicating the money problem.

In 1950 the CAA asked for $127,000,000 for navigation aids. The Department of Commerce cut that request to $67,200,000. The budget Bureau whittled it to $42,200,000. Congress actually appropriated, $37,500,000.

For fiscal 1956 the CAA requested $26,500,000. Congress set aside $16,000,000.

It was not until this year that Congress got around to approving a 246-million-dollar construction program for control and navigation aids to be spent over five years. The first $40,000,000 will be spent for long-range radar to control flying above 24,000 feet, which presently is limited to military flights. Eventually radar control will be lowered to 18,000 feet.

Money for reseach has been very limited. In no year since 1947 has the CAA received in excess of $1,800,000 for developing new gear.

Meanwhile, the Air Force has spent $3,000,000,000 on a system which can track and identify any plane in the air anywhere in the United States. It uses an enormous electronic brain for computation.

This Air Force system is not a control system, but there are people such as Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Assn. (ATA) who believe that something similar could be developed for air traffic control.

The CAA only now is moving into the electronic computer experimental stage. It will be a card-fed machine which will track planes for the ground controller.

* * * *

THIS AIR CONTROL business is immensely complicated. There are in the United States 167,000 square miles of controlled air space; that is, established routes set up for instrument flying along radio ranges. It is a sort of sky highway with a radio beam for the center line. This network presently extends up to 24,000 feet. It does not cover the United States by any means. There are great gaps, especially in the West.

Further, it was set up during the era of short-range aircraft and the control areas do not necessarily follow the shortest routes between two points.

For this reason long-range aircraft, such as last week's ill-fated United Air Lines and Trans-World Air Lines planes, take other routes than the controlled air lanes. These two planes collided outside controlled areas.

Visibility out of the pilot compartment of an aircraft, by the way, is poor. Chandler said; "it stinks." There are guesses around the CAA that this may have been one of the factors in the TWA-United crash.

This matter of visibility and the possibility of air collision long has been of concern to pilots. As yet, ATA officials say, there is no airborne radar device to detect approaching aircraft or other obstacles. Just four days before the big collision the ATA's board of directors urged the development of a "proximity warning indicator."

However, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Waldemar A. Ayers, former assistant chief of research for Sperry Gyroscope Corp., said at least three radar devices for prevention of air collisions had been developed.

Ayers urged federal legislation requiring use of anti-collision equipment.

* * * *

BECAUSE OF THE increasing performance of aircraft, technicians foresee the day, and that shortly, when all high speed, high altitude flying will have to be radar controlled.

When a pilot is off in the wild blue yonder, his eyesight tends to shift into neutral; that is, he is gazing into space without focusing.

If he is in a jet traveling at 500 miles per hour and sees another jet one mile away approaching at the same speed and altitude, he is a dead pigeon. It will take four seconds for the two planes to collide.

A pilot at those speeds needs seven second to focus, figure out the situation and do something about it. He is three seconds short.

DEPUTY DIRECTOR of air traffic control for Civil Aeronautics Authority—H. S. Chandler—uses models in Washington, D. C., Saturday to demonstrate the 1,000-foot difference in altitude the CAA considers safe for planes passing each other while flying in opposite directions. Chandler said that under present control systems, the handling of high-speed, heavy air traffic is something like trying to regulate modern automobiles over horse-and-buggy highways. —(AP Wirephoto)

Wrecks of 2 Giant Planes Smudges Against Backdrop of Grand Canyon

By FRANK WETZEL

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (AP) —The bags are olive drab and formless. Army men silently lift them from a helicopter and transfer them to another plane.

No one speaks. The bags contain the bodies of the dead, the victims of the world's worst commercial airline disaster.

Army helicopter pilots are ferrying out what is left of 128 people, killed in the crash of a Transworld Airline Super Constellation and a United Airline DC-7.

* * * *

THE PLANES dropped from 21,000 feet—some say they collided—on June 30. They smashed into Grand Canyon in a deep and rugged gorge close to the point where the Little Colorado and Colorado Rivers merge.

Air Force doctors, hurried to the crash site, report little is left — either of the planes or their passengers.

Now they bring out the bodies.

Bystanders count the bags as they are transferred. Someone sticks his head into the helicopter and signals that's all. The other plane immediately taxies out to the grass runway and takes off. Conversation slowly resumes.

* * * *

THE TOTAL WEIGHT of the planes was more than 100 tons. But in Grand Canyon they are nothing. Just two black smudges, some shiny metal. And from a distance of only a few feet, the pilots say, you can't see any bodies.

Reporters scurry from group to group, afraid they're missing something, until gradually the knots disperse and the pilots take off again.

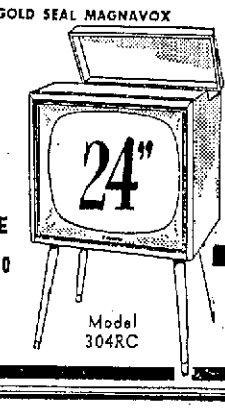

The newsmen are quiet while the bags are transferred. But the rest of the time there is curiously little emotion. Perhaps the crash is like the H-bomb. Tell me about megatons, or the size of a blast equal to even 1,000 tons of dynamite, and I can't imagine it. It's too big.

Later, when we finally were able to fly over the wreckage in Army helicopters, the effect was the same. The mess below was too far divorced from airplanes and people as we knew them to create empathy.

It wasn't a matter of being hard. It was just too big for us.

Syria to Draft All Fit Refugees From Palestine

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian Parliament Saturday passed legislation subjecting all fit Palestinian refugees in Syria to Syrian military conscription.

This means all Palestinians in Syria between 18 and 26 years of age will have to serve a two-year term in the Syrian army, an official source explained.

The legislation, passed at the government's request, gave the 100,000 Palestinians who took refuge in this country during the 1948 Arab-Israeli war equal rights with Syrians in work, employment and commerce. It did not, however, grant them political rights or change their nationality.

Expert in Financing Sees Public Mass Transport Need

An expert in transportation financing said here Saturday he believes that the Los Angeles Metropolitan Area must come to a form of mass transportation owned by the public rather than by private enterprise.

Leland M. Kaiser, senior partner in the investment banking firm of Kaiser and Co., San Francisco, and executive vice president of Insurance Securities, Inc., Oakland, spoke to 300 sales representatives and clients of the securities firm in the Lafayette Hotel.

* * * *

KAISER SAID the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transit Authority is making good progress in preparing its case for broader powers, to be presented at the next meeting of the state legislature.

He referred to the Authority's request to be taken out from under regulation by the Public Utilities Commission, to be given authority over a much wider area—possibly four counties, and to be able to work with any type of mass transportation, not just monorail, to which it is now restricted.

Granted the requested legislation, the Authority envisions a three-year program of buying and consolidating existing privately-owned lines, eliminating multiple executive staffs, eliminating overlapping transit coverage.

* * * *

AT THE END of three years, the Authority would break into new types of mass transportation.

Kaiser would be a key figure in the financial planning of the program. Kaiser and Co. is credited with working out the financing of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

Speaking on the securities firm, Kaiser said it holds the largest aggregation of fire, casualty and life insurance stocks in the world, over $215 million. He predicted it would be a billion-dollar institution within 10 years.

LELAND M. KAISER (left), executive vice president of Insurance Securities, Inc., Oakland, confers with David Feuer, divisional manager, at meeting here Saturday of 300 sales representatives and clients of the firm. Paralyzed Vet's New House Under Vandals' Attack

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP)—A paraplegic veteran Saturday pleaded with vandals to stop wrecking his special house being constructed on city-donated land.

Richard J. O'Brien Jr., who was paralyzed from the waist down in the Korean war, asked police for special guards for the house.

O'Brien noted that the city's gift of some unused park property for his house was resented by some people who said "there will be no park property left soon."

The house is being equipped with special devices to aid the paralyzed veteran. In recent weeks, O'Brien said, vandals ripped down every piece of insulation installed by the contractor, broke windows, ripped valuable electrical equipment, and stole building materials.

Mexican 'Oscar' for Documentary Given Minnesotan

MEXICO CITY (UP) — A multilingual documentary film named "Fuego Cautivo (Captive Fire)," produced by Irving Levy of St. Paul, Minn., won a Mexican "Oscar" Friday night as the best short subject of 1955.

The Ariel Award was presented at special ceremonies here.

"Fuego Cautivo," which was produced in Italian, French, English and Spanish, concerned Mexico's nationalized oil industry. It was the first documentary produced by a company organized here by Levy mainly for the purpose of producing commercial films for movies and television.

Levy and his family, who have lived here for 2½ years, plan to return in September to St. Paul, where he was formerly an attorney and a dealer in electronic equipment.

Boston Post Resumes Publication

BOSTON (UP)—A Boston attorney took a 24-day option on the Boston Post Saturday and all labor unions involved agreed to return to work immediately.

Preparations were started at once to publish a Sunday morning edition, 24 hours after the Post had suspended publication.

After hours of negotiations, the following joint statement was issued by the principals:

"John Fox, publisher of the Boston Post, and John S. Bottomly, Boston lawyer, announced that they have reached an agreement concerning the purchase of the newspaper assets of the Post.

"The terms of the agreement provide that Mr. Bottomly shall have an option until July 31, 1956, to buy these assets. The agreement provided for the supplying of working capital until the option date, July 31, 1956."

Fox had shut down the newspaper Friday night because of financial difficulties.

Modern Dental Plates

Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved techniques," used in the construction of dental plates. Dental Science has followed a "progressive" path that resulted in dental plates more natural in "appearance," better fitting and more "comfortable" to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. Ask to see samples of modern dental plates, uppers, lowers and partials. GOOD dental plates need not be expensive. THE COST IS SMALL.

THANKS, LONG BEACH

Your Welcome to Dr. Glass More Than Expected, the Greatest Month in the History of Pridham Davis, Long Beach

Five weeks ago Pridham Davis announced the coming to Long Beach of Dr. Ben E. Glass, Opt.D. You responded to our welcome as never before.

"Dr. Glass and I want to merit the confidence shown in us by Long Beach people," Dr. Davis said. "No one profits in the long run, unless they have service in mind first, with profit secondary. You can depend on us to show our appreciation for the past record setting month."

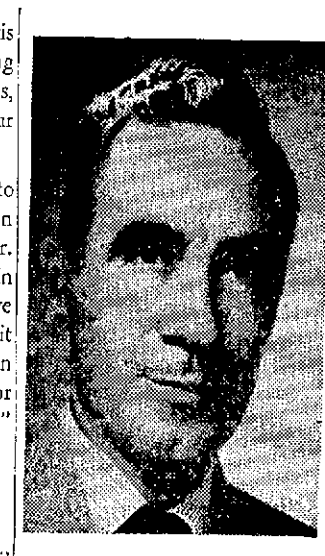

BACKGROUND OF DR. GLASS INTERESTING

Dr. Ben E. Glass, Opt.D., graduated from Los Angeles Polytechnic High School. After which, he graduated from the Los Angeles School of Optometry, obtaining the degree of Doctor of Optometry. Dr. Glass operated as an individual optometrist for many years previous to joining Pridham Davis.

An interesting sidelight in the career of Dr. Glass is his study in subjects other than optometry. He studied drama, music and make-up. His study of make-up ties in well with the science of fitting glasses to match facial characteristics.

WHY DR. GLASS DECIDED TO JOIN PRIDHAM DAVIS

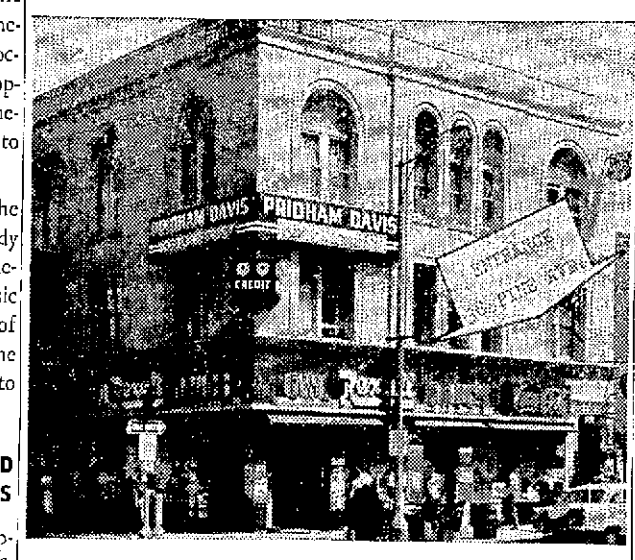

"A man feels proud to operate his own professional practice," Dr. Glass said. "But I am better adapted to serve well with Pridham Davis. I am happy in my work, because I am usually busy, and a good income is assured. I am happy too that Pridham Davis has good principles professionally and insists on such a liberal attitude toward everyone we serve."

Dr. Pridham Davis, Opt.D., Head of Service Bearing His Name

Dr. Ben E. Glass, Opt.D., In Charge of Long Beach Office

LONG BEACH OFFICE—38 Pine Ave., Corner 1st & Pine

Dr. Glass Stresses Importance of Good Guarantee

Dr. Glass' professional training qualifies him as an optometrist but an interesting side light is his attitude on dealing with people.

"I believe that, as a whole, people are honest," Dr. Glass said. "Very seldom has anyone tried to take advantage of me when I have done my best to solve their eyesight problem. Therefore, I welcome the opportunity of giving a money back guarantee. You trust me to give you eyesight entirely satisfactory to you, and I'll trust you to decide whether I keep your money or give it back to you."

GUARANTEE DARING IN VIEW OF CREDIT OFFER

"An unqualified guarantee is more daring when credit is involved," Dr. Glass said. "On our credit plan, payments are so small it may be quite a time after you wear your glasses, before your last payment is made. If you are not satisfied and have paid only a part of the cost of your glasses, I will cancel the balance you owe and return the money you have already paid."

Optometrists Are Responsible for Better Vision

To start with, an optometrist examines your eyes. Without an accurate eye examination no one knows what you really need. An optometrist is more extensively educated in the science of vision measurements than any other profession.

After Eye Examination

Suppose your eye examination is completely accurate. Suppose the prescription for lenses is exactly what you need for the most efficient sight. Then it's up to whoever fills the prescription to accurately follow through.

One of the main reasons why it's good to put your eyesight in the hands of an optometrist is that he is responsible for the grinding of your lenses, as well as the prescription itself. There's no chance of one service blaming the other in case you are not satisfied. One person, the optometrist, is responsible for everything from your eye examination to completed glasses.

Styling and Fitting Frames

Style of frame may be more important than you think. You need a style both suited to your facial features and adaptable to your seeing needs. You need these fitted so that you are comfortable and not distracted by a fit that may be improper for the type of lens you have.

An optometrist is a specialist in both styling and fitting of glasses. He is solely responsible for a good result in these respects, as well as accurate eye examination and grinding of lens. Every phase is handled by the optometrist and you can hold him solely responsible. You don't have to wonder whose fault it is in case you are not satisfied. Your optometrist backs up every process in the creation of corrected eyesight.

VISUAL TRAINING

"Eye exercises often correct muscular deficiencies not correctable by glasses," Dr. Davis said. "The optometrist not only offers all the services pertinent to getting glasses, but he offers visual training so that, if you need it, you may have added help."

Proper Emphasis on Eyesight Pays Off in Work and Play

"If you are a secretary who is slowed down by not being able to read typewritten material at arms' length, you are handicapped," Dr. Davis said. "It won't be long until this shows up in the amount of work turned out. Why take a chance on inferior eyesight? Your problem, as a rule, can be solved with the proper kind of glasses. Maybe you need eye exercises plus glasses. Only your optometrist gives you both, as a regular custom."

"Suppose you are a golfer and can see well only at certain distances. You may need sight correction for several distances. You have the opportunity of improving your game with proper eyesight correction," Dr. Davis said.

"Those in precision machinery work, drafting, secretarial work, sewing, and many eye-demanding occupations can protect their income and future with proper eyesight care," Dr. Davis said.

Service That Always Pleases Aim of Each Pridham Davis Office

First, you want glasses entirely efficient and pleasing. But Pridham Davis wants you to have more than this. He wants to help keep them that way.

"Please don't neglect to have your frames adjusted when first needed," Dr. Davis said. "There's no added cost for this service. It's part of the price you pay for your glasses."

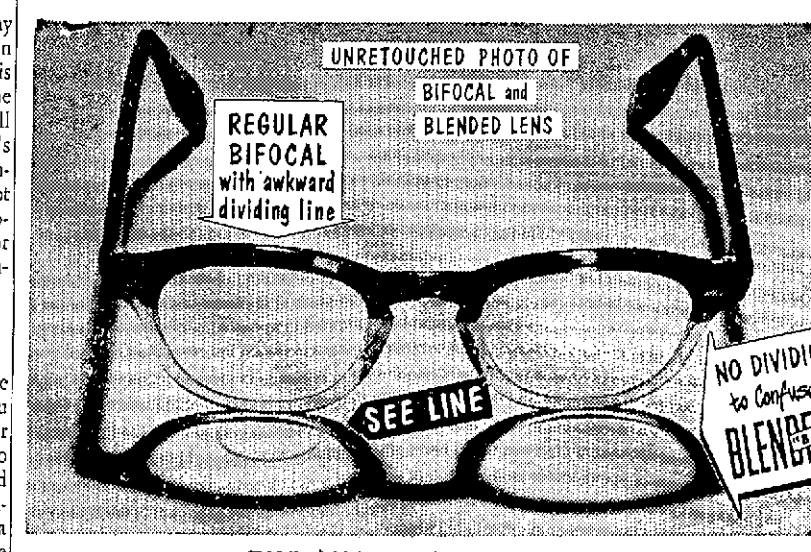

"We want to take care of your eyesight needs, and this doesn't stop after you have finished paying for your glasses," Dr. Davis said.

Visual Needs Come First The Money Is Secondary

Your eyes are so important to your work, and in every way, that money should not stand in your way, according to Dr. Davis.

"Let's take care of your eyesight first and put the money secondary," Dr. Davis said. "You can wait six weeks before making your first small credit payment, and the down payment is so small you'll hardly miss it."

ALL TYPES OF GLASSES, BUT ESPECIALLY BLENDED LENSES

THE SHADOW PROVES IT

HOW BLENDED LENSES WORK

You use Blended Lenses like bifocals or trifocals. The big difference is that you DON'T HAVE AN ABRUPT JUMP when you move your eyes. You have gradual changes from reading to arm's length and distance areas. Gradual changes are more acceptable to bodily functions than quick, abrupt shifts.

With bifocals, when you move your head and objects jump, beware of STUMBLING.

There is possible confusion of SEEING DOUBLE. When moving about or driving with Blended Lenses you are safe, because objects will not jump, and you will not see double through any part of lens.

EYE EXAMINATION

Examination of your eyes will indicate the type of lenses best for you. Whether these be Blended Lenses, or any other type, Pridham Davis is prepared to fit you for your needs.

Committee OKs Democrat Probe of Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee gave its approval Saturday to a proposal by the Democrats for an investigation of the foreign aid program.

It approved a resolution setting aside $300,000 for the study and directing the Foreign Relations Committee to determine how the multibillion-dollar program "serves, can be made to serve, or does not serve, the national interest."

The Senate is expected to act on the resolution next week. The measure calls for a report by Jan. 31 on the results of the investigation.

The foreign relations committee would be assisted by outside experts who, Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said, "have no axes to grind." He said the investigation would be conducted wholly indpendently of the administration.

Ships Collide

DOVER, England (AP) —The 3,333-ton English Channel ferry Lord Warden collided in dense fog Saturday night with the French freighter Tampa outside Dover's harbor. The Coast Guard said damage appeared minor.

Social Security Compromise in Senate Monday

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats will offer a new compromise plan next week to liberalize social security benefits for women and disabled workers.

Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga) said Saturday he will introduce half of the two-part compromise on Monday. Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla) will follow with the other half.

George said he is "very hopeful" about the chances of passage. Other Democratic sources said the plan clears the way for Senate action on the delayed legislation possibly next week.

Truman Says Parents Cause of Delinquency

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Former President Harry S. Truman, who "got plenty of the woodshed treatment" as a boy, Saturday advised modern parents to pay more heed to the Biblical admonition, "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

Truman, his wife and 34 pieces of luggage stopped here briefly between trains, en route back to their home at Independence, Mo., following a European tour.

"Mama and papa are more to blame than the kids," Truman said of the juvenile delinquency problem. "Parents should stay home and raise their children, and spend less time in taverns. They should instill discipline and moral principles in them."

Truman said he disagrees with "progressive" methods of child-rearing.

"I believe in the woodshed treatment," he said. "That is the best there is. I got plenty of it when I was a boy. I don't know if it did any good, but I've never been in jail."

The brief visit coincided with the second day of a two-day hearing on delinquency problems in the St. Louis area.

TV Man Shot At After Dope Telecast

DENVER (UP)—The news director of a Denver television station reported to police today that a mysterious assailant fired a shot through the windshield of his car a few hours after he had made a telecast threatening to make public a list of alleged narcotics peddlers.

Tom Carlisle, 30, said the shot was fired from a car parked near his home in suburban Lakewood at about 1:30 a.m. Carlisle said he believed the bullet, which left a hole in the car windshield and then apparently passed out an open window of the automobile, came from a .38 or .45-caliber pistol.

CAPITAL CAPERS

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM
(Independent, Press-Telegram Capital Bureau)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Former President Harry Truman has just about decided to come out for a candidate before the balloting starts at the Democratic convention. This would be a startling about-face, but Mr. Truman has been known to change his mind before.

Up until now, the former president has steadfastly refused to give his blessing to the candidacy of anyone, although he obviously likes Harriman and Stevenson and is cool about Kefauver.

Now, it can be reported from a reliable source, Harry is considering getting things off to a booming start at Chicago by coming out strong for one man. The odds here are that it will not be Harriman because the former president thinks Stevenson has the nomination sewed up.

Some of Truman's closest friends here who are in the Stevenson camp took the extreme precaution of putting in a transatlantic telephone call to him just before he boarded the ship to come home from Europe. They cautioned Truman against making any off-hand cracks when the ship docked in New York that could be interpreted as rocking the Stevenson boat.

THE COLLISION of two airliners over Grand Canyon has touched off new demands for radar on commercial planes. For more than five years, the Civil Aeronautics Administration has received similar appeals.

The CAA has always brushed them aside on grounds that the devices lack sensitivity, are too bulky and heavy, and require intense concentration of the pilot or co-pilot, almost to the exclusion of other tasks, such as flying the plane. But now CAA will have to take another look.

* * * *

FOR THE LAST four years the Democrats have been needling the Republicans for calling the Eisenhower presidential campaign and the GOP national administration a "crusade." But the Democrats apparently see some political value in such a religious connotation. The Democratic National Committee, opening a drive for increased voter registration this year, now calls for a "pilgrimage to the polls."

SLY LYNDON JOHNSON is using a short respite from his duties as Senate Democratic leader to get in some digs about President Eisenhower's physical condition.

Like the President, Johnson was the victim of a heart attack last year. He has been taking an unpublicized 10-day rest cure ordered by doctors after a checkup at Minnesota's Mayo Clinic.

Johnson tells intimates that the job of maneuvering legislation through the Senate is a heavy one requiring occasional rests, in the opinion of his doctors.

SEN. ESTES KEFAUVER'S political charm, which seems to hypnotize all kinds of Democrats except those in command of the party, is at work again.

The Tennessean has been all but counted out as a threat for the presidential nomination, but he's still considered very much in the ruinning for the vice presidential slot — regardless of who the nominee is and despite Estes' own disclaimers.

Men and women from all walks of life come to take these treatments because other methods of healing have failed to help them. Many have spent a fortune in seeking cure before they try this simple, effective natural method of Dr. Chan. Our patients tell us that they wish they had known of our wonderful treatments sooner so that their suffering could have been avoided.

READ THESE AMAZING TESTIMONIALS

Dear Mr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method." Signed, Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "Five years ago I was badly stricken with neuritis in my shoulders and extremities. My hands and knees were so badly swollen that I could hardly use them. I wasn't able to raise my arms above the shoulders. I was told by several doctors that they have done all they could for me and that I no longer will be able to work again. Finally a friend referred me to try Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy. After the first week I felt much improved and the fourth week found me walking much easier with the pains in my shoulders disappearing, my hands returned to normal and I had use of them once more. I cannot too highly recommend Dr. Chan to anyone who is ill." Signed E. H. Irving.

Ike Continues Silence on Second Term

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP)—President Eisenhower passed up another chance Saturday to speak out on his second term plans but may make an announcement within a fortnight.

The President sat on his sun porch and read newspaper predictions that he will stay in the reelection race. He made no effort to squelch or confirm them.

Late Saturday, the President took advantage of a warm sun to chip and putt golf balls on his green near the farm house. Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton swung a club with the President. Maj. Gen. Howard Mc C. Snyder, the President's personal physician kept score.

White House Press Secretary James Hagerty disclosed that presidential assistant Sherman Adams would meet with the President Monday on White House business.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower planned a quiet weekend with their son, Maj. John Eisenhower, and his family. Hagerty said there would be no other visitors and Eisenhower "doesn't plan to do anything—just take it easy."

B'nai B'rith Aide Called in Red Quiz

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Committee on UnAmerican activities Saturday subpoenaed the chief counsel of the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League to determine whether he contributed secretly to a report alleging widespread "blacklisting" of left-wingers in the entertainment world.

The committee said the witness, Arnold Forster of New York, will be questioned behind closed doors next Wednesday in connection with its investigation of the report which was issued 12 days ago by the fund for the Republic. The fund is financed by the Ford Foundation.

Also called for questioning Wednesday was Frederick Woltman, staff writer for the New York World Telegram and Sun who has protested that the report made "false" charges against him.

* * * *

THE INVESTIGATION opens Tuesday when John Cogley of Baldwin, N.Y., author of The Report and former editor of the Catholic magazine Commonweal, will be questioned behind closed doors. After he was subpoened last week Cogley protested that it is not "right" for the committee to question him about "confidential sources of information."

In ordering the inquiry, Committee Chairman Francis E. Walter (D-Pa) asserted the report "leaves very grave charges against organizations and persons in the entertainment industry" who have fought the "Communist conspiracy."

The report alleged that the radio and television and movie industries have been subjected since World War II to a Communist - fearing blacklisting practice.

* * * *

IT TOLD of an alleged "security clearance" system through which suspected performers can become rehabilitated. It suggested that the blacklisting practice had affected the morale and livelihood of many performers.

A spokesman said the committee wants to find out whether Forster is the unnamed "public relations expert" who is quoted extensively in the report about his experience in arranging for the "clearance" of artists falsely suspected of pro-communist leanings.

The spokesman said there has been widespread speculation in the radio-television industry in New York to that effect since the report was issued.

The "expert" was quoted in the report as saying he had guided more than a dozen once-blacklisted performers to the "right people" to help get them cleared. He named Jack Wren, an executive with the advertising agency, Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, as a key figure in arranging for such clearances.

The unnamed expert also said the clearance process sometimes involved getting "affidavits" from such writers as Woltman and newspaper columnists George Sokolsky and Victor Riesel.

Woltman has denied ever giving such "affidavits."

London Thefts Acknowledged by U.S. Schoolma'am

LONDON (UP) — American schoolteacher Sarah Sterett, 51, of Buffalo, N. Y., pleaded guilty to stealing goods from four London shops in Magistrate Court here Saturday.

She was fined $71 for court costs and discharged. She told Magistrate Paul Bennett she was ashamed and did not know what had come over her. The stolen goods were worth about $80.

"I trust you won't lose your job over the matter, disgraceful as it is," Magistrate Bennett told her.

Explorer's Life Lost in Congo River

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The body of Jack Yowell, 36, photographer and explorer, was found Saturday near a pier at Bukama, a port on the Congo River—six miles from where his kayak overturned six days ago. Burial was in Bukama in the southern part of the Belgian Congo.

Yowell and John Goddard, an American explorer, were traveling the 3,000-mile river from its source to the Atlantic when they became separated in a stretch of crocodile-infested rapids. Yowell had recently appeared in the United States on a lecture tour. His British-born widow and three children survive. They made their home in Nairobi.

* * * *

IN HIS LAST letter to his wife, Yowell reported that he and Goddard had covered 300 miles of their planned exploration.

Goddard sent a cable to Mrs. Yowell from Stanleyville telling her of Yowell's disappearance. Belgian Air Force planes joined in the search for him.

Goddard, whose home town was listed as Los Angeles, Calif., and two French explorers, made a 10-months trip to the Nile River from its source to its mouth in 1951.

Probe Mystery Death of Tax Trial Judge

ST. LOUIS (AP)—U.S. District Judge Rubey M. Hulen, who presided during the conspiracy trial of two former top Truman administration officials, died on the operating table Saturday after he had been found shot in the yard of his suburban home.

The 61-year-old jurist's death came less than four hours after he had been found in a spot in his yard where he occasionally practiced marksmanship.

He had been given preliminary treatment at St. Louis County Hospital and rushed to Barnes Hospital for an emergency operation. He died while this was in progress.

* * * *

JUDGE HULEN, who physicians at County Hospital said was shot in the left temple, had been given a blood transfusion in an ambulance en route to the second hospital.

Mrs. Hulen said her husband occasionally practiced revolver marksmanship by a wood pile in the back yard on squirrels and rabbits.

Matthew J. Connelly, White House appointments secretary to former President Truman and T. Lamar Caudle, former head of the Justice Department's tax division were convicted of conspiring to defraud the government by a jury in Judge Hulen's court June 14.

* * * *

THE TWO MEN were scheduled to be sentenced by him July 19, the same date motions for a new trial are to be heard.

The death of Judge Hulen raised a question whether another judge who had not heard the trial could pass sentence on Caudle and Connelly.

JUDGE RUBEY M. HULEN
Shot in Temple

In Washington, the Justice Department, which directed the prosecution, declined to make any immediate comment on the situation.

Judge Hulen was found by a Negro gardener, Ivory Robertson, who told officers the jurist was lying on his back with a .32 caliber revolver near his left foot.

ROBERTSON said he thought nothing about the shot after hearing it because it was Judge Hulen's practice to shoot in that section of the yard. Robertson estimated it was about 20 minutes before he walked over toward the wood pile and found the judge, who was conscious when first taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Hulen, who has arthritis, said her husband had planned to enter a hospital for a general physical checkup Saturday and had made arrangements for a friend of the family to come and stay with her while he was in the hospital. He had been suffering from high blood pressure.

The judge's wife said he told her earlier Saturday that he would remove the revolver from a dresser drawer where it was kept because he didn't want anyone "to get hold of it" while he was in the hospital.

She said he then took the gun to the spot in the yard, about 50 yards southwest of the house, where he had practiced marksmanship.

Rome Jails Aerial Drug Smugglers

ROME, Italy (AP) — Police announced Saturday they had smashed the airborne operations of a ring which smuggled narcotics wrapped in waterproof plastics and hidden in the seats and toilets of air-line planes.

Police Chief Arturo Musco said seven persons, including two baggage loaders for the Scandinavian Airlines and the clerk of a jewelry store at Ciampino Airport, were arrested. Three others are being sought, including Maria Kopacs, attractive 32-year-old Yugoslav refugee, and her Italian lover, Eugenio Cogni, 36, a former air-line pilot.

* * * *

AGENTS SAID the arrest of several Rome aristocrats on June 24 helped break the case. Among the jailed aristocrats were Prince Giuseppe (Pepito) Pignatelli, Duke Ludovico Lante della Rovere and Marquis Emanuele de Seta, who are still being questioned.

Police said the ring operated with precision, smuggling about 2.2 pounds of narcotics aboard westbound planes at Tehran, Iran, regularly for the past several months, for delivery to Rome. Other shipments were left aboard to supply other points further west.

Report Strong Tibet Revolt Against Reds

KALIMPONG, India (AP)—New reports of spreading resistance by Tibetans to Chinese Communist rule have been brought to this north India border town by travelers from that isolated country. There are indications a strong resistance movement may be in the making.

These reports say the Chinese Reds are still sending bombing missions daily to hit at "resistance centers" in eastern and southern Tibet in an effort to stamp out a revolt that started in early April.

* * * *

THE TRAVELERS refer to Mimang—the Tibetan peoples' committees—an anti-Chinese political group organized in 1951, a year after the Chinese Reds occupied Tibet.

Among those arriving in Kalimpong are former Tibetan officials who claim membership in Mimang. One report said Mimang is preparing to establish its own provisional government inside Tibet in opposition to the Chinese.

The Dalai Lama, Tibet's spiritual and temporal ruler who is under the thumb of the Chinese Reds, is reported leading the opposition in Mimang. But despite his opposition, open rebellion is being preached in nearly all the important villages and towns throughout the country, the travelers say.

* * * *

MIMANG IS SAID to have some influential members and sympathizers, including two former prime ministers. But there is no way of actually knowing its strength.

There is no firm evidence Mimang sparked the revolt, which appears to be thus far a largely unorganized struggle against the Chinese. This account of its activities has been unfolded here:

In 1952 Mimang demanded withdrawal of Chinese troops and for several days demonstrations occurred in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The Chinese Reds forced the Dalai Lama to declare Mimang illegal, and prominent Mimang leaders were jailed.

In the following year Mimang, now underground, planned to send a delegation to the United Nations. The Chinese Reds were tipped off and the planners of this dramatic move were jailed.

Ana Pauker, Purged by Reds in Romania, 'Living Well'

VIENNA (UP) — A Viennese newspaper Saturday published an alleged interview with purged Romanian Foreign Minister Dr. Ana Pauker by way of denying reports she died last month in disgrace.

The newspaper, "Die Presse," said the stocky onetime strongwoman of Romania's Communist party was interviewed by Miss Carol Coghill, onetime staffer for a British news agency, in her "elegant villa" on Dr. Koch St. in Bucharest.

It said the 62-year-old Mrs. Pauker refused to discuss politics on grounds that "I am an old woman."

She was ousted from government and party posts for "rightist and leftist deviations" and for "living on the slope of aristocracy" in 1952.

A French newspaper last week quoted Bucharest sources that she died last month and had been cremated secretly.

Western diplomats said in 1952 that Mrs. Pauker was living like a queen with fleets of cars and a group of villas. She still apparently lives well.

Miss Coghill said she was extremely well dressed and groomed.

She "was wearing a blue tailor-made suit and extra fine nylon stockings when she received me," the correspondent said.

"Her fingers were manicured, her hair combed back."

Avoiding politics she 'talked about paintings, books, cooking and art."

She declined to pose for photographs.

Child Plunges 3 Stories, Caught

NEW YORK (AP)—Victor Fernandez, 22, was walking in lower Manhattan Saturday when he heard a scream.

He looked up, braced himself and held out his arms. Edwin Talavera, 7, fell right into them. Neither Fernandez nor the child was hurt.

Edwin had fallen out of a third-story bedroom window while his mother was in another room. He weighs 49 pounds.

508th Airborne Sets Sail en Route Home

MOJI, Japan (AP)—The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team sailed for the United States Saturday to serve as a cadre for the newly organized 101st Airborne Division. The 101st is the unit that held Bastogne in the Battle of the Bulge in World War II.

The 508th came to Japan a year ago in "Operation Gyroscope," a big airlift switch of troops in which it replaced the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

18 W. Germans Flee Draft, Red Radio Reports

BERLIN (UP) — The Communist radio reported Saturday that 18 young Germans have gone behind the Iron Curtain in the past 24 hours to escape the proposed West German draft.

The broadcast from Red Berlin said the draft dodgers asked for political asylum because "they did not want to serve in the NATO (Atlantic Pact) Army."

The lower house of West Germany's Parliament voted 270 to 166 early Saturday in favor of a bill making some 12 million Germans aged 18 to 45 eligible for conscription for an unspecified term. The bill now goes to the West German "Senate."

None of the 360,000-odd draftees scheduled to be called under the pending law will don uniforms until late next year.

The Reds were quick to seize on the draft as an issue that might reverse the tide that has sent scores of thousands of Germans westward through the Iron Curtain to escape communism.

Dentures FIRST, money LATER, at Dr. Campbell's for over 20 years

Difficult cases invited with NO MONEY DOWN

Putting service first and money later has been at Dr. Campbell's for over 20 years, but never more than right now. Even difficult cases are welcomed on Dr. Campbell's no money down credit plan. You get your new dentures, but may wait 45 days before paying anything. Dr. Campbell carries his own credit, with no outside financing, so he is not regulated by ordinary credit standards.

"I prefer that you get your dentures on credit," Dr. Campbell said. "We want to serve you first, and the money is secondary. Take as long as you need to pay on my easy-credit plan."

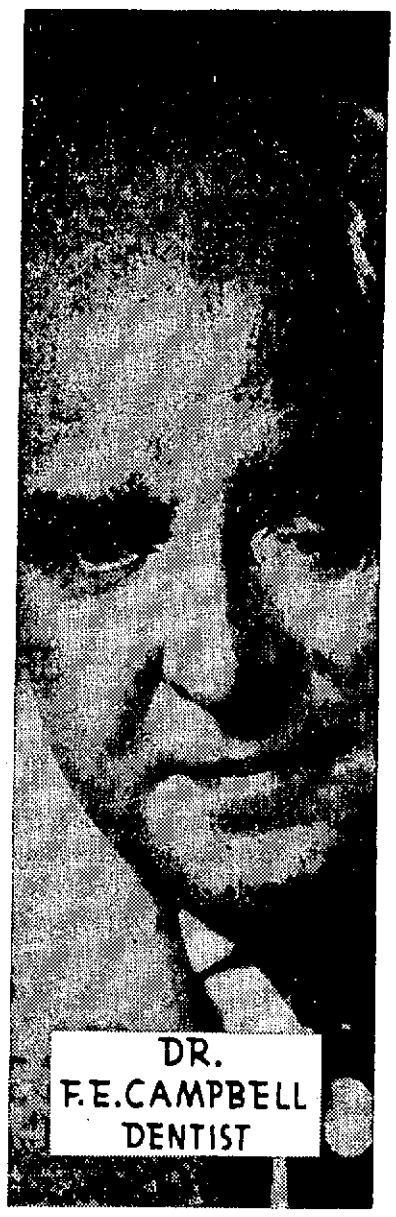

Why Dr. Campbell says pay NO MONEY DOWN

"I don't have to worry about paying my expenses as a dentist if I am interested first in giving service," Dr. Campbell said. "I have found through trial and error that every one of my offices must give a lot of credit to be prosperous. In the past, when one of my offices curtailed credit, this office became less prosperous. People are glad to pay for good service when you are thinking of them before the money. My records prove that insisting on immediate cash, even in small amounts, hurts my dental practice. No money down helps my dental practice."

LOW PRICES BRING BIG DENTURE SAVINGS

Dr. Campbell's twelve offices make a lot of dentures. The story of volume production is well known to everyone. We have many things we could not have if it were not for volume production. If it costs Dr. Campbell less to make dentures in volume, it stands to reason it costs you less.

"My low prices and no money down credit plan enable me to hold prices down despite rises in salaries and materials," Dr. Campbell said. "By not taking advantage of the trend to increase prices, I make more dentures and still make a profit at no increase in price. Living costs have gone up a lot, but my prices are the same as they were years ago."

SEE YOUR SAVINGS—no doubt about these prices

When you go in to buy something at a department store you see the article tagged with a price. That way you know it's not a bargaining proposition. You don't have to be a good bargainer to get a good price.

"I am doing this in dentistry," Dr. Campbell said. "I want you to know that the price of the denture you select is the best I can make, and that no one can bargain for less, making others pay the difference in higher prices. Each sample denture, which you choose from, has a price permanently molded into the denture. You see the denture, you see the price, you take your choice.

Translucent Dentures

Translucent DENTURE MATERIAL and translucent TEETH are recognized by dentists as the FINEST available for making dentures.

Even if these materials were expensive, they would be economical in the long run. But my price for my finest denture is so low that there is no need to accept less.

Immediate Restoration

New dentures may be put in the SAME DAY the last of your teeth are extracted. If your case permits it, and you desire it, impression is taken BEFORE teeth are extracted. Dentures are started immediately and finished the same day.

Save on Partial Plates

Modern methods of casting metal parts enable me to make them for less money than formerly. Now my prices for partials are lower, with the best work I have turned out.

Frego Strengthener for Thinner Extra Strength

Imported Frego Strengthener now available to dentists, is a gold plated stainless steel mesh, which is molded into denture. It permits VERY THIN construction. Fragile looking dentures are strong with Frego Strengtheners.

SKIPPERS SWAP YARNS ABOUT . . .

Pierpoint Landing's 50,000 Sleepyheads

By LEE CRAIG
I. P-T Marine Editor

Every year, more than 50,000 otherwise sane men, women and children leave warm beds during the early morning chill and make their way sleepily to Pierpoint Landing to board boats of the "largest live bait fishing fleet in the world."

A dozen or so hours later, weary, sunburned and happy, they head home, proudly burdened with their share of the 2,000 to 3,500 fish caught daily from the decks of the fleet's 10 boats.

Sometimes, however, they've left behind a fishing boat skipper shaking his head with mingled wonder and amusement.

"For instance," Charlie Davis, skipper of the Hurricane, says, "what is there about having a fish on the line that makes a man deaf?"

"I put my mouth about an inch from their ears and bellow instructions until my lungs give out . . . and they never hear a word."

Don McLean, captain of the Sea Angler, agreed.

"But the ones that get me," he said, "are the people who don't know how to fish, then get huffy when you try to help them. Don't they realize that we want 'em to catch fish, too?"

* * * *

THIS REMINDED Dutch Krutzfeldt, of the Dutchman, of a type of fisherman he calls "reel inspectors."

"I had one of those aboard the other day," he said. "He never looked at the water, or me, or the boat. Just stared at his reel, like he was hypnotized.

"Well, he hooked a seagull, going after a fish. He reeled in like crazy, finally letting his eyes travel along the line.

"You should have seen his face when he saw the line ended in a seagull, 40 or 50 feet in the air."

Some newcomers, who don't know that each boat carries 150,000 anchovies and other small fish in its bait tanks, think they have to bring their own bait.

A few have shown up with worms, laboriously dug from their gardens. Others have tried to use lures which work well in fresh water but leave ocean fish cold.

"I had a fellow once who tried everything," Dutch said. "He used feathers, anchovies, two hooks, four hooks, everything. No fish.

"Finally, I looked over his shoulder and darned if he wasn't putting a marshmallow on the hook.

"'Thought maybe they'd go for something sweet,' he told me."

* * * *

THE SKIPPERS put in about 16 hours a day, seven days a week, during the 175-200 days of the season.

"When I can stand to look at people again, I come back," McLean said.

They work for the Pierpoint corporation, in which they all own stock.

The captains pool their encyclopedic knowledge of the best fishing locations—sunken ships, types of rock formations or floating kept masses which attract fish—with one important reservation.

Each retains an "ace in the hole," perhaps a spot he's been "salting" daily with chum, for those days when fish are scarce.

"Sometimes, though," Dutch said, "it 's not lack of fish that's the trouble, it's lack of talent. We welcome the new ones, but we sure wish they would let us show them how to fish."

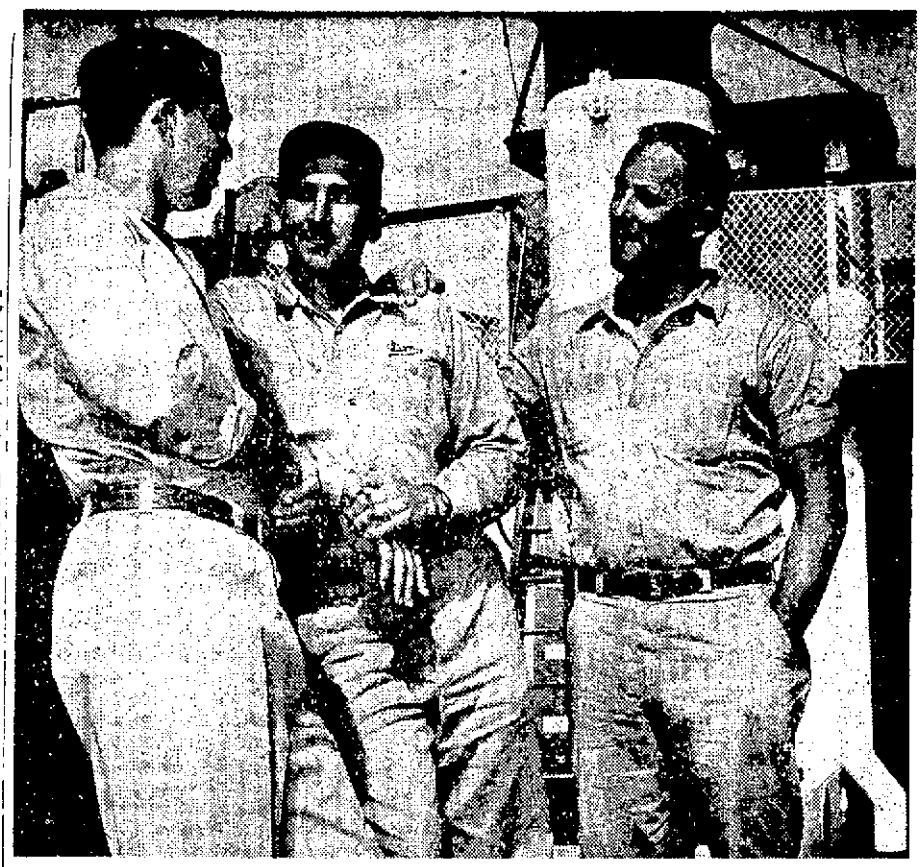

One such neophyte, Dutch recalled, was on his boat recently.

The beginner was standing idly on the deck, bemused by tiny saury fish leaping from the water around his line.

Suddenly, an unseen albacore lunged at the bait, nearly jerking the man overboard.

Goggle-eyed with amazement, he turned to Dutch as he fought to control his pole.

"I never would have thought a six-inch fish could pack so much power," he gasped.

'SO HE HOOKED THE GULL . . .'

Event With Class

THAT ROSY GLOW just over the horizon is the Miss Universe pageant. The girls will be here next weekend, there'll be a lot of talk of blondes, brunettes and redheads, of bust, waist and hip statistics, of exotic homelands and Long Beach hospitality.

This will be the fifth year Long Beach has been in the international beauty business and the community still seems a little surprised at its role.

The record says that the Miss Universe project has been a success. It has steadily gained in worldwide recognition, it has contributed to international friendship, it has gone unmarred by scandal, it has brought favorable publicity to Long Beach and it has benefited the community economy through stimulated visitation and tourist business.

In the four years since Miss Universe was inaugurated, tourist business here has been double that of the previous 10 years. Only a part of this may be attributed, of course, to the beauty pageant, but it has made an important contribution.

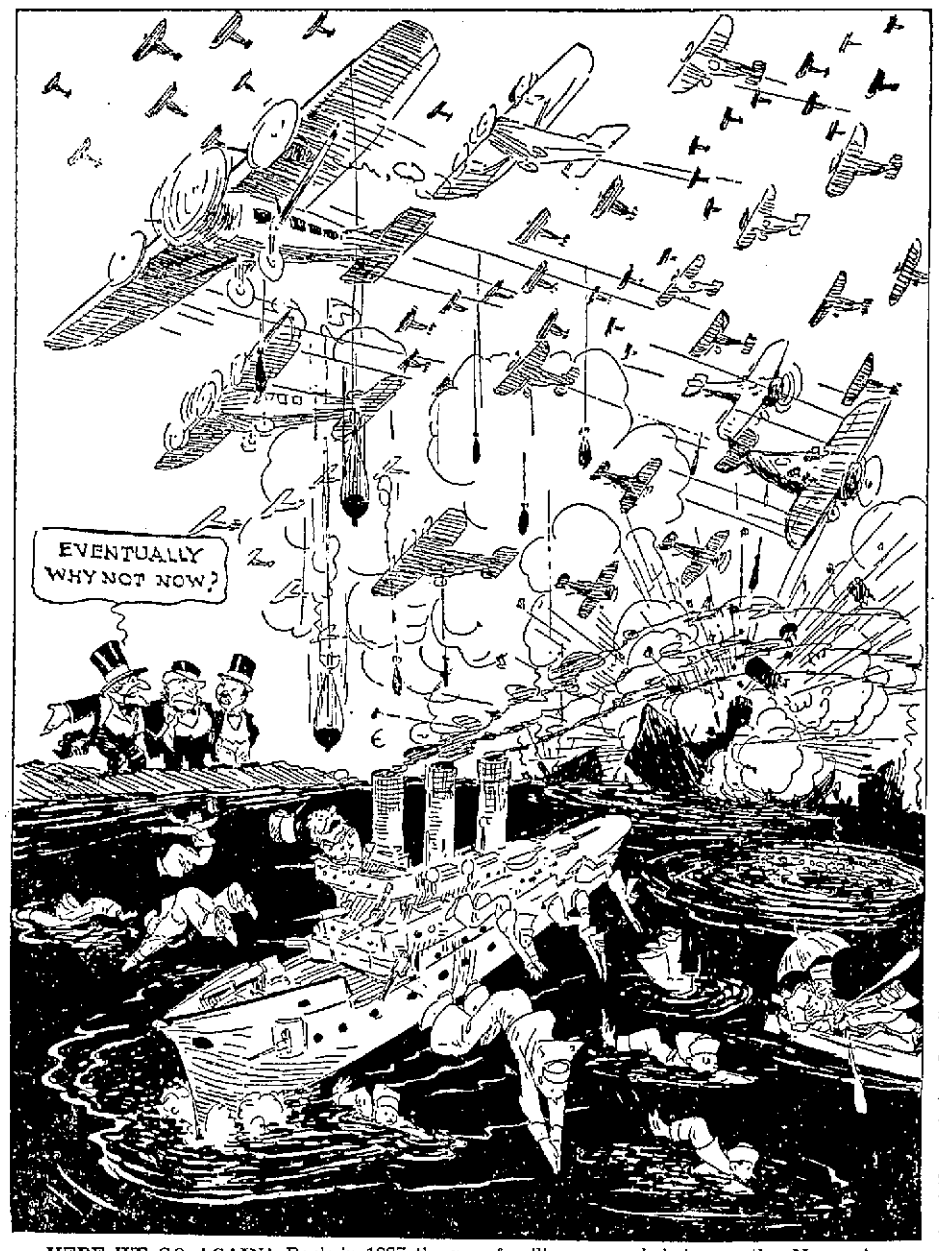

We can take satisfaction in the high plane on which this event has been conducted. Its no mere girl show nor even a mere beauty contest, but a pageant which glorifies feminine beauty and personality on an international level. It is conducted with care and good taste, and the young women who have participated as representatives of their states and nations have earned respect and admiration as wholesome, friendly and, of course, beautiful girls.

The pageant has its commercial aspects but these, too, have been handled with restraint and good taste. We have seen nothing objectionable about them.

Summing it up, we can say that the Miss Universe pageant has established itself solidly as an event with real "class," and those who may have had misgivings when it started in 1952 must have long since dropped them. As host community, Long Beach has its responsibilities, and it has generally discharged them satisfactorily.

Miss Universe is on the calendar for next week. Let's "spruce up" the city and give it the support it deserves.

IT IS AN OLD ARGUMENT

HERE WE GO AGAIN! Back in 1927 the now-familiar quarrel between the Navy, Army and Air Forces had been under way, in its louder phases, for a couple of years when Ding (Jay N. Darling) drew this cartoon which very well could have been done 29 years later—in 1956. The late General "Billy" Mitchell in 1925 had been fired from the Army for insisting in his way that the Army should build airplanes which could then sink Navies. Despite his court-martial, what the general preached was being accepted to such an extent that when the United States, Great Britain and Japan met in the summer of 1927 to talk naval arms limitation, Ding drew this cartoon on July 25, and the American people understood. The conference accomplished little immediately, but it led to the 1930 conference which agreed the U. S. might build as many naval ships as Great Britain, if it wanted. This it didn't do until World War II.

Steel Row Inflation Aspects Will Jar Complacent Public

NO ONE knows for sure when the steel strike will be settled.

The pessimists in Wall Street think it may last until September.

Others feel that a strike which neither side wanted will be brought to an earlier conclusion, possibly within a few weeks.

KNIGHT

Meanwhile, some 650,000 steel workers are losing $3,500,000 in wages every day. Each week the strike continues, 2,000,000 tons of steel go out of production. Layoffs in industries dependent upon steel are mounting.

Since neither side to the controversy is generating much heat in this "peaceful" strike, the public remains apathetic. Summer is here and how about going fishing?

* * * *

I PREDICT, however, that this complacent mood will change some weeks hence when the settlement terms are announced.

The steelworkers will get a substantial increase. Steel prices will then go up. So will everything else, including the prices of hundreds of items which all of us buy, or want to buy.

Inflation will take another jump. Your dollars will buy less of what you need.

Without going into the merits of the dispute between the steel companies and the United Steelworkers of America, the currently accepted bargaining pattern of larger and larger annual wage increases is helping to produce more and more inflation.

So is lavish government spending with federal appropriations and expenditures continually rising to new peaks.

Everything costs more, including the taxes you pay to local, state and federal governments.

* * * *

INFLATION IS a sort of creeping confiscation which gets its hand in your pocketbook before you realize what is happening.

It robs the worker of his pension security.

It robs the man who has invested in government securities as part of his savings.

It robs the dependents of veterans who depend upon insurance.

It robs widows and children of all people who have tried to provide for their families through insurance.

It makes Social Security a fraud.

It cuts down the amount of goods that can be purchased by the growing army of old people.

It robs everyone who is dependent upon a fixed income from investments.

* * * *

These are the insidious dangers of inflation which can imperil our prosperity and standards of living.

In due time, the steel masters and the steelworkers' union will settle their differences with flash globes popping and TV cameras recording warm handshakes and expressions of mutual respect of their erstwhile antagonists.

The union will win a substantial increase and the usual "fringe" benefits.

The steel companies will promptly annouuce a sharp hike in the cost per ton to provide for future expansion of their facilities.

In a superficial sense, both will win.

But only you, the luckless consumers, are to lose.

And this pattern, duplicated thousands of times every year in strikes and over the bargaining tables, is what has ironically come to be known as "progress" in labor relations.

What a fantastic misconception!

* * * *

ATTORNEY GENERAL Herbert Brownell picked Martha Rountree's new commercially sponsored TV show to announce that the Justice Department will sue General Motors for alleged monopoly of the bus-making business. . . . Under the rules of the program, the personality interviewed must break a big news story . . . Brownell, who would rather vote for a Democrat than hold a press conference, was glad to oblige. . . . No, no . . . nothing political.

If this sort of thing keeps up, Lawrence Spivak will soon have the Supreme Court on his program, with the understanding of course that the august justices will come prepared to hand down at least one important decision each Sunday evening.

Foreign aid, which is getting to be an unpopular term, is now known in Washington as the "mutual aid program." . . . Next we'll be hearing how lucky we are that other nations are willing to accept our money.

When Harry Truman was asked if he would be the keynoter at the Democratic convention, the former President replied, "Hell, no!" . . . But Harry will be busy . . . in the smoke-filled rooms. . . . The stop-Stevenson forces haven't given up.

Greek Ambassador George V. Melas, discussing the Cyprus situation before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, compared Britain's stern attitude toward "the white people of Cyprus" with their more gentle treatment of Nigeria which he pronounced with a hard "g". . . . The audience didn't like it.

Demo Chief Serves Notice GOP Faces Hot Races

DEMOCRATIC OPTIMISM about the November California election is keynoted by Alan Cranston, the president of the California Democratic Council. Even allowing for a little wishful thinking on his part, what he says is enough to put Republicans on the vote-winning trail hard and early.

The Republicans find GOP control of the Legislature threatened for the first time in many years.

They must win seven out of the nine Senate contests to keep the upper hand in that house. The Democrats, with holdovers and primary winners, are assured of 17 Senate seats, while the GOP is only certain of 14. Cranston thinks the Democrats can win four more seats if they work hard, and that would give them the edge. Some politicos claim, however, that Republican nominees are the favorites in five of the nine open races, and note that GOP nominees had popular vote edges in two more. Obviously, the Senate contests constitute a horse race.

EPLEY

Cranston says he's sure the Democrats can capture 38 or 39 of the Assembly seats, and he sees a chance to get the 41 necessary for control.

The Democratic Council chief also has a hunch the Democrats will reduce the Republican majority in the California Congressional delegation, and he likes Richard Richards' chances of upsetting Republican Thomas H. Kuchel in the U. S. Senate contest.

This general picture will be influenced to a considerable extent by the presidential election campaign which will come to a climax along with the voting on California legislative and Congressional seats The odds are so close that the national trend could make the difference.

But smart candidates know that nothing replaces vigorous personal campaigning. Nominees of that type aren't depending on national trends—and besides, who knows what the national trend will be?

L.A. Tax District Proposed

(Hollywood Citizen-News)

LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE has denounced the action of the Board of Supervisors which provided for the development of a $51,500,000 auditorium and music center in downtown Los Angeles.

The chamber pointed out that the taxpayers of Long Beach will have to share the tax burden that will result from the huge deficits under which the center will be operated and to compensate for the loss of taxes from the properties to be taken off the tax rolls.

It points out further that the auditorium and music center will benefit primarily the City of Los Angeles to the detriment of other cities in the county.

Actually, the project is of benefit principally to the downtown business district of Los Angeles. All taxpayers who do not own property or business in the downtown area will be taxed unjustly to support the project.

In fairness to the taxpayers of Los Angeles County, the Board of Supervisors should create a special tax district including those properties which will benefit from the center.

The downtown interests which will reap millions of dollars from the convention delegates, and whose property values will be enhanced, should pay the deficits from this project.

Senator Soaper Says---

By BILL VAUGHAN

It looks as if Martin and Lewis finally may be breaking up, which seems a shame. Sauerkraut, for example, wasn't even mentioned in history until the spareribs was invented.

The latest hydrogen bomb, dropped in the Pacific, was four miles off the target. And in reporting this to higher brass, we wonder what is the official military version of "oops!"

Engineering school graduates are urged by a commencement speaker to learn to use simple Anglo-Saxon. And not only when somebody on the bridge job drops a hot rivet down your neck.

Big Business and Big Unionism Have All the Advantages in Present Laws

WASHINGTON—What's good for the Eisenhower Administration evidently isn't good for General Motors, after all. An antitrust suit has just been filed by the Department of Justice seeking to break up a monopoly which the big motorcar company is alleged to have in the manufacture of buses.

LAWRENCE

Presumably in this political year this will disappoint, if not frustrate, the Democrats, who have been taunting their opponents with a campaign slogan taken from an abbreviated version of what Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson once said about what was good for General Motors being good for the country and vice versa. The Democrats conveniently leave off the "vice versa."

But the real question now is whether what the Department of Justice has done is good for the country. There's nothing in the antitrust laws, for example, which says that if 80 per cent of the buses bought are products of a single company, as happens to be the case this time, then there's a "monopoly."

* * * *

GENERAL MOTORS for years has been getting a larger and larger share of the bus-making business, and this has been just as true under the Democratic administrations as it is today. If one company makes a better product or if, because of skill and efficiency, it can sell products at a lower price than competitors, must the government step in and, in effect, compel the buyers to purchase some other products when they might not prefer them? Does the large company now call in its sales staff and say: "Don't try to sell any more of our goods, help the competitor sell his line"?

The allocation of business volume by order of the government could lead to a cartel system such as they have abroad and which in Nazi Germany gave state capitalism the whip hand.

The competitors of General Motors would have a grievance if it is proved that General Motors has been pursuing any unfair trade practices. The principal allegation is that, since Diesel engines are made by a subdivision of General Motors, these have not been available to other manufacturers of buses.

The broad question, of course, which has been occupying the Department of Justice in recent years, is the size of modern businesses. Shall corporations be permitted to grow to the point where they have as much as 80 per cent of the business in a given industry? Do those corporations enjoy any privileged position in getting capital or in financing customers' purchases? How far shall companies be allowed to use their financial and economic power in a competitive way?

These points probably will be aired before the antitrust suit is adjudicated. But the way to more effective competition in America doesn't lie in the courts. Rather it is in the action that can be taken by Congress itself. Many members of the House and Senate talk a lot about "big business," but they are indifferent to the things that cause big business to get bigger and bigger.

* * * *

UNDER the Democratic regime, big business got its best breaks. The excess-profits-tax laws were written in such a way that the larger corporations paid relatively little tax because they had the benefit of large capital in the first place, whereas the smaller businesses were penalized heavily and were unable in their best profit years to accumulate needed capital for future expansion.

Even today the tax laws favor big business. Likewise, neither political party leadership has the courage today to do anything about the fixing of production costs which is brought about by the concerted action of labor unions in a given industry. Although a company is small and trying to compete with the larger one, it is saddled just the same with the wage scales and "fringe benefits" and expensive provisions of labor contracts that the larger companies can easily absorb but which the smaller companies cannot.

It's harder and harder for small business to compete because big business and big unionism have all the advantages in existing laws. Antitrust suits can do little to cure the situation. They merely penalize efficiency while Congress forgets that its own laws prevent competition from growing as it should under the private-enterprise system.

I ASK A CHILD

When I want God to grant me gifts . . . I need especially . . . I always ask some little child . . . To say a prayer for me . . . Because I know that children are . . . His special ones on earth . . . And that their fond petitions are . . . Of so much better worth . . . I know that they are innocent . . . And they sound more sincere . . . And by their very childishness . . . They make my meaning clear . . . My heart is not deceiving, for . . . I know God understands . . . Why I am speaking to Him thrqugh . . . Their little folded hands . . . And as He loves to hear their prayers . . . However brief they be . . . I thank those little angels when . . . They intercede for me.

Republicans Deserted Ike on Air Force Cash Issue

WASHINGTON — Despite White House pressure, every Republican deserted Eisenhower on the question of money for the Air Force when they sat down in the secrecy of the Senate-House conference committee.

It was their job to straighten out differences between the House and Senate, and, with no one present to record their views, not one Republican stood up for Ike's low budget for the Air Force.

PEARSON

Even Congress' chief penny-pincher, New York Congressman John Taber, muttered resignedly: "I suppose we'll have to give the Air Force something. I hope we do not give them too much."

Congressman Dan Flood, Pennsylvania Democrat, moved to increase Air Force appropriations by $1.1 billion—the same motion that had been shouted down by the House two months earlier. Flood pooh-poohed the fact that Secretary of the Air Force Quarles himself was against an increase.

It was Georgia's potent Sen. Dick Russell who led the closed-door battle for more Air Force funds.

"Don't forget," he lectured the conferees, "that we simply do not have the aircraft. In February, there were six B-25s produced, four were accepted. In March and April none were accepted.... All the information I have been able to gather directly and indirectly convinces me this money can be and will be used by the Air Force."

* * * *

RUSSELL REMINDED the conferees that the proposed budget increase "isn't exclusively a program of B-52s. The Air Force also needs tankers and Century-class fighters."

Congressman Errett Scrivner, Kansas Republican, tried to cut the Air Force increase in half.

"No matter how much money we give them at this time," he insisted, "it is not going to produce one more B-52."

He also hinted that politics might have something to do with the clamor for more Air Force appropriations.

In the end, however, every last Republican deserted the President and voted with the Democrats for a compromise $980 million increase in the Air Force budget.

Note—The Air Force is so short of construction money that it has slowed up construction of our Spanish bases. It now looks as if the bases won't be completed until 1963—the same year our lease runs out. In other words, we may be forced to turn the bases over to Dictator Franco before we get a chance to use them.

Storing Car Costs a Lot

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to know if any of the Councilmen have ever asked the price for storing a car in one of the garages here? Well, I can tell you they aren't exactly cheap, to store a car in one of the less expensive garages would run about $1 per day. That runs into money at the end of the month. Most people who live in the restricted parking area are living there from necessity rather than by choice. To live in most residential areas here a person has to pay higher rent, and some people can ill afford $55 a month which some of them are paying for those places downtown. Add $30 to that for garage space and you've got $85 going for rent. Not many people could pay that much for rent and still be able to feed their children with prices as they are.

Why don't you Councilmen get busy and tear down the Pike, and make parking lots there? I feel that the Pike is an undesirable feature of our city.

Theater Phones Always Busy

TO THE EDITOR:

Theaters complain of lack of attendance since TV hit our homes. Have they done anything to improve conditions?

I am sure I am not the only person who wants to go to a show when it begins, and not 10 or 15 minutes after it has started. I'm sure I'm not the only person who does not wish to see two features.

Many a time I've tried to sandwich in a show, between various demands on my time. Have you ever tried to phone some of the theaters before opening time, just at opening time or just after? Busy signal. Constant. I have inquired about this and been informed it's a custom in at least two theaters to take the phone off the hook while they are busy.

All right, they are busy. I don't like to answer a phone when I'm busy either. However, it costs them the price of at least one theater ticket from me, more than once. Sunday I tried for an hour to reach one theater to time the showing of "Alexander the Great," as my boys wanted to see it, and I was going somewhere—they could have been dropped off on my way and walked home, as it is a mile or more to the theater, bus busy. We gave up and they stayed home. They didn't care for the second feature.

If I were a theater manager, and couldn't afford the time to answer my phone, I'd get a group to hire a girl to answer all the phones for a number of theaters at the busy hour. She could have all the information given her ahead of time. Or I'd print the times in my ad.

Too Little Known of Seal Symbols

TO THE EDITOR:

Take a look at the right-hand circle on the back of that dollar bill you have in your pocket.

The eagle first became our national emblem in 1782 when it was chosen for the Great Seal as a symbol of strength and victory.

The shield on the eagle's breast signifies self-reliance. It contains 13 stripes as a reminder that each individual state is expected to help protect the freedom of all the states.

The bar across the top of the shield stands for Congress as it unifies and binds all the states.

On the original seal, the color of the bar is blue and the stripes of the shield are red and white.

Red—hardiness and valor. White—purity and innocence. Blue—vigilance, perseverance, and justice.

In the right talon or claw of the eagle, note an olive branch—peace comes first—composed of 13 olive leaves.

In the left talon is a bundle of 13 arrows—the power of war. War is second, after peace.

Finally, above the eagle's head is a ring of light in gold, surrounding 13 stars of silver on a blue field. The stars denote "a new nation taking its place and rank among other sovereign powers."

Today little is known about the high ideals on which our national was founded. This letter is a little effort to remedy the illness.

Soap Box Speedsters Try Redondo Course

Boys entered in the annual Long Beach Soap Box Derby July 28 will try out their cars today on the Redondo Ave. hill just north of Pacific Coast Highway.

The derby is sponsored by The Independent, Press-Telegram and Long Beach area Chevrolet dealers.

The Redondo Ave. hill will be closed to traffic from 8 a. m. to noon today and the next two Sundays for the trial runs.

More than 425 boys competed in last year's race. The winner, Albert Cobble, 15, of 14426 Keene Ave., Compton, went on to the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron where he placed third and won a $3,000 college scholarship.

He plans to use the scholarship to study dentistry at the University of Southern California.

* * * *

AGAIN THIS YEAR, the Long Beach area boys will be competing for coveted trophies and an expense-trip to the national derby. Winners of the national race will share in scholarships totaling $15,000.

Long Beach derby drivers and their families will be guests of the Huntington Beach Jalopy Assn. Saturday night at a jalopy race at the American Legion track northeast of Huntington Beach. The free tickets will be mailed to contestants this week.

A parade of drivers and their gravity-powered racers will be held on Ocean Blvd., west from Alamitos Ave. to Cedar Ave., on Thursday evening, July 26.

The three trial runs scheduled for today and the next two Sundays "are designed to let the kids get the feel of their cars," derby director Fred Stover explained.

The trials also will give derby officials a chance to look over the wooden cars and offer suggestions to help the driver-owners pass the final inspections for safety and conformation to race rules, Stover said.

* * * *

Class B is composed of boys 11 and 12. Class A consists of boys 13-15.

Final inspection of Class B racers will be held from 8:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. Thursday, July 26, at the derby site. Inspection of Class A entries will be held during the same hours on Friday, July 27.

After the inspection, the cars will be impounded. They will not be released until race time.

Class B entries will race Saturday morning, July 28, followed by the Class A races.

Reunion This Week of Ike's Old Outfit

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — President Eisenhower's old outfit, the Society of the Third Army Division, holds its annual convention and reunion here this week.

SHE KNOWS THEY ARE COMING

Miss Lakewood, Phyllis Carhart, gathers some of the ingredients for the giant four-tier birthday cake which will be served with coffee by Lakewood merchants. They'll announce sale dates soon for Lakewood Center's fourth anniversary.

Lakewood Merchants Plan Birthday Sale

Lakewood Center merchants are getting ready to bake a giant birthday cake.

Four candles will top the four-tier, five-foot-high cake in celebration of the shopping center's fourth anniversary, to be announced soon.

The cake will be served free with coffee at the opening of the Center's three-day birthday party, which will feature special sales events in the area's 70-plus stores.

Wallace Bruce, manager of Butler Bros. department store and president of the sponsoring Lakewood Center Businessmen's Assn., said Saturday that final plans for the celebration will be worked out Monday by a six-man committee.

Serving on the committee are Leon Silverman, chairman; Peter C. Nitrini, Fred Sanchez, Marvin Arthur and Jim Arnold.

In preparation for the event, all merchants are stocking special items and receiving large shipments of sales merchandise to give Lakewood Center shoppers some of the best shopping values available, the committee said.

Details of the event are to be announced later in the week.

PCC Jury Still Out on Troy Case

Announcement Due Today; Cal, WSC Also Under Scrutiny in Secret Session

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Pacific Coast Conference Saturday studied charges of illegal payments to athletes by University of Southern California alumni boosters but after seven hours of discussion a spokesman said there would be no announcement until today.

Dr. Glenn P. Seaborg of the University of California, acting as spokesman for the faculty representatives and athletic directors, said the entire day had been spent discussing the SC case and that it was not yet completed.

Questioned by newsmen after the closed door session, he added that both the University of California and Washington State College would be under scrutiny.

He said that Washington State's representative, Prof. Emmett Moore, the conference president, had volunteered Saturday that he had information to submit before the two-day meeting ends. Seaborg said he had no information as to what the evidence might be.

It was not clear whether the discussion would be confined to the three schools mentioned since Dr. Seaborg said that "several" were being considered.

Previously handed stiff penalties by the conference and placed on probation for "slush" fund or "under-the-table" pay to athletes have been the University of Washington and UCLA.

The athletic directors and faculty representatives continued their meeting after dinner Saturday and will begin again the first thing this morning. Seaborg said there would be no further announcement until deliberations are completed.

He said that all of the reports from member schools on athletic payments, asked by July 15, are not yet in; that no specific athletes were named in Saturday's discussion of SC financial aid, and that Stanford University is one that has not yet submitted its report.

Dr. Seaborg declined to comment on whether Bureau of Internal Revenue information was being used in considering athletic "under-the-table" payments or whether if such information was used the conference might be liable to legal action.

* * * *

"THOSE ARE things which will have to wait until final determinations are made," he said. "Any discussions now would be getting ahead of the story."

He added that no legal representative of institutions or persons outside the regular conference membership were present.

Last May Washington was placed on two years probation and UCLA three. During that time neither can win a conference championship, play in a post-season game or share in the Rose Bowl receipts. This will cost Washington about $52,000 and UCLA $78,000. In addition, the Uclans were fined $15,000 for refusal to allow the conference commissioner to make a study of the situation on the campus.

Football players at UCLA were assessed the loss of a year's eligibility unless they could prove they did not receive aid which wasn't allowed by the conference rules.

J. Miller Leavy, a UCLA alumnus, then charged a "blue book" group of SC alumni and supporters had raised $71,235 which had been paid to 60 Trojan athletes over a two year period. He said tax information at the Bureau of Internal Revenue backed his contention.

He also charged California with a "phony job racket" in which gridders received off-campus jobs with pay but with little or no work involved.

Officials at California denied the allegation but said about 20 cases involving "technical violations" had been discovered. The total sum involved was said to be $1,100.

IN LOS ANGELES Saturday, four SC football players, including All-American back Jon Arnett, said their careers in college football "could be ruined" by penalties and ineligibility that might be inflicted by the PCC.

Arnett, Ellsworth Kissinger, Ron Fletcher and Dick Westphal jointly issued a statement saying:

"If it's decided in San Francisco that we aren't going to play, we'll promise that we'll play pro ball this year, even if it has to be in Canada."

Arnett said the "wait and see" policies of the PCC universities was wrong because "once a decsiion is made it probably will be impossible to change it." He said players weren't going to "wait around."

Bilko Hits 37th; L.A. Nabs Lead

Steve Bilko slammed his 37th homer, equalling his entire 1955 output, as the Los Angeles Angels won their second straight game from Hollywood, 4-3, Saturday at Wrigley Field.

The victory, before 8,895 fans, evened the season's crosstown series at seven games apiece and moved the Angels into first place in the Pacific Coast League standings.

Red Adams, acquired from Portland last month, went the route and held the Stars to seven hits. It was his second win without a loss for the Angels.

* * * *

THE SCORING was wrapped up in the first inning—all on home runs.

Gene Freese got his first hit as a Star, knocking a home run off Adams and scoring Carlos Bernier and Spook Jacobs.

Casey Wise led off for the Angels by hitting Joe Trimble's first pitch into the bleachers for his fifth round-tripper. Gene Mauch was hit by a pitched ball and Bob Coats walked, setting the scene for the hard-hitting Bilko.

The big fellow belted the longest hit of the year at Wrigley Field, the ball soaring across the centerfield fence, landing on a rooftop of a house across 41st Pl.

IN THE FIFTH, Los Angeles had the bases loaded with only one away but Trimble pitched himself out of trouble. Hollywood blew a similar opportunity in the top of the seventh.

ROOKIES REPORT THIS WEEK

El Bekal Temple to Sponsor Aug. 11 Ram-Warrior Tilt

Long Beach's El Bekal Temple of the Shrine has assumed sponsorship of the football game between the Los Angeles Rams and the Fort Ord Warriors to be staged here Saturday night, August 11, in Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Arrangement between the Rams and the El Bekal Temple was announced Saturday by Francis H. Gentry, who is in charge of the game for the local Shrine group.

It will mark the fourth straight year the Rams and Fort Ord have launched the football season in Long Beach.

* * * *

THE RAM-EL BEKAL tieup established a precedent in that the Shrine will be sponsoring for the first time a game involving a professional football team. The Shrine's other two important gridiron promotions involve amateur players . . . the East-West classic in San Francisco, featuring college seniors, and the Shrine-Hi game in the Coliseum in mid-summer bringing together the outstanding graduating high school players in the State.

Seating at Veterans Memorial Stadium will be boosted to 16,000 for the game . . . and all seats will be the same price, $3.30.

Tickets will be available at the Shrine office, 801 Elm Ave., late this week and at other locations later on.

The three previous games have drawn near - capacity crowds and a sellout is predicted for this year's affair.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, the largest group of rookies in Los Angeles Ram history—some 58 former collegiate stars—will report to Redlands University on Thursday to launch pre-season training.

Joining the rookie crop are six former Rams who for one reason or another were not on last year's roster. This group includes ends Bob Carey and Dewey McConnell, tackle Bob Fry, halfback Brad Myers, quarterback Rudy Bukich and guard Dick Daugherty.

The bulk of the Ram veterans will report two weeks later, July 26, with the exception of five "senior citizens" who have attained their 30th birthday. This group—Elroy Hirsch, Tom Fears, Don Paul, Woodley Lewis and Norm Van Brocklin—have been granted an extra week of leisure and are not due at Redlands until August 1.

The squad of first year men will take physical examinations and draw equipment Thursday afternoon, Friday will be devoted to camera day for the press, television and newsreels. Coach Sid Gillman has indicated he will start his two-a-day practice sessions on Saturday.

* * * *

ALREADY WARNED by letter to come to camp fully prepared to practice at top speed within the first few days, the newcomers will discover that Gillman has a fast pace scheduled for them.

"From the time our rookies report until our first game with Fort Ord," Gillman said, "we have just 30 days to prepare. Some of the better rookies will be away from camp for two weeks during that period to participate in the College All-Star game. In order to get a good look at them before they leave, we'll get into scrimmaging just as soon as we have enough offense to work with."

Spearheading the rookie crop will be a fine group of backs including fullback Joe Marconi of West Virginia, the Rams' number one draft choice. The retirement of veteran Dan Towler, who has been assigned a Methodist pulpit in Pasadena, will focus particular attention on this position as Tank Younger now represents the lone veteran fullback on the Los Angeles roster.

ALONG WITH MARCONI, Ram coaches will be taking a long look at other first year fullbacks, the much-hearalded Charlie Sticka of little Trinity College in Connecticut and 225-pound Mike Norcia of Kent state.

Several outstanding collegiate halfbacks are also included on the rookie roster. Eddie Vincent of Iowa, one of the finest ball packers in the Big Ten, has great potential while Herb Nakken was equally effective offensively and defensively for three years at the University of Utah. Jesse Whittenton of little Texas Western, is an outstanding pass defender and Willie Berzinski, a 195-pounder with fine speed, was a little All-American selection at Wisconsin State Teachers.

Detroit Breaks Chisox Jinx, 12-8

CHICAGO (UP) — A 17-hit barrage including successive home runs by Harvey Kuenn, Earl Torgeson and Charlie Maxwell powered the Detroit Tigers Saturday to a 12-8 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Billy Hoeft gained credit for the win, his 10th of the season and his club's first victory over the Sox this year. Steve Gromek came to his aid in the seventh inning.

The Tigers moved into the lead in the fifth inning, as Hoeft singled and romped home on Kuenn's eighth homer of the year. Torgeson walloped a pitch into the rightfield upper deck stands, and Maxwell blasted the inning's third homer into the stands below.

* * * *

THE TIGERS amassed an additional six runs in the next inning on a variety of six hits, featuring doubles by Al Kaline and Ray Boone. In the seventh, Kuenn brought home the Tigers' 12th run on a single by Maxwell.

AFTER DAVIS CUP

Report Hoad to Turn Pro

SYDNEY, Australia (Sunday) (UP)—The Sydney Sunday Truth reported Saturday that "informed tennis circles" expect newly-crowned Wimbledon champion Lew Hoad to turn professional after the Davis Cup challenge round in December.

Hoad, 21-year-old Aussie star who holds the Australian and French titles in addition to the Wimbledon and needs only the American crown for the first tennis "grand slam" in 28 years, recently said in London he is not contemplating turning professional.

Snead, With 3-Iron Only, Registers 71

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Sam Snead, looking for something to do, toured the Old White course with a 3-iron Saturday.

The Slammer used nothing but a three-iron, even for putts, and finished one over par with a 71. He was two-over on the front nine with a 36 and one under on the back with a 35. The Old White course is a 6,497-yard layout.

CHAMBERS LODGE, Calif. (UP)—Shanty I won the 4th annual Mapes Gold Cup race for unlimited hydroplanes Saturday on Lake Tahoe—but only because Edgar Kaiser's favored Scooter II threw a prop in the last heat.

Shanty I, owned by W. T. Woggner of Phoenix and piloted by Lt. Col. Russ Schleeh of Castle AFB, was running second to Scooter II in the third and deciding heat when the latter suddenly stopped dead in the water.

Kaiser's second entry, Hawaii Kai III, finished third as Scooter II had to be towed into the dock.

Smith Tops Richards for Pentathlon Title

Howard Smith, former discus thrower and quarter-miler at SC, won the National Pentathlon championship Saturday, edging pole vaulter Bob Richards.

Smith totaled 3,033 points, while Richards earned 2,985. The pentathlon, consisting of the broad jump, discus, javelin, 200 meters and 1,500 meters, is not an Olympic event.

Nix Proposed Robinson, Aragon Go as Mismatch

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.)—California's State Athletic Commission launched a "get tough" policy Saturday by barring a proposed world title bout in Los Angeles next month between middleweight titlist Ray Robinson and welterweight Art Aragon on grounds it would be a mismatch.

MANN TOPS WORLD MARK

13-Year-Old in AAU Swim Upset

Her time of 10:54.5 lowered the world's 880-yard freestyle record of 11:00.2.

Miss Green, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., led all the way into the 650-meter turn when Sylvia shot past her and increased her lead to three lengths at the end of the race.

* * * *

IT WAS THE first time in the past four years that Miss Green has failed to win the 800-meter race. She successfully defended her 1,500-meter freestyle title in the opening event Wednesday. Her time Saturday night was 10:57.2.

In a previous final of the final night of action, 16-year-old Carin Cone of Ridgewood, N. J. broke her second American backstroke record with a time of 1:14.5 for 100 meters.

It was the second record to be broken in as many finals.

Shelley Mann of Walter Reed Army Hospital became the first world's record breaker to emerge from the Olympic-minded meet earlier as she swam the 100-meter butterfly in 1:11.8.

Miss Cone, who broke her own American record in the 200-meter backstroke Wednesday, lowered Miss Mann's mark of 1:15.5 set last year. Her time was also better than Miss Mann's AAU record of 1:15.5.

* * * *

MISS MANN lowered the world record of 1:13.7 set by Jutta Langenau of East Germany, the American mark of 1:15 and teammate Betty Mullen Brey's AAU record, also of 1:15.

All records are subject to approval of the AAU, although officials here believe there is no question of approval of all new marks.

Three other Walter Reed swimmers, Mary Jane Sears, Mrs. Brey, the defending champion, and Wanda Werner finished in that order behind Miss Mann to give the Washington, D. C., team an 104-71 lead over the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

The group, which was considerably revised in membership after a recent probe into the state's fight game, also upheld the right of a boxing inspector to enter dressing rooms "at any reasonable time" in performance of his duties.

This latter resolution, proposed by S. Thomas Bucciarelli of Riverside, ended a three year ban against chief Southern California inspector Clayton Frye which was invoked by Promoter Cal Eaton of the Los Angeles Olympic Auditorium.

* * * *

IT ALSO WAS EATON, and Matchmaker Babe McCoy, who sought permission to schedule the Robinson-Aragon bout. The commission had withheld approval last week, citing the difference between the boxers' weights. But Saturday it voted flatly that such a fight would be a mismatch.

"Aragon is ranked fifth among the welterweights by Ring Magazine and seventh by the National Boxing Association," Bucciarelli said before moving that the request be turned down. The vote was unanimous.

Aragon, who listened from the spectators' row, at first said he had no comment but then went before the commission and declared, "Ray Robinson accepted my challenge and I'm certain I could have beaten him and maybe knocked him out."

* * * *

AFTER KILLING off the bout, the board then slapped a two weeks suspension on Olympic ring announcer Jimmy Lennon for "making an announcement not authorized by the commission."

According to Frye, Lennon had asked for fans to write letters to the Olympic office giving their stand on whether they would like to see Aragon fight Robinson.

In other action, Manager Jack Attell was suspended for a period not to exceed six months while the commission investigates charges that he scheduled LeRoy Edmerson (Baby LeRoy) to box at the Olympic last month after the fighter had been put on California's retired list because of an eye injury.

Klu's 22nd Clout Beats Cards, 5-2

Bragan Blames Long for Bucs' Tailspin

NEW YORK (AP)—Pittsburgh Manager Bobby Bragan Saturday put the rap on his star hitter, Dale Long, accusing the first baseman of "trying to be Babe Ruth" and being responsible for the Pirates' recent tailspin.

"If Dale Long would stop trying to be Babe Ruth and start being Dale Long again, we'd be all right," the brash Pittsburgh skipper said, in trying to explain the Bucs' fall from first place in the National League to fifth.

"Dale is a .280 hitter normally, and that's where I want him to be—normal. Right now, he's at .300, but it's a skidding .300. He's made only two hits in his last 53 at-bats and none in his last 17."

This was the second time this season that Bragan has chastized the 30-year-old player who came from nowhere this year to be chosen the National League's starting first baseman in Tuesday's major league All-Star game.

On April 18 Bragan fined Long and outfielder Roberto Clemente $25 each for careless play in a 5-4 loss to the New York Giants.

Off to a hot start which shot them into first place early in June, the Pirates have lost 15 of their last 19 games to fall below the .500 mark. Long, who set a record of eight home runs in eight straight games, hasn't had a homer since June 9.

Bragan said Long's slump had not affected just himself but also pitcher Bob Friend and the entire team.

"Friend is the best pitcher in the National League, but he needs runs to win," the Pirate manager added. "Bob has lost four in a row but some hits by Long could have made a big difference."

Bragan admitted that Long carried the team in the early stages of the race but added that the slugger's sudden fame brought distractions.

"Wherever he walked he was idolized," Bragan said. "He was getting phone calls for all sorts of appearances. The fans at Forbes Field had him do encores. It was the kind of thing he'd never faced before.

"There's no need kidding ourselves. When he quit, we quit. The way we're constructed, we need his big bat."

Long was not available for comment.

Lawrence Posts 12th Win in Row

CINCINNATI (U.P.)—Ted Kluszewski took over the undisputed National League home run leadership Saturday night with his 22nd circuit clout to lead the Cincinnati Redlegs in a 5-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals that cemented their hold on first place.

Redleg righthander Brooks Lawrence, the major leagues' leading pitcher, appeared in relief and gained credit for his 12th victory without a defeat.

The Cardinals jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when the first three batters singled against Johnny Klippsten. Don Blasingame singled, took third on Al Dark's single and scored on Stan Musial's single. Dark then scored as Ken Boyer hit into a double play.

But Klippstein didn't allow another hit during the five innings he worked and Lawrence allowed only one over the last four.

The Cards' Vinegar Bend Mizell clung to the 2-0 lead until the sixth when Wally Post clouted his 15th homer over the centerfield fence. Gus Bell followed with a single and Kluszewski slammed his homer into the right-center bleachers, his eighth homer in the last seven games, to put Cincinnati ahead to stay.

Cincinnati added two more in the eighth against Jackie Collum on Frank Robinson's triple and three singles.

Once Over Lightly
by DAVE LEWIS

We have received many requests of late to repeat one of our columns of three or four years ago.

It concerns John King, whose antics have become legend among ballplayers.

I'll never forget a bull session with Frank Gabler several years ago when he happened to mention King.

"Who's he?" I asked.

"You haven't heard of John King?" Gabe roared in disbelief. "Why, you haven't really lived yet!"

Frank was in one of his better story-telling moods and he had us doubled up with laughter with his tales of the fabulous King.

"John would have been THE character of all characters if he had reached the big leagues where the writers would have immortalized him with the nation's sport fans," Frank explained.

FRANK GABLER

And Frank, one of our favorites among the baseball fraternity, should know because he was regarded as one of the funniest guys ever to hit the big time.

"John King," Gabe went on, "was an outfielder who roamed the West Texas League in the 1920s . . . and who hated all lefthanders and umpires.

"John always said, '50,000 of those blankety-blank southpaws went to war (World War I) and every darned one of 'em came back.' This used to make him very sad.

"An umpire was bad enough, but a left-handed umpire was the lowest thing that crawled, in John's estimation. Yet, strangely enough, he became an umpire when he quit playing," Gabe told us.

"I'll never forget the day I first met him," Frank continued. "I was playing in the Southern Association then and John was umpiring. A teammate introduced me to him as a promising new pitcher. John glared at me for a moment, then asked in a menacing tone, 'What are you son, right or left-handed?'

"When I told him I was a righthander, he shook my hand and treated me like a long-lost brother. No telling what might have happened if I had been a southpaw," Gabe said.

"He was very fair as an umpire though . . . not even a lefthander could dispute that. But, oh, how he hated 'em!

"HE WAS A GENEROUS MAN AND NEVER refused a 'touch.' One day he was walking down the street and saw a blind fiddler. John promptly walked up and dropped a silver dollar into the cup. The blind man said 'Thank you, sir,' and began playing a tune.

"John's mouth dropped open when he saw the fiddler was lefthanded. He quickly snatched the dollar back out of the cup and growled . . . "There isn't a lefthander anywhere in the world who'll ever get a cent from me.'

"He really hated them that much," Gabe explained.

"Why, when his wife gave birth to a son, John stewed and fretted for months that the boy might turn out to be a lefthander. So, they say, he finally taped the kid's left arm to its side to force him to use his right hand.

"Why did he hate lefthanders so much? It was simple enough," Frank went on. "He never could hit lefthanded pitching. That's what kept him out of the big leagues . . . and it made him a very bitter man. As for umpires, he claimed they were all against him.

"There was the day when John was going great guns at the plate. He had socked a home run and was in high spirits when the rival manager suddenly switched pitchers and put in a southpaw.

"King's manager, naturally, took him out for a pinch-hitter who could hit lefties. This, of course, made John furious.

"The clubhouse was just under the scoreboard in centerfield and John held up the game as he stormed out there . . . pouting like a little kid. Instead of going directly into the dressing room, however, he climbed up on the scoreboard and took down the '1' they had put there the inning before for his home run . . . and took it into the clubhouse. A moment later he stuck his head out of the door and yelled as loud as he could—'If I can't play, you can't have my run!'

"HE WAS FULL OF TRICKS LIKE THAT," Gabe chuckled. "One day he stole second, but the umpire missed the play and called him out. What followed undoubtedly was the beginning of one of the most famous of all baseball anecdotes which is still being told.

"John was fighting mad and charged the umpire screaming, 'If I didn't steal that base fair and square, God will strike me down in one minute.'

"After about a minute had passed, he snorted in triumph. 'There, you blind so-and-so, I must have been safe.' With that observation, he pulled up second base and carried it into the dugout muttering as he went . . . 'I stole it fair and square so it's mine.' He refused to give it back, too.

"Whenever he had a particularly bad day against a lefthander, he would punish himself in a peculiar, but effective manner. He would go to the best restaurant in town and order the finest dinner on the menu complete from soup to dessert. When it was served, he would pull a cold, soggy hot dog out of his pocket and eat . . . washing it down with a glass of water.

'That's all you deserve for letting bums get the best of you,' he'd scold himself."

Gabe laughed and said "I've just gotta tell you about the time the club wanted to release him . . . but he was so darned mean they finally gave up trying. He was a big man; stood 6-3 and weighed at least 240. Everybody was afraid of him when he went on the warpath, which was often.

"The club ultimately gave up attempting to get rid of him after trying a unique way of slipping him his release. The manager tied it on a string and let it down to him from a second story window one day when King was relaxing on the porch of the hotel where the club was staying. 'Hey John,' the manager yelled . . . and then ran for cover.

"JOHN PICKED UP THE RELEASE, READ IT, turned a bright red and then headed straight for the manager's room ready to commit mayhem. 'Did you write this?' he bellowed. 'No,' the trembling pilot said, 'the owner did.'

"He then barged into the owner's room and darned near scared him to death. 'Did you write this?' he snapped. 'N-n-n-o, the m-m-m-manger d-d-did,' the owner stammered.

"'Hah!' John roared triumphantly. 'He said he didn't, you say you didn't. So it looks like nobody wrote it and I'm not released,' he said as he tore the release to shreds. Needless to say, he remained with the club for several more seasons.

"Still another story they tell about him concerns the time he got into a card game on a train and was taken for everything he had on him. Broke, he got up and went looking for a friend to borrow $10. After getting the money, he marched back to the card game, tore the $10 bill into several pieces as the players watched in amazement, then opened the window and threw out the torn bill.

"He glared at the players for a few seconds, then announced in a loud voice. 'That's $10 you chiselers won't get from me.'

"In later years, of course, he always said that they were all lefthanded and had cheated him.

"That's like the time some confidence men sold him some useless property. He always claimed they were lefthanded, too. In fact, all crooks were southpaws to him.

"They finally struck oil on the 'useless' property, though, and John King wound up a wealthy man.

"Even then he refused to believe that the men who had sold him the property weren't lefthanded . . . maintaining that the turn of events was 'just my plain out-and-out simple reward for all the lousy deals I ever got from blankety-blank lefthanders and umpires!'"

Phils Come From Behind, Rip Bums

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies broke loose with five runs in the seventh inning to break up a pitchers' battle and beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-3, before a crowd of 26,575 at Connie Mack Stadium Saturday night.

Trailing by two runs in the seventh despite a five-hit pitching job by veteran Saul Rogovin, the Phils sent 10 men to the plate in their seventh. They combined five hits with two walks to knock out Roger Craig.

Philadephia's Solly Hemus singled. Two walks filled the bases and Clem Labine came in for Craig.

Del Ennis beat out a hit to shortstop, scoring Stu Miller, running for Hemus. Willie Jones singled through the middle to put the Phils in front 4-3. A single by Granny Hamner and a bunt by Ted Kazanski drove in two more runs.

Mendoza in Upset Win

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rudy Mendoza, 145, Los Angeles, who entered the ring a 2-1 underdog, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Joey Dorando, 144, Los Angeles, at Legion Stadium Saturday night. It was Dorando's first loss in 13 pro bouts.

Mendoza piled up a big lead through the first seven rounds with his sharp jabs and accurate rights but barely withstood Dorando's final surge.

Referee Charley Randolph scored it 97-91, Judge Jimmy Wilson had it 97-92, and Judge Jimmy Wallace gave it to Mendoza 99-91.

In This Corner with DICK ZEHMS

(While Dick Zehms takes a vacation, guest columnists on occasion will fill This Corner.)

By JESS HILL
Head Football Coach, SC

The 1956 season will mark my sixth and final year as head coach of the SC varsity football team.

During this period, typical of any athletic leader, I've run the gamut from bitter disappointment to great moments of triumph such as the 7-0 win over Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl and that great 42-20 victory over Notre Dame this past season.

Wheather deflated at defeat or joyous at victory, the memories of the first five years are very lasting and I'm anxiously looking forward to my final season before humbly moving on to become Director of Intercollegiate Athletics upon the retirement of the honored Willis O. Hunter on September 1, 1957.

After our past spring football practice, I sat down with the other members of the Trojan coaching staff and we have a fairly good idea of what we can expect when drills open in September.

As a whole, the 1956 team is potentially a slightly better club than last year's, but it will take outstanding development at certain spots for that potential to be realized.

I doubt that many people would argue if I remarked that our first string backfield is excellent. It isn't too often a coach has two tremendous running threats like Jon Arnett and C. R. Roberts in the same backfield with a fine blocker and solid runner like Don Hickman. Add to that trio a sharp-thinking quarterback, Ellis Kissinger, who has the mind to properly use the tools at his disposal. All four of these men, with an added year's experience, should be ready for their best performances.

Arnett, a consensus All-American last season, is one of the most exciting runners I've ever seen. His shiftiness, balance and speed continue to amaze me every time I see him break away from tacklers.

Roberts gained much-needed experience in 1955 and he showed improvement in each game as the season progressed. A great physical specimen at 6-1, 206 pounds, C. R. is the fastest man on the team and a powerful, explosive runner.

Arnett and Roberts are probably the best offensive one-two punch since Davis and Blanchard were at West Point.

Behind the top four are Frank Hall, Ernie Zampese, Doug Kranz and Jim Decker, along with two halfbacks up from the freshman team, Rex Johnston and Tony Ortega.

WHILE THE 1956 backfield figures to be improved over last year, the line picture is not that bright. Up front, the Trojans suffered their heaviest losses.

Both senior centers, Vern Sampson and co-captain Marv Goux have graduated. Back is a very fine prospect, junior Karl Rubke, 6-4, 225, who will be over the ball when the season opens. Behind him is Walt Gorrell, another junior, whose forte is linebacking.

Three 1955 guards, Orlando Ferrante, Co-captain George Galli and John Miller have completed their eligibility, leaving Laird Willott as the only returning letterman at guard. That doesn't include Ben Lardizabal who lettered in 1945 before returning to school last autumn. Willott and Lardizabal will open fall drills as my first team guards. Behind them, there is a crippling shortage of experienced personnel that could hurt over a tough 10-game schedule.

Our tackle corps is practically the same it was last year, with Dick Enright, Ron Fletcher, Fabian Abram, George Bolotti, Dick Westphal and Hank Schmidt returning for the coming campaign. Two junior college transfers, Dave Main of Compton and Rod Humenuik of Pierce did not take part in spring practice, but are outstanding prospects, so the Trojan tackles will be experienced but there are no proven stars in the group.

THE END SITUATION might very well be the key to our success, or lack of it in the 1956 season.

Gone are Leon Clarke and Bing Bordier, who started the Notre Dame game and also letterman Don McFarland. Chuck Griffith, who was with us at the start of last year, is also not among the returnees.

Chuck Leimbach is the only returning letter winner and his performance will have to be more consistent or he will be hustled out of a job by one of the smaller candidates. At the conclusion of spring practice, Ludwig Keehn, 5-11, 170, and Bob Rosendahl, 6-1, 180 had the first team berths.

Some personnel may have to be switched from other positions to fill the void at the ends, but

Ferrier and Barber Head SC-PGA Field

By JERRY WYNN

Opposite in physical dimensions but equal in the fine art of stroking a golf ball, big Jim Ferrier and little Jerry Barber will head a field of 90 in the $6,000 Southern California PGA Championship beginning Thursday at Recreation Park.

The 1956 event should be one of the greatest in the 31-year history of the tournament, the largest PGA sectional in the nation.

1. The purse is a record high and the $1,200 winner's slice comparable to many national tournament jackpots.

2. The perenially classy field of PGA home club professionals from Arizona, Nevada and the Southland will be enriched by the additions of Barber, Jimmy Clark and Joe Kirkwood Jr.

3. The 6,263-yard, par 36-36-72 Long Beach municipal course is ideal, both competitively and gallery-wise, for the rugged match play tourney.

* * * *

AND RUGGED IT IS. The schedule reads first and second rounds, Thursday; third and fourth rounds Friday; quarter and semi-finals, Saturday, and 36-hole finals, Sunday.

Figuring 18 holes a match and par 72 for score, the two men who play through the finals will have walked close to 27 miles with stopovers for 576 swings and four lunches at Harold Sorenson's clubhouse grill.

In addition to the championship, there will be a special $600 Sunday sweepstakes and a $300 Seniors Championship—the victor in the latter earning a trip to Dunedin, Fla., to represent this section in national senior competition.

Ferrier, who ranks only behind Ben Hogan, Sam Snead and Lloyd Mangrum as professional golf's all-time money-winners, is the defending champion. The 6-4, 195-pound Australian, representing Lakeside CC, defeated Cecil Harris of Montebello, 4 and 3, in the finals and met but slight resistance throughout his path to the title.

* * * *

BUT THIS YEAR there appears to be definite roadblock. Coming off the tournament trail to bid for sectional honors is Barber, all 5 feet, 5 inches and 135 pounds of him.

It is one of golf's greatest attractions to see the little Willshire CC pro boom his drives farther than most of his robust opponents with power generated from strong forearms, wrists and hands.

While Ferrier is noted for his rigid left leg—the result of a football injury—which gives his swing a rocking motion, Barber is so loose jointed that he has to strain to keep his body intact.

For Clark, the Huntington Beach product who rose to fame as a Long Beach amateur star, it will be a homecoming after many successful years on the tournament trail. He holds the course records at both Lakewood and Meadowlark and was a two-time Long Beach City champion.

* * * *

KIRKWOOD, the Joe Palooka of the movies, caused quite a stir on the national circuit before hanging up his clubs for the flickers a few years back. This will be his first major comeback effort.

In addition to Ferrier, the lineup will include these former champions: Eric Monti, Ralph Evans, Fay Coleman, Paul Runyan, Zell Eaton, Harry Bassler, Olin Dutra and Bud Oakley. George Kerrigan of Virginia CC, who won the crown in 1925, and 1939 champ Willie Hunter will play in the seniors' event.

Other top contenders will be Harris, Dick Lundahl, Jimmy Thompson, Mike Austin, Bill Train and Willie Hunter Jr. All eligible Long Beach area pros will compete.

Today is the final day to purchase $1 four-day pre-season gallery tickets. The price goes up to $2 Monday. Single-day tickets during the tournament are $1. Tickets may be obtained at all course golf shops.

RACING ROUNDUP:

Porterhouse Easy Hollypark Winner

Porterhouse strengthened his hold on the sprinting championship of the West Saturday by racing to a win by better than a length in the $27,300 Lakes and Flowers Handicap at Hollywood Park before 45,000 fans.

TOM BREWER
Notches 11th Victory

The Llangollen Farm star, conqueror of Swaps earlier in the meeting found the six furlong distance to his liking as he closed with a rush to nail Scent and Moolah Bux in the stretch and pull away by a length and a quarter.

The time of 1:09 flat was just a fifth of a second off the track record and Porterhouse accomplished his easy win with top weight of 124 pounds.

* * * *

SCENT AND Moolah Bux finished second and third. Spring Count was fourth, while the well-regarded Cyclotron was fifth in the seven-horse field.

The speedy Moolah Bux broke out in front and quickly opened up a length's lead. Jockey Ismael Valenzuela let Porterhouse coast along in sixth position for the first eighth and then moved him up to fifth approaching the turn.

But it was on the turn that Porterhouse opened up. As Scent took away the lead from Moolah Bux, Porterhouse was third rounding into the stretch but by the eighth pole he was charging up on the leaders.

* * * *

LEALLAH, THE 1-5 favorite, romped to an easy four-length triumph in the $95,180 Arlington Lassie Stakes for 2-year-old fillies at Arlington Park. Leallah was ridden by Willie Hartack, who totaled five winners for the day. Splendored was second, Frank's Flower third.

Ricci Tavi was only two-fifths of a second off the track record for a mile and a sixteenth in winning the $30,400 Saranac Cap at Belmont Park. Bill's Sky Boy was second, St. Amour third.

Woodland Farm's Blue Sparkler won the $28,500 Molly Pitcher Handicap by eight lengths at Monmouth Park.

Piersall Beats Birds

BOSTON (U.P.)—Jimmy Piersall's bases-loaded single during a three-run Boston third inning scored the winning run in a Red Sox 4-3 victory Saturday over the Baltimore Orioles before 10,320 paid fans.

Piersall lined a single into left field off starting and losing pitcher Billy Loes, scoring Ted Williams with the margin of victory. The Red Sox scored two other runs on two singles, a walk and a wild pitch.

After Piersall singled Mike Fornieles came on to retire the next three men and pitched three-hit ball the rest of the way. However, his brilliant relief effort was wasted as ace right hander Tommy Brewer threw a seven-hitter to notch his 11th win of the season and third in a row over Baltimore this year.

RACING ROUNDUP:

STAR GAME STILL SHY ONE 'PITCHER'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The problem of who's to toss out the first ball at Tuesday's All-Star game at Griffith Stadium is still unsolved.

President Eisenhower sent word Friday he was unable to fill the chore. The President is recuperating from abdominal surgery at his Pennsylvania farm home.

Vice President Nixon is on a trip through the Far East.

Chief Justice Warren, the next hurler in line, is leaving for Europe.

Vaulting Star Defends Title

The Rev. Bob Richards goes after his third straight National AAU Decathlon Championship July 13-14 at Wabash College, Ind.

The three top men in the 10-event test of all-round athletic ability will represent the United States at Melbourne in the Olympic decathlon. It was won at Helsinki in 1952 by Bob Mathias of Tulare, Cal., with a record 7,887 points.

Richards, representing the Los Angeles Athletic Club, scored 6,873 points to win the 1955 national title and it may not be enough this year.

Rafer Johnson of UCLA upped the world record of 7,983 points last year in the Pacific Coast decathlon. He didn't compete in the AAU meet.

Other standouts in this year's field include Milt Campbell of the Navy and Indiana University, second to Mathias in the 1952 Olympics and national champion in 1953; Sam Adams, former California weight star; Howard Smith, ex-Trojan athlete; Aubrey Lewis of Notre Dame and Bob Lawson of Southern California.

Softball Player Hurt

Possible fracture of the right elbow was suffered by Roger J. Teske, 16, of 2277 Clark Ave., Friday night, when he collided with another softball player during a game at Recreation Park. He was treated at Community Hospital.

SLAMS 45 HOMERS IN 80 GAMES

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Dick Stuart, the hottest home run slugger to hit the class A Western League in years, has a hopeful eye on organized baseball's all-time record for circuit clouting in a season.

The 23-year-old from Culver City, California, who plays movie bit parts in the off season, faced out homer No. 45 for the Lincoln Chiefs this week to set a new modern-day Western League home run record.

Stuart's 45 homers have come in 80 games. He needs 27 more to equal the all time record of 72 set by Joe Bauman of Roswell in the Longhorn League two years ago.

OLSON LONE L.B. ENTRY

National Public Links Meet Begins Monday

The butcher, the cop, the truck driver and the boy from next door tee off on Monday in one of the most democratic of all golf events: the National Public Links tourney at Harding Park in San Francisco.

Defending champion Sam Kocsis of Detroit and 154 others, including school teacher Craig Olson of Long Beach, will battle in a 36-hole qualifying round for the 64 places in the match play that starts on Wednesday.

In addition to the problem of qualifying for the match play in the first two rounds, there will be inter-city competition for the first 36 holes.

OLSON

Three men from each city will be competing as a unit and their total score will win the city trophy.

The favored team probably will be the Detroit club headed by Kocsis, and including Jim Seltzer and Mike Andonian.

Other strong teams include Seattle (Jim North, Dan Barkley and Hans Turnerl) and Los Angeles (Joe Gallardo, Jerry Gallardo and Mike Furgo).

Olson is Long Beach's lone qualifier. He fired rounds of 73-72—145 in qualifying at Brookside Park last month. Another area qualifier is Frank Donaldson of Santa Ana, 71-77—148.

Mantle's Injury Big Blow to AL All-Stars

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mickey Mantle's injury has struck a heavy blow at American League hopes in the 23rd All-Star baseball game at Griffith Stadium Tuesday against the power-packed National League lineup that includes five Cincinnati Redlegs.

Billy Pierce, talented Chicago lefty who has won his last eight and 13 in all, probably will get the job of trying to tame the National's homer - happy sluggers in the first three innings. Four National starters including first baseman Dale Long of Pittsburgh, centerfielder Gus Bell and catcher Ed Bailey of Cincinnati and rightfielder Stan Musial of St. Louis are left-handed batters.

Bob Friend, Pittsburgh's ace righthander, is the likely starter for the National on the strength of a topheavy vote for him as the league's No. 1 pitcher by the eight managers.

Bob Friend

Starting pitchers and batting orders will not be announced officially until Monday morning by Managers Casey Stengel of the American and Walter Alston of the National. The eight starters, selected by the vote of about 300,000 fans, must play the first three innings at least. Pitchers can not go more than three unless it's an extra-inning game.

Although the Nationals have won five of the last six games, including the 12-inning thriller at Milwaukee last year on Musial's dramatic home run, the American still holds a 13-9 edge.

* * * *

THE 25-MAN squad of the National has hit well over 220 home runs, about 70 more than the entire American squad, including Mantle's 29.

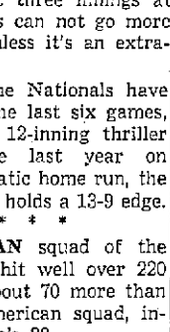

Birdie Tebbetts' slugging Reds, with a heavy surge of home town support, placed leftfielder Frank Robinson, shortstop Roy McMillan, second baseman Johnny Temple and Bell and Bailey on the starting team. The others, picked by the fans, are third baseman Ken Boyer of St. Louis and Musial and Long.

The National lineup represents a complete switch from 1955 with not one repeater. Of course, there are several of last year's team on the rest of the squad selected by Alston.

Musial, selected for the 13th year, sets a new record by just starting the game. His total of four homers also is high for the series.

* * * *

MANTLE, of course, was to have been the big gun in the American lineup with his Yankee teammate catcher, Yogi Berra. Al Kaline of Detroit in rightfield and Ted Williams of Boston in left rounded out the outfield picked by the fans. The infield was made up of first baseman

Musial Wins Poll as 'Player of Decade'

ST. LOUIS (U.P.)—Stan (The Man) Musial Saturday was named "player of the decade" in a poll conducted by the Sporting News, the national baseball weekly.

Musial, outfielder - first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, won out in a poll of 260 players, club officials, umpires, writers and sportscasters over Joe DiMaggio, former New York Yankees outfielder, and slugger Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

The selection of a star for the period from 1946 to 1955 was suggested by Bob Feller, pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, who finished fourth in the balloting with 1,647 points.

Stan Musial

Musial, garnering 97 first-place ballots to 83 for DiMaggio and 52 for Williams, received 2,654 points. DiMaggio had 2,433 and Williams 2,312.

"The Man," as he is often called, has won six National League batting crowns and been selected most valuable player three times. He had an average of .342 for his career when the season began.

Musial will be presented with a grandfather's clock at ceremonies next Tuesday in Washington. Feller will make the presentation on behalf of J. G. Taylor Spink, editor of the Sporting News.

Others receiving notice in the poll, and their points (based on 14 for first, 9 for second, 8 for third and down to one for 10th), were Robin Roberts, Phillies, 1,333; Yogi Berra, Yankees, 1,277; Jackie Robinson, Dodgers, 1,004; Roy Campanella, Dodgers, 1,000; Johnny Mize, Cardinals, Giants and Yankees, 618, and Hal Newhouser, Tigers, 522.

What Giants Need Is More Friends

NEW YORK (U.P.) — Johnny Antonelli bested Bob Friend for the third straight time this season Saturday when Hank Thompson singled with the bases filled and two out in the eighth inning to give the New York Giants a 3-2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Friend carried a 1-0 lead into the seventh inning but Daryl Spencer hit his eighth homer of the season in that frame to tie the score at 1-1.

Eddie Bressoud tripled in the eighth and walks to Willie Mays and Bill White filled the bases before Thompson stroked a 2-2 pitch into left center field to drive in two runs.

Gardena Cycle Rider Dies From Injuries

Milton Lee Jacobs, 25, of Santa Monica, died Saturday from injuries suffered when his motorcycle spilled during a Gardena Stadium race.

Jacobs' motorcycle spun out of control Friday night, throwing him under the wheels of other motorcycles. He died after being rushed to a hospital for emergency surgery.

Ex-Poly Miler in European Track Meet

Mike Young, 1952 All-City miler from Poly now a member of the 11th Airborne Division in Germany, will participate in the European track championships to be held in Berlin this July.

Young set new division records in the 3,000 and 1,000 meter runs with times of 9:51.6 and 4:24.0, respectively.

ALL-STAR TILT

Name Score, Lopata Subs

CHICAGO (AP) — Catcher Stan Lopata of the Phillies and pitcher Herb Score of the Indians have been named to fill vacant positions of the National and American League All-Stars teams.

Lopata will replace National League catcher Del Crandall of the Braves, who will be out of action for several days with an injured elbow.

Score, sporting an 8-5 record, replaces teammate Ray Narleski on the American League team. Narleski hurt his elbow pitching against Kansas City last Tuesday. The injury is still hurting Narleski.

Amy Hiland Nears Juan De Fuca Swim

Amy Hiland of Long Beach is putting the finishing touches on her training grind prior to her attempt to become the first woman ever to swim the murderous Strait of Juan De Fuca from Port Angeles, Washington, to Victoria, B. C.

Distance of the swim is 18.3 miles, but the distance is the least factor in conquering the Strait. Juan De Fuca not only is laced by swift tidal currents, vicious rips and exceptionally strong tides, but it is the coldest strait in the world. The water temperature ranges between 46 and 50 degrees, during the warmest part of the summer.

The cold water more than anything else is responsible for making the Strait so tough to swim.

A total of 45 attempts have been made to swim the Strait starting with Florence Chadwick in August, 1954. Florence gave up after five hours when she got caught in a bad rip tide about five miles out.

Only one person has ever made the swim. He is Bert Thomas, 270-pound Tacoma logger who accomplished the feat on his fifth attempt in 11 hours and 10 minutes last July 7 under the finest water conditions possible.

Mrs. Hiland has been training daily in the waters off Port Angeles. She started with 30 minutes in the water and has worked her way up to three and one-half hours at a stretch.

Amy appears to be taking the water temperature very well and veteran observers are optimistic over her chances of completing the swim.

Her navigator is Captain Loring Hyde, the man who navigated the successful swim by Thomas. Hyde also is confident that Amy will make it. In fact, he is predicting that if she gets water conditions as good as Thomas that she will swim the strait in nine hours.

Mrs. Hiland's jumping off date has not been set, but she is expected to plunge into the water the first time conditions come up "favorable."

Amy wants to make the crossing before Marilyn Bell, well-known Canadian swimmer who has been offered $30,000 by Canadian interests to make the attempt.

Miss Bell will arrive in Victoria on July 15 after training in Eastern Canada for the past two months.

Thus, Mrs. Hiland is expected to hit the water as soon as possible after the 15th.

Since Amy is an amateur swimmer, no offers have been made to her. However, her expenses are being underwritten by the Port Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Wilbur Slater of Long Beach arrived in Port Angeles the past week to help Amy train and to serve as her physician on the trip.

Dr. Slater, a distance swimmer of note himself, revealed before leaving for Washington that he expects to take a crack at Juan De Fuca Strait shortly after Amy's attempt. He originally had planned to swim the English Channel this summer, but has put off that trip until next year.

PLANS FOR BOAT SHOW CANCELLED

July Title Regatta Here Sunday

By BOB RUSKAUFF

Though emphasizing that next Sunday's big regatta at Marine Stadium will go on as planned, Commodore Jack Gouldstone of the Los Angeles Speedboat Assn. on Saturday "announced with regret" cancellation of the allied boat show which had originally been scheduled.

"The reason certainly was not lack of interest," Gouldstone said. "The idea of such an event right on the course was well received. But we are a racing organization and it just took more than we had the manpower to offer. We've not abandoned the idea at all."

There'll be plenty to do to handle the nearly 100 drivers expected to clash in the July championship regatta.

Nothing is planned on the Southland speedboat schedule today. Next Sunday, though, in addition to the Marine Stadium clash, stock outboard drivers will wind up their two-day regional championships at San Diego.

ON THE SAILING front today things are a-boom.

Upward of 90 small boats will sail final races of the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club's big July 4 regatta this afternoon.

On Newport Bay, sailors vying for the right to compete for Southern California Yachting Assn. in Pacific Coast eliminations will complete their two-day series.

At Victoria, B. C., today skipper Lanny Coon and his crew, Peter Geib and Craig Cadwallader, meet top youngsters of the coast in western sail-offs for the Sears trophy. Finals are slated in August in Montreal. The NHYC lads defeated contenders from seven clubs in the recent Southland eliminations.

The Sears award is emblematic of the North American championship for sailors 13-18 years of age. The Mallory Cup, which will be defended in Seattle by Bill Buchan, is the same for seniors.

A dual sailing race around Catalina Island, with fleets starting respectively from Portuguese Bend and Los Angeles Harbor, both finishing off harbor light, has been announced for Saturday. It will be co-sponsored by the West Coast and Win'ard yacht clubs.

PAR TICULARS by JERRY WYNN

It was 1941. The mighty Olin Dutra, former U. S. Open and National PGA champion, stood at the threshold of winning his seventh Southern California PGA Championship. His opponent in the finals was lightly-regarded Bud Oakley, who had never won a major tournament.

Although Dutra was two down after the first 18 holes, he was still considered a cinch. But he wasn't for long. While Dutra was parring the entire front nine in the afternoon, Oakley rattled off six birdies and went on to record the biggest upset in SC-PGA Championship history, 8 and 7.

That was the first of the Championships to be held at Recreation Park and it set a pattern that has lasted through 15 consecutive years of play here.

PAR GOLF DOESN'T win the big sectional.

It was 1947 Lloyd Mangrum, the defending U. S. Open champion, faced Zell Eaton in the first round. At the end of the regulation 18 holes the match was even. Eaton birdied the first extra hole for the victory.

The fact that it was a startling upset was underscored by what must have been one of the greatest two-man exhibitions of match scoring in golf history. The birdie on the extra hole was Eaton's sixth straight. For the prior 18 holes, both Eaton and Mangrum were eight under par!

It was 1955. Cecil Harris was a surprise finalist against Jim Ferrier. But the outcome was no surprise. Ferrier was 10 under par for the 33 holes he needed to post a 4 and 3 decision. He was 31 under par for the tournament.

* * * *

PROBABLY THE finest pair of consecutive holes was played by Babe Lazane in a 1953 quarter-final match with Jack Smith. One down going into the 18th, Lazane evened the score by holing a 75-foot chip from the hill on top of the home green for a birdie-two. He won on the first extra hole by reaching the green with his drive and canning the eagle putt.

But sub-par shooting has by no means supplied the only SC-PGA Championship highlights at Recreation Park.

Just last year, Ralph Evans and Fay Coleman battled through 30 holes of a scheduled 18-hole match before Evans came away with the win. It was the longest tournament match in golf annals.

And who but Clayton Aleridge can boast of having beaten two former U. S. Open champions on the same day? It happened in the 1943 event. His victims were Dutra and Ralph Guldahl. The former Huntington Beach pro went on to win the title.

A tournament of stature, thrills and great golf . . . Long Beach is proud host to the Southern California PGA Championship.

LLOYD WEATHERSBY, a Lakewood 17-handicapper, had a duffer's dream come true last Sunday when he shot a one-over par 73 at Recreation Park. He now says he is ready for all challengers except Lakewood handicap chairman Lew Webster. . . .

Sol Deeble and Dick Lawson Jr. won the Virginia Men's Club Scotch Foursome tournament by defeating Fred Yaeger and Jim Craig Jr., 7 and 6. . . .

While the young folk were competing in the Meadowlark 54-hole Invitational, two of Lakewood's foremost veterans, Con Cady and Baxter Omohundro, captured sweepstakes honors. Cady shot his age, an 80, to win low net with a 66. Omohundro's 79 took low gross. . . .

Recreation Park Sweepstake victors were Dan Prochnow with a 70 gross and Mel Gould with an 86-20—66 net. . . .

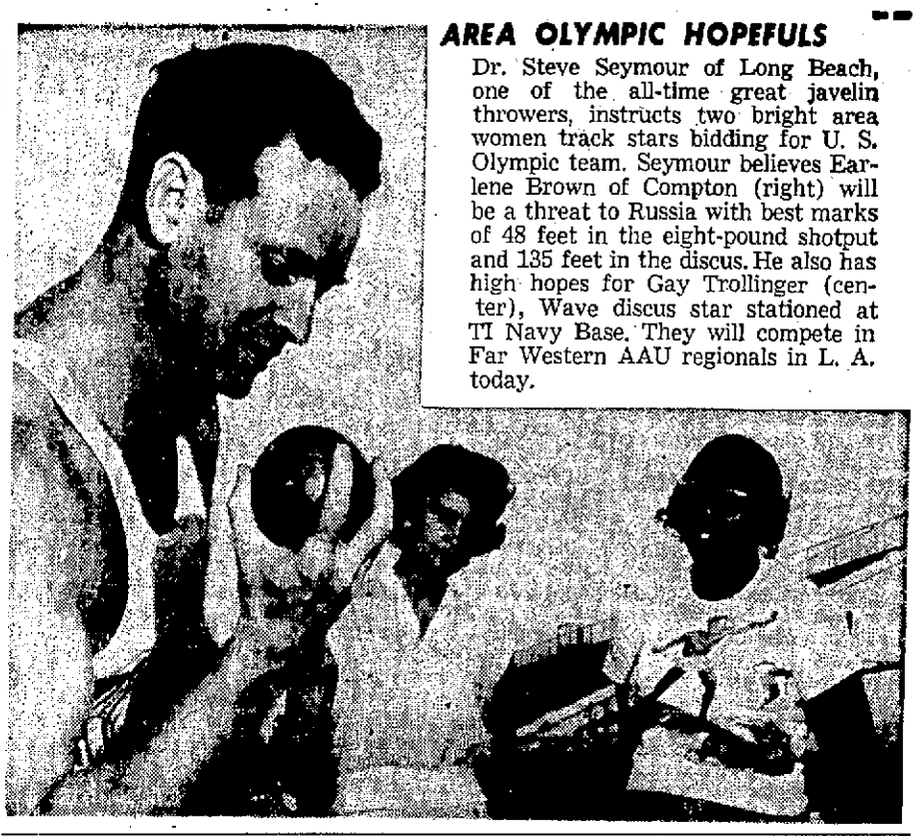

Defending champion Ray Oda will meet Steve Lane today in the finals of the South Course Men's Club Championship. In semi-finals, Oda defeated Doug Joyner, 6 and 4, and Lane beat Jack Holland by the same score.

The Recreation Park summer junior program enters the tournament stage this week with the start of weekly South Course sweepstakes. Boys will play on Tuesdays, girls on Thursdays.

ADMIRAL GILLILAN carded a 79-14—65 to gain low net honors in the weekly Saturday Sweepstakes at Virginia Country Club. Results:

Low Net—Adm. Gillilan, 79-14—65; Emmet Sullivan, 77-11—66; Dr. Cliff Easley, 75-8—67; R. M. Johnson, 77-10—67; Jim Ferrie, 69-1—68; Frank Eulberg, 80-11—69; Roy Spawr, 74-5—69; Ralph Irwin, 77-8—69.

Blind Bogey (73) — Cecil Northrop, D. S. Bradbury, C. T. Gates, Bill Cook, John Cone, George Matter, Bill Kirk and Admiral Melgaard.

AREA OLYMPIC HOPEFULS

Dr. Steve Seymour of Long Beach, one of the all-time great javelin throwers, instructs two bright area women track stars bidding for U. S. Olympic team. Seymour believes Earlene Brown of Compton (right) will be a threat to Russia with best marks of 48 feet in the eight-pound shotput and 135 feet in the discus. He also has high hopes for Gay Trollinger (center), Wave discus star stationed at TI Navy Base. They will compete in Far Western AAU regionals in L. A. today.

Bray Edges Menke to Retain Net Crown

Al Bray reigns as Long Beach's tennis king for the third time in four years as he edged Don Menke, 6-8, 7-5, 6-2, Saturday to retain his senior men's singles title.

By virtue of the win, Bray retires the perpetual city tennis championship trophy. The local star had to come from behind after dropping the first set and being extended in the second before he could put Menke down for keeps in the all-Long Beach's men's final.

Shirley Brockman of Costa Mesa scored a stunning upset over Long Beach's defending champion Jane Little, winning the ladies singles title, 6-4, 6-0.

While the young folk were competing in the Meadowlark 54-hole Invitational, two of Lakewood's foremost veterans, Con Cady and Baxter Omohundro, captured sweepstakes honors. Cady shot his age, an 80, to win low net with a 66. Omohundro's 79 took low gross. . . .

Recreation Park Sweepstake victors were Dan Prochnow with a 70 gross and Mel Gould with an 86-20—66 net. . . .

Defending champion Ray Oda will meet Steve Lane today in the finals of the South Course Men's Club Championship. In semi-finals, Oda defeated Doug Joyner, 6 and 4, and Lane beat Jack Holland by the same score.

The Recreation Park summer junior program enters the tournament stage this week with the start of weekly South Course sweepstakes. Boys will play on Tuesdays, girls on Thursdays.

Mickey Vernon of Boston, second baseman Nellie Fox of Chicago, shortstop Harvey Kuenn of Detroit and third baseman George Kell, of Baltimore.

Stengel has only two left-handers among his eight pitchers—Pierce and Whitey Ford of the Yankees. The righthanders are Frank Sullivan and Tom Brewer of Boston, Early Wynn and Ray Narleski of Cleveland. Jim Wilson of Chicago and Johnny Kucks of New York.

The Nationals have only seven pitchers, three southpaws and four righthanders. In addition to Friend the righthanders are Robin Roberts of Philadelphia, who has started five All-Star games, Brooks Lawrence of Cincinnati and Clem Labine of Brooklyn. The lefthanded staff members are Joe Nuxhall of Cincinnati, Johnny Antonelli of New York and Warren Spahn of Milwaukee.

this type of conversion is usually not too satisfactory and I'm not overly optimistic about the success of such a venture.

By kickoff time on the night of Sept. 22 when we play Texas at Austin in our opening game, some of our questions may have been answered, but it is more likely that our problems won't be resolved, if at all, until mid-season.

It will be an interesting season though, and as I've said, one that I'm anxiously awaiting.

Stars of Tomorrow

By DOUG IVES

A few weeks ago the question was asked, what is the top baseball school in this area?

A long list of former kid leaguers more than established the Long Beach 'Kid Baseball Association as the school which has fashioned more than their share of bright young ballplayers.

In looking back over the list, which would easily fill a page in the telephone directory, we find a good number who are trying to make their way in the pro ranks.

Ballplayers like Jim Pagliaroni, Roger Jongewaard, Jay Cooke, Nick Hopkins, Bill Balcom, Bob Schuler and Gordie Seyfried are former kid leaguers who may some day blossom into top-notch major league stars.

Ironically, just as these former kid leaguers were stars of the kid ranks some six to eight years ago, they are still sharing the spotlight in pro baseball.

Jongewaard, a former Poly High catcher who signed with Milwaukee, is hitting .288 for Evansville, Indiana in the Class B. Three-I League. Rog has batted over .300 in both his seasons of pro ball.

Another success story is that of Schuler, the former shortstop for Wilson High and City College. Little Bob, the shortest player in the league incidentally, is hitting .327 and has whacked eight homers for Clinton, Iowa, a Class D league.

No one in this area, when speaking of up-and-coming ballplayers, can bypass the name of Jim Pagliaroni. Pag, former Wilson High catcher, signed with Boston Red Sox for over $50,000 two years ago. He was with the club up until a few weeks ago until he was inducted into the Army.

Two other players who are making names for themselves in baseball are Cooke and Hopkins, both ex-teammates of Pagliaroni.

Both boys are hitting over .300, Hopkins for Lafayette, Indiana, and Cooke for Valdosta in the Georgia-Florida League.

Cooke, who like Hopkins signed with Detroit, is hitting .305 and is the top fielder in the circuit. Moreover, he leads the league in homers with 14.

Balcom former Poly High football, basketball and baseball star, also is doing a splendid job in the pro ranks. Playing in the Arizona-New Mexico League, he is hitting .307 and has seen action on the mound, at first base and in the outfield.

ACTION WILL BE HOT and heavy in Rotary League play this week with first place hinging on the outcome of games in both the American and National Leagues.

Nutrilite and Eagles 791, who share the National League lead with the Lakewood 'Y' with 5-1 marks, will battle it out Monday at Truman Boyd Park at 8:15 p.m.

The North Long Beach Lions, sporting a 5-1 win-loss mark, will attempt to knock off unbeaten Petrolane (6-0) when the two teams clash Thursday at Cherry Avenue Field at 7:15. The Lions are one game back in second while Petrolane is tied with the Legion Braves for the league lead.

WHILE I WAS inquiring about some of the former kid baseballers who have either started professional baseball careers or are being sought by major league teams, I ran across an interesting sidelight.

One of the most promising young ballplayers in the Southland today is heavy hitting Compton outfielder Bob Henrich, who has been sought by several major league clubs.

His dad, Ed, who is an avid baseball fan and who seems to know his way around in the coaching and scouting end of the game, also has done well for himself in the majors.

Young Bob went to a Cincinnati Red tryout camp not long ago, accompanied by his father, of course. The Reds were very much interested after the tryout, but Bob decided to get an education first.

Nevertheless, the Reds did manage to sign Henrich. The Henrich that signed, however was ole dad Ed, who inked a scouting contract.

EVER STOP AND THINK how many youngsters are competing in kid baseball these days? To be truthful, this writer has a tough time figuring out the number of leagues let alone the number of ballplayers.

New leagues and new teams, thus more players are popping up all the time. At last count there were 14 leagues in existence and well over 3,000 kids playing ball.

The biggest league is the Elks 888 Midget League. There are 6 teams in the league with 20 players on a team. This makes 820 ballplayers. I'm glad I'm not a statistician.

Next week I think I'll take stock of all the different leagues and teams and figure out approximately how many youngsters are participating in kid baseball.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Southern California anglers should know considerably more about the whereabouts of the albacore within the next week. There's a good reason for this—many of the private boat owners and their fishing parties will be searching almost every square mile of the Pacific from Ensenada to Santa Barbara and 100 miles out.

First of all, more than two score of boats representing all the big-game fishing clubs of this area are winding up the two-day inter-club albacore tournament at 2 p.m. today. They will check in at the Balboa Angling Club by 6 p.m. today. This is strictly a contest among nine different clubs. The Southern California Tuna Club of Long Beach has five boats and teams in the event.

Next Saturday marks the first intra-club albacore tournament of the Southern California Tuna Club. It's a one-club affair and more than 24 boats will carry upwards of 80 anglers vying for all sorts of awards.

The SCTC tournament is a one-day contest, with fishing starting at 6 a.m. and ending at 3 p.m. Results will be mailed in to the headquarters of the club at the Lafayette Hotel. Winners probably will be announced at the club's meeting Thursday, July 19.

SCTC MEMBERS kicked off their tournament Friday night with a banquet that could have been mistaken for a political convention. Teams were drawn for the various boats and the maneuvering that followed, both on top of the table and under, provoked a lot of merriment. These men take their fishing seriously, but they have a lot of fun while they are doing it.

Eugene V. LeGrand and Cliff Brignall carried the ball in committee work and certainly deserve a lot of credit for drawing up regulations and obtaining the boats. They were aided by Dr. N. R. McCoy Sr., Robert L. Joy and Arthur Dinel.

By under-the-table maneuvering, I mean that each team has drawn its own map of the Pacific, with its own ideas of where the albacore might be. Those maps were being snitched, copied and returned with VARIATIONS to their owners. All in fun, of course! It will be hard to determine just who is fishing where, come next Saturday.

The tournament will be strictly a three-six event, with members using a line that has a breaking point of 18 pounds, when wet. It breaks at about 14½ when dry.

Only artificial lures may be used. No chumming, live bait or teasers are permitted. Boats may leave any port from San Diego to Santa Barbara at any time Friday, but fishing can not start until 6 a.m. the following day.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Who took a swim last Sunday in Balboa Bay while fully clothed? None other than Russell Pray and Ralph Larraby! Larraby was giving Pray his first sailboat ride when something went wrong with the rudder and the small sailboat overturned.

Both started a long swim to shore, decided they couldn't make it, returned to the capsized craft and hung on for an hour. Several boats flying albacore flags passed by without noticing them while Russell remarked: "Looks like the albacore are getting closer." Finally a skiff-rental attendant saw their plight and rowed out to their rescue.

Today marks the windup of the silver anniversary meeting of the Western Association of Angling and Casting Clubs at Buena Vista Park in Burbank. Several Long Beach Casting Club members (men and women) are taking part. Events begin at 9 a.m. and end about 5 p.m.

SAN FELIPE going modern? It looks that way from Friday's reports that the popular fishing village on the Gulf of California is starting the construction of an artificial bay, where fishing boats and yachts of all kinds may enter and dock without regard to tides.

The plan was announced by Mayor Rodolfo Escamilla Soto, who said that the project will be started within 60 days. Both the municipal and state governments will join in financing the harbor.

San Felipe, 100 miles south of Mexicali, has been a favorite spot of California fishermen, but extreme tides, unsanitary conditions and undependable boat skippers have plagued them and caused them to go elsewhere. Let's hope this is the beginning of an entirely new face for San Felipe.

Ensenada reports a tremendous catch of yellowtail for the week just ended.

SCHENLEY SPORTSMEN'S Club has added the marlin classification to its ocean fishing contest and, in so doing, announces that skippers, as well as those making the catches, will be eligible for awards.

THAMES CUP

Princeton Crew Wins

HENLEY - ON - THAMES England (AP) — Princeton University's undefeated lightweight eight rowed to two victories over the windwhipped Thames River Saturday to capture the Thames Challenge Cup of the Henley Royal Regatta.

The Princetonians climinated Kent School of Connecticut in the semi-finals, then outsped the Royal Air Force oarsmen of Britain by a length.

Princeton was timed in 7 minutes, 38 seconds for the semifinal test over the mile, 550-yard course and was clocked in 7:10 for the final.

Believe Veeck Group High Detroit Bidder

DETROIT (UP)—The game of speculation on "who bid how much" for the Detroit Tigers was in full swing Saturday.

The present Tiger ownership is studying eight bids for the club, Briggs Stadium and other baseball property. The top bids will be submitted to Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and the American League sometime next week after study by club officers.

Two Detroit newspapers rated the bid by the Bill Veeck syndicate as among the highest or perhaps the highest. But Veeck, like most of the other bidders, wasn't talking. The published guesses were that Veeck's bid was $5.2 or $5.3 million.

One guess placed the bid of Hollywood producer Robert Goldstein's group, which includes Clark Gable, at $5.2 million also. But another said Goldstein bid below $5 million.

The bid of Detroit radio executive Fred Knorr and his group was placed at both $5 million and $4¾ million. The bid of Jack Kent Cooke, Toronto sportsman, was put at $4¾ million by one source, also.

Walter O. "Spike" Briggs, president of the Tigers, said the decision on who buys the club will depend on factors other than the amount of money.

Local shows resume July 26.

Rockets, All-Stars in Rematch Here Today

The long awaited rematch between the Long Beach Rockets and the Los Angeles All-Stars is scheduled at Recreation Park this afternoon when they clash in a semipro Summer League game beginning at 2:15.

In their first meeting on May 6, the L.A. nine walloped the locals, 12-0, as Red Lynn, a veteran of many Pacific Coast League summers, pitched four innings in relief. Lynn has since signed to play in the California League.

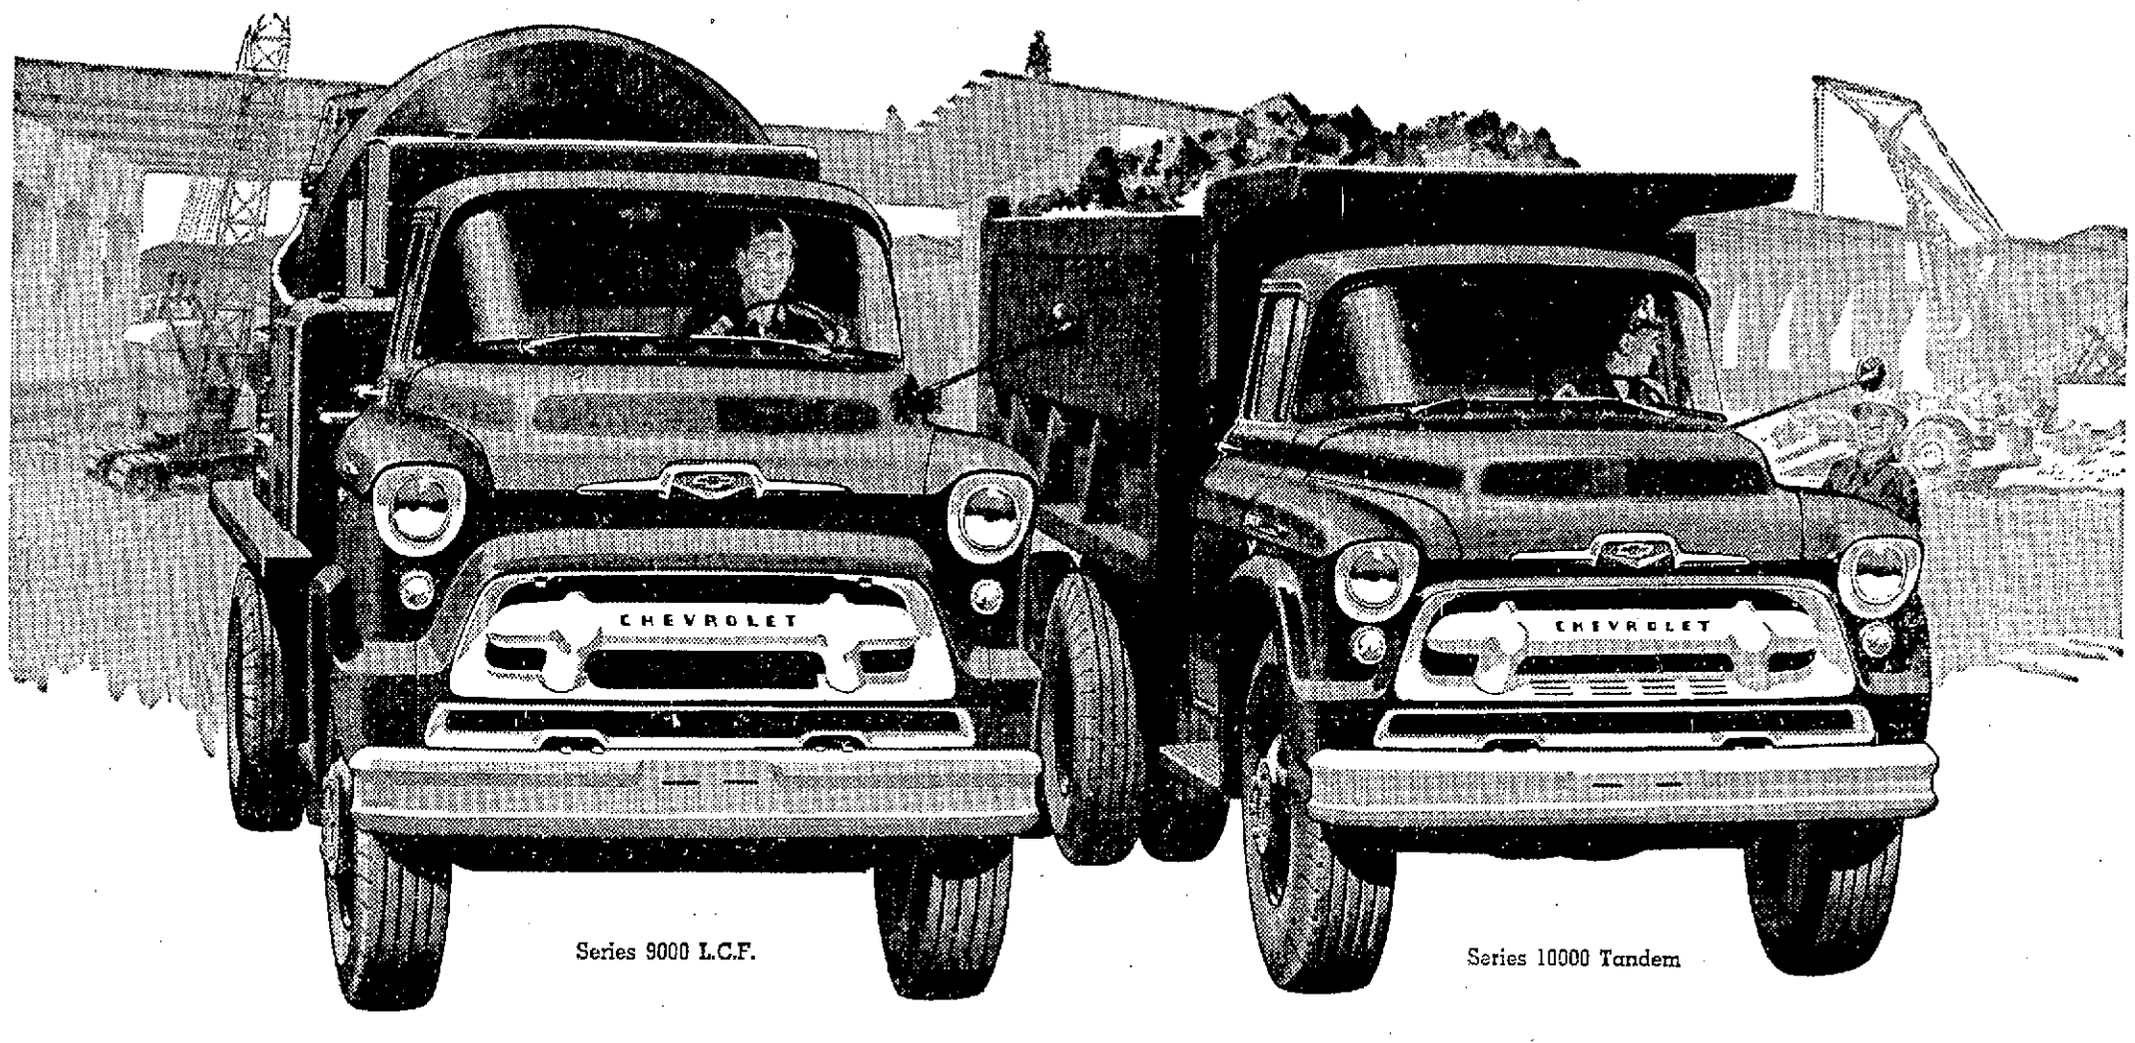

And since then the Rockets have waltzed through seven straight foes without defeat, including the last two in league play. The All-Stars are still rated as the top semipro club in Southern California, but the Rockets are moving up fast. Their season record is now 13-4.

Pete Cassidy, who pitched both Rocket league wins, will get the starting call again today. Cassidy was the losing pitcher in the first meeting with the All-Stars.

The Rockets, held to six hits in the May 6 game, have averaged better than 10 safeties per game in their last seven outings.

DES MOINES, Iowa — (Special to the Independent, Press-Telegram) — If Miss Universe is picked this year for beauty and swimming ability, Iowa's entry should be an odds-on favorite to win.

Carol Morris, 20-year-old Drake University junior, on June 24, was picked over 19 finalists to represent Iowa in the Miss Universe contest.

Carol, a dazzling brunette, has a fistful of medals won in competition swimming meets, with national significance in a case or two.

In fact, her friends say she can do anything in the water a fish can do. She is a summertime teacher and lifeguard at the Ottumwa, Ia., pool when she's not competing in beauty contests.

* * * *

CAROL IS the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. LaVerne Morris of Davis Street Christian church, Ottumwa. The church is the largest Christian church in Ottumwa and it has the largest Sunday school of the denomination in Iowa.

She's no newcomer to beauty contests. In 1954, she represented Iowa in the Miss America contest (had word?) at Atlantic City, N. J. She played "Stardust" on the violin in the talent contest and was told she was among the first five in that division.

At the time Carol said: "I wish I could have demonstrated swimming instead — but there was no pool on stage."

Since then Carol has matured and grown in some places. She still stands 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 131 pounds (4 pounds less than when she was a Miss America aspirant). But her vital measurements have expanded from 35-25-35 to 36-25-36.

* * * *

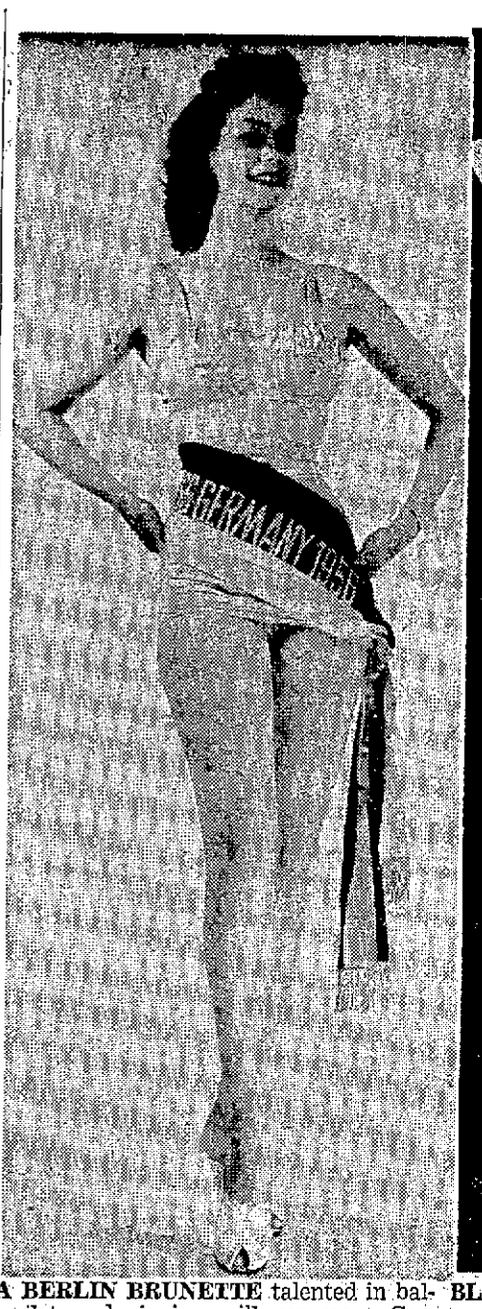

CAROL WAS GRADUATED fourth in a high school class of 300 at Ottumwa. She plays the piano and has studied violin for 12 years. She also sings in the choir at her father's church.

At Drake she is majoring in education and is also studying music. She also writes poetry, her father confides with pride. Carol doesn't think it's worth mentioning.

Besides being an expert swimmer, Carol finds time during the summer to work as a television model and as a salesgirl in a clothing store.

Carol's parents approve of her

A BERLIN BRUNETTE talented in ballet and singing will represent Germany in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant. Marina Orschel will be 19 Saturday. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall and measures 36-23-35.

BLACK HAIR and fair skin bring contrasting beauty to Miss Utah, Cheryl Brown, 18, of Spanish Forks. Hiking is the sport that guards her 35½-23-35½ measurements and she hopes for a career in dramatics.

74 Lovely Misses to Vie Here

By BEN ZINSER

Long Beach once again becomes Beautyland of the world this week.

By Friday all 74 contestants in the fifth annual Miss Universe Beauty Pageant will have arrived to compete for the title of the most beautiful girl in the world.

This year's international beauty congress will be opened at 8:30 a.m. Thursday when 30 of the candidates, including all European contestants, fly in to Long Beach Municipal Airport in a special plane.

On hand to greet them will be the current Miss Universe, Sweden's Hillevi Rombin; the reigning Miss United States, Vermont's Carlene King Johnson, and Miss Welcome to Long Beach, Sibyl Smith.

Among the European representatives on the plane will be representatives of Sweden, Germany, France, England, Italy and Greece. Some of them will appear tonight on television's Ed Sullivan Show in New York.

Also aboard the special plane will be Miss Turkey and many of the state titlists.

Other candidates will arrive during the week by plane, train, automobile and bus.

* * * *

BEAUTYLAND'S attractions this year include 32 contestants from foreign nations and 42 from the United States including the District of Columbia.

Represented for the first time in the pageant will be the Dominican Republic, Iceland, Paraguay and the Guianas in South America. One girl will represent all three of the Guianas—British, French and Dutch.

The states of Pennsylvania and Missouri will send two representatives. Besides Miss Pennsylvania and Miss Missouri, there will be a Miss Philadelphia and a Miss St. Louis.

All candidates have now been selected with the exception of Miss Greece. She will be chosen in Athens Monday and will emplane for Long Beach Tuesday, arriving here Thursday.

Already on hand here for the 10-day beauty extravaganza are Miss Japan (Yoshie Baba), Miss Washington (June Svedin of Seattle) and Miss Oregon (Maralyn Turner of Portland).

JUDGING FOR this year's pageant is expected to be speeded up, what with the paring of the experts' panel from 11 to nine. Four new judges also have been appointed.

The new judges are Dorothy Kirsten, opera star; Max Factor, makeup authority; Claude Berr, of France, founder and president of the Miss Europe contest; and James H. Noguer, professor of foreign languages and foreign student advisers at Long Beach State College.

An alternate judge, also a newcomer, is Betty Jones, manager of Slenderella International, a chain of figure-perfecting salons.

Returning will be Vincent Trotta, former Paramount Studios art director and dean of judges; Robert Palmer, Universal-International Studios talent executive; Alberto Vargas, artist who created the Varga Girl;

Suppliers Will Hear AF Purchase Rules

Air Force business opportunities available to local manufacturers and suppliers will be explained at the Chamber of Commerce Breakfast Forum at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday in the Wilton Hotel.

Byrnes said there is an ever-increasing demand for component parts needed under the expanding guided missiles program.

He also will give information on how local manufacturers may bid on requirements they may be able to supply the Air Force.

Lyon will show a 19-minute color-sound motion picture on the successful "firing" of a dummy strapped to a rocket sled propelled along a 12,000-foot railroad-like track in excess of 900 miles an hour. The dummy is catapulted from the sled's cockpit and floats to the ground with a parachute.

$ Million Staked in Will Suit

By DON MADDOCK
Court Reporter

A million dollars in Hancock Oil stock will be the stake in a civil suit which starts Monday before Superior Judge McIntyre Faries.

The disputants are A. C. Malone, 86, one of the original investors in Hancock Oil Co., and long-time Republican party leader here, and his estranged wife, Irene R., 55.

Mrs. Malone, 212 Quincy Ave., has possession of the controversial stock. Her husband, of 250 Termino Ave., is trying to get it back.

The suit has been in Superior Court since Aug. 2, 1955.

That day, Malone sued his wife to regain the stock, claiming she "tricked" him into giving it to her.

* * * *

HE CHARGED that she began in 1949 "a plan and scheme" to acquire all of his property—then valued at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

She "importuned, begged and nagged" him to transfer his property to her, he claimed.

After Mrs. Malone gained control of the stocks, she "induced him to add a codicil to his will" providing for deduction of inheritance taxes before she received her share of the estate, the elderly investor and former excursion steamer and amusement zone roller coaster owner added.

Mrs. Malone answered that no fraud was involved. She claimed the stocks were outright gifts to her over a three-

Mine Laying Due Offshore, Navy Warns

HUNTINGTON BEACH — Laying of drill mines offshore here is planned from July 9 through 13 and all mariners are advised to remain away from the area, according to Coast Guard District Headquarters at Long Beach.

The Coast Guard said vessels from the Navy's Mine Squadron 11 will lay the mines at a depth of about 25 feet.

Some of the mines, which are painted yellow, may contain pyrotechnic material and could be dangerous if handled by unqualified persons, the Coast Guard advises.

Church's Record Players Stolen

There will be less music this morning for Bible school classes at the University Baptist Church, 3434 Chatwin Ave.

Church secretary Mildred C. Russell said two record players were stolen Friday by a burglar who smashed a rear window to gain entrance to the building.

The machines were used to play religious music for Sunday school classes, she said.

Naval Reserve Officers School Prepared for Long Beach Area

To accommodate the 2,000 Naval Reserve officers of the Greater Long Beach area who wish to study for professional advancement as officers, Long Beach Naval Reserve Officers School will be established in September, to run through the regular college year.

Classes will be conducted at various Naval locations in the area, with headquarters at the Naval Reserve Training Center, Terminal Island.

Cmdr. Monroe Hubbell, who has been selected for promotion to captain, will be director and Cmdr. Frank George, assistant director.

* * * *

BOTH OFFICERS are administrators in the Long Beach Unified School District. Hubbell is supervisor of business education in high schools and City College and George is supervisor of radio and television education in the schools.

Cmdrs. Hubbell and George left Saturday for Atlanta, Ga., where they will attend a national conference of Naval Reserve officers who head these schools, at Georgia Institute of Technology. They recently finished intensive training at the 11th Naval District headquarters, San Diego.

Upon their return they will select the staff and faculty of 20 persons and set up the classes.

Thirty-seven different courses will be offered, ranging from air navigation to military justice in the Navy. Personnel administration and industrial relations.

Each class will meet one night a week. The school itself is expected to be conducted 3 nights a week.

* * * *

THE COURSES are those required for promotion. The purpose of the school, it is emphasized by the director and assistant director, will be to provide instruction for professional advancement and increase knowledge and ability.

The courses will be free to Naval Reserve officers. Books and materials will be furnished.

Although the program is nation-wide, established 3 years ago, this will be the first school of its kind in the Long Beach area. Previously, the closest school of the kind has been at USC.

Rabbi Ravetch Granted Leave to Visit Israel

After 21 years service at Temple Sinai, Rabbi I. Shalom Ravetch has been granted a Sabbatical leave of one year by his congregation.

RABBI RAVETCH
Will Study Scrolls

He expects to spend three months in Jerusalem where he will study the recently found, controversial "Dead Sea Scrolls."

A dinner in Rabbi Ravetch's honor is slated for 7 p. m., July 22, at the temple, 7th St. and Molino Ave. A reception at 6:30 p.m. will precede the dinner.

Morris S. Brower is in charge of the affair, with Morris Brenner dinner chairman and Cantor Morris Greenfield program chairman.

* * * *

RABBI RAVETCH will leave New York Aug. 9 by the Israel airline El-Al, for London. From there he will leave for Tel Aviv.

"I shall visit as much of Israel as time will permit," says the rabbi, "so I may bring back to Long Beach first-hand information on the Jewish state. I wish to study the possibilities of the development of other shades of Judaism besides Orthodoxy in Israel."

His schedule calls for visits to many European capitals.

Beach Combing

With MALCOLM EPLEY

IT TAKES a pretty girl, they say, to make a man doll up. Same seems to go for a city.

The testimony is in the City Auditorium area, where they've at last got some real improvements going just in advance of the Miss Universe pageant.

Why "just in advance," is an interesting question. The tree-planting and landscaping in the entrance area, while it holds great promise, is obviously late in getting started.

When I was down there yesterday, the trees were in, but the sprinkler system for the lawn was just in process of installation and no grass had been planted. If it's up in time to greet the lovely maidens and the spectators, it will be the fastest growing grass in history.

Likewise the new parking lots are just being finished, and there's a lot of work going on at other spots. The whole thing has an air of emergency about it.

Well, maybe it's just that it's all in keeping with the show business, which just doesn't seem to be able to operate without last minute rush of preparation of physical properties. That's part of the glamor. We'll see how the grass responds to the spirit of the occasion.

THIS isn't exactly a recent event, but it happened here and was related to me yesterday by a fellow who had charge of a local employes credit union operation.

Four employes showed up one day and wanted to borrow $25 each from the union. They had no money, they said, for an immediate need, and presented such woeful countenances that he o.k.'d the four loans.

That evening some one came by and invited him to a poker game, saying there was a missing player for a planned party.

He went and found, among others, the four borrowers seated at the gaming table.

Playing with his own money, he found it rough going with the relaxed lads with the borrowed union funds.

SO FAR as I've heard, no name has been given to the new city golf course to be built soon on the east side of the Long Beach Municipal Airport property, and this is as good a place as any to invite suggestions from the interested public.

Probably something related to the airport or to aviation would be good, but not necessarily the best. Send your ideas along and I'll pass them over, for what they're worth, to the proper city authorities.

I hope there won't be a repetition of what happened the last time this dept. conducted a little naming project. When the Auditorium Annex, or sports arena, or exhibition hall, was on the drawing boards with tidelands oil financing seemingly assured, I invited name suggestions.

A lot of good ones were turned in, before litigation and legislative monkey-business put a block in the way of the project. There's a file of them around here somewhere, a painful reminder of the happy days B.M. (before Mallon).

The aud annex, however, is not entirely dead. The use of tidelands money has never been actually tested in court, and it's still possible this financing method could be employed. If it is, we can revive the naming enterprise.

Meanwhile, let's name the golf course and get it built. Nobody has spent more time on crowded tees than this scribe.

FROM the Oakland Tribune Knave comes this intriguing story about a deputy county auditor up there who couldn't understand what was going on with a new tubeless tire.

Each day he'd fill it with 30 pounds, each evening it held only 15. Finally, the perplexed owner took it to the tire company, which found that someone had removed the tubeless tire from its special rim, replaced it with an ordinary casing, but had neglected to put in the usual inner tube.

The casing would hold 15 pounds of air, and no more. Nobody knew why. Matter of fact, no one knew why it held any air. The auditor was congratulated on driving around on the first non-tubeless tubeless tire.

COUNTING COLD CASH was warm work for Darlene Owen, left, and Rosemary Bush, so bathing suits were the uniform of the day. They inspected $150,000 in hard money arrayed in the vault of Farmers & Merchants Bank for use in Silver Dollar Days of downtown merchants this week.—(Staff photo.)

CANNON BEACH, Ore. (U.P.)—Jerry Varnel, 20-year-old Santa Barbara, Calif., college student working as a lifeguard at Cannon Beach, Ore., was drowned in the surf about 10:30 a. m. Saturday, according to state police.

U.S. Bullfighter in Appeal Today to Spanish Court

MADRID (U.P.) — American Bullfighter Harry Whitney will appear before the Supreme Court here Monday to appeal a six-year and one-day jail sentence for defaming Spain.

Whitney, a 31-year-old matador who bills himself as "The Texan," already has apologized for the language he used in anger after an automobile accident.

His attorney, Augustin Barrena, said he would not predict the outcome of the case but that it has "encouraging aspects."

Whitney has been at liberty pending the appeal.

year period, and that she made no false representations to get them.

As for the codicil, she said Malone told her and her attorney, George H. Johnson, that he wanted each beneficiary of his will to pay his share of estate taxes. Johnson drew up the needed form.

* * * *

MRS. MALONE claimed Malone's attorney, F. A. Knight, "compelled" him to destroy the codicil so the lawyer could "protest the tax-free status of his own legacy of 1,000" shares of Hancock Oil stock.

She also alleged her husband made a written demand for return of the stock while under the "domination" of Knight.

She in effect charged Knight with breaking up their marriage of 26 years' duration.

Judge Faries will decide the case without a jury. The hearing is expected to take between one and three weeks.

Malone is represented by Attys. Knight and Donald P. Lane, and his wife by Attys. George and W. Ward Johnson and John and Bender Moore.

SAVE SILVER DOLLARS

L.B. Merchants Plan Three Bargain Days

Cooperating in the greatest sales promotional event ever staged by Long Beach Retailers Inc., downtown stores will observe Silver Dollar Days Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Don Spring, president of the retail group, said a record number of stores is participating in the event and, he added, "from the bargain standpoint, all previous promotional events will be greatly overshadowed."

A separate section of bonafide bargains will be carried in the Independent, Press-Telegram Wednesday evening and Thursday morning.

"Save Your Silver Dollars" has been advertised by the retail group for several days. This is part of the promotional event and some of those dollars will be worth up to $5 in value in making purchases.

Dates on the silver dollars will determine their value in shopping, said Vito Romans, manager of the retail group.

* * * *

ELSEWHERE IN today's Independent, Press-Telegram will be found an advertisement listing the date of coining of dollars that will be worth $2 in trade during the sale. Monday will be listed the date for those worth $3. Tuesday the $4 value will be announced while Wednesday the coining date of the $5 value silver dollars will be announced.

To help publicize the event, downtown stores are giving out silver dollars in change and clerks are urging customers to keep the silver until the three big days.

Through cooperation of the Farmers and Merchants Bank and the Federal Reserve Bank in Los Angeles $150,000 in silver dollars was sent here for distribution the past week.

* * * *

"THIS IS NOT just another Dollar Day event," explained Lyman Clark, promotoin chairman.

"The 131 participating stores have been planning this event for many months and have purchased special stock to offer the public. While the stocks are heavy, some lines naturally will be limited so the early buyers will have some advantage.

"All the stores have extra clerks on duty."

Romans said the stores will observe regular hours during the 3-day event with all of them open Friday night.

"And with our Park and Shop plan downtown the customers may park at the many large lots near the stores free," he added.

CAROL IN 1955 was named "Queen of American Sportsmanship" by the Christian Athletic Foundation, Tullahoma, Tenn., and reigned at the Christian Bowl game at Murfreesboro, Tenn., Dec. 26, 1955.

Carol's Irish ancestry shows in her dark brown, almost black, hair and her blue eyes.

She's the kind of a girl who'll attract stares even in Long Beach, the city of beautiful women, and the kind of a girl about whom many former Iowans now residing in California will be proud to say: "She's from Iowa."

Cadillac

His Last Switch in Motor Cars !

We have no way of knowing, of course, how many different makes of motor cars this gentleman has owned through the years. But we'd wager that he has changed his preference a great many times in his years on the highway.

And we're also willing to bet that he has now made his last switch in motor cars!

For this time it's a Cadillac! And it is historically true that once a motorist makes the move to the "car of cars", he is usually a Cadillac owner for life.

What are the reasons for this great loyalty? Well, let us count them off.

First of all, there are the things which everyone recognizes in Cadillac. There is its great beauty . . . its matchless luxury . . . and the unquestioned respect which the car commands the world over.

Then there are those qualities with which anyone who has ever driven a Cadillac is familiar. There is its marvelous comfort and ease of handling . . . its magnificent power and performance . . . its wonderful balance and agility . . . and its extraordinary quietness of operation.

And, finally, there are those things which only Cadillac owners themselves can fully appreciate. There is the car's remarkable economy of operation and upkeep—its incredible longevity—its marvelous resale value—and the great pride and happiness that it bestows upon the man at the wheel.

If this little check list of Cadillac virtues coincides with what you've been looking for in a motor car, you ought to come in and see us very soon.

You'll find, by the way, that we have recently made two additions to this list of things you get when you make your decision for Cadillac.

We're talking about prompt delivery and a generous trade-in allowance!

Better come in while the circumstances are so favorable—and make your last switch in motor cars!

It Happened Last Night
By Earl Wilson

THE FIRST SIX MONTHS

NEW YORK—A couple of brides—Bridey Murphy and Bridey Kelly—were responsible for many of the best laughs of the first six months of 1956.

Looking back on that 10 days in Monaco (a country that at the time couldn't have been Rainier), we think Her Grace handled herself well. Gagster Martin Ragaway said he was sure the wedding would last—he wasn't so sure about the country.

Everybody thought it was strange the wedding happened to be held while the Jewelry Thieves' Convention was in town, and Art Buchwald said Prince Rainier had decided one jewel thief would be let into the wedding to represent all the other jewel thieves. Papa Jack (King John) Kelly earned the applause of the American press when he said the prince would have to learn to roll with the punches like people do in Toots Shor's.

The "regression" theme of Bridey Murphy intrigued the wits, who said the film would be made by 18th Century-Fox, the TV version broadcast from 9 to 8 p. m. Comic Joe E. Lewis said he read the book and decided to will his money to himself.

"CBS calls Phil Silvers' TV show 'You'll Never Get Rich,' but NBC calls it by the rest of the sentence," Jack Benny said.

Jayne Mansfield pulled one of the howlers when she said that she and Paul Mansfield got married and had a baby "nine months and 10 seconds later."

"My ex-husband was very emotional," Shelley Winters said. "He'd grab me in his arms, hold me close and tell me how wonderful he was."

* * * *

MOREY AMSTERDAM gave his diet secret: "Eat all you want of eevrything you don't like." . . . Howard Dietz composed a poem to an MGM star, as follows: "I'll say this much for Cyd Charisse, I'll give her half of my valise."

CYD CHARISE

Down at the Statler Hilton opening in Dallas, George Gobel told of a man who dieted off 11 pounds a day for three months: "Last time he was weighed, he only weighed 112 pounds, including the casket." . . . Lana Turner, also on the subject of taking off, said, "After I'm dressed for the evening, I look at myself and ask, 'What more can I take off?'"

* * * *

JERRY LEWIS, m.c.ing the Oscar Awards, was brilliant, especially when after an insufferably long commercial, he said, "And now a brief word from our Academy."

"I had a wonderful time with my husband last night," a Hollywood woman reported. "He got drunk and thought I was his secretary."

Sid Caesar told of a boss who bawled out an employe for praying for a raise. "I don't like anybody going over my head!" thundered the boss.

Zsa Zsa Gabor, asked on TV whether she changed perfume if a man didn't like it, said, "No, I change men."

Yes, 1956 looks like one of our best years, "laugh-wise," as they say. With the politicians sure to be funny while trying to be serious, '56 is certain to wind up a laugh riot.

Jeffrey Hunter on Spot Taking James Dean Role

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Jeffrey Hunter has a feeling that he's on the spot.

The actor was cast in "Gun for a Coward." He knows that the late James Dean was going to have the lead, according to plans announced by Warner Bros. However, after Dean's death, the studio let an option laps on the story, and Universal-International bought the screenplay for Hunter and co-stars Fred MacMurray and Janice Rule.

"This is really a strange situation," he said: "It's tough enough to act the same role as another actor has done well previously. But it's even tougher to compete with the ideas of how people may think another actor would have done the role.

"This thought haunted me before I got to work. I knew I had to do something about it."

Hunter made up his mind that the thing to do was to play the part his way and forget any other factors.

"I'm giving it my very best," he said. "I'm not trying to be an actor with his own set of mannerisms regardless of the parts he plays. I'm trying to interpret the part as I think the author intended it."

Hunter said that after his soul-searching, his decision and his actual work he felt different about the whole picture.

"I still have that feeling that I'm on the spot," he said. "But now I'm not worrying about it any more."

Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

Ed Sullivan and Steve Allen are battling it out in the ratings, and "smiling Irishman" is finding competition in the spectacled humorist. On his first show Steve came closer to Sullivan's ratings than any of the NBC comedians have done in the past seven months . . . and last Sunday beat Sullivan in the Trendex ratings. Allen rated 20.2 to Ed's 14.8 . . .

Tonight at 8 p.m. you takes your cherce between the two, with Steve on (4) having Jack Palance changing his spots from film menace to an entirely different character. Also guesting will be Vic Damone, singing on a New York street, Margaret Truman doing a musical burlesque of "Medic" with Steve, humorist Don Adams in a monologue, Gogi Grant sings "The Wayward Wind" and to wind things up there'll be a couple of surprise guest stars.

Sullivan counters with the French singing star Patachou, movie star Constance Bennett, Senor Wences with his "man in the box", Myron Cohen in some dialect stories, some chimpanzees, a new comedy team and an instrumental group. Late entries are Ted Williams of the Red Sox and comedienne Charlotte Rae.

DRAMA—Barry Jones heads the cast of "The Alcoa Hour" on (4) at 9 p.m. in a story about a youth who is willed a Scottish bagpiper. The latter stirs things up really good and causes many changes in the family way of life . . . Alexander Scourby portrays Joseph Priestly, English-American scientist who is credited with the discovery of Oxygen, during "Telephone Time" on (2) at 5:30 p.m. . . . Marisa Pavan stars on "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" over (2) at 9:30 p.m. in a repeat story of a young wife terrorized by an escaped homicidal maniac. . . Another repeat is on "G.E. Theatre" at 9 p.m. on (2) with John Payne and Keenan Wynn costarred. The two men and a girl (Nancy Gates) are riding a stagecoach during the Civil War period and an Indian attack threatens. This changes the destiny of the trio.

TELE-TIPS—"Focus on Los Angeles" debuts on (7) at 6:30 p.m. with Dick Tufeld narrating films taken in this area, interviewing guests and in general holding the show together . . . Lynn Michaels premieres a weekly, live do-it-yourself fashion show on (7) at 5:30 p.m. . . . "Let's Take A Trip" on (2) at 9 a.m. visits the LIFE magazine photo lab to see what pictures are being readied for the next issue and to get some tips on shooting pictures . . . "Sexual Ignorance" is blamed for many a marriage failure so "Paul Coates' Confidential File" looks into the matter on (11) at 9:30 p.m. . . . "Adventure" concludes its stay on (2) with a real old-time type whale hunt at 1:30 p.m.

GUESTING—Capt. McCutcheon and his challenger, Joseph Amblard, the chef, will continue their battle toward the $64,000 top money during "$64,000 Challenge" on (2) at 10 p.m. They are at the $4,000 level now . . . Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler (D-Ky) will "Meet the Press" on (4) at 6 p.m. . . . Margaret Bourke-White, famed photographer, will answer the questions during "Youth Wants to Know" on (4) at 12:30 p.m.

STORY LINES—In his first outing as "Man Against Crime" the new hero, Frank Lovejoy, certainly didn't come up to his acting abilities. Besides appearing scared to death he also let a big gangster get in back of him (the story was so weak the gangster didn't clobber the hero anyway). he also shelved his gun to light another crook's cigarette and in general did a very poor job of replacing Ralph Bellamy in the role. Maybe with more experience (and better story and direction) he can pull this farce out of the hole it got in to start with. Tonight on (4) at 10 p.m. he finds out the "badger game" can be played more ways than one.

Woman Finds Long Lost Kin Is Neighbor

SAN RAFAEL (AP)—Mrs. Naida Bosley, 45, of nearby Fairfax will enjoy a happy reunion dinner today with the brother she hadn't seen in 35 years.

She didn't know where he was—or whether he was alive—until she located him Friday, purely by chance.

Thus, she learned that they had been living 10 miles apart for the past four years.

Mrs. Bosley, a marketing and travel research worker for a publishing company, stopped at a residence in Alto. There was no one home. She saw a woman in the yard next door and talked to her. The woman said she was Mrs. York. Mrs. Bosley said York was her maiden name.

Mrs. York asked where Mrs. Bosley was born, and when told it was Wichita, Kan., said "I wish my husband could find some of his relatives back there."

Mrs. Bosley related: "She asked me my first name and when I said Naida, she started crying and said 'Come in for some coffee.' Then she referred to her husband as Frank, and I went to pieces."

Disease in Rubber

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—Rubber planting circles are alarmed at reports from major Ceylon planting areas that a new disease called phythopthara is spreading. The disease is said to be seriously affecting rubber production.

U. N. Educators Plan Sessions

PARIS (AP)—The 22-member United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization executive council said today it will open a 15-day meeting here July 11.

The committee will select major UNESCO projects for 1957-58.

Projects for consideration include development of elementary education in Latin America, broadened research on cultivation of arid lands, and greater production of reading aids for illiterates.

Skulls of Medicis Returned to Rest

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—The skulls of the magnificent Medicis are back with their other bones—after eight years apart. Scientists decided to study 23 skulls of the famous family that ruled medieval Florence, and they opened the huge granite coffins in the church of San Lorenzo. Skull measurements proved nothing much of scientific value.

Canada C.O.L. Rises, Near All-Time High

OTTAWA (AP)—Canadian living costs rose in May from 116.6 to 117.8. The yardstick, using 1940 prices as a base of 100, stands at the second highest level in the bureau of statistics records—just two-fifths of a point below December 1951. May's sharp rise was caused mainly by a jump in food prices.

Colorama Homes New Unit Showing Rapid Sales Pace

More than 60 4 and 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes have been sold in Colorama Homes, a new A. Anthony Kuri development on Delhi Rd. just east of Bristol St., for a total value in excess of $810,000, it was announced today by the Don Coleman Co., sales agents for the property.

With the first unit sold out, the second unit is now at the halfway mark in sales and has shown a more rapid sales pace than the earlier unit. Prime reason for this has been analyzed by the Coleman office as increasing demand by veterans for homes of quality and distinctive design.

The latter factor is best illustrated by the 21 highly varied stylings offered in Colorama Homes as designed by architect Martin A. Stern, Jr.

Veterans may still buy any of the homes for nothing down except costs and impounds. Full price is from $13,500, with monthly terms of $68.43 for principal and interest.

* * * *

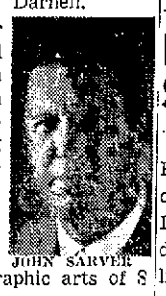

KEY FEATURES of the homes include real, wood burning fireplaces, forced air heating with summer control and vents in every room, built-in oven and range with hood and fan, automatic dishwashers, kitchen nooks, desks and service bars, sliding glass doors and concrete patios.

A standout attraction for many buyers is the completely landscaped yard, with lawns and shrubs front and rear. A five-foot-high redwood fence completely encloses the rear yard, assuring privacy upon moving in and presenting a great economy to the new homeowner.

Craftsmen's Club Installs Sarver

John S. Sarver has been installed as president of the Harbor Area Craftsmen's Club, succeeding Orville Darnell.

JOHN SARVER

The Harbor Club, chartered in 1953, is a district branch of the International Printing House Craftsmen Movement, and has a membership of 120 members, engaged in the graphic arts of 8 cities.

Other officers installed were: Milton Darnell, 1st vice president; John Spinell, 2nd vice president; Leo Casper, secretary, and Hollee Kasell, treasurer. Board members include Ben Brown, Orville Darnell, James E. Wagner, Max Zactler, Don Petty and Bob Roach.

Area Has Best Buys in Homes

Homes in this region are not only setting the style trend for other sections of the United States but today represent the biggest bargain in the nation when compared to homes rising in all other parts of the country.

So stated R. Reese Myers, president, Home Builders Institute, yesterday as he released figures gathered by the HBI research department showing the average home in the Western Region to be both larger and less expensive than the average American new home.

The figures which were based on a survey conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed that during the first half of 1955, the average home started in the 11 Western states was 40 square feet larger than the United States average and 110 square feet larger than the average home in the North Central Region.

At the same time, the HBI president pointed out, the typical selling price in this region was $600 less than in the North Central Region (Great Lakes area states) and $400 less than in the United States as a whole.

"Significance of Western Region figures become apparent when it is understood that we build in the Los Angeles area nearly one-third of all homes constructed in the 11 Western States," Myers said.

"While we have been famous for many years for giving home buyers more "indoor-outdoor" living space, the figures show that dollar for dollar our builders are giving more actual living space within the new homes," the HBI official said.

INVENTION SHOWN

New Plant in Long Beach Producing Fuel Injectors

One of the newest inventions in the automotive field is now being manufactured in Long Beach, Lionel Dyck, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's Industrial Advertising subcommittee, reported after visiting the plant.

"The name of the product," Dyck said, "is the McClain fuel injection system, and it is manufactured here at the National Products Manufacturing, Inc., 1740 Daisy Ave., which is one of Long Beach's new industries.

According to F. W. Dodson, executive vice - president, and manager of the Long Beach plant, the system is the brain child of H. W. McClain, who is the plant's chief engineer.

"The revolutionary injector, which is available for all makes of cars, trucks, buses and tractors and industrial engines, has only been on the market 6 months," Dodson said.

He explained that the main plant is located in Lubbock, Texas, but it is being planned to move the whole operation to Long Beach. The company also manufactures steel tanks, parts and accessories.

Only the fuel injector is being manufactured here at the present time.

McCLAIN, THE inventor, said: "We believe this fuel injector is the most advanced of all butane systems. It completely replaces conventional carburetors. Servicing is rarely required and can be done in less than five minutes without changing the adjustments.

"There are only two moving parts. These are the throttle valve and the delivery piston. The delivery piston and metering needle are assembled as a single unit, designed so that the needle actually rides on air, eliminating any possibility of the mixture ratio being unbalanced due to wear of the needle, after it has been set.

Dodson, explaining why the company located in Long Beach, said "We do not handle any retailing at the plant, but sell through regular distributors."

Six Prudential Agents Honored

Six Long Beach district representatives for the Prudential Insurance Co. will receive the National Quality Award, one of the highest honors accorded in the life insurance profession.

From the Long Beach district agency the winners are L. O. Benson, R. E. Davis, D. D. McCollum and E. A. Weidel.

Recipients of the Downtown Long Beach Agency are W. C. Frey and G. E. Neal.

The award is conferred jointly by the National Association of Life Underwriters and the Life Insurance Agency Management Association.

DONATE WINNINGS

I. N. Page, second place, and Glen Crabtree, first place, are shown presenting their winning prize money to Arnold Berg, chairman of the interior decorating committee for the Long Beach Board of Realtors. This money will be used to complete further, the interior decorating of the Realtors' new home at 3747 Long Beach Blvd. During the contest, 170 homes were processed through the multiple listing system. This resulted in there being 170 new home owners and another 170 people who were able to make other arrangements because their property was sold.

Pioneer Savings, Loan Assn. Increases Dividend Payment

Celebrating the 125th anniversary of the organization, Pioneer Savings and Loan Assn., 232 American Ave., announced an increase to 4 per cent in the dividend to depositors.

Norman Dixon, manager, and his staff held open house the past week in observance of the event and Miss Judy Ware, Miss Welcome, served as hostess.

Dixon reviewed how the savings and loan industry is the main real estate financing agency in the nation with all accounts insured.

Because the overhead isn't too great, no short-term costly handling loans are carried and the fact they are able to lend the depositors funds on good real estate investments, the agencies were able to increase their dividends, Dixon said.

Lamp, Picture Show to Open

The 14th California Lamp, Picture & Accessories Show will open at the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles, today for a five-day market. Approximately 170 lines of merchandise will be displayed, according to Trade Shows, Ltd., managers of the key market event.

Newest trends in lighting and home decorative accessories will be revealed at the show which is expected to attract thousands of buyers from all parts of the country.

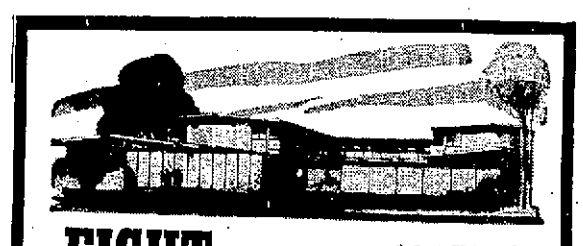

PARKS UNLIMITED

Donald D. Obert, director of parks, and Max Livoni, program chairman for the Long Beach Board of Realtors, review proposed park development for the City of Long Beach. Obert will address the Realtors at their regular Tuesday morning breakfast in the Lafayette Hotel.

ESTATE CLASS HOMES

Luxury Features, Locale Boosting Signature Sales

Attraction of a prestige location and special luxury features has thus far resulted in sales totaling $1,794,000 for Signature Estate homes in the top-rated Sunny Hills area of Fullerton, it was announced yesterday by James H. Waters, sales manager for the Midwood Construction Co.

Price range for home is from $22,490 to $24,230 with both VA and FHA terms available to buyers, noted Waters.

"Signature Estate homes are on sites averaging 80 feet in width," said Waters, who added: "The community with its gently curving roads in El Dorado Dr. is just north of Del Monte West—in an area noted for its many $30,000 to $100,000 residences."

* * * *

Also receiving special attention of visitors at the 4 furnished model homes are wood-burning fireplaces of Texas white stones, flagstone, and used brick; entries and porches of flagstone; preview sliding aluminum windows; aluminum sliding doors linking indoor and outdoor living areas; paved patios; planters and veneers of quality materials; ash hardwood paneling in family room; select hardwood floors, real marble pullmans, and 105,000 BTU forced air heating with thermostat controls.

The homes are reached by following the Santa Ana Freeway to Commonwealth Ave., Commonwealth to Richman Ave., and Richman north for one-half mile to Del Monte West where a right turn leads to El Dorado and the Signature Estates model homes.

John K. Gallagher Receives Promotion

John K. Gallagher, 5106 El Cedral St., has been appointed district sales manager for California for the Hooker Electrochemical Co., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Gallagher has been in the sales department of the company since 1941. He is a graduate of UCLA and served three years in the Navy. He was aquatics director of Long Beach in 1940-41. Gallagher is past president of the Chemical Market Research Assn. of Southern California.

Large Park South Homes Big Favorite of Buyers

Biggest contributing factor to the continued selling pace at Park South, now in its third and final unit at La Palma and Miller in Buena Park, is the 10-room floor plan with 3 and 4 bedrooms and family room, reports Richard H. Doremus, president of Exhibit Homes, Inc., builder.

Priced from $15,125, any vet with a monthly income of $350 can qualify. Non-vets require only a small down.

Living rooms feature sliding glass walls opening on patio, sloping acoustical-type ceilings, and fireplaces in Roman brick, used brick or flagstone. Every home features a "walk-in" pantry, which doubles the kitchen cupboard space. Garages have direct access from kitchen and provide an additional 350 cubic feet of storage area, providing ample room for work bench, complete laundry facilities, a 50-gallon water heater and two cars.

* * * *

Kitchens are equipped with "Dyna-Vent" hood over range, with indirect lighting and exhaust fan, wall ovens, ceramic tile counters, flush design natural birch cabinets, pulverator and snack bar.

From Long Beach, Park South can be reached by going north on Lakewood Blvd. to Carson, right on Carson to Miller, then left on Miller to furnished model homes.

N.L.B. Realty Club to Hear Builder

The North Long Beach Real Estate Club will meet for breakfast at 8 a.m. Thursday at Mayo's Cafe, 5935 Cherry Ave.

Merle Lacey-Baker, program chairman of the day, will introduce John Cannon, builder, and a past president of the club, who will speak on "Building Replacement Costs."

Big Walnut Manor Homes Priced Low

Walnut Manor announces immediate occupancy for qualified buyers. Individuality and customized appearance are listed as major reasons for this unique tract's continued popularity. Engineers designed Walnut Manor to provide the greatest number of cul de sacs possible, creating a maximum of safety and privacy especially suitable for children at play. Street lights, sidewalks and parkway trees are also included, and all utilities are in and paid for.

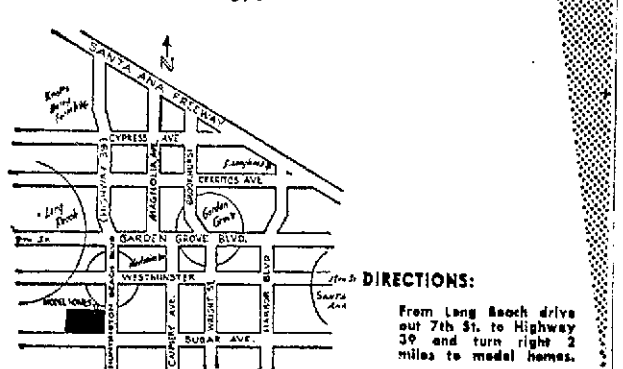

To reach Walnut Manor, drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to Walnut St. in Anaheim. Walnut St. is midway between the new Broadway Department Store shopping center and Disneyland. Then turn south and continue 1 block to the furnished models.

These 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are unbelievably low priced from $13,000 to $14,500. The land and materials were purchased over a year ago when costs were at least 10 per cent lower, the builder says. This saving of at least $1,400 is now being passed on to those value-conscious buyers who purchase the few remaining homes. Vets pay nothing down except small costs and impounds, and easy terms have been worked out for non-vet buyers who qualify.

Kitchens in Sunny Crest Homes Appeal to Buyers

Located on Orangewood Ave. just west of the Santa Ana Freeway, Sunny Crest Homes are experiencing large crowds of prospective home buyers all through the week. The biggest attraction, according to visitors, is the all-electric kitchen.

With GE ranges and built-in ovens, washer-drier combinations, dishwashers and disposals, these kitchens are considered to be among the most advanced in design to be found in Orange County.

Sunny Crest homes are all built in a distinctive modern or provincial exterior design. Three and 4 bedrooms with bath and a half are offered and prices start from $15,250. Either GI or FHA financing is available.

The 40-home development by Homer Toberman can be reached by getting on Orangewood Ave. from either Harbor Blvd. or Haster St. Orangewood is located between Chapman Ave. and Katella Ave. and the development itself is just west of Lewis St., a few hundred yards off the Santa Ana Freeway.

Popular among home buyers is the large number of custom features incorporated in the interior design of the homes. The spacious bedrooms have ample closet space. The interior design is built around the central hall floor plan and interior planters or louvres are used to augment the roominess of the homes.

Each home is built on a deep lot and a sliding glass door at the rear of the living room opens out onto a paved patio area. Sunny Crest homes are located near newly constructed shopping centers, schools and churches, yet retain all the atmosphere of country living.

Grandview Palos Verdes Homes Attract Throngs

IN BEVERLY GARDENS

This is the large living room of one of the Beverly Gardens model homes. Donna Cole, starlet, will demonstrate the new kitchens in the homes today.

Starlet to Demonstrate Beverly Gardens Kitchen

An important "California first" will be chalked up today at Unit 5 of Beverly Gardens, George J. Heltzer's planned community of 3 and 4-bedroom big-family residences at Chapman Ave. and West St., Garden Grove., when Donna Cole, motion picture, radio and television starlet, dials the cooking temperature control on the model home's built-in Western-Holly double oven, to set the first automatic top-burner temperature control in action for the first time anywhere in the Southland.

Miss Cole, who is also known professionally as "Queen of the Western Ranges," will demonstrate this new flame-control device by cooking and serving doughnuts and coffee to home seekers visiting Beverly Gardens today.

"At the same time," Heltzer explained, "Donna will demonstrate the 'indoor barbecuing' features of the built-in double oven that can cook an entire meal in the upper oven, while a large turkey, chicken or roast turns on the spit of the lower king-size rotary barbecue."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH APPROACHING the sell-out stage, these residences are still available to non-veterans on original 1953 financing that calls for an FHA down payment of only $1,800, spokesmen for Walker and Lee, sales agents, explained.

Qualified veterans still pay nothing down, with monthly payments from $62.36 including principal and interest.

Immediate move-in into some models is now possible, Heltzer pointed out. And financing at 4½ per cent can be easily arranged for all purchasers.

Although everything going into the construction of these residences, including sites, has advanced approximately 21.4 per cent since all units of Beverly Gardens were planned and financing approved, original purchase prices from $14,000 to $14,750 remain unchanged, even though duplication on today's market could increase them from $2,500 to $3,000.

Beverly Gardens, Unit 5, is reached from Los Angeles, by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to the La Palma turnoff; turn immediately left on Brookhurst, and drive south to Chapman Ave.; go left on Chapman to West St. and "Gateway to Quality" model home show, open daily and Sundays from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Continued attendance of nearly 10,000 visitors a week and sale of 25 per cent of the luxury-styled homes in the first unit of Grandview Palos Verdes were reported yesterday by Edward K. Zukerman and Barney R. Morris, heads of the Grandview Building Co., only 2 weeks after introduction of the new Palos Verdes Peninsula community.

"A steady flow of visitors is inspecting our 10 display residences, with particular attention to the 3 which are furnished by Barker Bros., with decor by Mary Gibson of the Beverly Hills studio," the builders added.

The model homes, introducing a fashionable new property which becomes in effect an extension of Palos Verdes Estates, Rolling Hills and Portuguese Bend, reflect a wide selection of luxury-planned stylings, totalling 50 diversified designs based on 10 varied floor plans, according to Walter W. Mansfield of Mansfield & Associates, sales agents.

* * * *

"THESE STYLINGS were especially created for this new peninsula community," Mansfield explained, "by two leading architectural firms — Harris & Rice, AIA, and William M. Bray, AIA. In our first unit there are 218 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes and eventually there will be $75,000,000 worth of homes built in Grandview Palos Verdes."

Mansfield declared reaction of the estate-class home-seeking public has been enthusiastic, because never before could such homes in such a location be offered to veterans on 30-year 4½ per cent VA terms, with down payments as low as $1500. For non-vets, there is conventional financing with 20 per cent down.

Overlooking the Palos Verdes Golf Course, the homes are priced from $19,500 to $26,525, and all are landscaped, with front, side and rear yards, ornamental shrubs and slopes planted with ice plants.

HOMES HAVE 75,000 to 90,000 BTU forced air heat with thermostat control; lath and plaster construction; big two-car garages and polished marble-topped pullman cabinets of natural-finish ash with slab-type doors.

Many of the models have attractive brick fireplaces and hearths with log-lighters.

In the smart work-saving kitchens are natural-finish ash cabinets, range hoods and exhaust fans, ceramic tile worktops, General Electric garbage disposals, Armstrong "Corlon" floor coverings, and in some models built-in Gaffers and Sattler gas ranges and custom-styled ovens in decorator colors.

Because of the recent completion of a new link in Crenshaw boulevard, visitors may now take Crenshaw south, past Highway 101, to Palos Verdes Dr. N., turn right to Montemalaga Dr., then go left to the model dwelling display.

Visitors may also go by way of La Brea-Hawthorne Blvd., past Highway 101, to Palos Verdes Dr. N., then left to Montemalaga Dr. and right to the model home display.

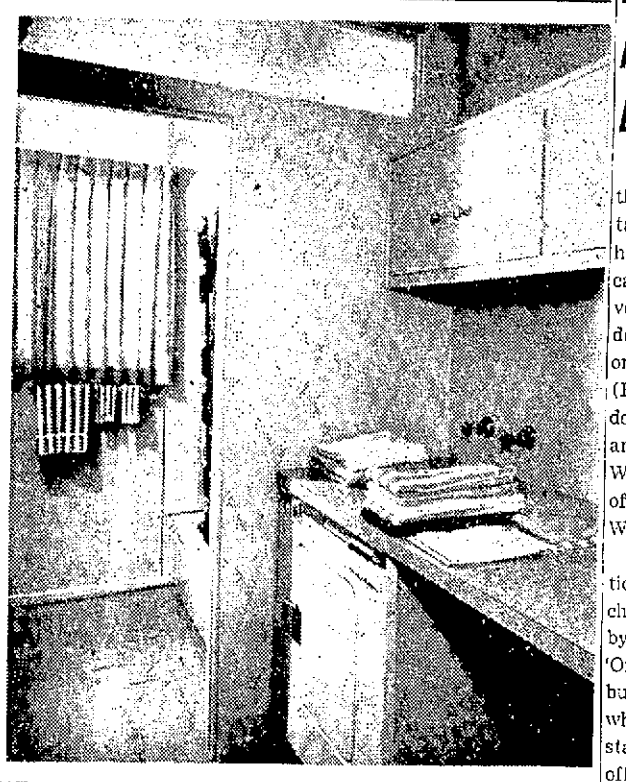

ON THE PENINSULA

UTILITY ROOM

Buyers' favorite at Katella Park is the separate and new idea in a utility room, located just around the corner from the kitchen and near the children's bath. The built-in and color-matched washer-drier is included in the sales price of these Garden Grove homes, built by H. Cedric Roberts & Sons. The cabinets above hold washing needs, while a linen cupboard also is located in the room.

Katella Park Home Ideal in Southland

Summertime living is particularly pleasant in Katella Park, it was announced, as the homes are so planned to take every advantage of the climate, yet minimize any disadvantages.

Only a 20-minute drive from the beach, the homes are so located on the lots to protect the interiors from western sun and also to protect the patios from the prevailing westerly winds.

Large overhangs shield the houses from the sun, and the location of the windows was planned to allow good cross ventilation. There is access from the kitchen areas of every home directly to the patio for ease in serving outdoor suppers.

Located in Garden Grove, the models are at the corner of Brookhurst St. and Katella Ave. Only a few homes are left in the second half of the second unit. The builders also have put the 3 model homes on the market as they are getting ready to close out the development.

Included in the sales price of $16,450 are a built-in and color-matched range, oven, dishwasher, washer-drier, waste disposer and refrigerator. Schools, churches and shopping are near the homes.

Other popular features are the sliding wall between two of the bedrooms, a floor to ceiling brick fireplace, and the hardwood panelling.

Some Choice Luxury Home Sites Still Are Available

Although the public's response to the low-priced Garden Grove Luxury Homes has been unprecedented, the builder reports that several choice locations premain. However, Bill Lyon, Luxury Homes executive says, "The way things are going, we predict the next few weekends will see the entire development sold out."

Priced as low as $12,350, with monthly payments of less than $64, including principal and interest, these homes are affordable to persons earning $350 a month.

Possession is available to veterans with no down payment, while non-vets who meet credit requirements may avail themselves of liberal FHA terms. Government guaranteed 4½ per cent loans, with 25 or 30-year first mortgages are easily obtained. No second mortgages are required.

These 3 and 4-bedroom, two-bath "Luxury Homes" feature built-in suburban oven and table-top range, garbage disposal, mahogany cabinets, sliding glass doors, forced air heating, summer ventilating systems and other quality features usually confined to homes selling at a much higher price. Fifteen exterior designs are available. Landscaping and redwood fencing are in. Incinerators and clothes poles add to the homemaker's convenience.

"Luxury Homes" are located just a few minutes from the Santa Ana Freeway, away from the smog area, yet close enough to metropolitan Long Beach and Los Angeles for easy commuting.

Located at Brookhurst Ave. and Ball Rd., these Luxury Homes are easily reached from Los Angeles, via the Santa Ana Freeway to La Palma St.—turn right and follow the signs to the tract.

Easy to Buy New Home in Beach Areas

"Our experience has indicated that many Veterans are reluctant to make use of their GI home purchasing benefits because of the "red tape" involved in such a deal," say the developers of Hi Way 39 Plaza, on Huntington Beach Blvd. (Highway 39), 2 miles S. of Garden Grove Blvd. in Midway City and at Sun Garden Estates, on Westminster Ave. ½ mile East of Huntington Beach Blvd. in Westminster.

"We have a complete elimination of annoyance to the purchaser. All details are handled by us in what might be called a 'One stop Service,' in that the buyer does not have to go anywhere to complete his deal from start to finish, except the sales office itself located right on the tract.

"It is not necessary for the purchaser to obtain his certificate of eligibility nor to contact the Veterans Administration at any time during the processing period. Neither is it necessary to go to the offices of the lending agency nor to an escrow company, just the sales office.

"Another advantage afforded by this 'streamlined' service is that the buyer can be in his home within 10 days. The same situation applies to FHA purchasers of those homes in Sun Garden Estates. Non-veteran purchasers may also buy in Hi-Way 39 Plaza under attractive conventional terms."

Award-Winning Frematic Homes Prove Popular

Growth of Frematic Homes in Anaheim as a well-established new community was underscored yesterday by announcement of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, that 36 families already have moved into homes in the development and 10 more are arriving each week.

Because everyone likes a winner, a spokesman said, the national-award-winning homes of Ross W. Cortese are attracting large crowds to the display of model dwellings.

"Sales in the new third unit at Frematic Homes are up 25 per cent," a spokesman stated.

"Crowds come to see the model homes on view at Gilbert St. and Lincoln Ave. because they won Awards of Merit in the most recent countrywide competition of the National Assn. of Home Builders and then they buy because they like the excellent Anaheim location and the many added features, including the all-electric kitchens," he explained.

* * * *

INCLUDED in the large 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes, some of which have family rooms, are built-in electric ranges and ovens, 12.5-cubic-foot electric refrigerators, garbage disposals and electric dishwashers, all color-matched to harmonize with kitchen colors.

Generous cabinet space, breakfast bars, exhaust fans and Formica counter tops are other features of the modern kitchens.

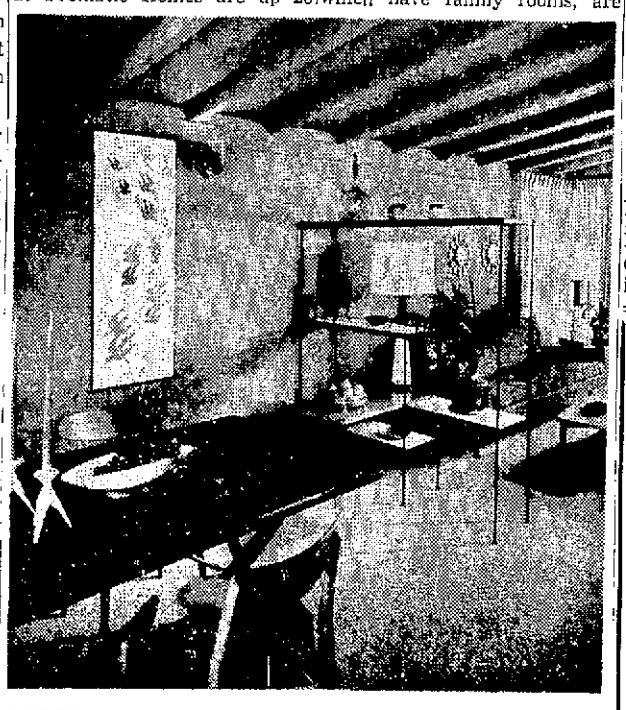

Buyers are given a choice of 28 diversified stylings, it was stated, with the 3-bedroom models containing 1,362 square feet of living space, priced at $15,250, while the models with family rooms have 1,506 square feet at $16,350.

* * * *

FOR THE SMALLER homes, vets pay $500 down with monthly payments of $75.80, plus impounds. Non-vets, on FHA terms, pay $2,450 down with monthly payments of $64.50, plus impounds. Terms for the larger homes for vets are $550 down and $81.40 monthly plus impounds, and for non-vets, $2,750 down and $69.45 monthly plus impounds.

Among the many distinctive features offered by the new homes are hooded fireplaces of slumpstone, brick or cement blocks with raised hearths which continue to form a seating space and adorn the living room, sliding walls of glass, gabled windows, custom-styled bathrooms with Pullman sinks, colored fixtures, oversize stall showers with terrazzo base, tile walls and glass doors.

The bath adjoining the master bedroom also has a private dressing room and added storage area while the bedrooms are king-size.

28 Hazelwood Homes Left to Sell

Offering 1,300 square feet of living area in a popular 4-bedroom, 2-bath home plan, Hazelwood Freedom Homes are nearing a sell out, salesmen report.

The last 28 of these suburban homes are expected to be sold by the end of July, according to sales manager Marion Thomas. Roomy and low priced, a family having $310 per month gross income qualifies for these homes.

Illustrating the spacious living area in these homes are the king size master bedrooms of 12 feet by 15½ feet. Along with the tremendous roominess, the attractive exteriors and interiors make these homes compare with most others several thousand dollars higher in price, salesmen say. The colored bath fixtures, Rockwool insulation, paved streets and sidewalks safely away from fast through-streets and parkways, sewers, and easy to maintain yards are just a few of the features.

Hazelwood Freedom Homes are close to new schools and many uptown shopping centers. A few minutes drive from the beach areas and just a short 10 minutes from the heart of Long Beach as well. These homes are ideal for the modest income of the GI or FHA buyer.

To see the furnished models, drive out 7th St., in Long Beach 3 miles beyond the San Gabriel River.

High Construction Standards Stressed in Enchanted Homes

Although many thousands of home seekers have moved through the display models of Enchanted Homes in Garden Grove, the homes are as unmarred as the day they were opened, it was reported by Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Constructed to exacting standards by the Godbey Development Co., veteran builders, Enchanted Homes feature hardwood floors, sweeping shake roofs, and a host of especially durable features.

All homes have 3 bedrooms, a round-the-clock family room, 2 bathrooms and a completely self-contained powder room with its own shower, wash basin, make-up table and wall-to-wall mirror.

* * * *

THE KITCHEN features built-in range and oven, garbage disposer, long-life work surfaces and natural wood cabinets.

* * * *

AN UNUSUAL feature of Enchanted Homes is the planning for summer cooling; this includes special apparatus in the 75,000 BTU forced air heating unit, unusually wide eaves, diamond-lite windows and a carefully planned layout to allow breezes to circulate throughout the interior.

Priced from $15,200 to $15,400 Enchanted Homes are available both to veterans and non vets on VA and FHA terms.

AN ENCHANTED HOME

Charming and unusual is this Enchanted Home in the Garden Grove development. Shake roofs, wide eaves and sparkling diamond-lite windows blend with the colorful California country-side. For both vets and non-vets, Enchanted Homes are located at the intersection of Magnolia and Orangewood Blvds.

A FAIRVIEW RANCHO

This is one of the many models of homes offered in the Prince Charming series of Fairview Ranchos in Santa Ana.

Gold Keys Given Buyer of Prince Charming Home

D. & E. officials, developers of the Prince Charming series of Fairview Ranchos at Fairview Ave. and Bristol St., Santa Ana, have received hundreds of requests for miniature "Mr." and "Mrs." golden keys they give each buyer, from key collectors all over the country, according to Lincoln Moss of Key Land Co., sales agents.

"However," Moss went on, "since the Golden Key of D. & E. is strictly limited to purchasers of these charmingly rustic, traditionally-styled residences, and since they actually unlock the front door of the buyer's home, they are, of course, collector's items only for new buyers."

Residences in the Prince Charming series are identifiable by their low sweeping eaves, diamond-cut windows, bright exterior colorings, quaint shutters, and rustic architectural trim, Moss explained.

* * * *

MODEL HOMES, furnished in keeping with the custom decor, by C. Tony Pereira, may be reached from Long Beach by driving out 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol; right on Bristol to Fairview and development.

The homes "star" the new Waste King complete kitchens in their first official Southern California showing. It includes built-in Waste King gas range with automatic pilot, gas wall oven with window and automatic timer, built-in Dishmaster semi-automatic dishwasher with a special rinsing-drying action, and sink-installed Waste King Pulverator.

These 3 bedroom and 2-and-a den, 2 bath homes are as modern as tomorrow, for all their quaint charm, it was explained. Each is dominated by a log-burning brick fireplace cornered or set in the middle of the living room.

Residences in the new Prince Charming series are available to qualified veterans for nothing down except small impounds and closing costs, Moss explained.

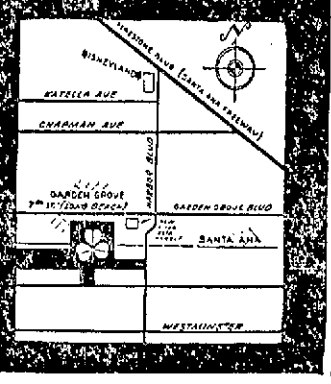

Realty Blue Book Now Available

"More than 23,000 members of the California Real Estate Association are listed in the new roster issue of the California Real Estate Magazine which was recently mailed to a circulation list of over 25,000" said Morris Holmquist, president of Long Beach Board of Realtors, Inc. "This is 1,000 members more than were in last year's book. The roster issue reveals our own board with a total membership of 733."

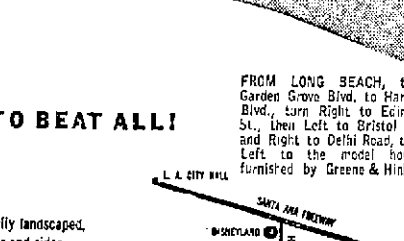

According to Archie Culpepper of Larkspur, chairman of the June Blue Book Roster Issue committee, this year's magazine is the largest in the history of the association. In the 268 pages is a complete reference section of the names and addresses of all the 23,000 Realtors, salesmen and associate members of the California Real Estate Association, listed under the 147 local real estate boards which are affiliated with the state association.

"This magazine" said Holmquist, "does a tremendous selling job for California and should have a great influence on out-of-state realtors, industrialists and businessmen."

University Club in Polynesian Mood

Independent - Press-Telegram
Women

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, JULY 8, 1956 SECTION W

Club to Stage Giant Luau as Major Summer Affair

By IOLA MASTERSON

The Pacific wears a necklace of island jewels known as Polynesia and the beauty of these baubles of nature and their inimitable way of life are legendary! Occasionally mainlanders, yearning to share in this carefree existence, are able to capture its mood, if but briefly, through the party magic of a luau.

The University Club will provide just such an escape for its members and their invited guests with a spectacular and authentic luau on Sunday, July 29. It will mark the club's largest and most lavish function since moving into new clubhouse headquarters at 1150 E. Ocean Blvd. Co-chairmen for the big event are Mrs. Kelly W. Williams and Jack Miller.

All sections of the big, rambling ocean front club will be opened to accommodate comfortably the pleasure-bent crowd. Reservations will be limited to 1,000, according to Mrs. John Marriner, ticket chairman, and many will heed the gay invitation to come costumed in the South Seas manner.

Merrymakers will begin arriving at 1 p.m. to enjoy the day-into-evening festivities. A dance band will play around the pool and another orchestra will play on the beach directly below the clubhouse where a dance floor will be built especially for the party. This private beach area will be enclosed with backdrops of palm fronds and cleverly designed island "scenes."

An island decor will be used throughout the club and each guest will be presented with a lei, in true luau fashion, upon arrival. Native hat makers will provide atmosphere as well as headgear for guests. Promptly at 5 p.m. the imu will begin. This is the ritual of roasting the traditional pig for the Polynesian feast which will be done, Polynesian style, on the beach. Kau Kau (dinner) will be served at 5:30 p.m. at tables on the terrace and beach. The menu will fea-

JOHN WEBB WILL BE IN A PRETTY kettle of Hawaiian fish if he doesn't have two gardenias—one for Mrs. John Richards as well as the one he is presenting to Mrs. Charles P. Morgan! Actually, the one gardenia will be sufficient this time because these wives of University Club members are merely coaching John in a fine, old native flower custom in preparation for the "U" Club's colorful party to take place just two weeks from today.

WANT A RECIPE FOR ROAST PIG, POLYNESIAN STYLE? First you dig a hole along a warm stretch of beach and the food is greatly enhanced if the preparations are accompanied, as shown by these University Club members, by more fun than digging! Jack Miller readies a cooking pit with the help of Mrs. Miller, right; Mrs. Kelly Williams, and Mrs. Ralph Smith.

Hurrah for Summer Parties!

By ILKA CHASE

Now is the season of the outdoor gorge—sing hey nonny nonny and hot roast corn. The columns of smoke rising into the sky are redolent not of burning leaves but of the clambake, the barbecue and the crisped mosquitoes that the harried but determined householder is struggling to vanquish.

My husband has already given his annual office clambake on our beach and only slightly more than half the merrymakers were unable to show up for work the next day. We rated it a happy time. And just the other night we were invited to a sumptuous barbecue on the lawn of Mr. Jack Mohr, the gentleman who is the head of Lentheric. The Mohrs are a grand family. Four boys, 19, 15, 13, 10 and a beguiling damsel of one and a half. With all those big brothers and doting parents the apple of whose eye she is, Miss Susie will hardly be spoiled at all!

Betsy Palmer, prudent girl, drove to New Jersey where the Mohrs live, with her husband but Bobby Sherwood, Ogden Nash and I went with Herbert Wolf who produces the program. Our boss is a dear and capable chap but he hasn't yet received the word that jet propulsion is for airplanes in the sky. He thinks it's meant for automobiles. We got to Jersey with the speed of thought. We also got there with nerves unhinged—but we were in one piece and, more important, so was everybody else on the road, including an improbable character who works a steam shovel in the new tube of the Lincoln Tunnel. Apparently finding his work on the prosey side, this gent wears a large ape mask which diverts him but which must give his colleagues a nasty turn when they first spot him in the tunnel gloom.

Smoke Clouds

When we arrived at the Mohr house we thought we'd get there just in time for the fire. Great clouds of smoke were billowing forth as from the nostrils of an outraged dragon but it turned out to be our amiable host wielding an informal machine to dispel mosquitoes. The joys of the great outdoors! However, he was successful. The mosquitoes vanished and there was no sand, no ants and the food was memorable; steamed clams, cold lobster and marvelous thick steak cut in thin slices with a fine cole slaw salad. Solid fare and very American. It amused me and also filled me with a kind of wonder to think how far away in time and space were the purveyors of today's product from the man who first developed it. Like thousands of similar stories it too is a graphic example of the power of international trade, the ingenuity of commerce.

It was in 1885 that Monsier Guillaume Lentheric opened his first small labora-

WHERE THERE IS HAWAIIAN MUSIC there is bound to be dancing! There will be both in festive amounts soon and singing, too, at the University Club's authentic day-long luau. Here Mrs. John Webb demonstrates a "Waikiki two-step" as William Six, left, and Reg Dupuy accompany her with a hands-clapping rhythm. All are members of the committee planning this largest social event of the fun-loving club since moving to its new ocean-front quarters at 1150 E. Ocean Blvd.

Bachelorettes End Rushing Season With Gay Dinner

Bachelorettes, now busily preparing for their annual summer charity dance to take place July 28 at White's Point, Palos Verdes, added another gay note to their summer activities with a sparkling dinner party Thursday night in the Boulevard Room of the Lafayette Hotel in honor of new members.

The dinner climaxed the club's three week's rushing season which was ushered in with a formal tea at the home of Joanne Potter, 6539 Rose Ave.

Thursday evening's honorees were Colleen Marron, Janet Reynolds, Janene Laycock, Margo Robertson, Mary Ann Martin, Shirley Williams, Sharon Vansant, Lou Ann Barnett, Pat O'Donnell, Carol Crosby, Mary Ewan, Shirley Irvine and Marilyn Irvine.

'Miss Universe' to Be Theme

Wives and officers of the U.S.S. Bremerton will serve as hostesses for the July meeting and luncheon of Fleet Officers Wives Club, to take place in the Officers' Club at Allen Center Thursday.

Cocktails will be served at noon with luncheon to follow at 12:30 p. m. Mrs. C. C. Kirkpatrick is in charge of arrangements for the luncheon which will have a "Miss Universe" theme.

Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

There are few more exhilarating times in life than when you're a bride-elect or bridegroom-ditto and have lots and lots of friends. Dorill Jones and Jim Thompson are finding that out. After next Saturday they'll be doubly sure of it and will continue to be convinced right through to their wedding date in September.

Next Saturday Nancy Ott and daughter, "Bindy" Vossburg, will have a linen shower and luncheon for Dorill, who will be in Long Beach for a week from her new home in Lodi. Naturally, Jim will be excluded. But that same night he'll be brought out of the usual strictly-in-the-background status of bridegrooms-to-be and will be co-feted with his fiancee at a buffet supper being given for them by Betty and Bill Barbee. Assisting the Barbees with the gay evening will be Jim's folks, Bobbsie and Greer Thompson.

While the joy of Saturday is still fresh in their memories up will pop another party on July 19, this time Carrie and Al Vignolo will be the hosts dinner entertaining informally for the young couple.

If your good friend Minta Springer didn't see you on the Fourth of July it isn't because she didn't try! Minta is here with that sea-goin' husband of hers, Capt. Frank of the U. S. Navee, en route from Alexandria, Va., to new duty at Pearl Harbor. The Springers and their three young "sailors" are staying with her mother, Mrs. James Bonner, 5605 Seaside Wk., which proved a most fertile area on Independence Day in which to sieve through the beach crowd in search of friends. Minta found any number of them and conversation sparkled like fireworks as she renewed acquaintances after her two and one-half year absence from this old home port! They "lift anchor" in about a week bound for Honolulu.

Ed Iliff is up there in San Francisco helping keep the world safe for democracy. He is not haunting the $2 window at Hollywood Park as some people suspect! Ed is taking his annual two weeks Naval Reserve training and we have a hunch he may even enjoy wearing his commander's cap again, with its slightly tarnished scrambled eggs. In Ed's former Navy career he served as Judge Advocate of the General Court-Martial in the Eleventh Naval District and will again be under court-martial jurisdiction while he snaps salutes for this two weeks' warrior phase. If anything like a Caine mutiny-type story breaks with a San Francisco dateline, look for the name of a certain local barrister to be involved!

Last Sunday from mid-afternoon and far into the night, Doris and Frank Preissler entertained Roger Wagner of Hollywood and other members of the Roger Wagner Chorale in which Doris is a well known performer. The party took place in the Preissler's canal front home in Naples which gave guests an ample opportunity for swimming, rowing, sailing or just plain loafing. After good things to eat and drink all day, guests still found they could manage generous servings from the buffet dinner array of food. Assisting Doris and Frank with the "swellicious" day were Marushka and Orville Darnell, Kitty and Charles Wire of South Gate and Grace Hurt. Except for Orville turning his Skimmer class boat upside down trying to launch it in the canal all was smooth sailing that day. A high point of the affair was watching the Ed Sullivan show and seeing several of the chorale group featured!

For purposes of quick identification Della Lawson used maiden names on her guests place cards when she entertained daughter Jane (Lawson) Keegan's "old gang" at a luncheon at the Virginia Country Club. Jane is here from home in Long Meadow, Mass., for a summer vacation. Gill will arrive next Wednesday to complete the familial picture and, with the children, they will remain until August 1. Della's party included 27 of Jane's long-time-ago friends and the maiden name idea was not only novel and fun but quite helpful, really, memories being what they are!

Most fun in a long time was helping initiate Marineland's new "Champagne Cruise" last Monday. Cruising along the coast at twilight and sipping champagne is quite a way to build an appetite for dinner! Murray and "Ollie" McDonald were among those on the inaugural sipping-seeing ride which is now featured regularly each weekend for Marineland diners.

Surrounded by children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, Dorothy and Karl Hawthorne had the time of their lives entertaining for their two clans at a family patio picnic on the Fourth. Nose counting would have netted you a count of 18. The week continued to glisten for Dorothy and Karl with arrival Friday of Dorothy's sister and husband, Marjory (Grace) and Kent Bell here for a few days from San Francisco.

The fun of showing California off to a "first time" visitor belongs to Winifred and Dr. Harold Morris, who are entertaining Harold's neice, Donna, here for the summer from Des Moines, Iowa. They left Wednesday for Pebble Beach to attend a dental golf association tournament—the Southern California "fillers" competing against the Northern California "yank-'ems!" After the mashie and niblick duelling, they'll go on to San Francisco for a few days. This is the first of a series of little trips to see all the sights which we Californians love to brag about.

An antique rocking chair continues to be the center of a simple yet charming family tradition for the Townsends. "Baba" Graham, last to use the rocker for its original purpose, presented it to Coni and "Bud" Townsend and when Coni sets it to rocking with a baby in her arms sometime in August she will be lulling to sleep the third generation of Townsends the little rocker has assisted into dreamland.

Speaking of Coni reminds us of her parents, Polly and Burton Chace who, with other daughter, Paula, have been having a grand time entertaining four pert Delta Gammas from the University of Iowa. One of the girls, Ann Dunkerton, was with Paula on a tour of Europe last year and Ann, with her travelling companions of this year, Sandi Shelton, Dot Thompson and Mary Lee Lytle, were invited to make the Chace's home their headquarters while here. Lots of side trips, of course, and in between times large portions of the Chace's famed hospitality!

Norman Allumbaugh, exalted ruler of the Elk's here, should have been as exultant as exalted Wednesday. Before he and wife, Faye, left by plane for a trip to Chicago to attend the Elk's convention all the lodge officers honored the pair at a farewell cocktail party. And if that sort of attention wouldn't make a guy exultant, what would!

Mr. and Mrs. William Henry McCarthy

Nuptials Solemnized in Palo Alto Chapel

William Henry McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy, claimed attractive Mary Katherine Manning of Berkeley as his bride during recent nuptial services at St. Ann's Chapel in Palo Alto.

Following a honeymoon trip to Canada, the newlyweds are now residing in the Palos Verdes area. Both received their master's degrees from Stanford University, the bride in education and her husband, a Polytechnic High School alumnus, in metallurgical engineering.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Manning, Berkeley, the young bride wore a traditional long-sleeved gown of antique taffeta as she walked down the chapel aisle with her father. The gown's portrait neckline was set off by an inset of Angel-skin lace embroidered with iridescent sequins, and the full-flowing skirt fell gracefully to a sweep train. Four tiers of illusion net cascaded from a sequin-embroidered lace headpiece. White butterfly orchids and lilies of the valley nestled together in the bridal bouquet.

Members of the entourage included Miss Marcia Manning who served her sister as maid of honor; bridesmaids, Miss Jane McCarthy, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Joyce Penn of Long Beach, a Stanford classmate of the bride; the bride's brother, Brian Manning, best man, and ushers, Gerald Peters of Fresno, Alan Scow of Gardena and Clyde E. Taylor of Long Beach.

The newlyweds greeted well-wishers in the lovely gardens adjoining the chapel and at a later reception in the Newman Club of Palo Alto.

Kappa Delta Alums Seat New Leaders

Mrs. J. Albert Brown was installed as president of Long Beach Kappa Delta Alumnae Association following a dinner party at the Petroleum Club. Mrs. Brown is a graduate of USC and received her master's degree from Long Beach State College.

Mrs. Alexander Cameron, president of the Southern California Kappa Delta Council, was installing officer. Other new board members are Mrs. John Valuch, vice president; Mrs. Joseph Kellogg, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Russell Rees, editor.

Appointive chairmen named by Mrs. Brown are Mrs. C. B. Brothers, philanthropy; Mrs. E. John Hanna, courtesy; Mrs. Paul Johnson, magazine; Mrs. Alexander Cameron, diamond anniversary; Mrs. Gauss Loper, rush chairman; Mrs. Sterlin Fisher, social chairman; Mrs. Jonathan Booth, membership, and Mrs. Rees, college adviser.

The group presented Mrs. Booth, retiring president, with a miniature gold gavel and a pearl necklace in appreciation of her service as president.

Recent college graduates invited were Misses Jonine Booth, Rosemary O'Donnell and Beth Sudenga.

Mrs. J. A. Brown

Nuptial Date

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Lang, 11100 Elm Ave., Lynwood, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Linda Lu, to James Craig Richards, son of Dr. and Mrs. Jesse Richards of Inglewood.

The couple will be married Aug. 26 in Lynwood Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Summer Is Relaxing for Juniors

That Ebell Juniors are enjoying sparkling vacation days is evident in news of their trips hither and yon and of gay parties in their Long Beach homes.

Envy of their many friends are Mr. and Mrs. Howell Gester, who are off on a 21-day cruise to Alaska. Hoping to be rewarded with a totem pole for good behavior are the four little Gesters, awaiting them at home.

And heading up the California coastline toward Alaska (but only as far as San Francisco) went Mr. and Mrs. Ray Berbower last week, where Berbower attended the first World Earthquake Engineering Conference at Berkeley University.

Also in the bay city the same gay week was Ebell Junior president Mrs. R. F. Carter, who called the St. Mark Hotel home for the length of her vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken McCulloch have other spots in mind for a carefree vacation—they are spending a week at the delightful La Valencia in La Jolla with their two children, Barry and Tom.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Swigart are swimming and sunning at Las Vegas this week, and enjoying that city's entertainment.

Loud spashes and whoops of laughter heard in Park Estates last Wednesday eminated from a party hosted by the Bill Berrys. Having a wonderful time were the Al Beachs, Don Hazzards, Jack Daltons, Richard Leebricks, Douglas Benwells, Richard Barry Jrs., Jules Bradys and Mrs. Marshall Pitts.

After weeks of scanning road maps and figuring mileage, the Chet Weides are off on a trip to Norfolk, Va., where they will visit relatives and tour spots of interest.

Sisterhood to Stage Annual Millinery Event

Representatives of well known millinery shops will judge a millinery contest to be conducted in conjunction with a Temple Beth Sholom Sisterhood luncheon Tuesday at 12:30 p. m.

The latest creations will be unveiled at the annual affair in the home of Mrs. Bernard Baskin, 4501 Hazelbrook Ave., who is co-chairman of the event with Mrs. Norman Baskin.

Other hostesses will be Shirley Albert, Ruth Apple, Anne Berlow, Anne Gerber, Yetta Granowitz, Trudy Heller and Sara Marcus.

Vows Link Prominent Pair

Margaret Suzanne Waddelow was a picture of bridal grace as she walked down the center aisle of Belmont Heights Methodist Church June 29 to join Stephen Branson Mulhollen who awaited her at the altar.

The Rev. Richard V. Kendall read the wedding lines which united the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Edward Waddelow of 169 Claremont Ave., and the late Mr. Waddelow, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stephen Mulhollen.

White gladioli, stock and carnations added their fragrant beauty to the setting as the petite, dark-haired bride approached on the arm of her brother, Thomas E. Waddelow. Her gown was fashioned with a bodice of Chantilly lace and a bouffant skirt of tulle billowing over lustrous satin. A tiny crown of pearls fastened her fingertip length veil and phaleonopsis and lilies of the valley cascaded in her bouquet.

Apple blossom pink frocks of embroidered nylon sheer over taffeta were worn by the bridal attendants, Miss Diane Adams, maid of honor, and Miss Gwain Branson, Miss Joan Jahnke, Mrs. Robert F. Peyton and Miss Barbara Peterson, bridesmaids.

Completing the party were James A. Morford, best man, and Robert Morford, Gene Powell, Gene Wilkinson and Richard Davey, groomsmen.

In the church's Wesley Hall, the newlywedded couple greeted 300 guests before they departed for a honeymoon trip to an undisclosed destination.

Both young persons are graduates of USC and are members of Alamitos Bay Yacht Club. She is a graduate of Wilson High School and is affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta, Alpha Lambda Delta and Long Beach Junior Philharmonic.

He attended Pasadena City College and is a member of Delta Sigma Phi and of Knights.

On their return they will establish residence at 256 Rafael Walk.

Gilkerson-Davis Vows Solemnized

Honeymooning in Mexico City and Acapulco are Ensign and Mrs. Jess David Gilkerson Jr., who were married June 24 in Hollywood Beverly Christian Church.

Honor Pair at Reception

To introduce their nephew's lovely bride to close friends and relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Marcoux entertained at a garden party recently in their Fleethaven Road home in honor of newlywedded Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Scott (Gay Hawkey).

A profusion of pink and white flowers, colorful ribbons and filmy tulle created a lovely background for the festive patio reception where the nearly 150 well-wishers gathered to meet the new Mrs. Scott, daughter of William Hawley and the late Mrs. Hawley of South Gate. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Scott of Bellflower.

The couple was wed in recent services at St. Bernard's Catholic Church.

The 1 p. m. double ring ceremony, witnessed by members of the family, was performed by Cleveland Kleihauer. Later, the newlywedded couple received felicitations of 250 friends at a reception from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Officers' Club, Allen Center.

The lovely bride, the former Peggy Jo Davis, wore an exquisite gown of white Chantilly lace. Its fitted bodice was fashioned with a demure collar and tiny cap sleeves and the bouffant skirt was ballerina length. A tiny crown of matching lace caught a filmy fingertip length veil. She carried white orchids atop a white prayer book.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George A. Davis of Los Angeles. The bridegroom is the son of city engineer Jess D. Gilkerson and Mrs. Gilkerson of 3585 California Ave.

Both young persons are graduates of USC where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi and he of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Fashion Leisurely Turns Back the Clock

(Editor's Note: Fall's fashion mood is elegant and nostalgic, looking back to the serene days before World War I, when ladies not only were ladies but dressed the part to the teeth. New York designers are preparing to show their collections to the press this week, and AP's women's editor has taken a preview peek.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK — Fashion looks backward 44 years to the elegant era of 1912 for the newest in fall clothes. In both silhouette and fabric, the mood of fall and winter fashions for 1956-57 is a nostalgic renaissance of the Golden Era of American History, when wars were forgotten and woman's place was in the home

New York designers, preparing to show their fall collections to the nation's fashion press this week, are almost unanimous in their revival of the manners and look of an earlier, gentler day, when ladies were ladies and dressed the part.

This was the age of dust ruffles and ostrich plumes, of pomp and ceremony, of formal manners and fashions. Ladies sat on the front porch with their fine needlework of an afternoon, instead of behind a desk in a business office. They dressed with care and wouldn't dream of going out in the sun without their parasols.

It was the age of chivalry, when women were clinging vines and men were sturdy oaks, when gentlemen came calling on Sunday afternoon to take their ladies riding in surreys with fringe on top.

This new feeling of fashion is evident principally in clothes for late afternoon and instep length dinner dress and the full length evening gown, the softening of the sheath silhouettes by panels and draperies, the use of feminine laces, embroideries, stiff, rustling silks and brocades. It is evident in the Empire line so important in daytime as well as evening fashions, in a new air of elegance and formality, in feminine detailing of even tailored fashions.

It is seen in the revival of the fringed sheath, the harem cape and the long velvet evening gown. It is dramatized by the new importance of big and elegant hats, by the return of big fur muffs, by fur-trimmed coats and suits.

Daytime dresses are principally of the sheath variety, but with a difference. There may be a draped bodice and a floating panel at side or back. There may be a soft, surplice closing, with a wide V neckline. There almost certainly will be some softening of the straight-and-narrow silhouette by means of drapery or panels or trimming.

The newest suits manage also to suggest an Empire line by a subtle change in cut, by a mere accent of above-the-waist detail, such as bands, tabs, bows or pockets. Jackets usually are brief, waist or hipbone length, with waistline accent, if any, above the belt. Back fullness in suit jackets is likely to start just below the shoulder blades. Panel backs are seen frequently in suits, these usually hugging the hipline. Skirts are uniformly slim, many with low-placed back interest in the form of a pleat, a slit or a small tailored bow.

Coats also present a new facade for fall. The line again usually is narrow, sometimes entirely straight, sometimes sloping slightly outward from shoulder to hem, sometimes narrowed at the bottom to a subtly barrel-shaped silhouette. Belts, if any, usually appear only in back and well above the waist. These actually are only accents in the form of tabs or bands which do not alter the line of the coat. More fur-trimmed coats are seen this season, more elegant fabrics, more attention to detail. This applies to town coats. In the sports coat category, the hooded car coat is the big favorite, designed for wear in open sports cars and slated for wide popularity among the college and high school crowd.

Hoods generally are evident in sports fashions, with many hooded dresses, sweaters and coats in evidence, especially in junior sizes.

The accepted skirt length for daytime is about the same —mid-calf or slightly below, but the full-length evening gown is back in force, and the lines have been more clearly defined between day and evening fashions.

The costume, that perennial favorite of American women, is important in all collections, consisting of dress and jacket or full-length coat, all executed in the new and nostalgic manner.

Methodist Rite Joins Long Beach Pair

Stately baskets of white stock, gladioli and delphinium adorned the candlelit sanctuary of California Heights Methodist Church for the recent nuptial ceremony uniting Phyllis Marie Hamann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Hamann, and Alton E. Hutchinson. Rev. James Hughes solemnized the double ring service witnessed by 250 friends and relatives of the young pair.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white imported Swiss embroidered organdy fashioned with rounded neckline and short sleeves softly accented with graceful scallops which were repeated on the tiers cascading down each side of the full skirt. A heart-shaped organdy headpiece held the fingertip bridal veil. In her hands was the bride's bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids mingled with sprays of stephanotis.

Lovely blue organdy was fashioned becomingly for the ankle-length gowns of the bridal attendants. Dainty Peter Pan collars and tiny buttons down the front accented the short-sleeved fitted bodices, and wide organdy sashes were tied in big bows at the back of the full circle skirts. Baskets of multi-hued garden flowers were carried by each attendant.

Members of the bridal entourage were Mrs. Ruth Austin who served her sister as matron of honor; bridesmaids, Mrs. Jerry Plum, Mrs. Marjorie Gilpin and Miss Janet Yeager; best man, George Manooshian; ushers, Don Paxton, John Jones and LeeRoy Gilpin, and flower girl, Milsie Curry.

Traveling from their home in Longview, Wash., for the evening nuptials were the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hutchinson.

The bride is an alumna of Polytechnic High School, attended Long Beach City College and received her degree from Whittier College. Among her affiliations is Beta Sigma Phi, Iota Chapter. Her husband, schooled in North Dakota, is attending LBCC.

Following return from a San Francisco honeymoon, the couple will make their home at 5313 E. Carson St.

Jean Pratt Becomes Bride

One of the season's loveliest brides was Jean Darlington Pratt, who chose the last day of June for her marriage to Leland Murray Larsen.

More than 500 guests witnessed the reverent exchange of vows in the mid-afternoon ceremony solemnized by the Rev. John Gunn. The service culminated a romance which began when both young persons were enrolled at Fresno State College, where each was graduated with a BS degree.

A wedding gown of fragile beauty exquisitely designed of white Chantilly lace and tulle over shimmering satin, enhanced the charm of the radiant bride.

From the molded bodice, long sleeved, tier over tier of net cascaded into a floor-length skirt. An overskirt of the delicate lace swept in the back to a chapel train. A sparkling tiara fastened a fingertip-length veil and the young bride carried a fragrant bouquet of white roses and stephanotis, centered by an orchid, on a white Bible.

The former Miss Pratt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don F. Pratt of 5720 Bay Shore Walk. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Murray Larsen of Reseda.

Kinsmen of the couple who were members of the bridal party included matron of honor Mrs. Robert J. Fromlaths Tell Yvonne's Betrothal to Gene McPike

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fromlath, 36 Sicilian Wk., announce the engagement of their daughter Yvonne Helene Sharpe, to Gene Gordon McPike, son of Mrs. Gladys McPike, 4433 E. 4th St. A June, 1957 wedding is planned.

The bride-elect received her early education in St. Louis, later graduating from Wilson High School where she was a member of Scripters and advertising and business manager of the Loudspeaker. She attended Long Beach City College where she was business manager of publications, and the University of California at Berkeley where she was on the sophomore managerial staff of the Daily Cal. Well known in swimming circles as the first woman to swim Lake Mead, the bride-to-be will enter Long Beach State College in the fall.

Her fiance was graduated from Wilson High School where he lettered in baseball, and spent two years in the Army Air Force. He now is a student at LBCC where he is past secretary of Tilsmen and a member of the 1954 championship baseball team.

New Suburban Trend Set by California Designers

Fall fashions are in the news!

Yes, the fashion picture has been clearly drawn for Fall, 1956, and from California the newest styles are flattering and functional . . . imaginatively suited to the sportscar trend—the surburban trend—the travel trend.

Here are a few "thumbnail sketches" depicting California fall fashion ideas as highlighted at Fall Press Week, held recently in Los Angeles, where fashions from noted California designers were revealed to fashion editors.

In dresses the prime favorite is the narrowed, ribbed line that goes equally well with a slim costume coat, or with dressmaker details all its own. The basic sheath gains interest through the pronounced Empire influence. Rising above a smoothly fitted waistline, the Empire line is seen traced with bands of braid, simulated boleros, or underscored with ribbons, belts and sashes.

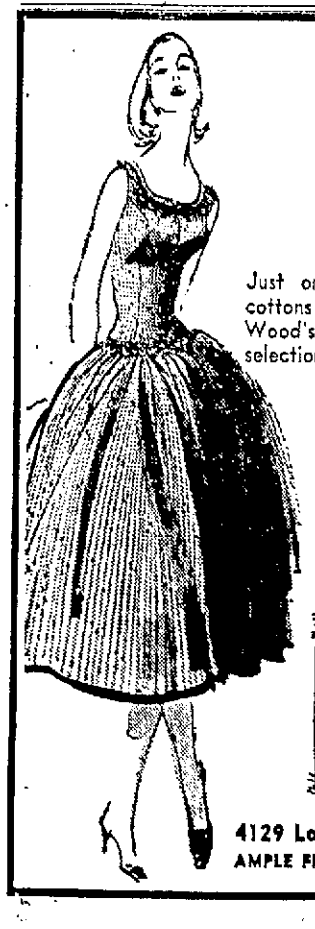

Fall '56 will go down in fashion history as the season of the Knit Look . . . beyond a doubt the most influential fall fashion trend. From hand knits to novelty stripes, and fabrics designed with the surface look of knit . . . you need only to tend to your knitting to be in fashion for fall. Bulkies, in a variety of stitch patterns, dominate the sweater scene. Knit collars, (small and large) cuffs, yokes and sleeves carry this trend to dresses. In sportswear-separates the knit look is carried out below as well as above the waistline . . . in ribbed knit skirts, topped by sweaters and jackets sporting . . . of course . . . knit trim!

And where does one begin this fall changeover . . . to the new silhouette, new colors, lines, detailing? California designers make it delightfully easy, by offering now their lines of "transitional cottons." Originally planned to span seasons only, transitional or "dark" cottons are appearing in stores now to bring a needed spice to wardrobes bland with summer pastels.

Here is the look for fall, with the feel of summer . . . cool, dark shades of cognac, grey, black . . . styled with breeze-full skirts, snow-fresh collars of white linen or pique. These "transitional" fashions are designed with fall's important fashion features . . . narrow silhouette . . . . Empire line . . . back interest.

A TASTE FOR THE TROPICS

Fond farewells and signs of enviable approval were heard in the garden at the home of Mrs. John Henderson, at left, 2310 Pine Ave., last week when she and Suzanne Marichal, right, entertained Sharon Hilleary and JoAnn Parks, center, who leave for a three-week trip to Hawaii today. Informality Is Keynote of Club's Summer Meetings

By ANNE GILCHRIST

A new year opened for Long Beach Legal Secretaries Assn. with its first dinner meeting under the guidance of newly installed president, Lela Wick. Given at Coast Inn, evening's hostesses were Mildred Sauer and Zolan Hallinan.

Planned informally, the program featured Leon, local beautician and hair stylist introduced by program chairman Elsie Martin, he gave the secretaries a variety of make-up and hair care tips, lacing his talk with much good humor.

Brief business discussion dealt with plans for the quarterly state board meeting which will take place in mid-August at the Lafayette Hotel with the Long Beach chapter serving as hostess group.

Two new members were introduced and welcomed. They are Barbara K. Smith (with Baker and Williams) and Marjorie H. Barbour (James C. Webb.)

Desk and Derrick

Local members of Desk and Derrick Club, an organization for women employees of the oil industry, have learned of activities planned for the group's fifth annual national convention which will take place in New Orleans in September. H.S.M. Burns, president of Shell Oil, will be major conclave speaker with Mrs. Sybil Sureck, last year's national president, to give the keynote address.

Long Beach delegates will join over 1,500 other women from the 111 clubs now active in the United States and Canada. The New Orleans club was the first Desk and Derrick group in the country.

Women's Traffic Club

A brief business meeting preceded an evening of informal fun for members of the Women's Traffic Club of Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor when they met recently at the home of Hazel Fitz-Gerald and Catherine Fay Wood, 1136 E. Third St. Mrs. Jeri Lewis conducted the meeting.

National Secretaries

Mrs. Margaret (Penny) Hammond of 1755 Sherman Place, Long Beach, assumed the presidency of Stellar Chapter, National Secretaries Assn., during candlelight installation ceremonies recently at the Village Spa Restaurant in Bellflower.

Dorine George, second vice president of the organization's California division, was installing officer as well as speaker of the evening.

Mrs. Donald Whitney Berney

Wedding Bells Ring for Carolyn Ann Riedman

Repeating the solemn and beautiful vows of the marriage service, Carolyn Ann Riedman and Donald Whitney Berney exchanged wedding bands July 3 in an 8:30 p. m. ceremony in First Baptist Church. The Rev. E. E. Ellis came from San Bernardino to read the nuptials.

The bride was an enchanting picture in a gown designed with imported Chantilly lace on the jewel-sprinkled Empire bodice. The skirt of floating nylon tulle was graced with pleated panels of lace on its chapel train. The delicate lace was repeated in a jeweled coronet which fastened a fan-shaped veil. She carried a cascade of butterfly orchids and stephanotis.

Preceding the bride down the aisle marked by floral arrangements of white chrysanthemums, gladioli and stock, were Mrs. Bruce Henry, matron of honor; Misses Beverly Joe Simpson, Linda Vaughan, Joan Morrison and Joan Fleming, bridesmaids. Kenneth Riedman was best man, Richard Riedman, Jim Erickson, William Lenhart and Doyle Blaney were the ushers.

The feminine attendants were gowned alike in aqua dresses of iridescent crystalline with fitted bodices and skirts of extreme fullness. Yellow roses cascaded in their bouquets.

When all were in place before the altar yellow-frocked Virginia Wright and Diana Dorr, little nieces of the bride, lit tall white tapers beside the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Riedman of 6019 Falcon Ave. Her husband's parents are Mr. Harry Berney of Walla Walla, Wash., and Mrs. Vera Berney of Camas, Wash.

After receiving the many well-wishers who greeted them at a beautifully appointed post-nuptial reception, the newly married pair left for a honeymoon trip up the coast to Santa Barbara and on to Yosemite.

The new Mrs. Berney, a Polytechnic High School graduate, took her BA degree at the University of Redlands. Her affiliations include Alpha Theta Phi, Ski Club and Honor Roll. The bridegroom is a graduate of Willamette University in Salem, Ore., and now attends UCLA law school. He is a Beta Theta Pi.

On their return to the Southland, the couple will live in Los Angeles.

Donna Jean Loucks Exchanges Rings With Ralf A. Nilsen in Baptist Rite

A large white arch entwined with fern and white and yellow carnations, banked by large baskets of white stocks, crysanthemums, white and yellow gladioli and greenery, combined with the glow of flickering candlelight to make a beautiful, impressive setting for the recent marriage ceremony uniting Donna Jean Loucks and Ralf A. Nilsen.

Dr. Owen T. Day officiated at the double-ring service in First Baptist Church.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Loucks of 201 E. 68th St. and the Noralf A. Nilsens of Seattle, Wash., who came from their northern home to be present at the evening nuptials.

Preceding the bridal party were candlelighters Misses Jill and Patricia Menzimer, cousins of the bride. Clusters of fern and white carnations held by white satin streamers marked the bridal aisle down which the bride was escorted by her father.

Complementing the bride's youthfulness was her gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over taffeta fashioned with scalloped neckline and fitted bodice. The full tiered skirt, with over panels of tulle and lace, swept to a chapel-length train, and a tiered veil of silk illusion fell from a Juliet cap of lace embroidered with dainty seed pearls and sequins. On her small Bible, she carried an arrangement of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Nanci McGinn, maid of honor, was attired in a floor length gown of mint green nylon dotted Swiss over taffeta. Yellow dresses of the same material, fashioned like that of the maid of honor, were worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Mary Friese and Miss Jeanette Caro. All wore matching headbands of fresh flowers and carried cascades of yellow sweetheart roses. Little Sherril Hainsworth and Lynn Loucks, cousins of the bride, were flower girls.

For his best man, the bridegroom chose Duanne Jackman. Seating the guests were Mike Snuffin, David French, James Joiner and Lawrence Broderick. Robert Loucks served as special escort for the mothers of the bride and bridegroom.

Hostesses at the guest books at the church were Mmes. Jack Sloman and Kernick Davis, while acting as hosts and hostesses at the later church reception were Messrs. and Mmes. Carl Jensen, Walter Arrowood, Hubert Crozier, Frank Morris, Don Pratt, J. Paul Walker, Martin Erickson and Mmes. Lorine Nelson, Tom Norcross, Harris Rogers, A. E. Saunders, Ora Snook, E. A. Penka, Chester Schadel, Annie Ziegelasch and Miss Lucy Lovell.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Lake Arrowhead and are now residing in Gardena. A graduate of Jordan High School and member of Order of Rainbow for Girls, the new Mrs. Nilsen is an alumna of Long Beach City College where she affiliated with Tammuz Sorority. Her husband attended schools in Seattle, served with the armed forces, attended El Camino Junior College where he was a member of Chi Gamma Iota Fraternity and will continue his studies at the University of Southern California.

Newlyweds Make Home in Northern California

Now living in Santa Barbara where the bridegroom will enroll at Westmont College in the fall are newlywedded Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Ehrlich (Janice Elaine Eagon) who spoke nuptial vows recently in Bellflower's Calvary Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are the Royal R. Eagons of Norwalk and the August Ehrlichs of Greeley, Colo.

For the double ring evening service read by Rev. Artel Stewart, the bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown which she had designed and fashioned herself of tulle and lace over slipper satin. A mandarin collar set off the tulle-yoked fitted bodice which was hand-appliqued with lace. A filmy illusion veil fell from a small satin cap headdress edged with seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a pair of dainty pearl earrings, a gift from the bridegroom, and she carried cascades of blue carnations centered with a white orchid.

In identical gowns, also designed and fashioned by the bride, were maid of honor Miss Charmayne Stewart and bridesmaids Mrs. Robert Stewart and Mrs. John Mishler. They carried nosegays of white and blue carnations. Little Linda, Diane and Patrick Eagon, nieces and nephew of the bride, were flower girls and ringbearer.

Best man was Raymond Lohr, and seating guests in the candlelit church were Gary Madison and Dempsey Harris.

The bride is a graduate of Excelsior High School, Norwalk, and her husband was schooled in Gill, Colo. Both received degrees from Arizona Bible Institute in Phoenix.

News Notes of Military Varied

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

With a great deal to do about summertime, the busy Wives of Navy Doctors' Club will meet for their monthly luncheon and discuss summer activities Wednesday at noon in the Officers Club, Allen Center.

All wives of medical and dental officers in the Naval Service are invited to attend and reservations should be called in to Mrs. Lewis Dorgan of 4200 Linden by Monday noon.

Senior hostess for the event will be Mrs. H. F. Delmore.

Rear Adm. Charles W. Weitzel, USN (ret) and Mrs. Weitzel have returned to their apartment here on 3rd Place from their winter home at Palm Springs.

Recently retired and returning to their "first love," Long Beach, to purchase a home are those wonderful folks and former residents, Capt. and Mrs. Fred C. Fluegel and son, Ricky.

A very wonderful and beautifully planned surprise farewell luncheon event took place recently at the Officers Club at NAS, Los Alamitos, by the Officers Wives Club of that base, honoring Mrs. J. B. Paschal.

General chairman of the event was Mrs. K. R. Miller assisted by Mmes. C. L. Kennedy, G. D. Swisher, H. D. Sturm and R. R. Lovelady.

The tables were most unique and gay with maps of the different states where Mrs. Paschal had resided and scenes from her past done in small figures and objects. There was Bremerton, Wash., where Capt. and Mrs. Paschal had met, and many other interesting scenes with the last small figures of the captain and his wife and their two children in clouds of beautiful spun glass representing the dreams of their future as civilians. The Pascals are now touring the states and will return here to live.

Following the luncheon, a "This Is Your Life" skit was presented with master of ceremonies being Lt. Cmdr. H. D. Sturm, PIO officer at the Air Base.

A tape recording was made of the entire party and pictures taken which will be given Mrs. Paschal as a farewell present. She was also presented by the president, Mrs. A. McDonald, a gift from club members, a lovely silver charm bracelet with the little charms depicting her life.

Those who wrote the skits and program were Mrs. Maurice Kaufmann and Mrs. Howard Sturm. And those performers taking part in the fun were Mmes. W. F. Proper, J. B. Hennigan, C. L. Kennedy and Claude Ross.

On Thursday evening the NCO Wives Club of Long Beach Air Force Base will have a social and business meeting at their club at the Air Base.

Lt. A. C. Plambeck, formerly of the USS Helena, and Mrs. Plambeck have returned from San Francisco, and are now just plain retired Navy folk with plans to make Long Beach their permanent home.

Lt. and Mrs. Walter McDaniels have as their houseguests from Elwood, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Lon Dellinger and Vicki Benedick.

Recently enjoying a few days in Las Vegas together were Mrs. John Price and two children and Mrs. Price's mother, Mrs. Hazel Anderson, and Mrs. William Womack.

Capt. and Mrs. George C. Turpyn and family have returned from a vacation spent at Lake Arrowhead.

Today the Officers Wives Club of the Long Beach Air Force Base will have a pot-luck supper party at the Club at the Air Base, with husbands invited.

Maj. and Mrs. Gustav Kraft have returned from a trip in Northern California and seeing friends at Travis Air Force Base.

Newest newlyweds out at the Long Beach Air Force Base are Lt. Roger Buchanan and Mrs. Buchanan, the former Vivian Houghton, and Lt. and Mrs. Edward R. Williams, the former Lois L. Applegate.

Mrs. William F. Kline Sr., from Clinton, La., is the house guest of Lt. and Mrs. William Kline Jr. of this city.

Cmdr. and Mrs. Howard de Laureal of Rolling Hills had a most delightful buffet supper party on July 4th eve for officers attached to the USS Chemung, which Cmdr. de Laureal commands, and their ladies.

Recent houseguests of Mrs. H. F. Delmore, wife of Capt. Delmore, USN, DC (ret), were the couple's two talented grandchildren, Peter Murphy, who is in his third year at Princeton, and Sue Ann Murphy, who just graduated from Ann Head School in Berekeley and is enrolling in Radcliff this fall. They are the children of Capt. and Mrs. R. F. Murphy of San Francisco.

Mrs. Joseph Long Sr., here from New York, is the houseguest of her son and daughter-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. Joseph Long Jr. of 1739 E. 1st. Lt. Long recently returned from the Far East aboard the USS Chemung.

Ens. D. A. Smith of the USS Helena and Mrs. Smith welcomed a baby boy last week, who weighed in just under eight pounds.

On Tuesday morning at 11, the Nautical Club will have a board meeting at the home of Mrs. H. E. Anderson of 222 Fuego St.

Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Dale Hudgel have his folks here visiting them from Arizona, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hudgel.

Teeners Vie in National Christmas Doll Contest

Santa Claus' helpers wear bobbysox! Already at work for that merry old saint are Long Beach teen-agers who are spending summer days making and dressing the dolls that will say "Merry Christmas" next December to needy little girls all over the world.

The nimble-fingered bobby-soxers are participating in the Seventeen Magazine "Save the Children Federation Christmas Doll Contest," an annual good-will competition sponsored locally by Walker's. The project is designed to provide needy children in rural U. S. and abroad with Christmas dolls made by America's teen-age girls.

Starting point for a whimsical elf doll, a delicate Snow Queen or a curly-headed baby, is Seventeen's doll-making kit, containing a man's white sock and a rosy-cheeked plastic doll face. Teen-age ingenuity turns the plain white socks into story book heroines, bouncing babies, famous kings and queens, political personalities, fashionable ladies, gay peasant girls and modern movie stars.

To enroll and compete for hundreds of prizes contestants should get a Seventeen doll-making kit from Walker's.

With a few snips of scissors turn the sock ribbing into the dolls's arms, the toe into its head and the foot into its body. Step-by-step directions are included in the kit. Dress the doll from top to toe in one of the three contest categories: Baby, fashion or character.

As costume material, seek out old hat veils, Christmas card glitter, petticoat ruffles, lace from outmoded collars and workbasket scraps of every variety in denim, gingham, corduroy and felt, ribbon, tulle and wool.

Your doll must be wearing the outfit and accessories entered with her. (No separate clothing or wardrobes are allowed).

Add shoes, handbags, jewelry, parasol and even eyeglasses to your finished doll, and turn it in to Walker's by Sept. 7 for the regional judging.

The most ingenious local dollmakers will receive valuable prizes.

The country's top three dollmakers (to be chosen at a national judging in New York in mid-October) will receive a five-day New York holiday, Nov. 3 to 8, and the grand prize winner will take a two-week-doll distribution trip to Europe via PAA Clipper, Nov. 11 to 27.

All dolls will be distributed at Yuletime by Save the Children Federation to needy children in rural America, Austria, Finland, France, Italy, Greece, Western Germany, Israel, Yugoslavia, and South Korea.

Chef of the Week

He'll Win His Case With This Paprika Swiss Beef

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

HE LIKES VARIETY . . . and it bears repeating . . . his interests are many. Chef of the Week Fred M. Riedman is considered a participant in life . . . not a spectator. His variety is varied, too. A bit of sweet after each meal is a must—such as a hunk of peanut brittle after breakfast.

His "broadness of scope," no doubt, stems right back to his birthplace. There was absolutely nothing to stop the natural momentum of anything. It was Barnes County, North Dakota.

He traded the wide open spaces for our own city in 1918; attended Poly High, then graduated from University of Redlands with an economics major and a music minor. He took his law degree at USC.

His practice of law does not, however, take precedence over his other vocations. For instance, a "little" water company in the vicinity of Redlands, or a packing house down San Diego way. He's a rancher, too! That endeavor is divided into three parts, the raising of horses, cattle and citrus groves.

Reidman is said to be an idealist, and a great admirer of skill. He will accept a dare and give a challenge with equal aplomb. A horseman of note, he rides with the Mounted Police. He'll do a skin dive at the drop of a hat, yet will just as readily, and with the same enjoyment, baby sit with his nine-months-old granddaughter. Someday he will perhaps tell her about the letters he won in track, and of his prowess on the football field.

A member of the Long Beach, of the Los Angeles and of the State Bar Associations, he belongs to the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity and the Kappa Sigma Sigma. He also holds membership in the El Bekal Shrine.

Foodwise he has one idiosyncrasy . . . it involves a beet. It MUST be sliced crosswise to become an edible beet.

Today he's very efficiently preparing a Paprika Swiss Beef.

Paprika Swiss Beef

Yield: 8 servings

- 2 pounds round steak, ½ inch thick
- 2 tablespoons fat
- ⅛ teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 clove garlic, peeled
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- ¾ cup sour milk or cream
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 2 tablespoons flour

Melt fat in a skillet. Rub the meat with salt and ⅛ teaspoon paprika. Brown the garlic in the hot fat. Remove the garlic.

Add the meat and brown well on both sides. Add water and Worcestershire sauce. Cover and cook slowly about 2 hours. Add sour milk and 1 teaspoon paprika. Continue to cook slowly 15 minutes. Remove the steak to a hot platter. Thicken the broth with the flour mixed with ½ cup cold water. Stir and boil 5 minutes. Serve the gravy over the meat.

tory in Paris. As soon as he decided that his product smelled not only good but delicious, he opened a little shop and to it flocked the pretty and elegant ladies in the mystifying mode of the day — large hats and shirtwaists and skirts in which, by some strange anatomical feat, the upper half of the female figure appeared to precede the lower half by a good six inches. Still they smelled fine and their powders and rouges were as discreet as the fashion of the time demanded.

Gratitude Shown

Having sprayed his fragrance upon the air, Monsieur Lentheric was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the grateful members of the Chamber of Deputies who had the pleasure of sniffing the ladies who wore it.

Commerce and time marched on and here are Peter Donald, Betsy Palmer, Robert Sherwood, Ogden Nash and myself not to mention the current manufacturers helping to keep green the memory of the humble chemist.

It turns out that even people in the entertainment world like a sniff of back stage doings, that feeling of being in the know. The glimpse of next fall's fashions caught in June in the wholesale market and the peek that we got at a sales meeting of the preparations that will be on sale at Christmas time and are now being readied. It was fun. They're mighty pretty, mighty tempting.

Nothing in the world can ever surpass the glamour of the theater but television can have glamour plus another dimension. It is a prize melting pot for art and business combined. Let us hope that the brew proves tasty and that as they say in the cook books about certain relishes and preserves, "it will keep indefintely."

Lincoln Circle

Sewing group of Abraham Lincoln Circle No. 44, Grand Army of the Republic, will meet for a noon picnic luncheon Tuesday in Bixby Park.

The circle will stage its business session at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in Veterans Memorial Bldg. with Mrs. Elsie Chase in charge.

Your Baby & Mine

Nursing Mothers

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Here is an analytical young mother who has figured out for herself why some young mothers are not successful nursing mothers even though their desire is to be just that.

Mrs. M.S. writes, "I have three children and I am very interested in your discussions of breast-feeding. I nursed all my children and it was a beautiful and satisfying experience.

"But in spite of carefully following all the rules about diet, rest, intake of fluids, etc., I could never nurse much beyond the second month. The babies ended up getting far more from the bottle than from me.

"Lately, I have talked to two friends who have been successfully breast-feeding their babies and now both are talking of weaning them. Both say their husbands practically insist upon it. One husband refuses to remain in the room when she nurses the baby because he says it is 'revolting' to him.

"I know the above attitude is extreme, but it led me to take a mental inventory of the women I have known who were successful in nursing and happy doing it and always the husband's attitude has been enthusiastic or casually relaxed in regard to it.

"I have a wonderful husband and a very happy marriage and he is intelligent enough to understand how I feel about nursing.

"Still he really wasn't pulling with me. He quoted to me the father who claimed that none of his children were fed like animals! He also mentioned other men who insisted their wives were not going to fool around with nursing if they could help it.

"I think I have gained an insight into this subject. I wonder if this is an aspect which may change in a generation or so? In our present state of culture it is acceptable to expose the breast in an evening gown but highly improper to have it seen with a downy head snuggled against it and using it for God's purpose.

"During the first few weeks after birth, when there is joy, confusion, fatigue, and tenderness, a sensitive wife will react more to suggestions from her husband than she would when she was more 'normal.' If he has any antipathy to nursing at this time, it will be a strong influence upon her not to do it."

How right you are. A parent who is revolted at this act is advertising his lack of, or the poor quality of, his sex education. But many boys get no education in sex except from other boys and their attitudes take on that coloration.

Many doctors have had the same experiences and despite later education cannot throw off their emotional bias toward this use of the breast.

Greater familiarity with breast-feeding inevitably will change both women's and men's attitudes toward it, especially since psychologists have made us aware of the psychological benefits to mother and child of this ancient method of nourishing babies.

Portrait Destined for Laguna Festival

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Art Editor

It's quite an experience for a young girl to have her portrait painted for the Festival of Arts!

That is why Judy Cosper, 13, blonde, green-eyed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon B. Cosper (her mother writes under the name of Jule Armin), stands VERY still as Marjory Adams of Laguna Beach transfers her likeness to canvas.

The portrait will be exhibited at the Festival of Arts July 12-Aug. 14 at Laguna Beach.

Judy, 270 Lindero Ave., attends Jefferson Junior High School. She frequently has posed for photographers, but this is her first portrait.

When Mrs. Adams saw Judy recently at a reception given by the Long Beach Branch of the National League of American Pen Women for the Laguna Beach branch, opening an exhibition in Pacific Coast Club, she said:

"I want to paint that child!"

The portrait, she believes, will be one of her best.

Mrs. Adams has exhibited in the Festival of Arts since it began as a street fair in 1932, with pictures strung on a clothesline between a vegetable market and a shoe store.

As an aspiring young artist, she won an art scholarship to the Portland Art Institute. At the age of 17 she won first prize in the Arizona state fair. She has had many one-man shows, and her pictures hang in England, France, Washington, D. C., New York, Maine, Kansas City and on the West Coast. She took top honors in 1949 in the Festival of Arts; she took first in oils and first in pastels in the Pen Women's biennial in 1954 and first in oils and honorable mention in pastels this year.

Marjory Adams, 541 Coast Blvd., Laguna Beach, also is an inventor. She invented a large beach bag which includes a back rest and a huge beach towel. Every time she opens a smart magazine, she sees it advertised in beach accessories.

Twenty-four water colors and one charcoal sketch by Marie Clark Miller (Mrs. Henry W. Miller) of Glendale will be shown through July in Pacific Coast Club Galleria, replacing the exhibit of artist members of the Laguna Beach Branch of the National League of American Pen Women.

A reception for Mrs. Miller is slated for July 15.

Mrs. Miller has won eight awards so far this year, including the $200 purchase award at the Dixie Arts Festival, St. George, Utah. She has had one-man shows in Iowa, Utah and California and has exhibited in Chicago, New York and Washington, D.C.

Elaine (Mrs. Leo) Malco is art chairman of Pacific Coast Club.

A National Exhibition of the Contemporary Arts of America will be an event of the Los Angeles County Fair Sept. 14-Sept. 30 in Pomona. A total of $8,000 will be awarded in prizes in the fields of oil painting, sculpture, graphics and applied arts.

The prizes will be:

Oil—Purchase prize, $2,000; three honorable mentions, each $200.

Sculpture — Purchase prize, $2,000; two honorable mentions, each $200.

Graphics—Purchase prizes, $200, $150, $125, $100, $75, $50.

Arts and crafts—Total of $2,150.

The exhibition will be selected by regional juries in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Entry blanks may be obtained from the Los Angeles County Fair Association, Pomona. They must be returned by Aug. 1. Closing dates for delivery of work are: New York, Aug. 7; Chicago, Aug. 11; Los Angeles, Aug. 22.

Last year 800,000 persons visited the art exhibition at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Ben Messick this weekend is judging the 3rd annual San Diego County exhibit, sponsored by San Diego Art Institute and Fiesta del Pacifico, which will hang July and August in the Charm Gallery, Balboa Park, San Diego.

Today will be the last opportunity to see "Sport in Art," 100 paintings, drawings and prints depicting sports subjects, and a retrospective exhibition of paintings by Reginald Marsh in the Los Angeles County Museum, Exposition Park, Los Angeles.

The Museum July 27-Aug. 26 will show the Walter P. Chrysler Jr. collection of 100 masterpieces, including pictures by Titian, Rembrandt, Rubens, Goya, Cezanne, Monet and Matisse.

Worry Clinic

Up Student-Teacher Ratio; 'Save' the Small Colleges

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

For many years American insurance salesmen have been selling college insurance policies to parents, so they can provide in advance for their child's university education after he leaves high school.

But all alert Americans should be vitally interested in the matter of insuring the integrity of our colleges. State universities are supported by taxes. That is a coercive type of upkeep.

Most of our colleges depend upon tuition and private generosity of far-sighted Americans who realize the importance of educating leadership at the college level.

The confiscatory nature of taxes has now undermined much of the funds that used to be available for endowment. So we are forced to rely on smaller donations and more efficient operating strategy within the colleges themselves.

* * * *

ONE WAY by which we can help save the smaller colleges and meanwhile actually raise faculty salaries is to increase the number of students per faculty member.

For example, I was asked a few years ago to try to rescue an Indiana college that was going bankrupt. It had one teacher per 4.5 students, which was obviously the reason it was insolvent. The average college nowadays has a student faculty ratio of 12:1, but that is likewise inefficient economically.

Colleges should strive to maintain at least the high school ratio of 24:1, for at $500 per pupil tuition rates, those extra 12 students would bring in an additional $6,000 per teacher in annual revenues. Even if the professors got only part of that, it would materially boost their salaries and still leave a balance for upkeep and even new buildings.

At present, therefore, the ratio of 12:1 means the teachers attract only $6,000 worth of tuition money per faculty member. And that's not enough. The average college pays its faculty members $5,000, so there isn't enough left of that $6,000 in tuition to cover much overhead. But a student-teacher ratio of 24:1 would bring in $12,000 in tuitional revenues per faculty member.

Even if the teachers were then paid $8,000, the remaining $4,000 would be 400% as much as the teacher now delivers for overhead.

* * * *

"GOD HELPS those who help themselves," runs an old proverb which is being realized vividly by astute college presidents nowadays.

Since high school teachers handle 24 pupils apiece, certainly college profs could do likewise, and most of them would be glad of the opportunity if they knew it meant a big salary boost, as well as saving their college from bankruptcy.

With zooming university enrollments in the next decade, we must also schedule a second educational "shift," to begin at maybe 3 p.m. and run through till 10 p.m. This would really be the "profit" shift. For the basic expenses of heat and equipment are already demanded by the present 8 a.m. shift. Except for teacher salaries, the other costs would be much less on that afternoon shift.

Why Grow Old?

How to Solve Middle-Age Beauty Figure Problems

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today I want to give you some first aid therapy for a few of the problems of the middle-aged woman. Actually, we sometimes see these defects in much younger women but not to such a degree.

We all know that the general tendency is to gain weight as we grow older and to accumulate fat around the waist and often on the abdomen, hips and thighs.

We also know that at this age we should watch for those little lines about the eyes and for the blurring chinline and make an improvement as we can. I do not believe in facial massage unless it is done by a real expert. The woman herself is apt to stretch her skin and speed the decrease of fatty deposits under the skin.

The one exception, in my book, is to use massage on those fine little lines at the corners of the eyes before they deepen. Use an eye cream or a hormone oil each night and pat this into the skin underneath the eyes. At the corners of the eyes use a rotary motion, lightly, with your finger, ALONG the lines. It is surprising how you can smooth these out with nightly treatments.

Now let us think of the Dowager's Hump. This is the hump at the back of the neck we so often see on older women. It is due mainly to poor posture over the years. Fat also gathers in this spot.

Here are some remedial measures. Try to improve your posture, especially the way you carry your head. Do not "give in" at the back neckline. Massage also is helpful. Place your fingertips in this spot and dig in with your fingers. Use a circular motion in this massage. Pick the fat up between your fingers and knead it. This stimulates circulation and may help some to break down the fatty deposits.

The following exercise is corrective to the Dowager's Hump and also helps keep the neck youthful: Lie on the floor on your back. Place your hands at your sides on the floor, a little away from your body. Bend both knees and place your feet flat on the floor. Lift your shoulders and hips and push a little with your feet as you roll your head backwards. Your weight will be supported by your feet and the top of your head. Hold for a few moments and lower your torso to the floor. Continue slowly.

If you would like my free leaflet "Dowager's Hump," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 17 to Josephine Lowman in care of the Press-Telegram.

Bidder Avoids Tough Guess

HOW should South play for his game at spades? He must lose a heart and two diamonds, come what may. How can he avoid a guess for the queen of clubs?

Declarer cannot afford to draw trumps and lead a diamond towards dummy. East will win and get out safely with a heart. East can then win the next diamond, cash a heart, and lead a third diamond to make South trump. Declarer must then guess the clubs all by himself.

♠ 10 2 ♥ Q 10 4 2 ♦ 8 8 6 2 ♣ Q 8 3		♠ 7 3 ♥ J 9 7 ♦ A K 10 5 ♣ 9 7 6 4
	SOUTH ♠ A Q 8 6 5 ♥ K 8 5 ♦ 7 4 ♣ K 10 2

North-South vul.

North	East	South	West
1 N.T.	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥ 2

The correct technique is to draw two rounds of trumps, take the second top heart, and give up a heart. The defenders must now play into South's hands.

West should win the third round of hearts and lead a diamond. Dummy puts up the queen, and East wins with the king. This is the best defense, but still it is not good enough. East must now lead a club to give South a free finesse, or a diamond to set up dummy's jack. Either way, declarer gets his tenth trick without having to guess the location of the queen of clubs.

Need Residence Schools for the Feeble-Minded

By ANGELO PATRI

One way to describe a feeble-minded child is to call him The Child That Never Grew Up. That is the fate of the truly feeble-minded child. He must remain a child, though his body may take on the appearance of an adult. This is the difficulty parents must face when they have such a child.

During the years of his childhood, they can struggle along with him. If he is not too severely handicapped, the schools will take him and try to help him develop whatever power is within him. Sometimes this child can be trained to do simple industrial tasks, such as sweeping. Some can learn to do simple errands, such as delivering packages. Such simple occupations make the children's lives happier and, as they take them out of the house for hours at a time in safety, their mothers are greatly relieved.

Too often these children, for children they remain no matter their age, cannot be trusted to do any work without close supervision. For them we are advocating the sheltered workshop. This is a shop where these children can work at whatever their hands can do under the supervision and leadership of a trained leader. Some of these shops can turn out salable articles, and this allows the children to earn some money. That is a great lift to them and, of course, their being able to go to the shop daily is a tremendous lift to the home.

But there are adult children who cannot be trained to any form of usefulness, can never hope to work in a sheltered workshop. They remain helpless children in adult bodies. Most of those I have known were harmless. They were a load on the family materially, socially and spiritually, but they harmed no one. Their chief danger lay in the use bad-tempered people might make of them because they were easily led. This made their protection an anxiety to their parents and family.

Very little of consequence is done to help the families of such children. During the years of the child's early development, the families struggle along with them hopefully. Then the day comes when they see that they have an adult child on their hands. They have no way to care for him, no school will take him and the private schools are too costly to even think about.

Failing industrial work, failing the sheltered workshop, this last helpless group have nowhere to go. The aging parents are helpless. Brothers and sisters, having their own children to think about, cannot help with the care of the unfortunate ones. The public must find a way to help.

Here is a problem, existing in every town and city, that the P-T.A. might well study and then do constructive work upon it. We need residential schools for the adult children.

Tears Shed Over Rude Son

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Is it possible parents can hate their only child, a son? It is a wicked thing to say or feel. My wife and I have talked this over a lot. We are so mixed up.

Our son was a good boy until he married eight years ago. We are not jealous of his wife. His service record was very good and we were proud of him. Since this war service and his marriage he has changed. He is, at times, almost abusive to his mother in his talk. Our pillows are wet many nights with tears.

We do not want to know their business unless they wish to tell us. We help them when possible and, at times, it seems we must for the grandchildren. Anything we do is not appreciated. Anything her kin do is harped on constantly by both. My wife will go without to buy for the children. Then they will tell relations we do nothing for them.

They never include us in their pleasures. The only meal we eat at their house is Christmas noon. We must feed them every other Sunday. It must be something special. No concern is taken over us, yet big meals are prepared for outsiders.

I am a busy man in my business, yet never do they offer to take my wife anywhere unless she pays her own way. She would rather go by bus or train than have to stand our son's cheap talk. My wife, although in her 50s, is beautiful and a credit to anyone.

Maybe we are odd parents. Are we? We get more comfort from the two young couples that live in our neighborhood. They will do anything for us. We love our grandchildren. They are cute tykes.

It is one big heartache where our son is concerned. At times I am ashamed of all of them, they come over dressed so dirty. I hope you can understand our feelings. Can you help us? — LONESOME AND MIXED UP PARENTS.

DEAR LONESOME AND MIXED UP PARENTS:

Yes, I certainly can understand your feelings and you have my sympathy. As for helping you, I don't know. There's so little you can do with your son now, except perhaps leave him alone.

He is such a rude, inconsiderate son. I wonder why he has turned against you for no reason. Perhaps his wife persuaded him that you would be "in-law" problems for them. How very wrong they are and what a lot of pleasures they are missing by not having you for friends.

There's not much I can suggest, also. It seems to me your loyalty and kindness have been taxed beyond endurance. But I suppose you still care enough about your son to keep trying.

Personally, I would send the kit and kaboodle of them packing until they can show you some appreciation and consideration.

Have you thought of talking this over with your son and telling him how you feel? Maybe you could clip this letter and send it to him. When he reads in black and white what an awful son he has turned out to be, he will realize his mistake.

I feel so sorry for you both and I am left with the thought that maybe your son isn't worth your tears on the pillow at night.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've heard how generously your readers respond to requests for cards, so I don't hesitate to make this appeal.

I'm a boy 18 years old, bedfast with rheumatic fever. I would love to write to people —specially girls.

I have dark brown hair, blue eyes, and am 5 feet 7 inches tall. My address is 1324 E. 8th St., Loveland, Colo. — MARTIE BERNHARDT.

Sugar Beets Are Big Business

Gondola cars piled high with sugar beets are backed into yard of Santa Ana beet sugar processing plant.

By Lee Goodman

THE LONG BEACH area's historic beet sugar industry, now 64 years of age, is striding briskly in the direction of a 1956 production figure of $6,000,000-plus.

And that's for the sugar alone. The bountiful sugar beets, each of which yields an average of 14 teaspoonsful of sugar, also will account for a host of valuable by-products.

As of this week, principal attention is focused on the processing end of the industry. Trains are arriving at Santa Ana from the Imperial Valley at a rate of some 40 cars a day piled high with beets to be turned into sparkling white sugar at the Holly Sugar Co. factory here.

THIS "CAMPAIGN," to use the martial word sugar men call the factory run, started last May 12. Soon there'll be a brief breathing spell, probably only a few days long, before the wheels are sent spinning again for the second campaign.

Meanwhile, local sugar beet farmers, whose growing seasons are opposite to those in the Imperial Valley, have just completed thinning the low rows of young plants.

They'll be ready to start harvesting their acreage at about the same time the Imperial harvest is ended.

About three-fifths of the Orange County crop will be processed in the local factory's second campaign, along with beets from Holly growers in various counties between here and Fresno.

THE REMAINDER of the Orange County beets, plus those from Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino counties, will be hauled to the Oxnard factory of the American Crystal Sugar Co., which with Holly, Union and Spreckels Sugar Co. make California the leading beet sugar producing state in the nation.

Superintendent T. H. Lacy says that during the two 1956 campaigns, the Santa Ana factory will process some 180,000 tons of beets into more than 50,000,000 pounds of sugar, plus the aforementioned by-products.

The pulp left over after the sugar has been taken out of the large white beet, along with the tops and other "tare" chopped off during the harvesting process, will feed hundreds of dairy cattle and produce thousands of pounds of juicy steaks.

THESE STEAKS will be made even juicier by applications of the food seasoner with the chemical name of monosodium glutumate, derived from sugar beets.

Beet molasses, still another by-product, goes into the manufacture of such unsuspected products as alcohol, shoe polish, paint and citric acid for blood plasma.

And beyond these things, the sugar beet provides such additional community benefits as an annual factory payroll of more than $800,000, a railroad freight business of close to $1,000,000 and a dependable, cash-producing crop for farmers.

It all started back in the early 1890s when local farmers, looking for a crop that would survive on the highly alkaline land so often found hereabouts, hit upon the sugar beet.

Even in those far-off days the large (about two feet long), white sugar beet was an established and highly respected inhabitant of California, for it was in this state that the nation's beet sugar industry was born.

IT SHOULD BE noted, however, that attempts to launch the industry in the United States go back to 1837 in Michigan and 1838 in Massachusetts. And in the 1850s the Mormons actually hauled a dismantled factory, imported from Europe, all the way across the plains by ox team to Utah.

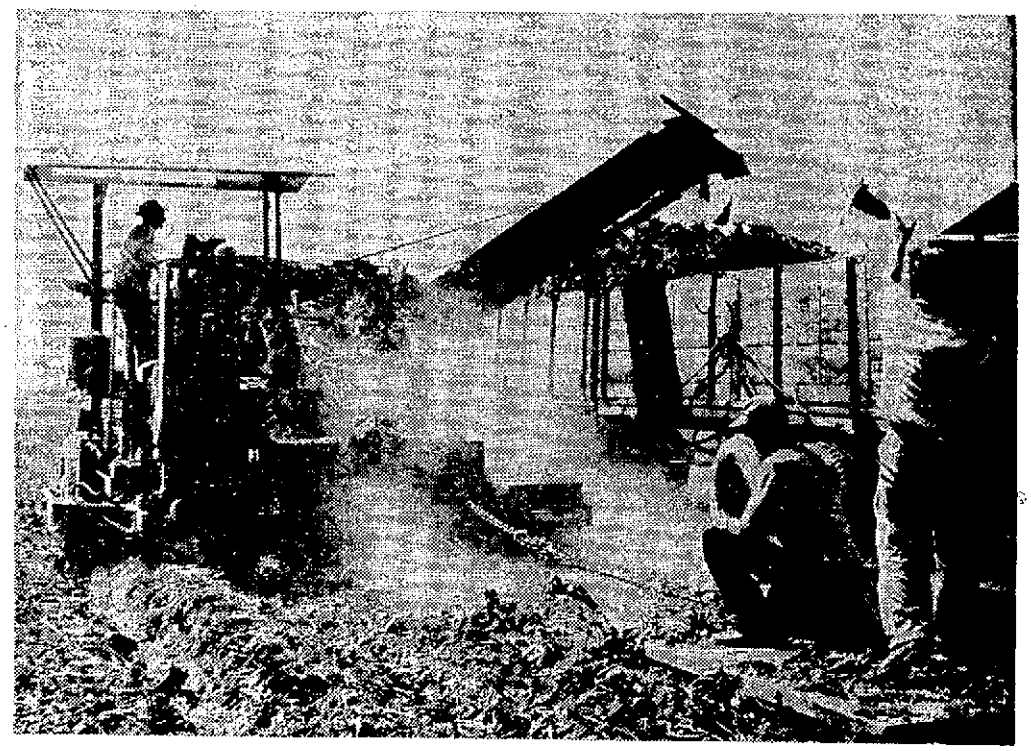

But these and other attempts failed for lack of knowledge of how to produce sugar crystals, a closely guarded secret held by the master sugar makers of Germany and France.

Then, in 1870, a dogged man named E. H. Dyer built a beet sugar factory at Alvarado, near San Francisco. It took him nine years to solve the mystery, but finally, in 1897, Dyer was producing beet sugar on a commercial basis.

When local production began about eleven years later, there was but one factory in operation, located in Chino. Then in 1897 a second was built, at Los Alamitos.

THESE WERE quickly followed by four others—in 1908 by one on Main St. just outside Santa Ana, in 1911 by another

Each of these sugar beets (foreground) will yield about 14 teaspoonfuls of sugar, besides a variety of by-products valuable to modern living.

George Lake, whose $20 bill grew into $6,000, the So. Cal. Professional Golfers' Assn. Championships, tees off at Recreation Park where he's head pro.

GEORGE LAKE AND THE PGA

Success Story of One $20 Bill

By Jerry Wynn

A $20 BILL that grew into a $6,000 golf tournament . . . that's the success story of the Southern California Professional Golfers' Assn. (SC-PGA) Championships which will be held for the 16th straight year this week at Recreation Park.

The man largely responsible for what is now the largest and richest sectional links event in the nation is Recreation Park's own head professional, George Lake.

It was through Lake's efforts that the tournament was first brought to Long Beach and it has been through Lake's efforts that it has stayed and prospered here.

THE $20 BILL was the unusual starter. In 1940, when the tournament was held at Riviera CC, Lake—better known for his executive and teaching abilities than his playing—made a fine showing and reached the quarterfinals. His reward was only $20 of the small $200 purse.

Dejected over his slim winnings and foreseeing a bright future for the Championships, Lake volunteered to underwrite a purse of $500 himself if he could bring the event to Recreation Park and be its chairman.

The SC-PGA agreed and the Championships had a new home, one with a welcome sign that has remained in view for the past 15 years.

THE CITY OF LONG BEACH took over sponsorship in 1943 but relinquished it two years later to the SC-PGA, which under Lake's supervision has conducted it ever since. Today, the SC-PGA Championship Fund contains $7,004 of which $1,497 was net profit from the 1955 event alone.

Lake's own rise to success parallels that of the Championships.

He literally had his roots planted in Huntington Beach, the city of his birth in 1912, for his uncle laid out the original town (Pacific City) and his father, a caretaker-nurseryman, planted all of its trees.

ONE OF 10 children, Lake had to shift for himself early in life. He began delivering newspapers at 12 years old and it was ironically through that employment that he first became acquainted with golf.

He needed an automobile to maintain his growing paper route and discovered a way of financing it by caddying at the old Long Beach Country Club (now Meadowlark golf course). He was then 14.

"A caddy received $1 for a single and $1.50 for a double in those days," Lake reminisces. "Boy, how we used to fight to get A. T. Jurgens' bag. His was the only $5 caddy job in Long Beach!"

LAKE CONTINUED caddying through his years at Huntington Beach High School. Among the top golfers he shouldered for were local amateurs Spec Stevenson and Les Hensley and Long Beach Country Club pro Dallas Jeffers. Once he had the great Walter Hagen, when The Haig was a club guest of Jurgens.

After an unsuccessful venture in peddling ice cream in Hollywood, Lake got his first big break in golf when he was hired as assistant "weekend" pro at Huntington Beach golf course.

During week days, he attended Santa Ana Junior College where he was president of the freshman class and Eastern Division JC golf champion. Upon graduation in 1934, he became Huntington Beach head professional. At 22, he was probably the youngest master pro in history.

IF EVER ONE received a thorough schooling in all phases of golf, it was Lake during his two-year tenure at Huntington Beach. He describes his daily routine thusly:

"At sunup, it was turning off the sprinklers, mowing the greens and setting the cups; in the morning, lessons and repairing clubs; in the afternoon, a round of golf; at sundown, financing, cleaning up and turning on the sprinklers."

Lake made his first move to Long Beach in 1936 as playing pro to Vic Baker at Lakewood Country Club. A few months later, he became head professional at the Recreation Park nine-hole South Course.

THE POST was given to him because of his interest in junior golf, one which would earn him much honor in future years. Already he had seen one of his junior products at Huntington Beach win the first Long Beach Junior Championship. The lad, destined to become a famous star, was Jimmy Clark.

"The South Course is primarily for the kids," Recreation Park Manager J. R. Wotring told Lake. "You like kids and can work with them. It's your job."

In 1940, Lake, then 27, replaced Harry Bassler as head pro at the 18-hole course without relinquishing his nine-hole reins.

NOW IN HIS 20TH year at Recreation Park, Lake has brought Long Beach national golf recognition.

In 1944, he became the youngest president in the history of the SC-PGA and held that office for an unprecedented three terms. In 1946, he founded the National PGA junior program and has been its chairman ever since. In 1952, he was elected National PGA vice president and remained in that office for three terms.

A $20 bill and a boy who turned to caddying to pay for a paper route—both have come a long way.

Teaching kids how to play golf is another of Lake's specialties. Here he shows Tina Ann Orsuga, 5, how to hold a driver.

Laguna Beach's 'Tableaux Vivants'

By Verner C. Beck

WAY BACK in the decade 1770-1780 Comtesse de Genlis was given the job of teaching the Duchess of Cartres' juveniles the folly of ignorance. In her efforts to drive knowledge into their heads the Comtesse used illustrated lessons, which seemed to do the trick. Today's book on information states that "her teaching methods were remarkably progressive, foreshadowing in many respects those in use today."

To all of this the Laguna Beach Festival of Arts can attest, for during the Comtesse's lecture periods on art she invented what was called, "Tableaux Vivants" or what the Festival of Arts today echoes as "Living Pictures." Laguna's living pictures have made this little colony of art and the Festival of Arts world famous, thanks to the teaching methods of the Comtesse de Genlis, born Stephanie Felicite du Crest de Saint-Aubin, at Champceery, in 1746.

THERE ARE PROBABLY persons in Laguna Beach willing to argue the point that the Comtesse did not invent Laguna's famous living pictures in the Pageant of the Masters. But Stephanie's name was in the book first.

However, the late Lolita Perine, one of Laguna's early day artists is given a share of Stephanie's fame, for it was Miss Perine who posed in the first Living Picture in Laguna Beach back in 1934, and thus started the Festival of Arts on its way to become a national phenomenon. Roy M. Ropp, another early day artist and real estater saw great possibilities in picture posing, and gave his heart and soul to dramatizing the possibilities. It was he who gave birth to the title "Pageant of the Masters."

IN 1934 one or two living pictures were used in creating interest in the Festival of Arts. This summer when the 21st annual Festival is presented in Irvine Bowl, July 14 through Aug. 12, the 100,000 anticipated visitors will see a total of 72 living pictures and sculptures divided equally in three programs. Lighting and sound equipment valued at thousands of dollars are used on the Festival's $90,000 stage to present to the public remarkably true reproductions with living models the paintings done by old and new masters.

The Comtesse de Genlis, nee Stephanie, wouldn't believe her eyes were she to return to Laguna and behold what her illustrated art lessons of 1770-1780 have done in the modern world.

STEPHANIE, ACCORDING to the book, did all her Tableaux Vivants background work and posing by herself. Laguna does it differently. Here it is done as a non-profit corporation under the general title "Festival of Arts," more artistically designated as "The Pageant of the Masters." Top of the slate lists a board of nine non-paid direc-

Costuming and making up large cast of the Pageant of the Masters is big project. Here, a group of lovelies is made up for Botticelli's "Spring."

Director John Callan eyes the stance of Dana Jones who poses in Smith's "Little Girl in the Gallery."

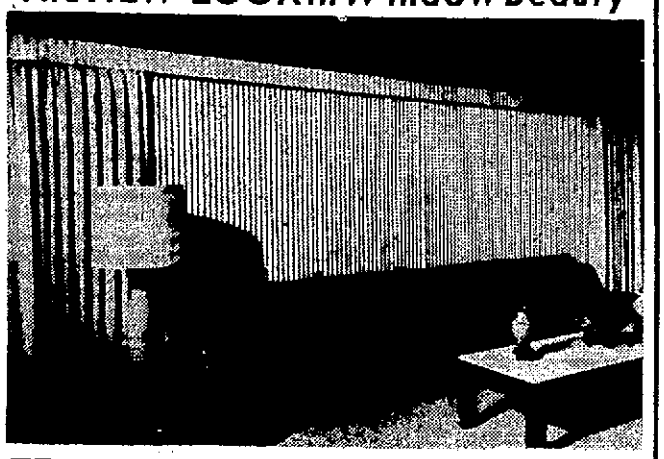

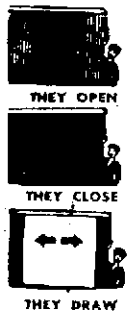

Young folk have prominent parts in the festival. Here, Hazel Babcock makes up Gary Kraft for a part in living picture.

George Pletts, a Laguna policeman and director of a pageant program, stands in as Evelyn Swarting checks details.

A New Don Rules the Hacienda

Casa del Rancho Cerritos, adobe hacienda now part of city library setup, is in charge of Ray Langley, above with Mrs. Langley and daughter, Veda.

By Spencer Crump

A 20TH CENTURY Bostonian named Don Ramon is making his home in an adobe hacienda built on a pleasant knoll in Long Beach more than a century ago by a 19th Century Bostonian named Don Juan.

The first man from Massachusetts was Don Juan Temple, who in 1844 began building the picturesque Casa del Rancho Cerritos.

The adobe, at 4600 Virginia Rd., is now part of the Long Beach Public Library.

AND DON JUAN couldn't be happier with its caretaker.

He's "Don Ramon" Langley who, like Don Juan, was born near Boston.

Before taking on duties as "major-domo" of the hacienda, he was plain Ray Langley, retired U. S. Navy chief petty officer. He has been a city employe for 10 years.

Plan a Day for the Children

IT was THAT day at our house! That day being what is known in the family as "Kids' Day." This unique day coming once a year was instituted by our eldest son three years ago. It is planned entirely by the children and even the destination is kept secret.

However, we insist on three rules regarding the day. First, the drive must not exceed four hours driving time, second, the expense must be kept within reason, and third, we must be notified in advance of the day chosen.

The previous evening had been spent at the desk pouring over maps, with much secret whispering, interjected with not so secret arguments, by our two sons, Jim, 13, and Ricky, 9. Terri, our precious 4-year-old crawled happily in and out under the desk, enjoying their excitement but due to her inability to keep a secret, not let in on the actual planning.

THE DAY BEGAN at 5 a.m. After much prodding on the part of the boys, aided and abetted by "Little Miss Echo," we were finally on our way by 8 a.m.

Now the actual destination was revealed to us. Desert Hot Springs, by way of Palm Springs. Jim had heard of a new public pool, with hot mineral baths, too.

Getting ready for the family's "Kids' Day" outing are Ricky, Jim and Terri Nelson. They chose destination.

Swimming in pool at Desert Hot Springs provided tops in entertainment for all members of the happy family.

By Lucille G. Nelson

My husband and I exchanged relieved glances. This didn't sound as strenuous as last year when father sprained his ankle trying to keep up with the boys on a long hike.

THE TRIP ITSELF was uneventful. The only argument being where to stop for refreshments. Jim felt that he should choose out of respect for his senior years, Rickey felt he should choose out of respect for his stomach. Terri didn't care either way as long as she could have some pop. Meanwhile, we "silent ones" our throats parched, watched several likely looking places retreat into the distance until a compromise was finally reached. As thirsty parents, we had a little more understanding for the frustration of children constantly overruled.

Palm Springs was rather disappointing to the boys. They had expected to see movie stars lounging on every corner. After a brief glance-over, we were on our way to the new pool at Desert Hot Springs.

THIS POOL, or rather these pools for there were two, were, in the estimation of the boys, well worth the trip. The one for swimming, we found cool and refreshing. The hot mineral pool was inclosed by glass windows and kept at 104 degrees. It was strictly for soaking. We were told that this mineral water comes in at about 154 degrees and must be cooled to the desired temperature.

After the children swam to their hearts content, we found a playground where they played happily while we fixed the supper snack. We ate with the warm desert breeze blowing gently about us and left for home as the sun faded to a giant red ball and slowly eased itself out of sight behind the mountains.

We had to admit, we had enjoyed a wonderful time on this expedition planned by the "younger set."

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Her Dolls Are Well-Hatted

By Vera Williams

HELEN BAUGH says her dolls are as well-hatted as Hedda Hopper."

And maybe they are. Dolls in her home, 3321 Walnut Ave., have a variety of hats—sports hats, street hats, dinner hats and wide-brimmed garden hats.

Mrs. Baugh, who is Mrs. Leo Baugh, makes them out of scraps of straw, felt, velvet, ribbon, and she trims them with shells, flowers, feathers, lace, veiling, rhinestone, pearls, or whatever else is at hand.

SHE RECENTLY provided 35 doll hats for a Burroughs School P-T.A. carnival, and already "without even trying" she has designed and made 50 more.

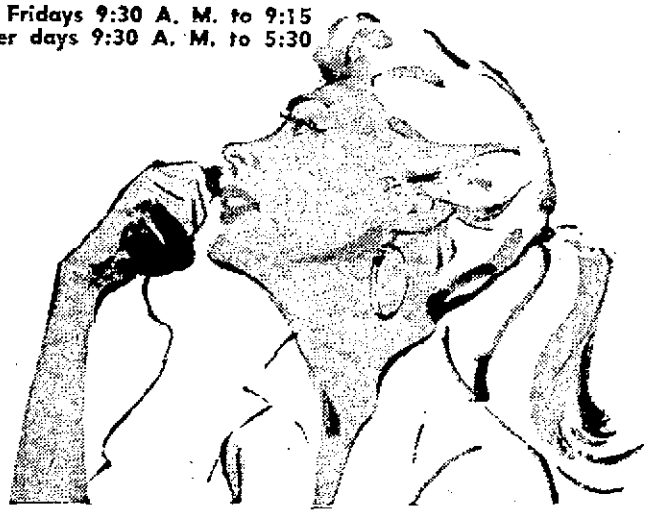

"I find myself looking in the windows of millinery stores to see new styles, and then I go home and make them for the dolls," she says.

tors, and a general manager. Then comes a pageant producer, who is Clarence Upson Young (for the fourth year); three directors, one for each program, John Callan, Lyle Robertson and George Pletts. Each of these directors has a sub-director. There are three wardrobe directors, with assistants for making costumes; a make-up department with chairman and assistants for each program; a wig department director with assistants; three narrators, one for each program, Brainerd Duffield, David Iredell and Russ Potter, the latter serving for the ninth consecutive year. Instead of having a piano, as in 1934, today's pictures are backgrounded by a professional orchestra of 19 members, with Del Castillo as conductor. Altogether more than 200 men, women and juveniles are required for presentation of the living picture program.

AMONG THE MANY new 1956 living reproductions of the Old Masters will be "Bacchus and Ariadne" by Titian, "Mystery of Life" by Gazzeri, "Hercules and Lica" by Canova, "September Morn" by Chabas, "Daring Researcher" by West, "Young Girls at the Piano" by Renoir, and the "Bullfighter" by Llopis. Each nightly program is climaxed with the reverent and traditional "Last Supper" by da Vinci.

But the living pictures aren't all that constitute the Festival of Arts. From its start as a back-fence art exhibition by local artists in 1932, the festival is now presented on a six-acre tract known as Irvine Bowl at the mouth of Laguna Canyon. Artists and craftsmen are given opportunity to exhibit their works in 200 booths erected each summer for that express purpose. The young fry are not overlooked either. To encourage art in the boys and girls of Orange County a large Junior Art Gallery is turned over to them in which paintings are hung. Age range is from kindergarten through senior high school.

Another, strictly a small-fry project, is titled the "Free-for-All" gallery. Here anytime during the afternoon, a youngster may don a smock, take up crayon or pencil, and under supervision of local artists, draw whatever suits his fancy. Then his finished product is hung on a clothesline for inspection by his contemporaries and the adult public. Visiting youngsters who don't care for flourishing a crayon, may take the calmer road and view a puppet show on the grounds each afternoon and evening.

THE LAGUNA BEACH Art Gallery has a prominent part in the annual festival. This year the gallery is sponsoring "The California Show," an invitational exhibition of contemporary painting by artists from all parts of the state.

Scores of ticket reservations for the pageant are received for the next year's show immediately upon closing of the current spectacle. First reservation for the 1957 Pageant of the Masters was received last May 23. There are patrons who time their reservations with the caprices of the moon. They won't come any night but full-moon night, for they claim, sitting in Irvine Bowl and viewing the moon come over the mountain is one of the greatest pictures of them all.

Occident to the Orient

NOWHERE, perhaps, can one make a quicker transition from the Occident to the Orient than in San Francisco, southern portal to the Redwood Empire.

From bustling Market St., one of the world's most modern thoroughfares, it is just a walk of a few minutes to the Street of Virtue and Harmony, or the Lane of Golden Chrysanthemums, in San Francisco's Chinatown.

Although these poetic names do not appear on maps of the city by the Golden Gate, the venerables among Chinatown's more than 20,000 residents know Wentworth Pl. and Jason Court, respectively, by their names of yesteryear.

Many of the treasures of Old Cathay can be found in the quaint shops along Grant Ave., the main business street of San Francisco's most colorful segment and one of its main tourist attractions. Here, also, one may glimpse displays of foodstuffs which may appear bizarre to the Occidental eye, yet might well please his palate.

IN DRESS, the inhabitants of Chinatown reflect both the past and the present. Among the younger Chinese in modern clothes one may see, from time to time, oldsters, dressed in mandarin garb, padding silently along in felt slippers. Even the small fry are studies in contrast. One group may be wearing rich brocades, while another is sporting cowboy costumes.

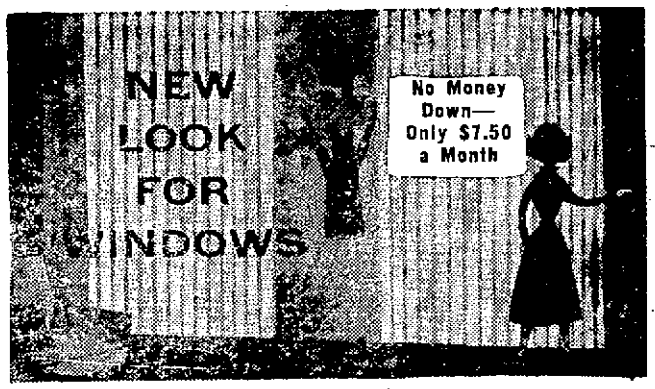

At night, Grant Ave. is a blaze of neon lights, with some of them etching Chinese characters. And sounds of modern jazz spill out in the street from night clubs. In the dimmer back streets, however, one may still hear the plaintive wail of ancient string instruments and sniff the odor of burning incense.

It's a 'Gossip Bench' Now

IT'S AN old-fashioned school desk, but Mrs. W. E. Beeler, 2706 E. 7th St., calls it a "gossip bench."

It has a place of honor in her home; the seat, she says, is handy for long conversations, and the desk top is just right for the phone book.

Mrs. Beeler bought the desk for $3, and she spent another $2 refinishing it, and putting boards under the feet to hold it steady. She even kept the ink well to hold pencils.

THE DESK IS MAPLE, and she finds that it fits in well with her early American furniture.

I've had more pleasure from this desk and more comments than any other piece of furniture," says Mrs. Beeler, "and I won an award of merit from a magazine for my use of it."

Old desk has been converted to serve in L. B. home as "gossip bench."

A New Don Rules the Hacienda

have chosen a prettier place for his home," Langley says. "The house is above the fog level and in the summer, a cooling ocean breeze makes it pleasant. The walls are so thick that we're warm in the coldest winter weather."

HE AND HIS WIFE, Jean, and their 11-year-old daughter, Veda, live in the north wing of the colorful house.

They occupy four rooms in what was the kitchen wing during the days when Don Juan and his happy companeros staged fiestas in the patio.

Don Juan at one time relaxed in its cool patio with the thought of his 10,000 cattle, 8,000 sheep and 300 horses grazing on his surrounding 27,000 acres which were to become Long Beach.

"Don Ramon" is content with a car—and the thought that he is paid to live in a neighborhood populated by Long Beach's millionaires.

HE VOLUNTEERED for the assignment when the restored ranch house was open to the public in April 1955. (It is open from 1 to 5 p. m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays).

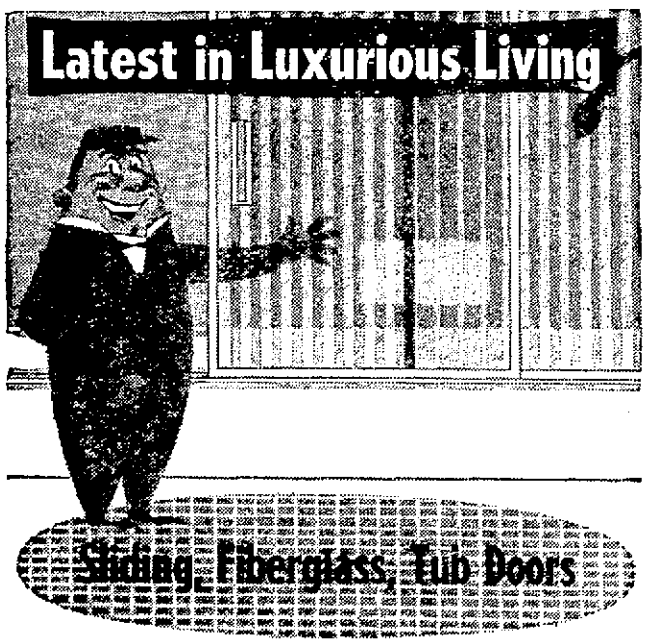

"It's like living in the country," Langley says. "The flowers are in bloom now and practically every kind of California bird can be seen in the gardens."

Since taking the post, Langley is acquiring a new skill—a thorough knowledge of California history. He studies the books being added to the ranch house library and already is an expert on the construction and history of the building.

Air Doors Used

The most modern replacement of the electrically opened door is the air curtain which has been developed in Switzerland. It forms an invisible wall through which heat or cool air is kept in and insects out. Folding doors replace the air curtain at night.

Pickles, to the minds of many gourmets—and just plain homefolks, too, add zest to meals, are almost essential as dessert. Here are three easy-made kinds.

COOKING

How to Make Your Own Pickles

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

YOU DON'T need to live "down on the farm" to enjoy the taste thrills of home-made pickles.

In fact, you can live in an efficient apartment right in the heart of the city and still put up blue-ribbon pickles, relishes and spiced fruits.

Of course there is a secret, but it's one we'll gladly share. It's the quick pickling method which uses distilled white vinegar both as a flavoring and as a preservative.

THIS SHORT-CUT method does away with much that was tedious and time-consuming in traditional recipes. Instead, fresh vegetables and fruits are cleaned and cut; then, without brining they're popped into the preserving kettle, where they simmer in less liquid, for a shorter time, than pickles ever did before.

This is pickling streamlined for modern living!

It's important to start out with fresh, good quality fruits and vegetables. In addition, they must be thoroughly washed and free of blemishes. Fresh spices mean a lot; and equipment, like jars and lids, should be in tiptop shape.

Needless to say, there are pickles and there are pickles -- and each to his own taste. Believing, however, that sweet mixed pickles are favorites with everyone, that recipe is featured today. Then, to give you a well rounded "stock pile" of these favorites, following are recipes for uncooked tomato relish, piccalilli, icicle pickles and for the watermelon pickle.

Uncooked Tomato Relish

To make three pints for keeping in refrigerator rather than canning:

12 to 14 medium tomatoes (2 quarts)
1 cup chopped celery
¾ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper

Sweet Mixed Pickle:

2 quarts cauliflower flowerets (2 medium heads)
2 medium green peppers, cut into ¾-inch strips
2 medium sweet red peppers, cut into ¼-inch strips
1½ pounds (9 medium) onions, peeled, quartered
2½ cups white vinegar
1½ cups water
1½ cups granulated sugar
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 tablespoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon turmeric

Wash cauliflower; break into small flowerets. Cook in small amount of unsalted boiling water 5 minutes. Drain. Wash and prepare remaining vegetables. Combine remaining ingredients; heat to boiling, covered. Add vegetables and boil, uncovered, 2 minutes. Quickly pack one, hot sterilized jar at a time, filing to ⅛ inch from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Seal each jar at once. Yields 5 to 6 pints.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"Are freighter trips to Europe comfortable and how do you get a price on them?"

SOME freighters are good and others are miserable. Your best bet on this is to book through a travel agent. They get the latest offerings from the freighter lines. And there is this problem: Ship reservations are so in demand that you have to start ordering a year or so in advance. A good freighter in the 12-passenger class can be a lot of fun.

"My husband and I are interested in music and particularly would like to go inexpensively to some place to hear the Calypso music . . ."

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, is your place. Though the time to go is Carnival, just before Lent when the calypso wars are on. Great music and a lot of fun. If you want off island stuff, you can fly to Tobago near by. And all the islands along here have some form of Calypso. Get in the front rows at the wars because the accent is very hard to understand.

The steel oil drum bands are interesting, too.

Get a Chippy's taxi in Port-of-Spain and have him drive you around the various guest houses. Less expensive than Queen's Park and you can get good rooms. The little oysters are a specialty in this country. Tavern-on-the-Green is one of the good restaurants for them. They make rum punch the traditional one-two-three way here too. Rum, lime and sugar.

"We planned to go to Australia for the Olympics but wonder about accommodations . . ."

The Australian government says there is going to be plenty of room. But friends of mine in Australia think they are going to be quite short. And they say Australia hotels are not what we call Class A and mostly not even Class B.

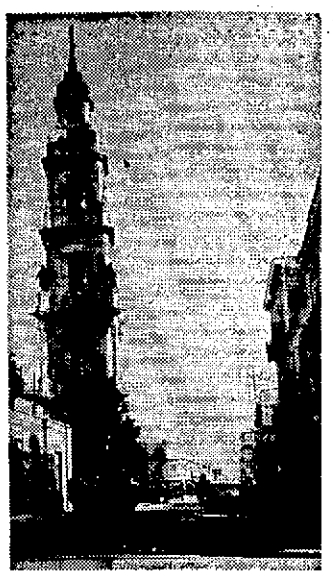

I'd get a travel agent right now and reserve some rooms.

Pan American flies this route and Qantas, the Australian line, has some excellent luxury flights out of the west coast. You ought to write Matson Navigation Co., San Francisco, too. They are putting on two luxury liners to Australia this fall. With stops at Tahiti and Fiji. This will open up Tahiti, which is a difficult and long transfer now by air.

"We read all the books on tipping in Europe and they said the 15 per cent on your hotel bill covered everything. But the help seemed disappointed when we left . . ."

I'LL BET they did. The American invasion has made it customary to add about 5 per cent more and split it around in small portions. Even the Europeans are getting caught in this squeeze. About 50 cents U. S. in francs or marks or whatever to the maid, the porter, the room waiter and the doorman. And a dollar to the concierge is about right. That's per person for a stay of say three days.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to: Stan Delaplane, Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Spanish Course

Thousands of visitors to Mexico will extract additional pleasure from their trips this year thanks to a unique arrangement that will provide them with a working knowledge of Spanish in advance of their departure from home.

This will be made possibly by a free gift in the form of a complete home-study course in conversational Spanish (the Mexican way). Known as the "two-week" method, the course comprises a 60-page instruction album and four extended-play phonograph records.

Sponsor of the unusual bonus is Mexico Travel Advisors, prominent tour operator which handles Mexican travel arrangements for thousands of travel agents in the U. S. and Canada. The offer is being made available exclusively through travel agents, with one complete course presented gratis with each Mexican tour booking.

James Dubin, president of Mexico Travel Advisors, explained that "as tourist interest has grown in romantic Mexico, more and more Americans and Canadians want to talk a little Spanish—just enough to get by—ordering meals and drinks, shopping and getting closer to the people. It isn't absolutely necessary, of course, since our staff takes care of visitors' daily requirements, but there's no doubt additional enjoyment accompanies a little knowledge of Spanish."

Mexico Travel Advisors has been serving North American visitors for the past 22 years, having handled over 400,000 visitors during that period in cooperation with U. S. and Canadian travel agents. The Spanish course, endorsed by the Mexican government, has been condensed by the Mexican Spanish Academy. Normally it retails for $9.95.

Trip Around the World... for You

NELLIE BLY never had it so good!

The average wage-earner who saves up $1,500 for a vacation can make the dream trip around the world at today's low air tourist fares and the speed with which air travel makes the entire globe one quick hop-and-jump. And it can be done on credit, too.

This is according to Trans World Airlines which released a few statistics recently on the market for round-the-world travel. TWA is seeking to provide a second United States flag-carrier round-the-world service by extending its route beyond India and Ceylon to Bangkok and Manila, to connect there with Northwest Airlines for the trans-Pacific portion of the trip. The Civil Aeronautics Board examiner in the case has already approved the route.

"A trip around the world has always had a tremendous appeal for anyone interested in travel and is the ultimate goal of all tourists." TWA pointed out, "but this goal has previously been unattainable for all but a very select few."

Today, TWA continued, "low air tourist fares and the speed of air transportation have put this goal within the reach of millions of individuals."

By 1960, TWA predicts, more than 30,000 persons a year will travel around-the-world, citing the fact that the growth of this global traffic in recent years has been "truly phenomenal." Round-the-world air traffic in September 1955, on United States flag-carriers alone, totaled more than 12,500 passengers, an increase of 2,374 per cent over the figure for September 1948.

At today's air tourist fares one can travel around the world for $1,347.90 plus $22.40 federal transportation tax on the Honolulu-New York portion, spending as much or as little time as desired in stopovers in many countries.

The extent of the market for this type of pleasure travel is indicated, TWA said, by the fact that in 1953 approximately 3,800,000 families in the United States had annual incomes of more than $10,000.

Cape Cod Style With Personality

Rothschild Photo

Rumpus room with fireplace, adjoining kitchenette and comfortable furnishings is readily accessible to the pool room, shown beyond archway here.

By Eileen Ball

THE HOME of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Spring is a vital, personality-packed dwelling that, in the strictest sense of the word, has grown with their family.

Nine years ago the Springs bought a charming two-story, Cape Cod-style house at 3860 Country Club Dr. It sat upon a rolling lawn and was hugged by trees that sprinkled the flower gardens with dappled shade.

Almost immediately the changes began. The attached garage (facing the front of the lot) was converted to a den. This area adjoins the kitchen. On the other side of the kitchen, to the rear, was added maid's quarters and a garage accessible from the back of the property.

And so it was, a comfortable, spacious family home which enjoyed its additions that blended so harmoniously with the original structure that it seemed all to have been built at one time.

LAST YEAR, an addition was built on the other side of the house, including among other luxury features the most "ultra" of all modern innovations—an indoor swimming pool!

At this point, Mr. and Mrs. Spring, their son Paul and daughter Donna Lee are enjoying a home that has virtually everything, a pool, patio, rumpus room-and-kitchen combination, den, three bedrooms, a formal living room and separate dining room.

The entry hall, from which rises a handsome staircase, sets the mood for the living room to the right. In the entry, pink-beige carpet blends softly with scenic wallpaper and dark woods. A console table holding an antique marble figure of a child is the first display of the collection enjoyed by the Springs, that of acquiring small figures of children as rendered in the limited media of marble, porcelains and cast metals.

OFF THE ENTRY to the left is a small powder room with pink and white wallpaper and turquoise blue fixtures.

The living room is carpeted in the same dusky pink and has soft blue-green walls. There the mood is distinctly of the 18th century, with typical curved and delicately carved furniture legs, lustrous satin upholstery and formal fireplace. Dominating the room is an elegant parlor grand piano.

At one end of the room are French doors opening to the terrace and patio. The doors are flanked on either side by lighted, glass-doored display cabinets. On one side is displayed Mrs. Spring's doll collection while the right hand cabinet houses a fine collection of colored antique glass and china that sparkles brilliantly under the lights.

Blue-green louvered doors open to the formal dining room which, like the living room, boasts doors that adjoin the patio.

THE DINING ROOM is papered in soft grey with clusters of yellow roses. Draperies and upholstery for the Chippendale dining chairs are antique gold silk satin.

The kitchen has an unusual and enticingly feminine color scheme. White tile surmounts cabinets painted the same greyed French blue as the range. Charcoal grey linoleum bordered with white carries out the grey that is contrasted with white and pink ruffled curtains and—a pale pink refrigerator! In the adjoining service area are washer and dryer in the same shell pink tone.

Cape Cod styling presents quaint and hospitable exterior. House has undergone considerable expansion.

The converted den is a friendly room with a handsome decorative flair. The mood here is French provincial, with blue-green beamed ceiling, tan and aqua provincial figured paper, bay window displaying items of colored glass and floor covering of random-color carpet.

THE DEN HAS a provincial sofa that unfolds into a bed, a large leather chair, desk and television set. And, just because the Springs enjoy breakfasting with a view, they have moved their attractive oval provincial table and chairs before the bay window that overlooks the front garden and the street.

The new wing of the house, located on the south, is accessible from the living room via French doors that open to the new rumpus room. This large area has a floor of cork cut in plank-size strips and "pegged" with deep brown circles. The floor has the richness of plank with the wonderful sound-muffling qualities of cork

Defining the conversational area before the used-brick fireplace is an oval rug of multi-colored wool braids. A pair of green tweed love seats face each other before the fireplace across a low, maple coffee table.

THE SCHEME FOR the rumpus room is, of course, early American. A round, pine game table doubles handily as still another dining table. It has an assembly of comfortable captains chairs and is within short serving distance of the ingenious kitchenette which, despite its compact dimensions, is every bit as functional as the main kitchen.

Fir cabinets with provincial finish are topped with unglazed terra cotta tile. Pull-down electric cooking units are the latest thing in cooking appliances. (When not in use, the individual units snap up against the wall and out of the way). With similar modern foresight, the Springs built into a cabinet a small and wonderfully compact refrigerator.

A service bar from the kitchen to the rumpus room may be closed off with folding shutters topping a storage cabinet for dishes.

Aged fir vertical paneling and heavy beams keynote both the rumpus room and the adjoining pool room. The latter completely encloses a contoured swimming pool with overall dimensions of about 15x30 feet.

HUGE BEAMS SPAN the ceiling over the pool while around it is a deck of pinkish-toned cement. Handsome rattan and wicker furniture with turquoise and watermelon pads furnish the area. Huge potted tropical plants add touches of greenery.

Sliding walls of glass open both to the rear garden and to the bricked patio that nestles into a "U" provided by the house and pool room.

Two dressing rooms and a bath open directly off the pool saving damp-footed wear and tear on the house.

Childrens' bedrooms each enjoy a view of the back yard from their second-story vantage point. The master bedroom is a large room, has views of both front and rear gardens and enjoys its own attached bathroom.

Kelly rejected make-up; said he was no "sissy." Hope pointed to own make-up. Said Kelly: "But you make more money."

Tony, older and more mature, offered no protest as make-up man, Joe Stinton, got him ready for camera action.

HOLLYWOOD

There're Really Lots of Hopes!

Bob Hope hoped it would be a gag when he cast his youngest son, Kelly, 9, in Paramount's "That Certain Feeling," VistaVision and Technicolor feature, but he forgot there were lots of Hopes with movie-role hopes. A week later, Bob, hoping to keep peace in the family, was forced to find parts for his other three youngsters, Linda, 16; Tony, 15, and Nora, 9. "I had to do it," Hope moans. "Otherwise, there would have been a mutiny in the Hope home. I never received so many dirty looks since the time I showed up at Crosby's for dinner." The oldest children, Linda and Tony, are seen stuffing envelopes in an engraving plant sequence with their father. Kelly, who has several lines and the "fattest part of the bunch, plays "Billy," and worked in a scene with Hope and seven-year-old Jerry Mathers, one of the top featured performers. Nora appears in a children's playground sequence with Hope and Mathers. The four children do not work together at any time. Here are some scenes around the set.

Pretty Linda Hope posed with her dad between scenes. Eva Marie Saint and George Sanders are costars with Bob.

Only member of the family not cast in the film is Dolores Hope who visited her husband, children on set. Nora, second from left, also has a part.

SUGAR BEETS ARE A BIG BUSINESS

in Huntington Beach, and in 1912 by two, one in Anaheim and the other on Dyer Road, south of Santa Ana.

Lacy says that in those days three-fourths of all the land in this area available and suitable for beet growing was planted to the crop.

Failure of many farmers to follow sound crop-rotation programs, however, started a decline in yields and sugar content of the beets which reached serious proportions by 1917 and 1918.

Adding to the trouble were pests and diseases later to be subdued by American scientists but raging unchecked in the period immediately after the end of World War I.

And in the course of years, not just sugar beets but all crops gradually had to make way for people.

SO, ONE BY ONE, the sugar factories were closed down, until now there remains only the Holly plant on Dyer road, one of 11 operated in the state by that company, Spreckels, Union and American Crystal.

Lacy thinks that continuing demand for housing will leave no room for any large increases in beet acreages within the county but some expansion probably will occur.

In this area, machines do just about 100 per cent of the tedious, time-consuming chores done by hand only a few years ago.

Today one man operating a mechanical thinner will cover at least 15 acres per day, at a cost of about $5 an acre. Formerly a ten-man crew using short-handled hoes did well to cover five acres a day—and the cost to the farmer was upwards of $20.

Come harvest time, four men operating a mechanical harvester will easily handle seven acres a day, considered a real achievement by the 24-man teams that used to do the job by hand.

WITH SUCH machines, with scientific advancements in seed varieties and pest control, and with their own improvements in farming methods, California beet growers now are among the leading sugar producers in the world.

Their crops, turned into sugar at one of our 11 factories, last year produced nearly one-third of all the beet sugar consumed in the nation.

"Somehow," says Lacy, "many people seem to think of sugar production in terms of stalks of cane growing on tropical islands.

"Actually, our beet growers produce more sugar per acre, at far fewer man-hours per day, than do the farmers of such 'sugar islands' as Cuba. And for decades beet sugar has been THE sugar for the chefs of France and other European countries."

THERE ARE ALSO some people, Lacy added, who have the mistaken notion that there is a difference between beet and cane.

As the U. S. Department of Agriculture always points out in its sugar pamphlets, Lacy noted, the two are identical in every respect.

"Sugar is a chemical," Lacy said, "and it is precisely the same chemical no matter what the source—whether you get it from the toddy palm tree (as they do in Burma), from a grape, from cane or from the sugar beet."

And so, far from the tropics, the local industry is well on the way toward a 1956 production of sufficient quantities of the finest sugar money can buy to meet the needs not only of every resident of Orange County but another quarter of a million persons besides.

Star skaters by the dozens are active in Long Beach. Above, Jean McCollum and Paul Parke, outstanding roller couple, execute a graceful pairs spin.

We're a Bunch of Good Skates!

By Dick Zehms

WHY BE MODEST about it? We're a bunch of good skates in this town. Roller skaters, that is. Much, much more than you realize, too.

Know you that Long Beach has the largest representation of national roller skating champions of any city from border to border and coast to coast?

Ten call the Hippodrome Club their alma mater. Six compete in the name of the Palace Club.

KNOW YOU THAT this local society of roller princes and princesses is rapidly on the increase. The title fever has caught our youngsters. They all aspire to competitive perfection in this fascinating sport.

It wasn't always thus. Today rink operators estimate there are 20 million roller skaters in the land, nearly 30 per cent of whom are intent upon achieving laurels in competition sponsored and supervised by the RSROA, the Roller Skating Rink Operators Assn. of America. This group supervises state, regional and national meets. The clubs confine their competition authority to strictly local activities —shows and meets.

THE LOCAL ROLLER skating set has been reluctant to shout about its national and regional achievements, although proud as a peacock of the conquests. You have to ferret out the facts.

Take the Skating Palace representation. Its club numbers around 125 members, ranging in ages from 5 years to the social security mark. Its national champions are Christy Cowdery, Tina S. Seabern, Doug R. Eley and Jerry E. Tangen; junior fours, and Judith Ann Nance and Richard (Ricky) Mullican, junior pairs.

Over at Hippodrome, where the club membership is virtually the same in numbers and age brackets, they point with pride to Gerry Daniels, Mickey Dupuy, Davis Macomber and Jack Maguire, novice fours; Pat Pennington, intermediate and senior fours; Mike Glatz, intermediate fours, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hammond, novice and intermediate dance champions, all national in scope.

DON BROMLEY, manager of the Hippodrome, and Francis E. Baker, owner of the Palace, agree in the belief that Long Beach's strongest titular bids at San Pablo will be made by the national champions, more specifically by Mullican and Miss Nance and by the dance duo of George and Helene Hammond.

They also ascribe to the belief that competitive roller skating is on the upswing throughout the country, and chiefly in the Long Beach area by reason of the introduction of professional instructors to the local scene.

"Five years ago maybe we had 20 contestants in a regional meet from here," said Bromley. "Now look at the total—more than 70. The increase has mushroomed within the last three or four years. Youngsters will always be fond of roller skating. But now they have more incentive—competition.

"INTRODUCTION OF professional instructors at the two local rinks is another stimulant. A few years ago there was nobody around to help a youngster if her or she wanted to polish up for competition. Now there are six—Mr. and Mrs. Milton May at the Palace and Ray Hough, Marilynne Cormley, Shirley Bromley and myself at the Hippodrome.

"WE CAN'T DO some of the things the ice skaters do on their blades, nor can they do some of the things we do. Our championship meets and shows, however, are just as colorful and entertaining as the best ice revue you will ever see. Roller skating popularity is in an upswing. The competition is as hot on the rinks for titles as it is on the ball fields."

Smooth routines on roller skates produced a national junior pairs title for Judith Ann Nance and Richard Mullican, shown in warmup stunt above.

"Sandwich lift" (above), novel stunt by Gerry Daniels, Mickey Dupuy, Davis Macomber and Jack Maguire. Yes, 2 girls are being held aloft... count the blonde heads.

Kathy Kinton, 6, comes out of a spin. She is a competent young skater.

Long Beach entries in recent regional championships:

2 teaspoons salt
3 teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon mustard seed
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon or half as much allspice
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup vinegar

Peel tomatoes. Combine all ingredients and blend. Will keep well under refrigeration in covered container for 2 or 3 weeks.

Piccalilli

6 pounds (22 medium) green tomatoes, quartered
¾ pound (1 pint) small onions
6 green peppers, quartered lengthwise
6 sweet red peppers, quartered
1½ quarts distilled white vinegar
3½ cups sugar
¼ cup salt
1½ teaspoons ground allspice
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
3 to 4 teaspoons celery seed
⅛ to ½ cup mustard seed

Wash vegetables; put through food grinder, using medium blade; drain, discarding liquid. Turn vegetables into large kettle; add 1 quart vinegar. Boil 30 minutes, stirring often. Drain vegetables, discarding liquid. Return vegetables to kettle. Add 1 pint vinegar, sugar, salt and spices. Simmer 3 minutes. Continue simmering while quickly packing one hot, sterilized jar at a time. Fill to ⅛ inch from top. Seal each jar at once. Makes 6 to 7 pints.

Icicle Pickles

3 pounds 4-inch cucumbers, cut into eighths lengthwise
6 small onions, quartered
6 5-inch pieces celery
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 quart distilled white vinegar
¼ cup salt
2½ cups sugar
1 cup water

Wash, cut cucumbers; soak in ice water 3 hours. Drain; pack in clean pint jars. Add 1 onion, 1 piece celery and ½ teaspoon mustard seed to each jar. Combine vinegar, salt, sugar and water; bring to boil. Pour solution over cucumbers, filling jar to ½ inch from top. Immediately adjust covers as jar manufacturer directs. Set jars on wire rack in covered, deep kettle with boiling water to cover tops of jars 1 inch. Process (boil) 10 minutes, counting time from moment active boiling resumes. Remove, adjust seal as manufacturer directs. Makes 6 pints.

Pickled Watermelon Rind

3 pounds prepared watermelon rind
2 pounds granulated sugar
2 cups white vinegar
6 3-inch cinnamon sticks
2 tablespoons whole allspice
2 tablespoons whole cloves

Use rind from firm, not overripe, watermelon. Trim outer green skin and pink flesh (allowing a very thin line of pink to show). Cut into 1½"x3¼" pieces.

Soak overnight in salt water (3 tablespoons salt per 1 quart water); drain. Cover with fresh water and cook until tender; drain. Heat sugar and vinegar to boiling. Add spices, tied in cheesecloth bag. Add rind. Cook, uncovered, until transparent, about 45 minutes. Remove spice bag. Simmer while quickly packing one hot, sterilized jar at a time. Fill to ⅛ inch from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers rind. Seal each jar at once. Makes 3 pints.

Kitchen Tip:

Mark fruit jars with wax crayons while the jars are hot. The words "flow on" and stay put when the jars are cold.

BOOK REVIEWS

Lincoln's Web-Feet

PRESIDENT LINCOLN paid a great tribute to the Federal Navy when he wrote: "Nor must Uncle Sam's web-feet be forgotten. At all the watery margins they have been present. Not only on the deep sea, the broad bay and the rapid river, but also up the narrow muddy bayou, and wherever the ground was a little damp."

In "Mr. Lincoln's Admirals" by Clarence Edward Macartney (Funk & Wagnalls, $5) the author also pays tribute to a service which was little noted during the Civil War. Perhaps the reason for this was that there was little change in the policy of the Federal naval command; they started out to do a job—mostly of blockading—and they did it with little or no shaking up of commanders. There was no scandal attached to the Federal fighting ships, and so they sailed and chugged through the war with few to chronicle what was a time of great expansion and excitement in naval warfare.

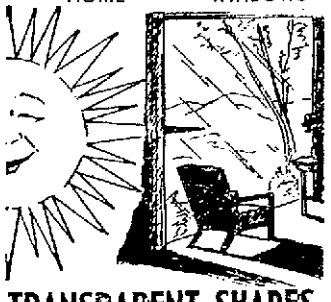

There were only 90 fighting ships in 1861, and in 1865 there were 670, many of them armed with rifled cannon, and many shod with iron over wood, or built from the keels up of metal. The one great loss for the Federal naval cause was the taking of the Norfolk Navy Yard, at the start of the war. This was an outrageous blunder by its commander, Commodore McCauley, but soon efficient and skilled men were in command. There is no lack of color and excitement in this good account of fighting men and ships, and the reader will find it has the pace of a good novel.—G. L.

BEST BY FAR of the books about travel in this corner of the United States is written by Kent Ruth, an Oklahoman, who has roamed the country west of the Mississippi for 17 years. That's because "How to Enjoy Western Vacations" (University of Oklahoma Press, $4.95) not only accurately reports on what-to-see and what-to-do attractions, but accomplishes beautifully what Kent says he attempted—to give some indication in depth of the nature of the vacationland itself. Moreover, the book tells the vacationist what he may expect in the way of lodging and eating

Put Your Family in the Movies

This picture had to be snapped at a time when their hands were still—a movie would tell the whole story.

By the Shutterbug

EVERY FAMILY not only needs its own cinematographer, but every member of the family ought to be one. It is an impressive title, but really just means one who takes pictures with a movie camera.

There's no better way to keep a record of family life than in full color home movies that reproduce all of the brilliance and motion of the activity or scene that caused you to want to take pictures.

WE'RE ESPECIALLY excited about home movie-making for all members of the family since we heard about a new camera that came on the market just a few weeks ago. It's the movie version of the familiar fixed focus or box still camera (except that it has a better lens) and it is priced at under $30. Not much under, just a little. Made by a well-known manufacturer, it's practically foolproof, it's so easy to use.

WITH THIS CAMERA you make one simple setting of the lens, wind the motor, and shoot. And, there's a guide on the front to tell you which setting to use, according to the way the weather is.

Birthdays, weddings, graduations, holidays, and all the little every day things that are the material from which happy memories are made — will be kept fresh, colorful, and full of action in your movie films.

HOW TO Make Decorative Kitchen Storage Items of Easy-to-Use Plywood

1. SPICE RACK of ¼-inch striated plywood adds a note of novelty to the kitchen. Bottom shelf is slightly larger than the top for bigger jars and rectangular containers. Saw out each part and assemble with glue and brads, countersinking them and filling the holes. Where the edges of plywood show, cut matching striations with a wood rasp. Bottoms of the shelves should be cut from smooth-surface plywood for easier cleaning. Stain or varnish.

2. DRAWINGS SHOW construction of a pot-lid holder. The holder can be any length—this one's 16 inches—to fit available space. Handles of lids rest in notches cut in plywood pieces, which project at 20-degree angles from the back. Reinforce these joints with wedges glued and bradded between back and holders, as shown on the drawing. Small cup hook or metal pins provide handy hot-dish holders. Use ¼-inch plywood for entire piece, with exception of solid wood for wedges.

Little 'Wigglenose' Can Be Trained

Resting contentedly on Craig Mathison's lap are his pets, Happy, a Dutch rabbit; Gwendolyn, Siamese cat.

By Eleanor Avery Price

THERE HAS BEEN an increased interest in rabbits as pets that can be trained since, three years ago, "Buck" Bunny, a finance company's wiggle-nosed performer, was first seen swiftly picking up silver dollars and neatly depositing them in a top replica of the firm's building in Los Angeles.

Many TV viewers were hard to convince and "Buck" Bunny's sponsors have been deluged with letters, many alleging that the performer is a mechanical rabbit.

"Buck" Bunny is a live, red-blooded rabbit, the original property of Keller Breland of Hot Springs, Ark., a man with a national reputation as an animal psychologist specializing in making trained barnyard animals and fowl do amazing tricks.

BRELAND'S TRAINING formula is simple and one that anyone can follow who has a rabbit to train. When "Buck" did his work well, he was rewarded with food. When he didn't, his mistakes went unnoticed. He never was punished. "Buck" hung his head in shame when he flubbed, proof that a rabbit is sensitive and eager to please.

Craig Mathison, 6-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Mathison, 119 Syracuse Walk, pictured with this article, has been instructed to train his Siamese cat, Gwendolyn, and his Dutch rabbit, Happy, with kindness. Of course, his parents help him.

Happy was given to Craig when the boy was 3 years old. It seems Gwendolyn was lonesome. True, she had Craig for a friend and owner, but even a prize-ribbon Siamese cat likes a bedfellow and someone to romp with when her owner is away. When Craig acquired the rabbit, Gwendolyn ceased to be lonely.

THE RABBIT was very eager to share the cat's sleeping quarters and he matter-of-factly accepted her sand box to which he was housebroken almost immediately. He also liked to sleep in Craig's bed, but that came to an end when he developed a taste for Craig's blankets.

Happy likes attention and he has learned a few tricks. He sits up and begs for his food, and he scratches at the door if he finds it shut between him and the sand box.

There is only one thing that Happy does that annoys Gwendolyn. The rabbit will start playing with the cat when she is napping. When he gets her up to romp with him, he promptly steals the spot she has warmed.

THERE ARE MANY varieties of rabbits of various sizes that make interesting pets. Lately the smaller breeds have taken a lead in popularity. Craig's Dutch rabbit is one of the smallest in existence, the adult weighing between four and five pounds. The Dutch is well-rounded, cobby, and sleek, with small ears.

IF YOU WANT to enter the 1956 dog photo contest sponsored by Gaines Dog Research Center, 250 Park Ave., New York 17, N. Y., send a card immediately to Gaines for official facts and rules, then get busy with that camera this summer. Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Friday, Sept. 7. First prize is $500.

GET YOUR ENTRIES in by July 16 for the Ventura Fanciers Association all-breed dog show and obedience trial to be held July 28 in Ventura and for Santa Barbara Kennel Club show and obedience trial scheduled for July 29 at Hope Ranch, Santa Barbara.

GARDENS

Annuals Yield Exciting Results

By Bob Gilmore

Badger Seeds Photo

Centaureas are among annuals that are easy to germinate and develop rapidly from seed in Long Beach area.

THIS IS AN excellent time for sowing seed of annuals. These plants will provide a lot of excitement in your garden. Packets containing mixed colors will prove especially desirable if you want a new adventure in gardening. They usually produce one or more colors that you have never seen before.

When you plant a rose, a hibbertia or a jasmine, for example, you know in advance exactly what the mature plant and flowers will look like. But when you sow a packet of mixed zinnias there is an excellent chance you'll see something new and different. Some packets, for example, contain as many as 50 separate varieties.

Annuals are plants that complete their life cycle in one season. This means their growth is swift and you will have flowers in a hurry. Some annuals, such as alyssum and Virginia stocks, for example, seem to pop into bloom almost over night; even zinnias may flower 40 days after seeding. Others, such as petunias take slightly longer.

BE SURE YOU obtain seed of high viability. Flower seeds, like all other seeds, lose their germinative power over a period of years. Oddly enough, in a certain year, however, the germination could rise over the previous year. The best storage conditions are accompanied by low temperature and humidity.

Annual seeds germinate rapidly although different varieties have their own peculiar growing habits. Generally speaking, you can sow seed at a depth of roughly three times its diameter. Large seeds, such as sweet peas, calendulas, and zinnias can be planted now in the outdoor garden. But smaller seeds like begonias and petunias are best planted in seed flats or pots, later transferring them to the open garden. These tiny seeds should simply be pressed into the soil.

ONE OF THE BEST mediums for starting annuals indoors is a regulation nursery flat. This is made of wood, measures about 18 inches by 18 inches and is just a few inches high. A good starting soil for use in a nursery flat should contain a mixture of one part No. 2 sand and one part peat. This mix is loose, porous and easy to obtain.

Annuals that can be seeded now include amaranthus, alyssum, bachelor button, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, centaurea, cosmos, gypsophila, marigold, nasturtium, nicotiana, phlox, stock, sweet peas, verbena and zinnias.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Azaleas and rhododendrons, even after their flowering season, require shade and an acid soil. Their roots should be kept fairly wet but not soggy. A mulch on the surface of peat or leaf mold will prove beneficial.

Chrysanthemum plants may be set out now in the open garden. Young plants made from cuttings taken last March will produce better results than old divisions. They are available at all leading garden supply stores.

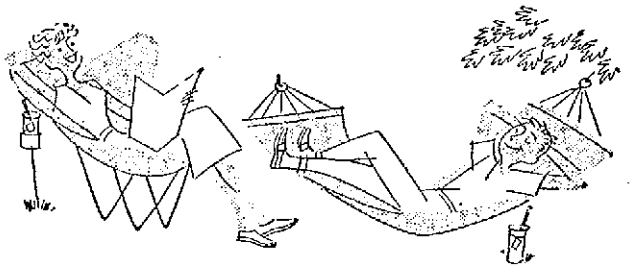

Carnations can also be started at this time. An open, porous soil is advisable. Pinch back the tip of the leader stem to encourage a bushier growth and to delay flowering until the roots are well established.

Chewers are here in force. The Twelve-Spotted Beetle (Diabrotica) that flies about and feeds on roses, chrysanthemums and dahlias; the host of caterpillars and worms that chew both leaves and flowers.

Your "best bet" to fight them is to buy a summer spray that will do double duty . . . kill these chewers and eliminate the sucking insects such as thrips and aphis in the same operation. Life doesn't stand still anywhere and the protection of your garden must adjust to meet emergencies. Right now your battle to defend your shrubs and flowers against insect life is at its peak. So the spray material you use must be ruthless in its ability to kill the widest number of species of destructive insects without doing harm to your plants.

Don't spray too often. Therefore, you should double the death-dealing quality in the sprays you use through July and August in order to get both the suckers and the chewers in the fewest number of sprayings.

RELAXER'S PARADISE

What would a hammock and a campaign chair look like sitting out on a landing strip? But, nestled in the environment of lush foliage, flowering and green . . . here's the relaxer's paradise! Call on us for landscaping help, won't you?

Keep a Windowful of Violets

Simple rules of culture will keep African violets in top form, filling home window areas with extra charm.

By Reba Hines

ARE YOU WEARY of seeing your African Violets without blossoms, or just a mass of foliage, or with leaves drooping? Then, this is written for you.

Your window areas can easily become places of floral beauty for you and your family through proper culture of African violets.

Saintpaulia species run into the hundreds. African violet culture has been one of my favorite hobbies for the past seven years, during this time, only one of my plants was diseased.

Here is my simple method. Bring out the full beauty of the plants by giving them early morning sunshine for about 30 minutes (there must be a little direct sunshine to help promote abundant and colorful blooms). Of course, there must be plenty of light at all times, but during summer months excessive light and heat will produce brown spots on leaves. This may be avoided by lowering window shades in warmest part of day.

I USE MY OWN soil mixture, one part garden loam, two parts, river bottom sand, washed and sifted; leaf mold and peat moss added until soil is friable.

Feed the plants every 10 days with a light application of liquid plant food, insert funnel between leaves down to the soil pour slowly keeping liquid off foliage. My violets bloom the year around with nine to 12 stems per plant, the stems average five to six inches in length, each one has 12 to 14 blossoms. Plants must be free of dust, dirt and insects, and must be dry cleaned occasionally. I use a small camel's hair brush, supporting each leaf individually, then brushing gently downward until clean.

Remove fading blossoms and leaves daily, turn plants twice a week, so illumination will be equal producing an even, upright plant.

PROPAGATING leaf cuttings is simple and easy. Spring and summer are the best months; select mature leaves with stems 1½ inches long and place the end of the damp stem in rooting medium, carefully remove excess rooting substance.

Have two-inch pots filled with above mentioned mixture, insert one or two leaf cuttings in each pot. Within five or six weeks plants will have formed and two or three tiny leaves will appear around the base of the mother leaf. This is time to transplant into a slightly larger pot, lifting out the entire plant carefully. Better root systems and stronger plants will result. Generally, within two months, first blooms will appear; then separate, dust roots with rooting medium, transplant to five-inch pots.

I FIND IT advisable to place a strip of aluminum foil two inches wide on border of pot, allow one inch inside container, press into place, or paint rim inside and out a few days before transplanting, both foil and paint protect foliage from edge, which absorbs acids in fertilizer often producing leaf decay.

Keep soil moist but good drainage is important. Layer of gravel or crushed unused pots should be spread on bottom of container. Transplanting provides gift plants for my neighbors, and for ill and bedridden persons.

Plants That Like Sea Breeze

By Walter Finch

LONG BEACH and its neighboring coastal cities are invaded almost daily by a wind, however slight, that moves in from the Pacific. Meteorologists refer to it as a "gentle breeze" which means its average speed ranges between eight and 12 miles per hour. The effect of this wind on plant life is probably greater than most home gardeners think.

Most gardeners assume that this wind must pack a great deal of moisture, but this is not quite true. The fact is that this "gentle breeze" tends to have a dry-out effect on most plants.

NEVERTHELESS, there are dozens of plants capable of tolerating the sea breeze.

Ivy geranium will prove excellent for use as a ground cover or for landscaping banks or hilly areas.

PITTOSPORUM TOBIRA, very popular throughout Southern California, has a remarkable tolerance for cool, salty winds.

Viburnum suspensum has received wide use in the Southland as a foundation plant.

THE NATAL PLUM, known to nurserymen as carissa grandiflora, is a natural for coastal plantings. The plants are at their best out in the sun. This ornamental may be grown anywhere in California from the ocean to the inland desert regions.

Other plants that will prove colorful, interesting and capable of tolerating the sea breeze include pyracantha crenato-serrata which produces crimson-toned berries in clusters as large as a dinner plate; star jasmine, a tough and hardy plant that is actually a perfume factory; camellias, English ivy, viburnum tinus, magnolia grandiflora, the familiar oak, white daphne, abelia, the "strawberry tree" known botanically as arbutus unedo, and juniperus sabina tamarix, which, like most of its relatives, also tolerates a dry, out-in-the-open exposure.

Reviews of Late Books

facilities and what he may reasonably expect to pay. If your vacation is still in the planning stage, by all means read this book—F. T. K.

THE CLASSIC of American mountaineering, "The Conquest of Mt. McKinley" (Houghton Mifflin, $6) by Belmore Browne, has been reissued for the first time since its publication in 1913. Here was mountain climbing before modern equipment, oxygen, air lifts, etc., made it a profession, and the description of hardships endured in the frozen northern wilderness mark the author and his companions real adventurers. After Frederick Cook claimed to have reached the summit of the continent, it was Belmore Browne who proved Cook's claim fraudulent. It is a very interesting narrative of Alaska 40-some years ago.

MT. GODWIN AUSTEN, better known as K 2, the world's second highest mountain, has been considered by many mountaineers more deadly than Everest. Five serious attempts on its summit by various international groups ended in failure. In "Victory Over K 2" (McGraw-Hill, $5.75) Ardito Desio, leader of the successful Italian expedition, relates the never-ending struggle to survive and yet advance higher until at 6 p.m. July 31, 1954, two climbers reached the icy summit ridge. This was an expedition designed to reach its objective, having financial independence and unlimited equipment. Some mountaineers have said in jest the Italians trussed up the icy giant with enough nylon rope until it resembled a Christmas turkey, but jesting aside, conquering a Himalayan peak of this caliber can only be accomplished by brave and determined mountaineers. A certain amount of "nationalism" seems to creep into the narrative reminiscent of some expeditions of the 1930s. The book is illustrated with photographs and maps.—R.C.

A SPLENDID contribution to western Americana, and for those who are building libraries about the Indian, is "The Fighting Cheyennes" (University of Oklahoma Press, $5). George Bird Grinnell, an old hand at spinning true tales of the redmen (this is his 13th book on the subject) gives an interesting and accurate account of the Cheyennes—most warlike plains tribe—which until 1856 was friendly with the whites but then turned to savagery and massacres that were unparalleled in the history of the west. Here is the whole true story of a remarkable tribe, written by a man who, as a naturalist, accompanied General Custer's expedition into the Black Hills in 1874.

NAOMI LANE BABSON'S "Another Sky" (Harcourt, Brace, $3.50) is the story of Annis, New England girl who followed her fiance to the Sandwich Islands in 1820.

Traveling with a group of dedicated missionaries, Annis found herself in a convention-bound world and the transgressions that got her into trouble seem mighty trivial by today's standards. But trouble it was until a handsome sea captain intervened and married the purty gal.

WITH MARGARET TRUMAN'S "Souvenir" (McGraw-Hill, $3.95) the events in the lives of President Harry's family are fairly well brought up to date. Unless, of course, Bess is getting the literary urge.

Margaret, aided by Margaret Cousins, tells of the thrills and chills that come to a young girl when she becomes a princess—the daughter of the president. Best anecdote: Saying goodbye to a swain on the White House porch, while a Secret Service man hovers over the couple.

PAPERBACK originals (never before printed in book form) that make good reading (all Dell First Editions, 25c): "Singapore Passage," an exciting voyage through the South China Seas, by Donald Barr Chidsey; "Be My Victim," violence and suspense in Florida, by Robert Dietrich; "Segundo," a western steeped in vengeance, by Frank O'Rourke.

Dinner, Yes—Lunch, No

THE LADIES — bless their curious little hearts — just can't get used to the idea that they're not invited for lunch at Ricarts Restaurant, 4363 Atlantic Ave.

From 11:30 a. m. to 2 p. m. daily Tuesdays through Fridays this elegant restaurant serves luncheon "for men only." Occasionally a few hungry feminine guests will try to get in, and they become slightly miffed when politely informed that the main dining room and adjacent Petroleum Club facilities are off limits for women during the luncheon hours.

As a result, scads of men eat lunch at Ricarts every day. They enjoy the "freedom" this policy gives them because it means they can be themselves, laugh loudly if they wish over a risque story, engage in serious business talk — and even put their elbows on the table.

ART MORGAN, owner of Ricarts, and Bob Bryan, recently promoted to manager, have devised a menu for these luncheons which is highly appreciated by all males. Served buffet style, the luncheon offers three entrees — choice round of beef, corned beef and smoked tavern ham — all priced at $1.50. The diners get their choice of a dozen cold salads, potato and another vegetable, choice of a wide variety of desserts and choice of beverage. Also available are beef, ham and corned beef sandwiches for 75 cents each.

The ladies know, of course, that they are extremely welcome at Ricarts at all other times. (They are allowed in during the Saturday luncheon period.) And you should see them dig into the restaurant's famed prime rib au jus dinner, served from a gleaming copper cart. They display equal enthusiasm for other Ricarts dinner specialties — such as sizzling grenadine of beef, whole baby lobster, glazed Long Island duckling, or chicken livers and mushrooms on toast.

The restaurant is open daily except Monday from 11:30 a. m. to 2 a. m., with Janet Henderson featured at the piano bar.

—TEDD THOMEY.

AT THIS YEAR'S "Blessing of the Animals" in New York's Greenwich Village, Miss Lee — still a pet lover — holds three of her Siamese cats while Father Anthony Philippe gives the blessing.

THE AUTHOR, aged 8 (l.) and her sister, June Havoc, 6, pose during their vaudeville days.

I'll always remember . . .

One day in Omaha

by GYPSY ROSE LEE

My sister June and I spent our childhood trouping in vaudeville. Animals weren't easy to troupe, but Mother believed in children having pets, especially show children. At one time or another we trouped a lamb, a goose, a piglet, a monkey, dogs, chameleons, white mice, rabbits, turtles and guinea pigs. These last were the easiest to smuggle on trains. When they died Mother quickly replaced them, and we were told the old ones had gone to Heaven.

Our pets shared our lives with us. They ate in the same restaurants, slept in the same hotels. When we were invited by the theater manager's wife in Omaha, Neb., to attend Sunday School with her children, we dressed carefully for the occasion. There might have been a bit of makeup behind our ears and our fingernails weren't very clean, but our guinea pigs wore their best striped sweaters.

June and I assumed, of course, that the guinea pigs had been included in the invitation. But the theater owner and his wife took one look and said absolutely no.

I still remember how puzzling this was to me as a child. If our guinea pigs were welcome in Heaven, why not in Sunday School?

Years later I was invited by Alice Manchester, head of New York's Greenwich Village Humane League, to attend their annual "Blessing of the Animals" in Greenwich Village. I didn't know Alice then, nor the wonderful work she was doing in finding homes for stray animals. I'm not even sure why I accepted the invitation, but I'm glad I did. I watched the priest bless the scrubbed, beribboned alley cats, dogs, turtles and hamsters; I saw the proud, happy faces of their little owners. And I heard the words that would have reassured me on that day in Omaha: ". . . so God formed every kind of living creature and He blessed them . . ."

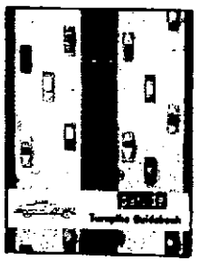

The little boy standing next to me smiled down on his pink-eyed white rat. "See, Pinkie," he murmured. "What did I tell you?" ■

WALLY POST:

Homers but no headlines

by JOHN DEVANEY
PHOTOS BY BEN ROSS

POWER in Post's swing comes from his wrists, as this picture shows. He needs lots of wrist

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

He hit 40 home runs last year, outsocking such famous sluggers as Mickey Mantle, Stan Musial, Roy Campanella, Ted Williams, Larry Doby and Yogi Berra. This season he's been making baseballs disappear over fences at a steady rate, is a good bet to be the home-run king of the National League.

Traditionally, such feats would make Redleg right fielder Wally Post one of the best-known men in America. From Babe Ruth to Mantle, the home-run hitter has been a national idol. He's showered with glory (home-run hitters, for example, will dominate the line-ups for the All-Star Game in Washington this Tuesday); he's paid a salary that may hit $100,000 a year. Ex-homer king Ralph Kiner summed it up best: "Players who hit homers travel in Cadillacs; players who hit singles ride in Fords."

But despite having banged a homer every 18 times up during 1954 and '55 (a rate only slightly behind Mantle's), the 6', 200-lb. Post has neither an astronomical salary nor national fame. He makes about $18,000 a year and his handsome, high-cheekboned face (see front cover) is just a featureless oval to most fans. Moreover, no press agents measure the length of his blows; no sports-writers dub him with nicknames; no TV shows bid for his presence; no sick boys in hospitals ask him to "hit one for me."

The reason? Explains Post, thoughtfully: "I guess it's because in baseball most of the publicity is about one guy on a club. With us, that's Klu [first baseman Ted Kluszewski]; he's the one the fans come out to see. And that's the way it should be, since he's been around longer than I and hits more home runs [47 last season]."

His lack of fame doesn't bother Post at all. "I've never given it much thought," he says. "To tell you the truth, I'm just awfully glad to be up here."

He almost didn't make it. Post was signed to a Redleg contract while still in a St. Henry, Ohio, high school — but as a pitcher. A week after graduating in June, 1947, he was on the mound for Muncie, Ind., a Redleg farm team. He racked up an imposing 17-7 record, was promoted in '48 to Columbia, S.C., where he won 8 games — but lost 11, plus one hurling arm. (A pulled tendon in his right shoulder finished the arm for pitching.)

The Redlegs made him an outfielder and for four years he bounced around the minors with only mixed success, getting three shots with Cincinnati but always being sent back down. In 1953 he turned up at Indianapolis, then managed by Birdie Tebbetts.

"He gave me what I needed," says a grateful Post. "I'd been shipped out so much I was beginning to doubt I'd ever make the majors. But Birdie told me I had a chance to be good; he made me believe in myself."

Post promptly made everyone else believe too by cracking 33 homers for Indianapolis, driving in 120 runs. Up with the Redlegs in 1954, he started off badly; but Tebbetts (brought up also as Redleg manager) stuck with him, and Post finally came around, whacking 18 homers for the season. Last year was his best — a .309 average and 109 runs-batted-in to go with his 40 homers.

action because his arms are not as muscular as most sluggers'.

He nevertheless seems surprised and embarrassed to be considered a star, even flushes during interviews when his homers are mentioned. "He's a plain, All-American kind of guy," says Tebbetts, "who goes out and does the job, but does it so quietly that people don't notice him."

During the off-season, Post (he'll be 27 tomorrow) lives with his wife Patsy and their four children in a rambling ranch house near St. Henry, works as a sales representative for his father-in-law's cannery. Though shy and reticent on most subjects, he can talk a blue streak on his favorite pastime — hitting — and has some definite ideas on the subject. Items:

- "Best way to hit homers is to try to hit singles. You don't have to swing for the fences; just meet the ball well and it will go. Four or five times a year I'll aim for a homer — but I've succeeded only once in my life. The score was 5-3 against us in the ninth in a 1954 game with the Cubs and we had two men on. I swung for the homer that would win and got it. Surprised? I almost fell down."
- "Toughest ball parks for me are Milwaukee's County Stadium and the Polo Grounds in New York. There it's almost impossible to hit homers except along the foul lines and I get most of my homers to center and left center."
- "Too many homers in baseball? I think most fans would rather see a free-scoring 10-9 game than a dull 1-0 pitching duel."
- "I never think about breaking Ruth's record of 60 in a season. The guy in this league who's got the best chance to break it is the Giants' Willie Mays. Though he's right-handed like myself, he's got the power to hit homers to right field; I hit only about three to right in a season."
- "A pitcher will throw close to a home-run hitter to keep you from getting too good a foothold. But you can't blame him — he's trying to make a living, too."

And on himself: "I like everything about baseball. There's nothing else I'd rather be doing — with or without the headlines." ■

Don't let your child get lead poisoning

Parents: For your own peace of mind, heed this warning from an expert

by DR. J. EDMUND BRADLEY Professor and Head of the Department of Pediatrics, University of Maryland School of Medicine

BALTIMORE.

ELLEN WAS 4, a lovely miniature of her mother: golden hair, blue eyes, fair skin. Her fair skin, in fact, is one reason she was brought several months ago to our Children's Clinic at University Hospital here.

Ellen was just a little too pale. She was listless, irritable, far more tired than a little girl has a right to be. Her stomach ached. Her mother wanted to know why.

As soon as we learned her home address — a run-down building in an old part of town — we had a working clue. And when we completed our series of medical tests, the diagnosis was positive: "Lead poisoning."

Ellen's mother was thunder-struck. Who wouldn't be? Who, after all, hears of lead poisoning in a child? Yet lead poisoning among the nation's youngsters is arousing increasing concern in physicians and public-health authorities throughout the country. Indeed, there is evidence that lead poisoning is far more widespread than is generally believed. Far too often the result is severe injury — even death.

Statistics on the subject are not too reliable. The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports 231 deaths from accidental poisoning by lead and lead compounds from 1951 through 1954 (latest figures available). But lead poisoning is not an officially reportable disease; most communities maintain no records on it.

Significantly, however, 176 of the 231 deaths just mentioned were children under 5. And here in Baltimore alone, the Department of Health reports 461 cases of lead poisoning among children from 1931 through 1954. Of these, 104 died.

Besides killing them, what does lead poisoning do to children? Sometimes the victim gets the dread, often fatal encephalitis (brain inflammation). In other cases he remains emotionally and mentally crippled for life. Doctors feel that one-third of all children who are poisoned by lead will carry the after-effects with them forever. In fact, in one long-term study of 20 very young children who contracted lead poisoning, 19 showed signs of mental slowness or deficiency when researchers tested them three to nine years later.

At our Children's Clinic we have established a procedure under which every patient who is treated for any reason is also tested for lead. In one sampling of 350 children, we found an excessive lead concentration in 44.4 per cent — more than four out of 10. Although these youngsters had not yet shown any symptoms of poisoning, the basis already existed for serious trouble.

How does lead enter the body of a child? There are many possible sources, among them lead toys, lead foil, drinking water from lead pipes, fumes from fires in which old storage-battery casings are burned. But the most widespread single source is lead paint. And lead paint is part of the inescapable surroundings of millions of this country's youngsters. It covers walls, woodwork, window sills, porches, fences and, sometimes, toys and furniture.

It is true that builders and reputable manufacturers now avoid using lead paint wherever children can come in contact with it. Furthermore, lead paint now costs more than other kinds; this gives builders a reason for using it only on outside work, for its weathering qualities. But millions of American families live in older apartments or houses. On the walls of many such homes there are heavy coats of lead paint under the more recent, non-lead paint. When these walls peel, the fragments contain at least some of the old lead paint from underneath.

Even this wide distribution of lead would hold no perils were children not so curious. Children are natural explorers, and the very young child explores with its mouth. It sucks and chews on thumbs and toys. So, too, with paint peelings and leaded plaster fragments.

This is how we reconstructed Ellen's case. First she nibbled on paint curls. Then she tried her teeth on the window sill. Her mother never noticed the chewed paint peelings. When asked why she hadn't stopped her daughter from gnawing on the sill, she gave us a familiar answer:

"What for? A little dirt never hurt anyone."

The New York City Department of Health had a similar experience when it surveyed the parents of 80 children who suffered lead poisoning. In all 80 cases the parents "saw nothing wrong" with paint-nibbling.

There is an additional element of danger in the current "do-it-yourself" practice, which finds Father taking advantage of the balmy weather to spruce up the back fence and use the left-over paint on the crib or playpen. Perhaps he "does" the porch and then makes Junior a present of a bright, new coat of paint for his pull-wagon — and, with it, the possibility of a severe case of lead poisoning.

Because most victims we see come from old, poor homes, we were startled when a little girl whose family had just moved into a new, expensive private house was brought in with lead poisoning. Obviously, the problem was not one of peeling paint. How, then, could the child gain access to so much lead in such a short time?

Her father racked his brains. And finally he remembered: "There's the picket fence in the back yard, of course. I bought a small can of paint and laid on a thick coat a few days ago."

It wasn't peeling at all. Actually, it was something much worse. The father, being an unskilled painter, had sloshed the paint on liberally. The drippings had hardened into the "candles" characteristic of amateur work. The little girl had broken them off and popped them into her mouth, swallowing a fresh, almost pure dose of lead.

Once the lead enters the body, it finds its way to that body substance with which it has the greatest affinity, the calcium of the bones. If the dose is small, and not repeated, there may never be any real harm. The body will slowly get rid of the accumulated lead, approximately half of the remaining lead leaving in each five-month period.

But it is very rare for a child to content itself with

About the author...

Dr. Bradley and his staff are known throughout the U.S. as pioneers in the effort to stamp out lead poisoning, an ailment still not fully understood even by doctors.

DANGER AHEAD: A child sits on the floor picking flakes of old wall paint. Lead poisoning most often hits children aged 1-2½. There appear to be more serious cases in summer than at other seasons.

a single dose, and so the poison begins to accumulate. Slowly the lead concentration builds up. The potential is created for disaster.

Sometimes the explosion is spontaneous. More often, it is triggered by an infection of some sort, which disturbs the body metabolism. In Ellen's case, it was a simple cold, such as any child might have. But Ellen was harboring lead in her system.

Released by the effects of the cold, the lead flowed from her bones into her blood stream and then to her brain and nervous system. If allowed to go far enough, it would have caused encephalitis, convulsions — ultimately, death. As it was, before Ellen's mother brought her to the Clinic, the little girl's normally cheerful disposition had changed drastically. She found it difficult to keep food down. Her head and stomach ached. These symptoms, coupled with Ellen's unnatural pallor and general weakness, had driven her mother to seek medical advice.

Once the physician starts to look for it, the diagnosis of lead poisoning is fairly standard. X-ray examination may reveal a characteristically greater density at the growing ends of long bones and the growing margins of flat bones, where lead generally concentrates. Blood and urine are tested for excessive lead. The blood is examined microscopically for a red-cell condition known as "basophilic stippling." Spinal taps may provide corroborative evidence, and sometimes scrutiny of the gums reveals the so-called "lead line" close to the base of the teeth.

Until fairly recently, there was no really safe, effective method for removing lead from the human system. One of the better known forms of medication has been BAL (British Anti-Lewisite), a substance which was developed as a means of removing the arsenic which Lewisite war gas tends to deposit in the bones. BAL draws the lead from the bones into the blood stream. But the compound it forms is apparently unstable, tending to break down easily, with the result that lead may actually be sped on its way to the brain and other parts of the body.

Now, however, we have something new, effective and safe. This is calcium disodium EDTA (ethylene diamine tetra-acetic acid), a chemical which, interestingly, was first used as a remover of scale in boilers.

Working under a grant from the Playtex Park Research Institute of Dover, Del., a foundation which has sponsored extremely valuable research in child health, a member of our Medical School staff, Dr. Samuel P. Bessman, Associate Professor of Pediatrics, introduced the use of this substance for the de-leading of humans.

In its first phase, calcium disodium EDTA works in much the same way as BAL. It removes the lead from the bones and passes it into the blood stream. But at this point there is an important difference. EDTA combines with lead in an extremely stable compound and grips it firmly until the kidneys can expel it.

The drug comes in the form of a white powder which, mixed with a salt solution, is injected three times a day for three to five days. (In some cases of mild poisoning, oral dosage may be used instead.) Three to five days of rest then are followed by an additional three to five days of treatment. This was the schedule followed with Ellen. Fortunately, she was treated in time and cured.

The fight against lead poisoning is being waged on several fronts. One is the development of EDTA. Another is through law and the cooperation of progressive paint manufacturers. Few communities, however, have taken effective legislative action. One exception is New York City, which now enforces an ordinance providing for the labeling of all paints sold with lead concentrations in excess of 1 per cent.

Other Cities Please Note

Another is Baltimore, where the use of lead-based paints in interior work is strictly forbidden. Since 1951, moreover, there has been on the books a statute providing that in any apartment where a child develops lead poisoning from eating paint chips, the owner must remove all the old lead paint from the walls and repaint with less toxic material.

Of course, the basic solution lies with the parents. Keeping the child away from lead is the first, most important consideration. Sometimes this is not enough.

The mother who detects characteristic symptoms in the child — pallor, loss of appetite, colic — should consult a physician. These symptoms are by no means specific to lead poisoning, but they always signify some sort of trouble and should be checked immediately. If, even without noting symptoms in her child, a mother sees tooth marks on the window sills or finds bits of chewed paint or fragments of plaster, she should lose no time in consulting her doctor.

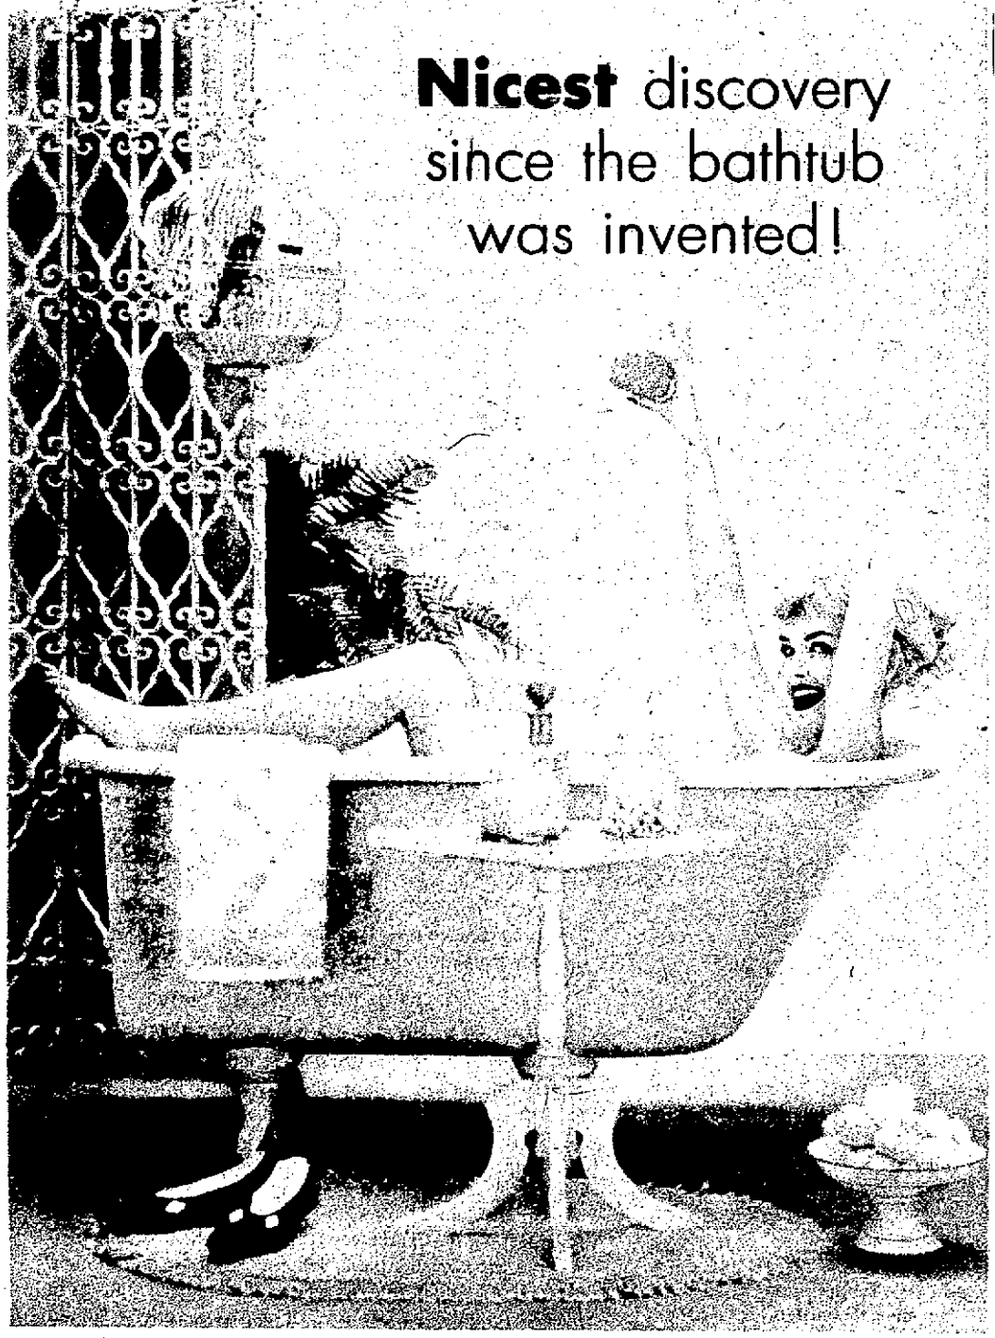

The mother who has not until now realized the danger which lead paint possesses for her child may take rueful comfort in a case which was treated at our Clinic fairly recently. The victim was a little boy with the characteristic signs of lead poisoning. Laboratory tests confirmed our opinion that he had taken a very large dose of lead. As usual, we asked the parents whether they had seen the child chewing or sucking on any painted surface.

"Yes," the father said, "he's been chewing on the crib. I repainted it just a few weeks ago."

Like many another parent, he had neglected to check the sort of paint he was using.

And he was a physician. ■

Brainy blonde from Baton Rouge

Actress Cleo Moore has big ambitions

by LLOYD SHEARER PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

HOLLYWOOD.

"In 1960," says Cleo Moore, "I'm going to run for Governor of Louisiana. I was married to Huey Long's son for six weeks, and while that doesn't make me an authority on politics, I know a lot about Louisiana. Matter of fact, I'm related to 50 per cent of the people down there. I'm sure I stand a good chance of getting elected."

From most actresses, such talk would sound either headline-happy or badly in need of an asylum. Not from Cleo. At 27, this canary blonde of spectacular charms (38½-22-36) is recognized out here as one of the sharpest characters around, one who makes outlandish statements come true.

Ten years ago, for example, when Cleo and her family first arrived in Hollywood, she turned to her worried father. "Daddy," she told him, "don't you fret none. One day your Cleo's going to own this town, and she's going to be a movie star, too."

Murphy O'Moore recalls: "I thought the child was a little tetched in the head. But by gum, she's seen it through."

Today Cleo is not only a full-fledged movie star with 18 pictures to her credit (Bait, Turmoil, Women's Prison, Over-Exposed), she is also a real-estate tycoon. In addition to her own $100,000 estate, she heads an investment corporation which holds property valued at $250,000 and currently is embarking on a million-dollar sports center in the San Fernando Valley. Meanwhile Cleo has wiggled her way out of a contract with Columbia Pictures so that she can freelance for more money.

"I've always had a good business head," she explains calmly. "When I was 13 I did all the buying and bookkeeping for our store in Baton Rouge. Heck, I wasn't even 15 when I was graduated from Gonzales High. That's when I ran off with Palmer, Huey Long's boy, and got married. We went out West on a honeymoon for six weeks. And that's exactly how long the marriage lasted. When we got back I talked Daddy into selling the store and coming out to Hollywood with Mother and my three sisters. Ever since I'd been a kid, I wanted to be a movie star.

"The $2,000 Daddy got for the store was our whole bankroll. When we arrived here, it was right after the war and there was a housing shortage, so I went to a real-estate agent. He had some land for sale with a house on it for $16,000. I asked him real nice if he'd take $2,000 down. He agreed, so I put Daddy to work — he's a wonderful carpenter — fixing the house. The rest of us put in a lawn and painted and did everything. Less than two months later I sold the house for $18,000. Then I divided the rest of the land into six lots and sold them off at $6,500 each."

Before long, Cleo was not only supporting the whole family but spending well over $100 a week for dramatics and dancing lessons. She got rid of her Southern accent after two years' hard work, then landed a bit part with Robert Ryan and Ida Lupino in On Dangerous Ground at RKO. From then on she was "in." Soon Columbia signed her.

She's Been Getting Around

A year ago, because she has the equipment to fascinate photographers and editors, Columbia sent Cleo on the road to exploit her pictures. She didn't mind. "But," she says firmly, "when they had me traveling all over selling Jimmy Stewart in The Man from Laramie, a picture I wasn't even in, and then wouldn't give me any good parts of my own, I rebelled.

"I'm tired of being treated like a dumb blonde. I want parts like Kim Novak gets. I'm sure I can handle them.

"That's one of the reasons why I want to go back to Louisiana and run for Governor. I hope to go back in 1958 and re-establish my residence. Then in 1959 and 1960 I plan to stump the state and campaign."

What will her platform be?

For a moment Cleo's blue eyes grow meditative, then they sparkle. "I'm going to promise the people of Louisiana," she announces, "more of everything, more of the finer things in life. My campaign slogan is going to be 'More with Moore' or 'What Louisiana Needs Is a Blonde in Baton Rouge.'"

Having watched her parlay $2,000 into a fortune and two curves into screen stardom, Hollywood at this point is not selling Cleo Moore's political ambitions short. ■

ON-SCREEN, Cleo has her first solo starring role in Columbia's Over-Exposed. The actor above is Richard Crenna.

A new approach to faith

Teenagers now go out to recruit other teenagers for God

by KARL KOHRS

PRACTICING in South Norwalk church, Mission team hands girl playing role of "prospect" a recruitment card, on which she indicates her wish to join movement.

SOUTH NORWALK, CONN.

"We'd like to talk to you about religion."

This greeting has surprised a number of teenagers who have answered the doorbell here recently. At the door, they find two young people — usually a boy and a girl. Asked in, the visitors courteously explain that they are members of the Christian Witness Mission, a project of the Methodist Youth Fellowship. The purpose of their call, they say, is to interest other young people of their own age in thinking seriously about spiritual matters.

It soon becomes apparent that the visitors are not starry-eyed "salesmen" of any particular brand of religion. They are part of a novel and exciting youth movement that can give a new and more profound meaning to personal faith. The photos on these pages show a typical Christian Witness Mission in action, centered at the First Methodist Church here.

The young people shown were among 45 who gathered at the church for a Week-end Mission. First they were briefed on what is called "Evangelical Visitation." This involves the proper approach to a prospect — a teen-age boy or girl who, so far as local church leaders know, has no religious affiliation. Experienced Mission teams demonstrated visitation techniques by playing the roles of the visitors and those visited.

Fourfold Effort

Then the teams started out, two by two, and visited an average of five prospects each. Their objective was fourfold: 1) To find the unchurched youth; 2) To enroll youth in the Methodist Youth Fellowships; 3) To lead young people in commitment to Christ; 4) To help them witness as Christians.

But leaders stress that recruiting as such is secondary. The main reason for talking to the teenagers is to start them thinking about religion. The teams are advised to keep their conversations "Christ-centered."

In South Norwalk — as is generally true wherever the Missions operate — the teams are cordially received. But the job isn't a pushover, by any means. It takes courage to face up to cynicism, indifference or even rudeness. The father of one teenager, for example, interrupted the talk to say he took a dim view of religion and didn't want to see any child of his "mixed up in this sort of thing."

Another father termed all preachers "parasites who exploit young people and make them waste other people's time." In this case, the boy of the Mission team quietly asked permission to explain his own viewpoint, and that led to a two-hour discussion. The next Sunday, the father, his wife and his teen-age daughter attended church for the first time. Before the good work thus begun was over, the father himself had become an active church worker.

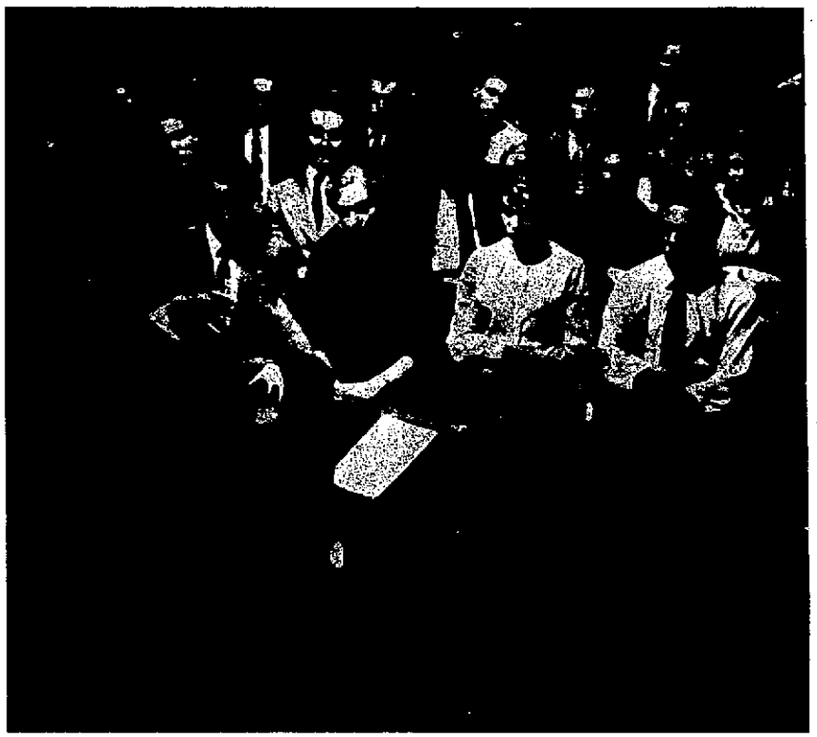

As for the teen-age prospects, the teams report, the usual reaction is: "It looks all right to me. I'd like to enroll and find out more about it."

This kind of response reflects the current resurgence of interest in religion among the youth of America. As leaders of all faiths point out, the part played in church activities by young people today is one of the things that is making religion an increasingly potent force in community life. One reason is that so many young people share in exerting this force.

The total membership of the six major faiths in America is around 93½ million. Of this number — and only a rough estimate is possible — upwards of 15 million are teenagers. Many more may well be participating in church-directed activities, even though they are not members.

In the nation's 300,000 churches of

PROSPECT Dick Gilbert (center) shows interest as Judy Edwards, Norman Marland explain Fellowship Movement.

Main job lies ahead for Mission teams

all faiths, these youngsters channel their activities into thousands of local and national organizations — study groups, hobby clubs, athletic clubs, fellowship leagues. These bear such diverse names as Youth Honor Group, Holy Name Society, Christian Youth Council, National Young Judaea, Westminster Fellowship, St. Aloysius Society and so on.

Everywhere there is evidence that more and more young people are participating in church life. Adults are giving them more responsibility, naming them as official representatives of the church or appointing them to committees.

One important development, leaders report, is that young people do not regard their church-centered activities as merely recreational. There is an increasing emphasis on religious thinking. Young people are seriously studying the meaning of their faith.

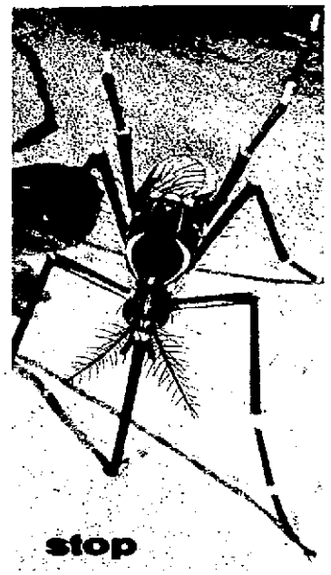

This spiritual awareness is largely responsible, Methodists say, for the fact that the Mission movement, now in its sixth year, is gaining new momentum. Of the 107 Methodist Conferences (regional groups) in the U.S. and Hawaii, about 100 now have Missions.

The teams are not likely to run out of prospects. Churchmen point out that there are still millions of young people in America without religious affiliations. It is those to whom these dedicated teenagers want to say, "Let's talk about religion." ■

SONGFEST climaxes day of visiting as teams gather in church social room during the annual visitation effort.

NEXT WEEK: Teenagers are said to conform, to "follow the herd," too much — so PARADE reports on one who doesn't.

HONEYED PEANUT SPRYCRUST

½ cup less 1 tablespoon Spry
1 tablespoon boiling water
2 tablespoons buttermilk
1½ teaspoons honey
1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons chopped blanched salted peanuts

Put Spry in mixing bowl. Add boiling water, buttermilk and honey and whip with fork until all liquid is absorbed and a thick, smooth mixture is formed. Sift flour and salt together onto Spry-whip and stir quickly into a dough. Pick up and work into a smooth dough; shape into a flat round. Roll between two 12" squares of waxed paper into a circle ⅛" thick and about size of paper. Peel off top paper, sprinkle 2 tablespoons chopped peanuts over pastry, leaving about a 1" border plain. Re-cover with paper and gently roll peanuts into dough. Turn pastry and paper over and repeat process, rolling in remaining 2 tablespoons peanuts. Peel off top paper, place pastry in 9" pie pan, pastry next to pan. Remove paper, fit pastry into pan, trim ½" beyond pan, turn back even with edge of pan, flute rim. Prick shell all over with fork. Bake in very hot oven (450°F) 10-14 min. Cool at room temperature. For a luscious ice cream pie, chill in refrigerator.

At serving time, fill shell with vanilla ice cream (1 qt. for 9" shell). Drizzle butterscotch sauce over ice cream, serve immediately.

SPRYCRUST
MAKES A HONEY OF AN ICE CREAM PIE!

Simple but Sensational!

SPRYCRUST IS FLAVORED PIECRUST!

It's the greatest and most original idea in the history of piecrust!

Based on the famous Spry "Water-Whip" pastry method, Sprycrust is an entirely new and wonderful kind of pastry. And it's amazingly simple to prepare. You whip in flavor—you roll in a texture. Important: Do not, under any circumstances, make substitutions for Spry.

Ask any good cook you know. The real test of a shortening is piecrust. So if you've had failures with piecrust, don't blame yourself. Blame the shortening . . . and switch to Spry. No other shortening can top Spry for pure shortening power. And this power is uniformly distributed through every pound. Thanks to homogenizing, plus a patented process of protecting its purity, Spry has the "built-in" safety to guarantee perfect piecrust every time you bake.

Teen-age Topics

Here are some boy and girl problems from my current mail.

Q. I am 17 and have been going steady with a boy of 19 for six months. He calls faithfully every day, but rarely takes me anywhere. I know he likes me; and I like him. Should I tell him I want to go out on our dates, or start accepting invitations from other boys? — S.I., South Charleston, W. Va.

A. There can be many reasons for your boy friend's avoidance of social activity. If it isn't a matter of money, perhaps he is a serious student who, during the school year, has all he can do to keep up with his studies and athletic activities and must necessarily limit his dating. I think you need to examine this situation thoroughly. It may be that you have been going out too much and at too early an age.

Still, it is natural for a girl your age to go out socially. You can always suggest that he take you to parties or join with others of your group in activities, either at your own home or elsewhere, within reason. Don't let him take you out of circulation.

Q. I am 12 and have 6-year-old twin brothers. At 7:30 my mother has us go to bed. I don't think that is fair. What is the correct time for a 12-year-old, who is a straight-A student, to go to bed? — D.J., Waukegan, Ill.

A. A 7:30 bedtime for a 12-year-old does seem early. Perhaps behind your mother's insistence on this hour is her need for a quiet time of her own with your father. If it's possible, compromise with her; agree to follow some quiet activity, such as reading, until say 8:30 or even 9, with lights out promptly then.

Q. A boy who likes me has asked me to go to his birthday party. It is during the summer and I told him I would be away. But he wants to postpone the party until I come back. If I don't like him, how can I refuse the invitation and yet not hurt his feelings? — C.D., Glen Rock, N.J.

A. Tell him you feel he should have his party on his birthday because you cannot tell now what your plans will be in the fall. Say that you cannot accept an invitation for so far in advance. If he still insists on postponing his party, you can refuse in the fall.

A lady need never accept an invitation she does not wish to accept. And she does not have to give any reason for her refusal, although she always should be polite about it.

Q. I have been taking accordion lessons for five years. Last year my accordion teacher moved to another state. Since then, I haven't found a teacher I like. Now I am in the seventh grade and find it difficult to practice my lessons and engage in school activities. My parents insist that I begin taking lessons again. What is your opinion? — M.S., Youngstown, Ohio.

A. I think you would be foolish not to go on when you have devoted so many years to the instrument. When you get to high school, you undoubtedly will be welcomed in the band and find that your accordion will help you toward popularity. With that to look forward to, surely you can find the time for lessons — and practicing, too.

Sugar Beets Are Big Business

Gondola cars piled high with sugar beets are backed into yard of Santa Ana beet sugar processing plant.

By Lee Goodman

THE LONG BEACH area's historic beet sugar industry, now 64 years of age, is striding briskly in the direction of a 1956 production figure of $6,000,000-plus.

And that's for the sugar alone. The bountiful sugar beets, each of which yields an average of 14 teaspoonsful of sugar, also will account for a host of valuable by-products.

As of this week, principal attention is focused on the processing end of the industry. Trains are arriving at Santa Ana from the Imperial Valley at a rate of some 40 cars a day piled high with beets to be turned into sparkling white sugar at the Holly Sugar Co. factory here.

THIS "CAMPAIGN," to use the martial word sugar men call the factory run, started last May 12. Soon there'll be a brief breathing spell, probably only a few days long, before the wheels are sent spinning again for the second campaign.

Meanwhile, local sugar beet farmers, whose growing seasons are opposite to those in the Imperial Valley, have just completed thinning the low rows of young plants.

They'll be ready to start harvesting their acreage at about the same time the Imperial harvest is ended.

About three-fifths of the Orange County crop will be processed in the local factory's second campaign, along with beets from Holly growers in various counties between here and Fresno.

THE REMAINDER of the Orange County beets, plus those from Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino counties, will be hauled to the Oxnard factory of the American Crystal Sugar Co., which with Holly, Union and Spreckels Sugar Co. make California the leading beet sugar producing state in the nation.

Superintendent T. H. Lacy says that during the two 1956 campaigns, the Santa Ana factory will process some 180,000 tons of beets into more than 50,000,000 pounds of sugar, plus the aforementioned by-products.

The pulp left over after the sugar has been taken out of the large white beet, along with the tops and other "tare" chopped off during the harvesting process, will feed hundreds of dairy cattle and produce thousands of pounds of juicy steaks.

THESE STEAKS will be made even juicier by applications of the food seasoner with the chemical name of monosodium glutumate, derived from sugar beets.

Beet molasses, still another by-product, goes into the manufacture of such unsuspected products as alcohol, shoe polish, paint and citric acid for blood plasma.

And beyond these things, the sugar beet provides such additional community benefits as an annual factory payroll of more than $800,000, a railroad freight business of close to $1,000,000 and a dependable, cash-producing crop for farmers.

It all started back in the early 1890s when local farmers, looking for a crop that would survive on the highly alkaline land so often found hereabouts, hit upon the sugar beet.

Even in those far-off days the large (about two feet long), white sugar beet was an established and highly respected inhabitant of California, for it was in this state that the nation's beet sugar industry was born.

IT SHOULD BE noted, however, that attempts to launch the industry in the United States go back to 1837 in Michigan and 1838 in Massachusetts. And in the 1850s the Mormons actually hauled a dismantled factory, imported from Europe, all the way across the plains by ox team to Utah.

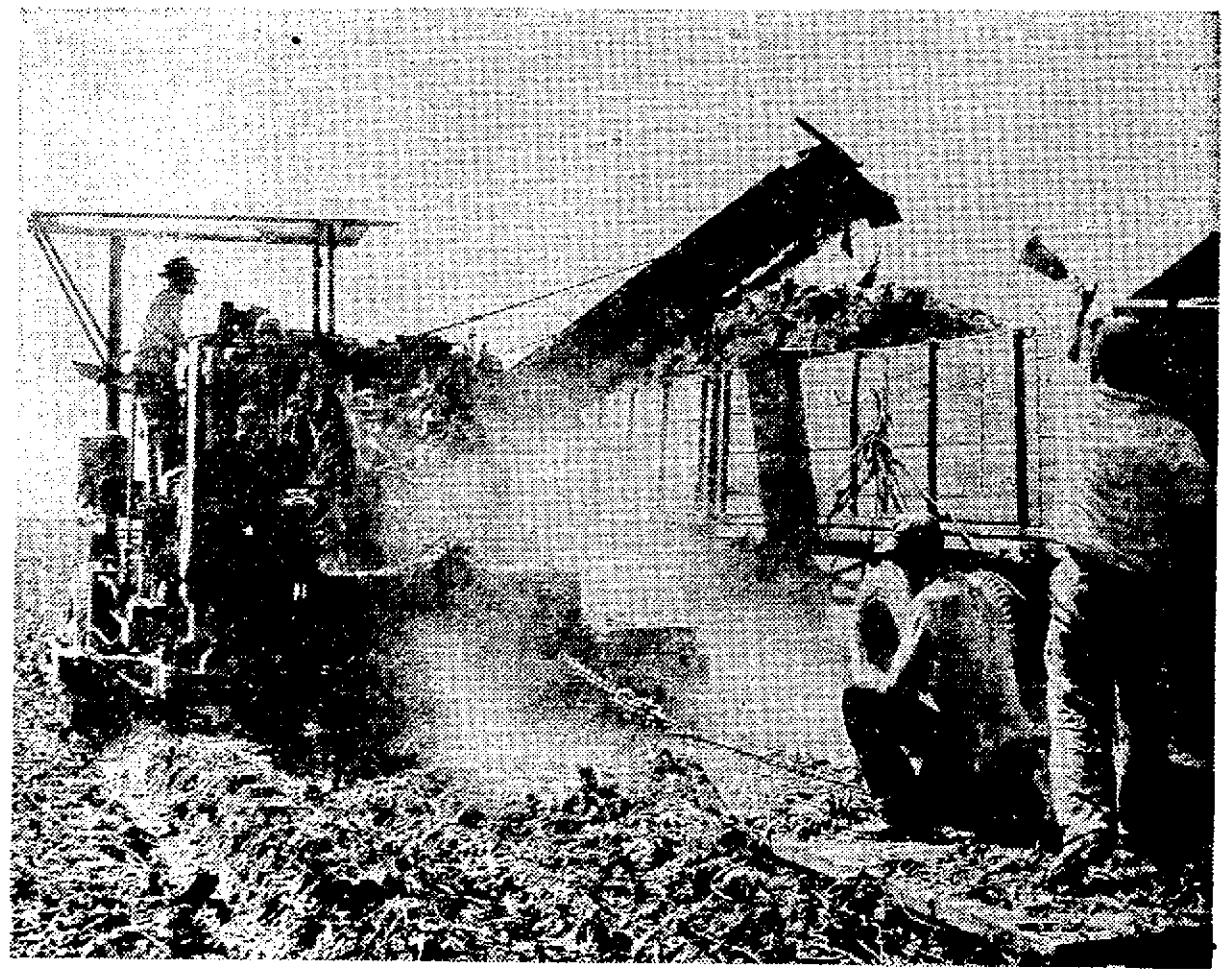

But these and other attempts failed for lack of knowledge of how to produce sugar crystals, a closely guarded secret held by the master sugar makers of Germany and France.

Then, in 1870, a dogged man named E. H. Dyer built a beet sugar factory at Alvarado, near San Francisco. It took him nine years to solve the mystery, but finally, in 1897, Dyer was producing beet sugar on a commercial basis.

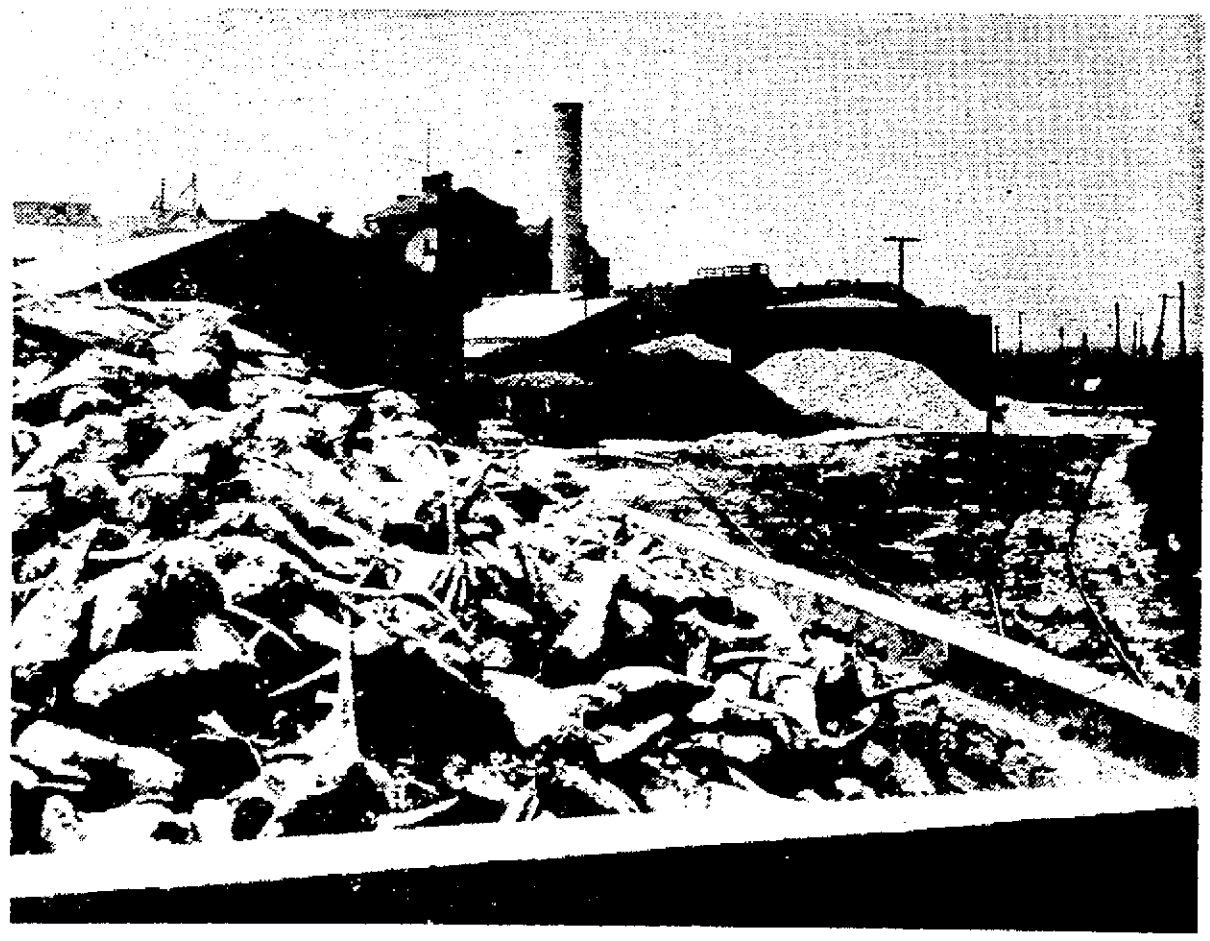

When local production began about eleven years later, there was but one factory in operation, located in Chino. Then in 1897 a second was built, at Los Alamitos.

THESE WERE quickly followed by four others—in 1908 by one on Main St. just outside Santa Ana, in 1911 by another

Each of these sugar beets (foreground) will yield about 14 teaspoonfuls of sugar, besides a variety of by-products valuable to modern living.

George Lake, whose $20 bill grew into $6,000, the So. Cal. Professional Golfers' Assn. Championships, tees off at Recreation Park where he's head pro.

GEORGE LAKE AND THE PGA

Success Story of One $20 Bill

By Jerry Wynn

A $20 BILL that grew into a $6,000 golf tournament . . . that's the success story of the Southern California Professional Golfers' Assn. (SC-PGA) Championships which will be held for the 16th straight year this week at Recreation Park.

The man largely responsible for what is now the largest and richest sectional links event in the nation is Recreation Park's own head professional, George Lake.

It was through Lake's efforts that the tournament was first brought to Long Beach and it has been through Lake's efforts that it has stayed and prospered here.

THE $20 BILL was the unusual starter. In 1940, when the tournament was held at Riviera CC, Lake—better known for his executive and teaching abilities than his playing—made a fine showing and reached the quarterfinals. His reward was only $20 of the small $200 purse.

Dejected over his slim winnings and foreseeing a bright future for the Championships, Lake volunteered to underwrite a purse of $500 himself if he could bring the event to Recreation Park and be its chairman.

The SC-PGA agreed and the Championships had a new home, one with a welcome sign that has remained in view for the past 15 years.

THE CITY OF LONG BEACH took over sponsorship in 1943 but relinquished it two years later to the SC-PGA, which under Lake's supervision has conducted it ever since. Today, the SC-PGA Championship Fund contains $7,004 of which $1,497 was net profit from the 1955 event alone.

Lake's own rise to success parallels that of the Championships.

He literally had his roots planted in Huntington Beach, the city of his birth in 1912, for his uncle laid out the original town (Pacific City) and his father, a caretaker-nurseryman, planted all of its trees.

ONE OF 10 children, Lake had to shift for himself early in life. He began delivering newspapers at 12 years old and it was ironically through that employment that he first became acquainted with golf.

He needed an automobile to maintain his growing paper route and discovered a way of financing it by caddying at the old Long Beach Country Club (now Meadowlark golf course). He was then 14.

"A caddy received $1 for a single and $1.50 for a double in those days," Lake reminisces. "Boy, how we used to fight to get A. T. Jurgens' bag. His was the only $5 caddy job in Long Beach!"

LAKE CONTINUED caddying through his years at Huntington Beach High School. Among the top golfers he shouldered for were local amateurs Spec Stevenson and Les Hensley and Long Beach Country Club pro Dallas Jeffers. Once he had the great Walter Hagen, when The Haig was a club guest of Jurgens.

After an unsuccessful venture in peddling ice cream in Hollywood, Lake got his first big break in golf when he was hired as assistant "weekend" pro at Huntington Beach golf course.

During week days, he attended Santa Ana Junior College where he was president of the freshman class and Eastern Division JC golf champion. Upon graduation in 1934, he became Huntington Beach head professional. At 22, he was probably the youngest master pro in history.

IF EVER ONE received a thorough schooling in all phases of golf, it was Lake during his two-year tenure at Huntington Beach. He describes his daily routine thusly:

"At sunup, it was turning off the sprinklers, mowing the greens and setting the cups; in the morning, lessons and repairing clubs; in the afternoon, a round of golf; at sundown, financing, cleaning up and turning on the sprinklers."

Lake made his first move to Long Beach in 1936 as playing pro to Vic Baker at Lakewood Country Club. A few months later, he became head professional at the Recreation Park nine-hole South Course.

THE POST was given to him because of his interest in junior golf, one which would earn him much honor in future years. Already he had seen one of his junior products at Huntington Beach win the first Long Beach Junior Championship. The lad, destined to become a famous star, was Jimmy Clark.

"The South Course is primarily for the kids," Recreation Park Manager J. R. Wotring told Lake. "You like kids and can work with them. It's your job."

In 1940, Lake, then 27, replaced Harry Bassler as head pro at the 18-hole course without relinquishing his nine-hole reins.

NOW IN HIS 20TH year at Recreation Park, Lake has brought Long Beach national golf recognition.

In 1944, he became the youngest president in the history of the SC-PGA and held that office for an unprecedented three terms. In 1946, he founded the National PGA junior program and has been its chairman ever since. In 1952, he was elected National PGA vice president and remained in that office for three terms.

A $20 bill and a boy who turned to caddying to pay for a paper route—both have come a long way.

Teaching kids how to play golf is another of Lake's specialties. Here he shows Tina Ann Orsuga, 5, how to hold a driver.

Laguna Beach's 'Tableaux Vivants'

By Verner C. Beck

WAY BACK in the decade 1770-1780 Comtesse de Genlis was given the job of teaching the Duchess of Cartres' juveniles the folly of ignorance. In her efforts to drive knowledge into their heads the Comtesse used illustrated lessons, which seemed to do the trick. Today's book on information states that "her teaching methods were remarkably progressive, foreshadowing in many respects those in use today."

To all of this the Laguna Beach Festival of Arts can attest, for during the Comtesse's lecture periods on art she invented what was called, "Tableaux Vivants" or what the Festival of Arts today echoes as "Living Pictures." Laguna's living pictures have made this little colony of art and the Festival of Arts world famous, thanks to the teaching methods of the Comtesse de Genlis, born Stephanie Felicite du Crest de Saint-Aubin, at Champcery, in 1746.

THERE ARE PROBABLY persons in Laguna Beach willing to argue the point that the Comtesse did not invent Laguna's famous living pictures in the Pageant of the Masters. But Stephanie's name was in the book first.

However, the late Lolita Perine, one of Laguna's early day artists is given a share of Stephanie's fame, for it was Miss Perine who posed in the first Living Picture in Laguna Beach back in 1934, and thus started the Festival of Arts on its way to become a national phenomenon. Roy M. Ropp, another early day artist and real estater saw great possibilities in picture posing, and gave his heart and soul to dramatizing the possibilities. It was he who gave birth to the title "Pageant of the Masters."

IN 1934 one or two living pictures were used in creating interest in the Festival of Arts. This summer when the 21st annual Festival is presented in Irvine Bowl, July 14 through Aug. 12, the 100,000 anticipated visitors will see a total of 72 living pictures and sculptures divided equally in three programs. Lighting and sound equipment valued at thousands of dollars are used on the Festival's $90,000 stage to present to the public remarkably true reproductions with living models the paintings done by old and new masters.

The Comtesse de Genlis, nee Stephanie, wouldn't believe her eyes were she to return to Laguna and behold what her illustrated art lessons of 1770-1780 have done in the modern world.

STEPHANIE, ACCORDING to the book, did all her Tableaux Vivants background work and posing by herself. Laguna does it differently. Here it is done as a non-profit corporation under the general title "Festival of Arts," more artistically designated as "The Pageant of the Masters." Top of the slate lists a board of nine non-paid direc-

Costuming and making up large cast of the Pageant of the Masters is big project. Here, a group of lovelies is made up for Botticelli's "Spring."

Director John Callan eyes the stance of Dana Jones who poses in Smith's "Little Girl in the Gallery."

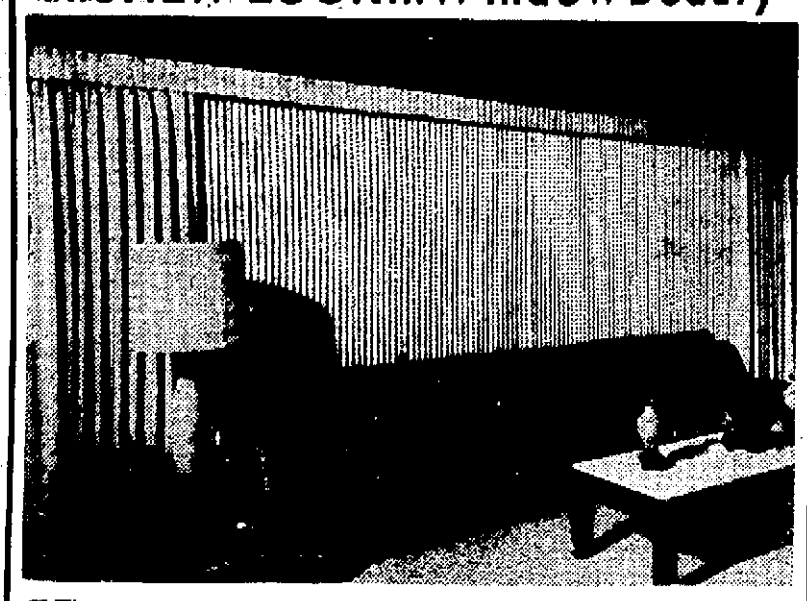

Young folk have prominent parts in the festival. Here, Hazel Babcock makes up Gary Kraft for a part in living picture.

George Pletts, a Laguna policeman and director of a pageant program, stands in as Evelyn Swarting checks details.

A New Don Rules the Hacienda

Casa del Rancho Cerritos, adobe hacienda now part of city library setup, is in charge of Ray Langley, above with Mrs. Langley and daughter, Veda.

By Spencer Crump

A 20TH CENTURY Bostonian named Don Ramon is making his home in an adobe hacienda built on a pleasant knoll in Long Beach more than a century ago by a 19th Century Bostonian named Don Juan.

The first man from Massachusetts was Don Juan Temple, who in 1844 began building the picturesque Casa del Rancho Cerritos.

The adobe, at 4600 Virginia Rd., is now part of the Long Beach Public Library.

AND DON JUAN couldn't be happier with its caretaker.

He's "Don Ramon" Langley who, like Don Juan, was born near Boston.

Before taking on duties as "major-domo" of the hacienda, he was plain Ray Langley, retired U. S. Navy chief petty officer. He has been a city employe for 10 years.

Plan a Day for the Children

IT was THAT day at our house! That day being what is known in the family as "Kids' Day." This unique day coming once a year was instituted by our eldest son three years ago. It is planned entirely by the children and even the destination is kept secret.

However, we insist on three rules regarding the day. First, the drive must not exceed four hours driving time, second, the expense must be kept within reason, and third, we must be notified in advance of the day chosen.

The previous evening had been spent at the desk pouring over maps, with much secret whispering, interjected with not so secret arguments, by our two sons, Jim, 13, and Ricky, 9. Terri, our precious 4-year-old crawled happily in and out under the desk, enjoying their excitement but due to her inability to keep a secret, not let in on the actual planning.

Getting ready for the family's "Kids' Day" outing are Ricky, Jim and Terri Nelson. They chose destination.

Swimming in pool at Desert Hot Springs provided tops in entertainment for all members of the happy family.

By Lucille G. Nelson

THE DAY BEGAN at 5 a.m. After much prodding on the part of the boys, aided and abetted by "Little Miss Echo," we were finally on our way by 8 a.m.

Now the actual destination was revealed to us. Desert Hot Springs, by way of Palm Springs. Jim had heard of a new public pool, with hot mineral baths, too.

My husband and I exchanged relieved glances. This didn't sound as strenuous as last year when father sprained his ankle trying to keep up with the boys on a long hike.

THE TRIP ITSELF was uneventful. The only argument being where to stop for refreshments. Jim felt that he should choose out of respect for his senior years, Rickey felt he should choose out of respect for his stomach. Terri didn't care either way as long as she could have some pop. Meanwhile, we "silent ones" our throats parched, watched several likely looking places retreat into the distance until a compromise was finally reached. As thirsty parents, we had a little more understanding for the frustration of children constantly overruled.

Palm Springs was rather disappointing to the boys. They had expected to see movie stars lounging on every corner. After a brief glance-over, we were on our way to the new pool at Desert Hot Springs.

THIS POOL, or rather these pools for there were two, were, in the estimation of the boys, well worth the trip! The one for swimming, we found cool and refreshing. The hot mineral pool was inclosed by glass windows and kept at 104 degrees. It was strictly for soaking. We were told that this mineral water comes in at about 154 degrees and must be cooled to the desired temperature.

After the children swam to their hearts content, we found a playground where they played happily while we fixed the supper snack. We ate with the warm desert breeze blowing gently about us and left for home as the sun faded to a giant red ball and slowly eased itself out of sight behind the mountains.

We had to admit, we had enjoyed a wonderful time on this expedition planned by the "younger set."

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Her Dolls Are Well-Hatted

By Vera Williams

HELEN BAUGH says her dolls are as well-hatted as Hedda Hopper."

And maybe they are. Dolls in her home, 3321 Walnut Ave., have a variety of hats—sports hats, street hats, dinner hats and wide-brimmed garden hats.

Mrs. Baugh, who is Mrs. Leo Baugh, makes them out of scraps of straw, felt, velvet, ribbon, and she trims them with shells, flowers, feathers, lace, veiling, rhinestone, pearls, or whatever else is at hand.

SHE RECENTLY provided 35 doll hats for a Burroughs School P-T.A. carnival, and already "without even trying" she has designed and made 50 more.

"I find myself looking in the windows of millinery stores to see new styles, and then I go home and make them for the dolls," she says.

tors, and a general manager. Then comes a pageant producer, who is Clarence Upson Young (for the fourth year); three directors, one for each program, John Callan, Lyle Robertson and George Platts. Each of these directors has a sub-director. There are three wardrobe directors, with assistants for making costumes; a make-up department with chairman and assistants for each program; a wig department director with assistants; three narrators, one for each program, Brainerd Duffield, David Iredell and Russ Potter, the latter serving for the ninth consecutive year. Instead of having a piano, as in 1934, today's pictures are backgrounded by a professional orchestra of 19 members, with Del Castillo as conductor. Altogether more than 200 men, women and juveniles are required for presentation of the living picture program.

AMONG THE MANY new 1956 living reproductions of the Old Masters will be "Bacchus and Ariadne" by Titian, "Mystery of Life" by Gazzeri, "Hercules and Lica" by Canova, "September Morn" by Chabas, "Daring Researcher" by West, "Young Girls at the Piano" by Renoir, and the "Bullfighter" by Llopis. Each nightly program is climaxed with the reverent and traditional "Last Supper" by da Vinci.

But the living pictures aren't all that constitute the Festival of Arts. From its start as a back-fence art exhibition by local artists in 1932, the festival is now presented on a six-acre tract known as Irvine Bowl at the mouth of Laguna Canyon. Artists and craftsmen are given opportunity to exhibit their works in 200 booths erected each summer for that express purpose. The young fry are not overlooked either. To encourage art in the boys and girls of Orange County a large Junior Art Gallery is turned over to them in which paintings are hung. Age range is from kindergarten through senior high school.

Another, strictly a small-fry project, is titled the "Free-for-All" gallery. Here anytime during the afternoon, a youngster may don a smock, take up crayon or pencil, and under supervision of local artists, draw whatever suits his fancy. Then his finished product is hung on a clothesline for inspection by his contemporaries and the adult public. Visiting youngsters who don't care for flourishing a crayon, may take the calmer road and view a puppet show on the grounds each afternoon and evening.

THE LAGUNA BEACH Art Gallery has a prominent part in the annual festival. This year the gallery is sponsoring "The California Show," an invitational exhibition of contemporary painting by artists from all parts of the state.

Scores of ticket reservations for the pageant are received for the next year's show immediately upon closing of the current spectacle. First reservation for the 1957 Pageant of the Masters was received last May 23. There are patrons who time their reservations with the caprices of the moon. They won't come any night but full-moon night, for they claim, sitting in Irvine Bowl and viewing the moon come over the mountain is one of the greatest pictures of them all.

Occident to the Orient

NOWHERE, perhaps, can one make a quicker transition from the Occident to the Orient than in San Francisco, southern portal to the Redwood Empire.

From bustling Market St., one of the world's most modern thoroughfares, it is just a walk of a few minutes to the Street of Virtue and Harmony, or the Lane of Golden Chrysanthemums, in San Francisco's Chinatown.

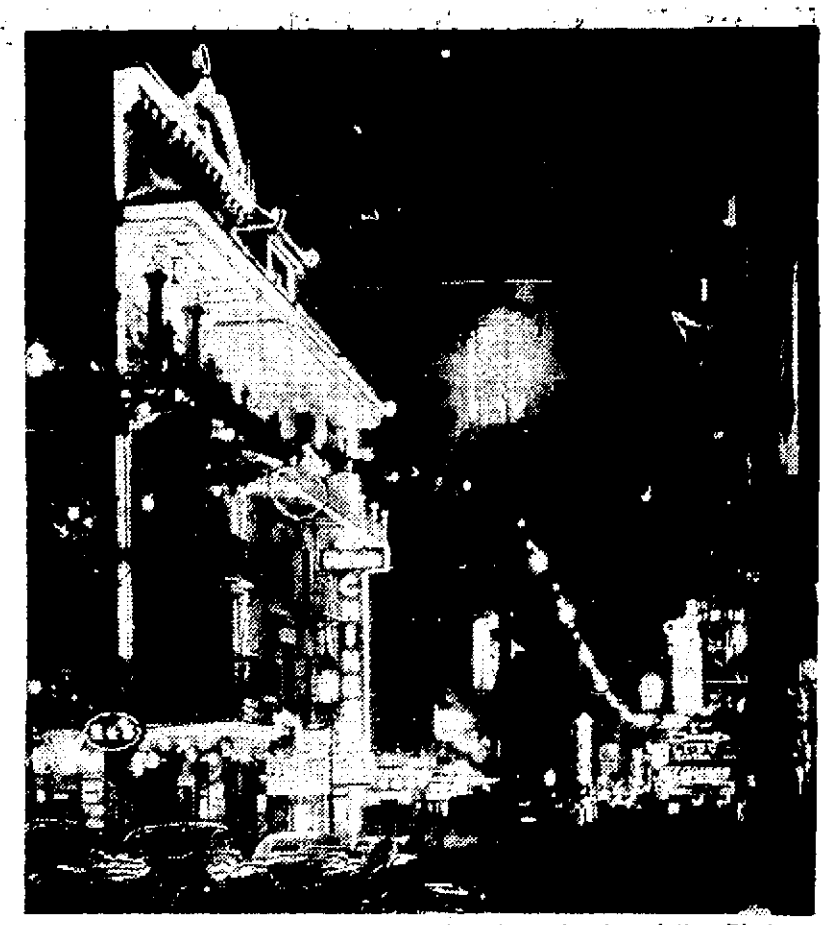

Although these poetic names do not appear on maps of the city by the Golden Gate, the venerables among Chinatown's more than 20,000 residents know Wentworth Pl. and Jason Court, respectively, by their names of yesteryear.

Many of the treasures of Old Cathay can be found in the quaint shops along Grant Ave., the main business street of San Francisco's most colorful segment and one of its main tourist attractions. Here, also, one may glimpse displays of foodstuffs which may appear bizarre to the Occidental eye, yet might well please his palate.

IN DRESS, the inhabitants of Chinatown reflect both the past and the present. Among the younger Chinese in modern clothes one may see, from time to time, oldsters, dressed in mandarin garb, padding silently along in felt slippers. Even the small fry are studies in contrast. One group may be wearing rich brocades, while another is sporting cowboy costumes.

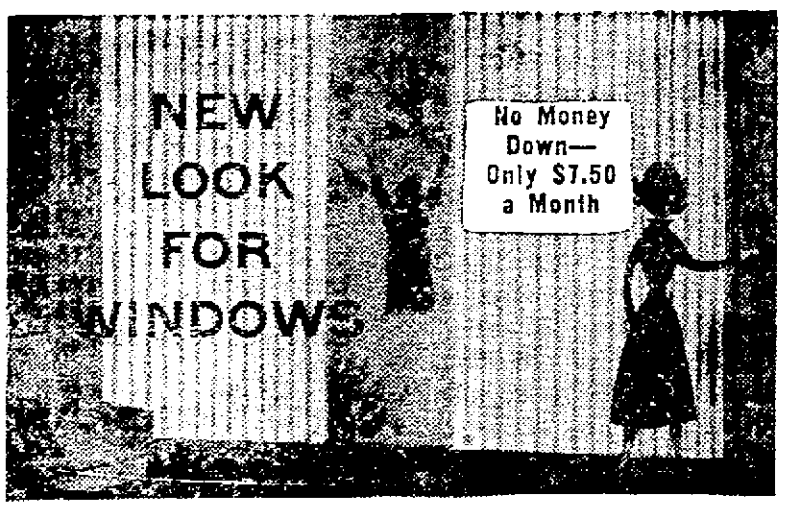

At night, Grant Ave. is a blaze of neon lights, with some of them etching Chinese characters. And sounds of modern jazz spill out in the street from night clubs. In the dimmer back streets, however, one may still hear the plaintive wail of ancient string instruments and sniff the odor of burning incense.

It's a 'Gossip Bench' Now

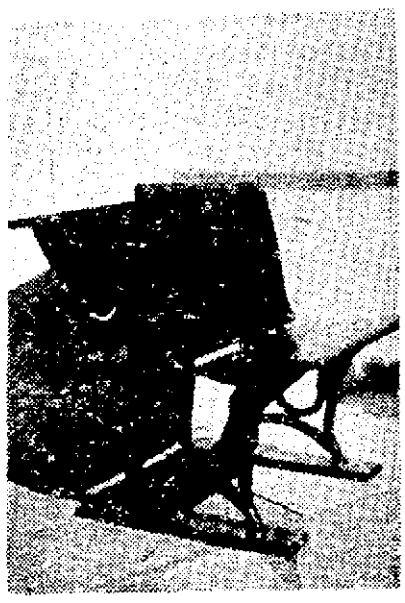

IT'S AN old-fashioned school desk, but Mrs. W. E. Beeler, 2706 E. 7th St., calls it a "gossip bench."

It has a place of honor in her home; the seat, she says, is handy for long conversations, and the desk top is just right for the phone book.

Mrs. Beeler bought the desk for $3, and she spent another $2 refinishing it, and putting boards under the feet to hold it steady. She even kept the ink well to hold pencils.

THE DESK IS MAPLE, and she finds that it fits in well with her early American furniture.

I've had more pleasure from this desk and more comments than any other piece of furniture," says Mrs. Beeler, "and I won an award of merit from a magazine for my use of it."

Old desk has been converted to serve in L. B. home as "gossip bench."

A New Don Rules the Hacienda

have chosen a prettier place for his home," Langley says. "The house is above the fog level and in the summer, a cooling ocean breeze makes it pleasant. The walls are so thick that we're warm in the coldest winter weather."

HE AND HIS WIFE, Jean, and their 11-year-old daughter, Veda, live in the north wing of the colorful house.

They occupy four rooms in what was the kitchen wing during the days when Don Juan and his happy companeros staged fiestas in the patio.

Don Juan at one time relaxed in its cool patio with the thought of his 10,000 cattle, 8,000 sheep and 300 horses grazing on his surrounding 27,000 acres which were to become Long Beach.

"Don Ramon" is content with a car—and the thought that he is paid to live in a neighborhood populated by Long Beach's millionaires.

HE VOLUNTEERED for the assignment when the restored ranch house was open to the public in April 1955. (It is open from 1 to 5 p. m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays).

"It's like living in the country," Langley says. "The flowers are in bloom now and practically every kind of California bird can be seen in the gardens."

Since taking the post, Langley is acquiring a new skill—a thorough knowledge of California history. He studies the books being added to the ranch house library and already is an expert on the construction and history of the building.

Air Doors Used

The most modern replacement of the electrically opened door is the air curtain which has been developed in Switzerland. It forms an invisible wall through which heat or cool air is kept in and insects out. Folding doors replace the air curtain at night.

COOKING

How to Make Your Own Pickles

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

YOU DON'T need to live "down on the farm" to enjoy the taste thrills of home-made pickles.

In fact, you can live in an efficient apartment right in the heart of the city and still put up blue-ribbon pickles, relishes and spiced fruits.

Of course there is a secret, but it's one we'll gladly share. It's the quick pickling method which uses distilled white vinegar both as a flavoring and as a preservative.

THIS SHORT-CUT method does away with much that was tedious and time-consuming in traditional recipes. Instead, fresh vegetables and fruits are cleaned and cut; then, without brining they're popped into the preserving kettle, where they simmer in less liquid, for a shorter time, than pickles ever did before.

This is pickling streamlined for modern living!

It's important to start out with fresh, good quality fruits and vegetables. In addition, they must be thoroughly washed and free of blemishes. Fresh spices mean a lot: and equipment, like jars and lids, should be in tiptop shape.

Needless to say, there are pickles and there are pickles — and each to his own taste. Believing, however, that sweet mixed pickles are favorites with everyone, that recipe is featured today. Then, to give you a well rounded "stock pile" of these favorites, following are recipes for uncooked tomato relish, piccalilli, icicle pickles and for the watermelon pickle.

Uncooked Tomato Relish

To make three pints for keeping in refrigerator rather than canning:

12 to 14 medium tomatoes (2 quarts)
1 cup chopped celery
¾ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper

Sweet Mixed Pickle:

2 quarts cauliflower flowerets (2 medium heads)
2 medium green peppers, cut into ¼-inch strips
2 medium sweet red peppers, cut into ¼-inch strips
1½ pounds (9 medium) onions, peeled, quartered
2½ cups white vinegar
1½ cups water
1½ cups granulated sugar
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 tablespoon celery seed
¾ teaspoon turmeric

Wash cauliflower; break into small flowerets. Cook in small amount of unsalted boiling water 5 minutes. Drain. Wash and prepare remaining vegetables. Combine remaining ingredients; heat to boiling, covered. Add vegetables and boil, uncovered, 2 minutes. Quickly pack one, hot sterilized jar at a time, filing to ⅛ inch from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Seal each jar at once. Yields 5 to 6 pints.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

"Are freighter trips to Europe comfortable and how do you get a price on them?"

SOME freighters are good and others are miserable. Your best bet on this is to book through a travel agent. They get the latest offerings from the freighter lines. And there is this problem: Ship reservations are so in demand that you have to start ordering a year or so in advance. A good freighter in the 12-passenger class can be a lot of fun.

"My husband and I are interested in music and particularly would like to go inexpensively to some place to hear the Calypso music . . ."

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, is your place. Though the time to go is Carnival, just before Lent when the calypso wars are on. Great music and a lot of fun. If you want off island stuff, you can fly to Tobago near by. And all the islands along here have some form of Calypso. Get in the front rows at the wars because the accent is very hard to understand.

The steel oil drum bands are interesting, too.

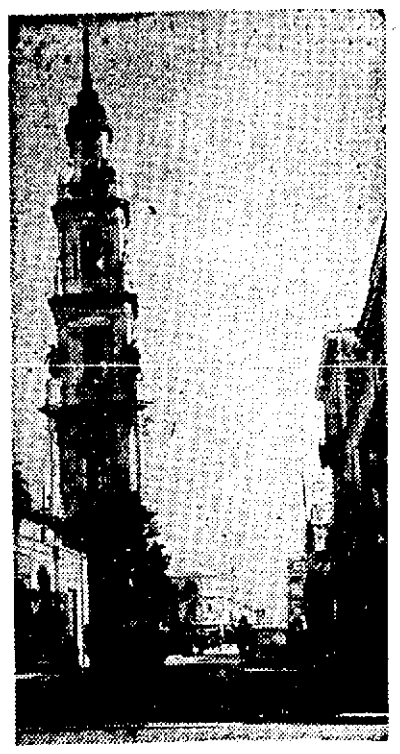

Get a Chippy's taxi in Port-of-Spain and have him drive you around the various guest houses. Less expensive than Queen's Park and you can get good rooms. The little oysters are a specialty in this country. Tavern-on-the-Green is one of the good restaurants for them. They make rum punch the traditional one-two-three way here too. Rum, lime and sugar.

"We planned to go to Australia for the Olympics but wonder about accommodations . . ."

The Australian government says there is going to be plenty of room. But friends of mine in Australia think they are going to be quite short. And they say Australia hotels are not what we call Class A and mostly not even Class B.

I'd get a travel agent right now and reserve some rooms.

Pan American flies this route and Qantas, the Australian line, has some excellent luxury flights out of the west coast. You ought to write Matson Navigation Co., San Francisco, too. They are putting on two luxury liners to Australia this fall. With stops at Tahiti and Fiji. This will open up Tahiti, which is a difficult and long transfer now by air.

Outside Naples is the modern resort town of Pompeii, built adjacent to the old Pompeii destroyed by an eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A.D. Best way to explore the side streets is in a hansom cab pulled by a gentle Neopolitan horse. (Pan American World Airways Photo.)

"We read all the books on tipping in Europe and they said the 15 per cent on your hotel bill covered everything. But the help seemed disappointed when we left . . ."

I'LL BET they did. The American invasion has made it customary to add about 5 per cent more and split it around in small portions. Even the Europeans are getting caught in this squeeze. About 50 cents U. S. in francs or marks or whatever to the maid, the porter, the room waiter and the doorman. And a dollar to the concierge is about right. That's per person for a stay of say three days.

Spanish Course

Thousands of visitors to Mexico will extract additional pleasure from their trips this year thanks to a unique arrangement that will provide them with a working knowledge of Spanish in advance of their departure from home.

This will be made possibly by a free gift in the form of a complete home-study course in conversational Spanish (the Mexican way). Known as the "two-week" method, the course comprises a 60-page instruction album and four extended-play phonograph records.

Sponsor of the unusual bonus is Mexico Travel Advisors, prominent tour operator which handles Mexican travel arrangements for thousands of travel agents in the U. S. and Canada. The offer is being made available exclusively through travel agents, with one complete course presented gratis with each Mexican tour booking.

James Dubin, president of Mexico Travel Advisors, explained that "as tourist interest has grown in romantic Mexico, more and more Americans and Canadians want to talk a little Spanish—just enough to get by—ordering meals and drinks, shopping and getting closer to the people. It isn't absolutely necessary, of course, since our staff takes care of visitors' daily requirements, but there's no doubt additional enjoyment accompanies a little knowledge of Spanish."

Mexico Travel Advisors has been serving North American visitors for the past 22 years, having handled over 400,000 visitors during that period in cooperation with U. S. and Canadian travel agents. The Spanish course, endorsed by the Mexican government, has been condensed by the Mexican Spanish Academy. Normally it retails for $9.95.

Trip Around the World... for You

NELLIE BLY never had it so good!

The average wage-earner who saves up $1,500 for a vacation can make the dream trip around the world at today's low air tourist fares and the speed with which air travel makes the entire globe one quick hop-and-jump. And it can be done on credit, too.

This is according to Trans World Airlines which released a few statistics recently on the market for round-the-world travel. TWA is seeking to provide a second United States flag-carrier round-the-world service by extending its route beyond India and Ceylon to Bangkok and Manila, to connect there with Northwest Airlines for the trans-Pacific portion of the trip. The Civil Aeronautics Board examiner in the case has already approved the route.

"A trip around the world has always had a tremendous appeal for anyone interested in travel and is the ultimate goal of all tourists." TWA pointed out, "but this goal has previously been unattainable for all but a very select few."

Today, TWA continued, "low air tourist fares and the speed of air transportation have put this goal within the reach of millions of individuals."

By 1960, TWA predicts, more than 30,000 persons a year will travel around-the-world, citing the fact that the growth of this global traffic in recent years has been "truly phenomenal." Round-the-world air traffic in September 1955, on United States flag-carriers alone, totaled more than 12,500 passengers, an increase of 2,374 per cent over the figure for September 1948.

At today's air tourist fares one can travel around the world for $1,347.90 plus $22.40 federal transportation tax on the Honolulu-New York portion, spending as much or as little time as desired in stopovers in many countries.

The extent of the market for this type of pleasure travel is indicated, TWA said, by the fact that in 1953 approximately 3,800,000 families in the United States had annual incomes of more than $10,000.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Cape Cod Style With Personality

By Eileen Ball

THE HOME of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Spring is a vital, personality-packed dwelling that, in the strictest sense of the word, has grown with their family.

Nine years ago the Springs bought a charming two-story, Cape Cod-style house at 3860 Country Club Dr. It sat upon a rolling lawn and was hugged by trees that sprinkled the flower gardens with dappled shade.

Almost immediately the changes began. The attached garage (facing the front of the lot) was converted to a den. This area adjoins the kitchen. On the other side of the kitchen, to the rear, was added maid's quarters and a garage accessible from the back of the property.

And so it was, a comfortable, spacious family home which enjoyed its additions that blended so harmoniously with the original structure that it seemed all to have been built at one time.

LAST YEAR, an addition was built on the other side of the house, including among other luxury features the most "ultra" of all modern innovations—an indoor swimming pool!

At this point, Mr. and Mrs. Spring, their son Paul and daughter Donna Lee are enjoying a home that has virtually everything, a pool, patio, rumpus room-and-kitchen combination, den, three bedrooms, a formal living room and separate dining room.

The entry hall, from which rises a handsome staircase, sets the mood for the living room to the right. In the entry, pink-beige carpet blends softly with scenic wallpaper and dark woods. A console table holding an antique marble figure of a child is the first display of the collection enjoyed by the Springs, that of acquiring small figures of children as rendered in the limited media of marble, porcelains and cast metals.

OFF THE ENTRY to the left is a small powder room with pink and white wallpaper and turquoise blue fixtures.

The living room is carpeted in the same dusky pink and has soft blue-green walls. There the mood is distinctly of the 18th century, with typical curved and delicately carved furniture legs, lustrous satin upholstery and formal fireplace. Dominating the room is an elegant parlor grand piano.

At one end of the room are French doors opening to the terrace and patio. The doors are flanked on either side by lighted, glass-doored display cabinets. On one side is displayed Mrs. Spring's doll collection while the right hand cabinet houses a fine collection of colored antique glass and china that sparkles brilliantly under the lights.

Blue-green louvered doors open to the formal dining room which, like the living room, boasts doors that adjoin the patio.

THE DINING ROOM is papered in soft grey with clusters of yellow roses. Draperies and upholstery for the Chippendale dining chairs are antique gold silk satin.

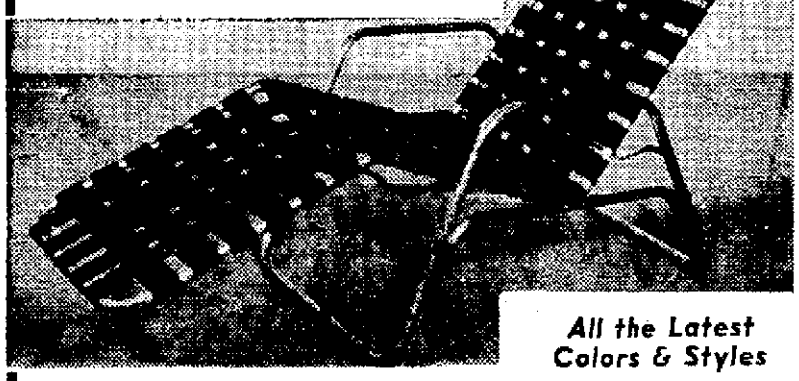

The kitchen has an unusual and enticingly feminine color scheme. White tile surmounts cabinets painted the same greyed French blue as the range. Charcoal grey linoleum bordered with white carries out the grey that is contrasted with white and pink ruffled curtains and a pale pink refrigerator! In the Cape Cod styling presents quaint and hospitable exterior. House has undergone considerable expansion.

Eighteenth Century elegance keynotes living room of the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Spring and family. The home has grown with the family.

adjoining service area are washer and dryer in the same shell pink tone.

The converted den is a friendly room with a handsome decorative flair. The mood here is French provincial, with blue-green beamed ceiling, tan and aqua provincial figured paper, bay window displaying items of colored glass and floor covering of random-color carpet.

THE DEN HAS a provincial sofa that unfolds into a bed, a large leather chair, desk and television set. And, just because the Springs enjoy breakfasting with a view, they have moved their attractive oval provincial table and chairs before the bay window that overlooks the front garden and the street.

The new wing of the house, located on the south, is accessible from the living room via French doors that open to the new rumpus room. This large area has a floor of cork cut in plank-size strips and "pegged" with deep brown circles. The floor has the richness of plank with the wonderful sound-muffling qualities of cork

Defining the conversational area before the used-brick fireplace is an oval rug of multi-colored wool braids. A pair of green tweed love seats face each other before the fireplace across a low, maple coffee table.

THE SCHEME FOR the rumpus room is, of course, early American. A round, pine game table doubles handily as still another dining table. It has an assembly of comfortable captains chairs and is within short serving distance of the ingenious kitchenette which, despite its compact dimensions, is every bit as functional as the main kitchen.

Fir cabinets with provincial finish are topped with unglazed terra cotta tile. Pull-down electric cooking units are the latest thing in cooking appliances. (When not in use, the individual units snap up against the wall and out of the way). With similar modern foresight, the Springs built into a cabinet a small and wonderfully compact refrigerator.

A service bar from the kitchen to the rumpus room may be closed off with folding shutters topping a storage cabinet for dishes.

Aged fir vertical paneling and heavy beams keynote both the rumpus room and the adjoining pool room. The latter completely encloses a contoured swimming pool with overall dimensions of about 15x30 feet.

HUGE BEAMS SPAN the ceiling over the pool while around it is a deck of pinkish-toned cement. Handsome rattan and wicker furniture with turquoise and watermelon pads furnish the area. Huge potted tropical plants add touches of greenery.

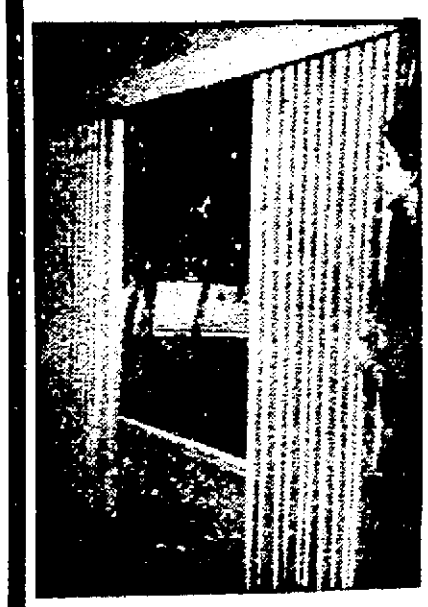

Sliding walls of glass open both to the rear garden and to the bricked patio that nestles into a "U" provided by the house and pool room.

Two dressing rooms and a bath open directly off the pool saving damp-footed wear and tear on the house.

Childrens' bedrooms each enjoy a view of the back yard from their second-story vantage point. The master bedroom is a large room, has views of both front and rear gardens and enjoys its own attached bathroom.

Kelly rejected make-up; said he was no "sissy." Hope pointed to own make-up. Said Kelly: "But you make more money."

Tony, older and more mature, offered no protest as make-up man, Joe Stinton, got him ready for camera action.

HOLLYWOOD

There're Really Lots of Hopes!

Bob Hope hoped it would be a gag when he cast his youngest son, Kelly, 9, in Paramount's "That Certain Feeling," VistaVision and Technicolor feature, but he forgot there were lots of Hopes with movie-role hopes. A week later, Bob, hoping to keep peace in the family, was forced to find parts for his other three youngsters, Linda, 16; Tony, 15, and Nora, 9. "I had to do it," Hope moans. "Otherwise, there would have been a mutiny in the Hope home. I never received so many dirty looks since the time I showed up at Crosby's for dinner." The oldest children, Linda and Tony, are seen stuffing envelopes in an engraving plant sequence with their father. Kelly, who has several lines and the "fattest part of the bunch, plays "Billy," and worked in a scene with Hope and seven-year-old Jerry Mathers, one of the top featured performers. Nora appears in a children's playground sequence with Hope and Mathers. The four children do not work together at any time. Here are some scenes around the set.

Pretty Linda Hope posed with her dad between scenes. Eva Marie Saint and George Sanders are costars with Bob.

Only member of the family not cast in the film is Dolores Hope who visited her husband, children on set. Nora, second from left, also has a part.

SUGAR BEETS ARE A BIG BUSINESS

in Huntington Beach, and in 1912 by two, one in Anaheim and the other on Dyer Road, south of Santa Ana.

Lacy says that in those days three-fourths of all the land in this area available and suitable for beet growing was planted to the crop.

Failure of many farmers to follow sound crop-rotation programs, however, started a decline in yields and sugar content of the beets which reached serious proportions by 1917 and 1918.

Adding to the trouble were pests and diseases later to be subdued by American scientists but raging unchecked in the period immediately after the end of World War I.

And in the course of years, not just sugar beets but all crops gradually had to make way for people.

SO, ONE BY ONE, the sugar factories were closed down, until now there remains only the Holly plant on Dyer road, one of 11 operated in the state by that company, Spreckels, Union and American Crystal.

Lacy thinks that continuing demand for housing will leave no room for any large increases in beet acreages within the county but some expansion probably will occur.

In this area, machines do just about 100 per cent of the tedious, time-consuming chores done by hand only a few years ago.

Today one man operating a mechanical thinner will cover at least 15 acres per day, at a cost of about $5 an acre. Formerly a ten-man crew using short-handled hoes did well to cover five acres a day—and the cost to the farmer was upwards of $20.

Come harvest time, four men operating a mechanical harvester will easily handle seven acres a day, considered a real achievement by the 24-man teams that used to do the job by hand.

WITH SUCH machines, with scientific advancements in seed varieties and pest control, and with their own improvements in farming methods, California beet growers now are among the leading sugar producers in the world.

Their crops, turned into sugar at one of our 11 factories, last year produced nearly one-third of all the beet sugar consumed in the nation.

"Somehow," says Lacy, "many people seem to think of sugar production in terms of stalks of cane growing on tropical islands.

"Actually, our beet growers produce more sugar per acre, at far fewer man-hours per day, than do the farmers of such 'sugar islands' as Cuba. And for decades beet sugar has been THE sugar for the chefs of France and other European countries."

THERE ARE ALSO some people, Lacy added, who have the mistaken notion that there is a difference between beet and cane.

As the U.S. Department of Agriculture always points out in its sugar pamphlets, Lacy noted, the two are identical in every respect.

"Sugar is a chemical," Lacy said, "and it is precisely the same chemical no matter what the source—whether you get it from the toddy palm tree (as they do in Burma), from a grape, from cane or from the sugar beet."

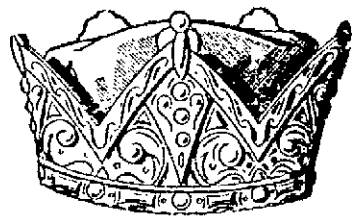

And so, far from the tropics, the local industry is well on the way toward a 1956 production of sufficient quantities of the finest sugar money can buy to meet the needs not only of every resident of Orange County but another quarter of a million persons besides.

Star skaters by the dozens are active in Long Beach. Above, Jean McCollum and Paul Parke, outstanding roller couple, execute a graceful pairs spin.

We're a Bunch of Good Skates!

By Dick Zehms

WHY BE MODEST about it? We're a bunch of good skates in this town. Roller skaters, that is. Much, much more than you realize, too.

Know you that Long Beach has the largest representation of national roller skating champions of any city from border to border and coast to coast?

Ten call the Hippodrome Club their alma mater. Six compete in the name of the Palace Club.

KNOW YOU THAT this local society of roller princes and princesses is rapidly on the increase. The title fever has caught our youngsters. They all aspire to competitive perfection in this fascinating sport.

It wasn't always thus. Today rink operators estimate there are 20 million roller skaters in the land, nearly 30 per cent of whom are intent upon achieving laurels in competition sponsored and supervised by the RSROA, the Roller Skating Rink Operators Assn. of America. This group supervises state, regional and national meets. The clubs confine their competition authority to strictly local activities—shows and meets.

THE LOCAL ROLLER skating set has been reluctant to shout about its national and regional achievements, although proud as a peacock of the conquests. You have to ferret out the facts.

Take the Skating Palace representation. Its club numbers around 125 members, ranging in ages from 5 years to the social security mark. Its national champions are Christy Cowdery, Tina S. Seabern, Doug R. Eley and Jerry E. Tangen, junior fours, and Judith Ann Nance and Richard (Ricky) Mullican, junior pairs.

Over at Hippodrome, where the club membership is virtually the same in numbers and age brackets, they point with pride to Gerry Daniels, Mickey Dupuy, Davis Macomber and Jack Maguire, novice fours; Pat Pennington, intermediate and senior fours; Mike Glatz, intermediate fours, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hammond, novice and intermediate dance champions, all national in scope.

DON BROMLEY, manager of the Hippodrome, and Francis E. Baker, owner of the Palace, agree in the belief that Long Beach's strongest titular bids at San Pablo will be made by the national champions, more specifically by Mullican and Miss Nance and by the dance duo of George and Helene Hammond.

They also ascribe to the belief that competitive roller skating is on the upswing throughout the country, and chiefly in the Long Beach area by reason of the introduction of professional instructors to the local scene.

"Five years ago maybe we had 20 contestants in a regional meet from here," said Bromley. "Now look at the total—more than 70. The increase has mushroomed within the last three or four years. Youngsters will always be fond of roller skating. But now they have more incentive—competition.

"INTRODUCTION OF professional instructors at the two local rinks is another stimulant. A few years ago there was nobody around to help a youngster if her or she wanted to polish up for competition. Now there are six—Mr. and Mrs. Milton May at the Palace and Ray Hough, Marilynne Cormley, Shirley Bromley and myself at the Hippodrome.

"WE CAN'T DO some of the things the ice skaters do on their blades, nor can they do

. . . Smooth routines on roller skates produced a national junior pairs title for Judith Ann Nance and Richard Mullican, shown in warmup stunt above.

"Sandwich lift" (above), novel stunt by Gerry Daniels, Mickey Dupuy, Davis Macomber and Jack Maguire. Yes, 2 girls are being held aloft... count the blonde heads.

some of the things we do. Our championship meets and shows, however, are just as colorful and entertaining as the best ice revue you will ever see. Roller skating popularity is in an upswing. The competition is as hot on the rinks for titles as it is on the ball fields."

Kathy Kinton, 6, comes out of a spin. She is a competent young skater.

Long Beach entries in recent regional championships:

2 teaspoons salt
3 teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon mustard seed
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon or half as much allspice
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup vinegar

Peel tomatoes. Combine all ingredients and blend. Will keep well under refrigeration in covered container for 2 or 3 weeks.

Piccalilli

6 pounds (22 medium) green tomatoes, quartered
¾ pound (1 pint) small onions
6 green peppers, quartered lengthwise
6 sweet red peppers, quartered
1½ quarts distilled white vinegar
3½ cups sugar
¼ cup salt
1½ teaspoons ground allspice
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
3 to 4 teaspoons celery seed
⅓ to ½ cup mustard seed

Wash vegetables; put through food grinder, using medium blade; drain, discarding liquid. Turn vegetables into large kettle; add 1 quart vinegar. Boil 30 minutes, stirring often. Drain vegetables, discarding liquid. Return vegetables to kettle. Add 1 pint vinegar, sugar, salt and spices. Simmer 3 minutes. Continue simmering while quickly packing one hot, sterilized jar at a time. Fill to ⅛ inch from top. Seal each jar at once. Makes 6 to 7 pints.

Icicle Pickles

3 pounds 4-inch cucumbers, cut into eighths lengthwise
6 small onions, quartered
6 5-inch pieces celery
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 quart distilled white vinegar
¼ cup salt
2½ cups sugar
1 cup water

Wash, cut cucumbers; soak in ice water 3 hours. Drain; pack in clean pint jars. Add 1 onion, 1 piece celery and ½ teaspoon mustard seed to each jar. Combine vinegar, salt, sugar and water; bring to boil. Pour solution over cucumbers, filling jar to ½ inch from top. Immediately adjust covers as jar manufacturer directs. Set jars on wire rack in covered, deep kettle with boiling water to cover tops of jars 1 inch. Process (boil) 10 minutes, counting time from moment active boiling resumes. Remove, adjust seal as manufacturer directs. Makes 6 pints.

Pickled Watermelon Rind

3 pounds prepared watermelon rind
2 pounds granulated sugar
2 cups white vinegar
6 3-inch cinnamon sticks
2 tablespoons whole allspice
2 tablespoons whole cloves

Use rind from firm, not overripe, watermelon. Trim outer green skin and pink flesh (allowing a very thin line of pink to show). Cut into 1½"x3¼" pieces.

Soak overnight in salt water (3 tablespoons salt per 1 quart water); drain. Cover with fresh water and cook until tender; drain. Heat sugar and vinegar to boiling. Add spices, tied in cheesecloth bag. Add rind. Cook, uncovered, until transparent, about 45 minutes. Remove spice bag. Simmer while quickly packing one hot, sterilized jar at a time. Fill to ⅛ inch from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers rind. Seal each jar at once. Makes 3 pints.

Kitchen Tip:

Mark fruit jars with wax crayons while the jars are hot. The words "flow on" and stay put when the jars are cold.

Lincoln's Web-Feet

PRESIDENT LINCOLN paid a great tribute to the Federal Navy when he wrote: "Nor must Uncle Sam's web-feet be forgotten. At all the watery margins they have been present. Not only on the deep sea, the broad bay and the rapid river, but also up the narrow muddy bayou, and wherever the ground was a little damp."

In "Mr. Lincoln's Admirals" by Clarence Edward Macartney (Funk & Wagnalls, $5) the author also pays tribute to a service which was little noted during the Civil War. Perhaps the reason for this was that there was little change in the policy of the Federal naval command; they started out to do a job—mostly of blockading—and they did it with little or no shaking up of commanders. There was no scandal attached to the Federal fighting ships, and so they sailed and chugged through the war with few to chronicle what was a time of great expansion and excitement in naval warfare.

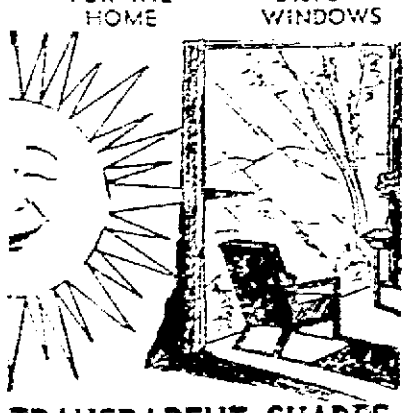

There were only 90 fighting ships in 1861, and in 1865 there were 670, many of them armed with rifled cannon, and many shod with iron over wood, or built from the keels up of metal. The one great loss for the Federal naval cause was the taking of the Norfolk Navy Yard, at the start of the war. This was an outrageous blunder by its commander, Commodore McCauley, but soon efficient and skilled men were in command. There is no lack of color and excitement in this good account of fighting men and ships, and the reader will find it has the pace of a good novel.—G. L.

BEST BY FAR of the books about travel in this corner of the United States is written by Kent Ruth, an Oklahoman, who has roamed the country west of the Mississippi for 17 years. That's because "How to Enjoy Western Vacations" (University of Oklahoma Press, $4.95) not only accurately reports on what-to-see and what-to-do attractions, but accomplishes beautifully what Kent says he attempted—to give some indication in depth of the nature of the vacationland itself. Moreover, the book tells the vacationist what he may expect in the way of lodging and eating

Put Your Family in the Movies

This picture had to be snapped at a time when their hands were still—a movie would tell the whole story.

By the Shutterbug

EVERY FAMILY not only needs its own cinematographer, but every member of the family ought to be one. It is an impressive title, but really just means one who takes pictures with a movie camera.

There's no better way to keep a record of family life than in full color home movies that reproduce all of the brilliance and motion of the activity or scene that caused you to want to take pictures.

WE'RE ESPECIALLY excited about home movie-making for all members of the family since we heard about a new camera that came on the market just a few weeks ago. It's the movie version of the familiar fixed focus or box still camera (except that it has a better lens) and it is priced at under $30. Not much under, just a little. Made by a well-known manufacturer, it's practically foolproof, it's so easy to use.

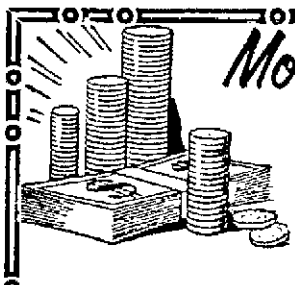

WITH THIS CAMERA you make one simple setting of the lens, wind the motor, and shoot. And, there's a guide on the front to tell you which setting to use, according to the way the weather is.

Birthdays, weddings, graduations, holidays, and all the little every day things that are the material from which happy memories are made — will be kept fresh, colorful, and full of action in your movie films.

HOW TO Make Decorative Kitchen Storage Items of Easy-to-Use Plywood

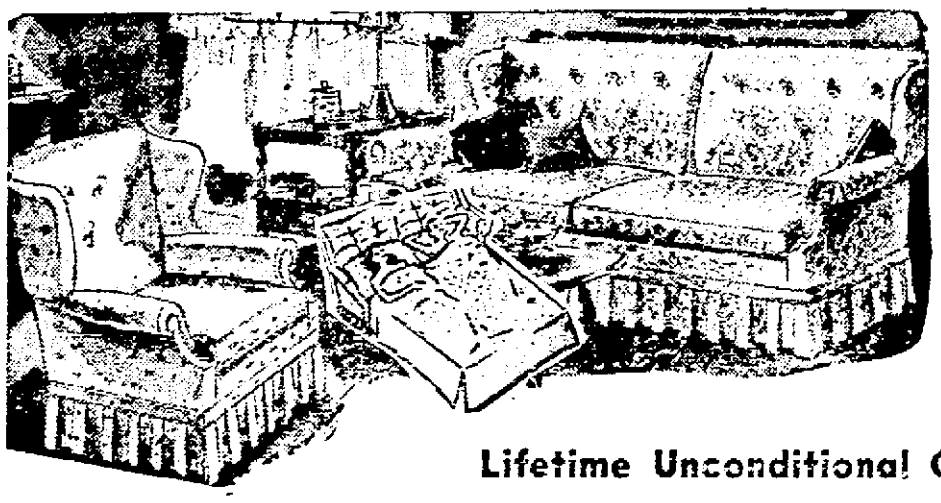

1. SPICE RACK of ¼-inch striated plywood adds a note of novelty to the kitchen. Bottom shelf is slightly larger than the top for bigger jars and rectangular containers. Saw out each part and assemble with glue and brads, countersinking them and filling the holes. Where the edges of plywood show, cut matching striations with a wood rasp. Bottoms of the shelves should be cut from smooth-surface plywood for easier cleaning. Stain or varnish.

2. DRAWINGS SHOW construction of a pot-lid holder. The holder can be any length—this one's 16 inches—to fit available space. Handles of lids rest in notches cut in plywood pieces, which project at 20-degree angles from the back. Reinforce these joints with wedges glued and bradded between back and holders, as shown on the drawing. Small cup hook or metal pins provide handy hot-dish holders. Use ¼-inch plywood for entire piece, with exception of solid wood for wedges.

Little 'Wigglenose' Can Be Trained

Resting contentedly on Craig Mathison's lap are his pets, Happy, a Dutch rabbit; Gwendolyn, Siamese cat.

By Eleanor Avery Price

THERE HAS BEEN an increased interest in rabbits as pets that can be trained since, three years ago, "Buck" Bunny, a finance company's wiggle-nosed performer, was first seen swiftly picking up silver dollars and neatly depositing them in a top replica of the firm's building in Los Angeles.

Many TV viewers were hard to convince and "Buck" Bunny's sponsors have been deluged with letters, many alleging that the performer is a mechanical rabbit.

"Buck" Bunny is a live, red-blooded rabbit, the original property of Keller Breland of Hot Springs, Ark., a man with a national reputation as an animal psychologist specializing in making trained barnyard animals and fowl do amazing tricks.

BRELAND'S TRAINING formula is simple and one that anyone can follow who has a rabbit to train. When "Buck" did his work well, he was rewarded with food. When he didn't, his mistakes went unnoticed. He never was punished. "Buck" hung his head in shame when he flubbed, proof that a rabbit is sensitive and eager to please.

Craig Mathison, 6-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Mathison, 119 Syracuse Walk, pictured with this article, has been instructed to train his Siamese cat, Gwendolyn, and his Dutch rabbit, Happy, with kindness. Of course, his parents help him.

Happy was given to Craig when the boy was 3 years old. It seems Gwendolyn was lonesome. True, she had Craig for a friend and owner, but even a prize-ribbon Siamese cat likes a bedfellow and someone to romp with when her owner is away. When Craig acquired the rabbit, Gwendolyn ceased to be lonely.

THE RABBIT was very eager to share the cat's sleeping quarters and he matter-of-factly accepted her sand box to which he was housebroken almost immediately. He also liked to sleep in Craig's bed, but that came to an end when he developed a taste for Craig's blankets.

Happy likes attention and he has learned a few tricks. He sits up and begs for his food, and he scratches at the door if he finds it shut between him and the sand box.

There is only one thing that Happy does that annoys Gwendolyn. The rabbit will start playing with the cat when she is napping. When he gets her up to romp with him, he promptly steals the spot she has warmed.

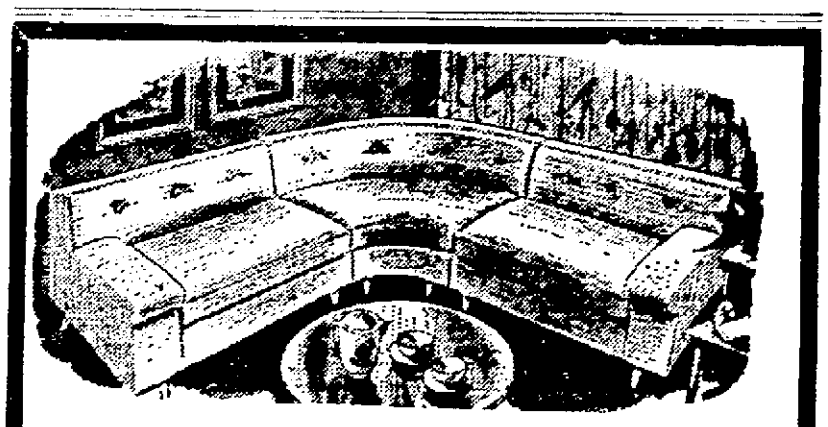

THERE ARE MANY varieties of rabbits of various sizes that make interesting pets. Lately the smaller breeds have taken a lead in popularity. Craig's Dutch rabbit is one of the smallest in existence, the adult weighing between four and five pounds. The Dutch is well-rounded, cobby, and sleek, with small ears.

IF YOU WANT to enter the 1956 dog photo contest sponsored by Gaines Dog Research Center, 250 Park Ave., New York 17, N. Y., send a card immediately to Gaines for official facts and rules, then get busy with that camera this summer. Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Friday, Sept. 7. First prize is $500.

GET YOUR ENTRIES in by July 16 for the Ventura Fanciers Association all-breed dog show and obedience trial to be held July 28 in Ventura and for Santa Barbara Kennel Club show and obedience trial scheduled for July 29 at Hope Ranch, Santa Barbara.

GARDENS

Annuals Yield Exciting Results

By Bob Gilmore

THIS IS AN excellent time for sowing seed of annuals. These plants will provide a lot of excitement in your garden. Packets containing mixed colors will prove especially desirable if you want a new adventure in gardening. They usually produce one or more colors that you have never seen before.

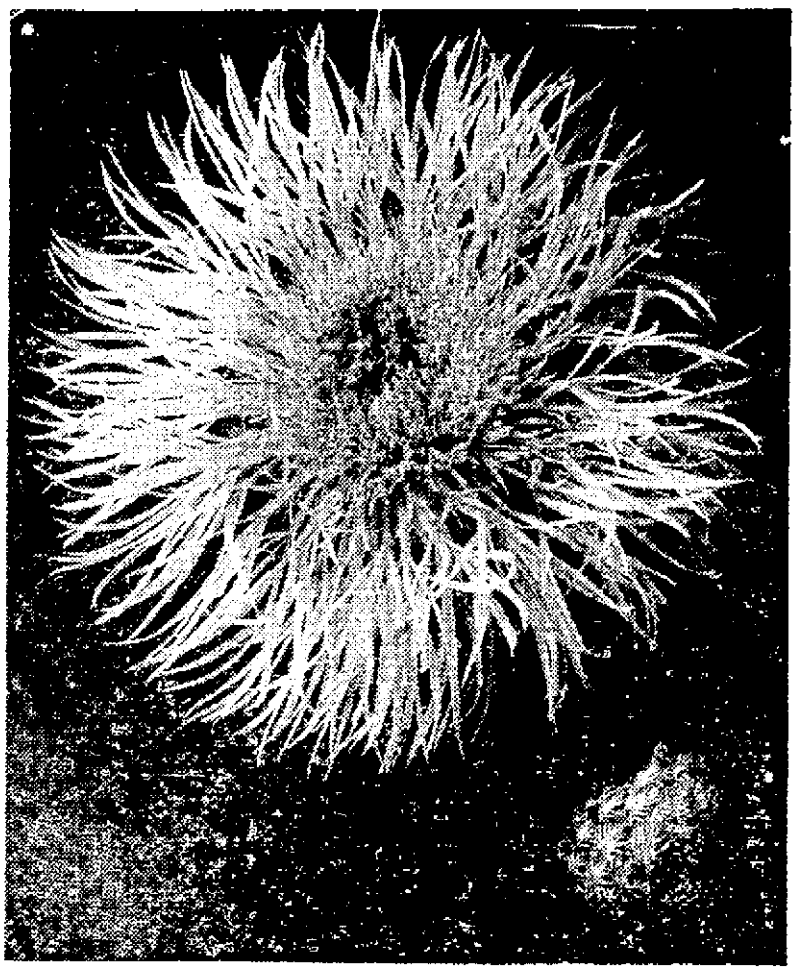

When you plant a rose, a hibbertia or a jasmine, for example, you know in advance exactly what the mature plant and flowers will look like. But when you sow a packet of mixed zinnias there is an excellent chance you'll see something new and different. Some packets, for example, contain as many as 50 separate varieties.

Annuals are plants that complete their life cycle in one season. This means their growth is swift and you will have flowers in a hurry. Some annuals, such as alyssum and Virginia stocks, for example, seem to pop into bloom almost over night; even zinnias may flower 40 days after seeding. Others, such as petunias take slightly longer.

BE SURE YOU obtain seed of high viability. Flower seeds, like all other seeds, lose their germinative power over a period of years. Oddly enough, in a certain year, however, the germination could rise over the previous year. The best storage conditions are accompanied by low temperature and humidity.

Annual seeds germinate rapidly although different varieties have their own peculiar growing habits. Generally speaking, you can sow seed at a depth of roughly three times its diameter. Large seeds, such as sweet peas, calendulas, and zinnias can be planted now in the outdoor garden. But smaller seeds like begonias and petunias are best planted in seed flats or pots, later transferring them to the open garden. These tiny seeds should simply be pressed into the soil.

ONE OF THE BEST mediums for starting annuals indoors is a regulation nursery flat. This is made of wood, measures about 18 inches by 18 inches and is just a few inches high. A good starting soil for use in a nursery flat should contain a mixture of one part No. 2 sand and one part peat. This mix is loose, porous and easy to obtain.

Centaureas are among annuals that are easy to germinate and develop rapidly from seed in Long Beach area.

Annuals that can be seeded now include amaranthus, alyssum, bachelor button, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, centaurea, cosmos, gypsophila, marigold, nasturtium, nicotiana, phlox, stock, sweet peas, verbena and zinnias.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Azaleas and rhododendrons, even after their flowering season, require shade and an acid soil. Their roots should be kept fairly wet but not soggy. A mulch on the surface of peat or leaf mold will prove beneficial.

Chrysanthemum plants may be set out now in the open garden. Young plants made from cuttings taken last March will produce better results than old divisions. They are available at all leading garden supply stores.

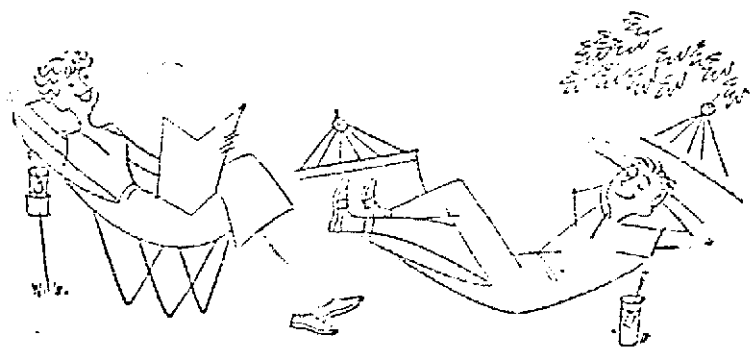

Carnations can also be started at this time. An open, porous soil is advisable. Pinch back the tip of the leader stem to encourage a bushier growth and to delay flowering until the roots are well established.

Chewers are here in force. The Twelve-Spotted Beetle (Diabrotica) that flies about and feeds on roses, chrysanthemums and dahlias; the host of caterpillars and worms that chew both leaves and flowers.

Your "best bet" to fight them is to buy a summer spray that will do double duty . . . kill these chewers and eliminate the sucking insects such as thrips and aphis in the same operation. Life doesn't stand still anywhere and the protection of your garden must adjust to meet emergencies. Right now your battle to defend your shrubs and flowers against insect life is at its peak. So the spray material you use must be ruthless in its ability to kill the widest number of species of destructive insects without doing harm to your plants.

Don't spray too often. Therefore, you should double the death-dealing quality in the sprays you use through July and August in order to get both the suckers and the chewers in the fewest number of sprayings.

RELAXER'S PARADISE

What would a hammock and a campaign chair look like sitting out on a landing strip? But, nestled in the environment of lush foliage, flowering and green . . . here's the relaxer's paradise! Call on us for landscaping help, won't you?

Keep a Windowful of Violets

Simple rules of culture will keep African violets in top form, filling home window areas with extra charm.

By Reba Hines

ARE YOU WEARY of seeing your African Violets without blossoms, or just a mass of foliage, or with leaves drooping? Then, this is written for you.

Your window areas can easily become places of floral beauty for you and your family through proper culture of African violets.

Saintpaulia species run into the hundreds. African violet culture has been one of my favorite hobbies for the past seven years, during this time, only one of my plants was diseased.

Here is my simple method. Bring out the full beauty of the plants by giving them early morning sunshine for about 30 minutes (there must be a little direct sunshine to help promote abundant and colorful blooms). Of course, there must be plenty of light at all times, but during summer months excessive light and heat will produce brown spots on leaves. This may be avoided by lowering window shades in warmest part of day.

I USE MY OWN soil mixture, one part garden loam, two parts, river bottom sand, washed and sifted; leaf mold and peat moss added until soil is friable.

Feed the plants every 10 days with a light application of liquid plant food, insert funnel between leaves down to the soil pour slowly keeping liquid off foliage. My violets bloom the year around with nine to 12 stems per plant, the stems average five to six inches in length, each one has 12 to 14 blossoms. Plants must be free of dust, dirt and insects, and must be dry cleaned occasionally. I use a small camel's hair brush, supporting each leaf individually, then brushing gently downward until clean.

Remove fading blossoms and leaves daily, turn plants twice a week, so illumination will be equal producing an even, upright plant.

PROPAGATING leaf cuttings is simple and easy. Spring and summer are the best months; select mature leaves with stems 1½ inches long and place the end of the damp stem in rooting medium, carefully remove excess rooting substance.

Have two-inch pots filled with above mentioned mixture, insert one or two leaf cuttings in each pot. Within five or six weeks plants will have formed and two or three tiny leaves will appear around the base of the mother leaf. This is time to transplant into a slightly larger pot, lifting out the entire plant carefully. Better root systems and stronger plants will result. Generally, within two months, first blooms will appear; then separate, dust roots with rooting medium, transplant to five-inch pots.

I FIND IT advisable to place a strip of aluminum foil two inches wide on border of pot, allow one inch inside container, press into place, or paint rim inside and out a few days before transplanting, both foil and paint protect foliage from edge, which absorbs acids in fertilizer often producing leaf decay.

Keep soil moist but good drainage is important. Layer of gravel or crushed unused pots should be spread on bottom of container. Transplanting provides gift plants for my neighbors, and for ill and bedridden persons.

Plants That Like Sea Breeze

By Walter Finch

LONG BEACH and its neighboring coastal cities are invaded almost daily by a wind, however slight, that moves in from the Pacific. Meteorologists refer to it as a "gentle breeze" which means its average speed ranges between eight and 12 miles per hour. The effect of this wind on plant life is probably greater than most home gardeners think.

Most gardeners assume that this wind must pack a great deal of moisture, but this is not quite true. The fact is that this "gentle breeze" tends to have a dry-out effect on most plants.

NEVERTHELESS, there are dozens of plants capable of tolerating the sea breeze.

Ivy geranium will prove excellent for use as a ground cover or for landscaping banks or hilly areas.

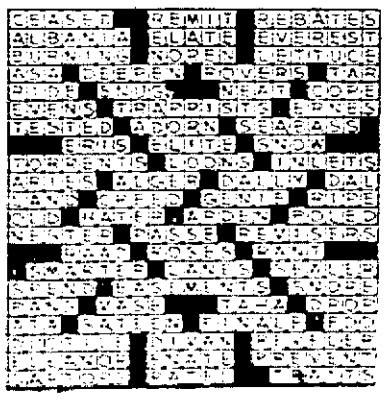

PITTOSPORUM TOBIRA, very popular throughout Southern California, has a remarkable tolerance for cool, salty winds.

Viburnum suspensum has received wide use in the Southland as a foundation plant.

THE NATAL PLUM, known to nurserymen as carissa grandiflora, is a natural for coastal plantings. The plants are at their best out in the sun. This ornamental may be grown anywhere in California from the ocean to the inland desert regions.

Other plants that will prove colorful, interesting and capable of tolerating the sea breeze include pyracantha crenato-serrata which produces crimson-toned berries in clusters as large as a dinner plate; star jasmine, a tough and hardy plant that is actually a perfume factory; camellias, English ivy, viburnum tinus, magnolia grandiflora, the familiar oak, white daphne, abelia, the "strawberry tree" known botanically as arbutus unedo, and juniperus sabina tamarix, which, like most of its relatives, also tolerates a dry, out-in-the-open exposure.

facilities and what he may reasonably expect to pay. If your vacation is still in the planning stage, by all means read this book—F. T. K.

THE CLASSIC of American mountaineering, "The Conquest of Mt. McKinley" (Houghton Miflin, $6) by Belmore Browne, has been reissued for the first time since its publication in 1913. Here was mountain climbing before modern equipment, oxygen, air lifts, etc., made it a profession, and the description of hardships endured in the frozen northern wilderness mark the author and his companions real adventurers. After Frederick Cook claimed to have reached the summit of the continent, it was Belmore Browne who proved Cook's claim fraudulent. It is a very interesting narrative of Alaska 40-some years ago.

MT. GODWIN AUSTEN, better known as K 2, the world's second highest mountain, has been considered by many mountaineers more deadly than Everest. Five serious attempts on its summit by various international groups ended in failure. In "Victory Over K 2" (McGraw-Hill, $5.75) Ardito Desio, leader of the successful Italian expedition, relates the never-ending struggle to survive and yet advance higher until at 6 p.m. July 31, 1954, two climbers reached the icy summit ridge.

This was an expedition designed to reach its objective, having financial independence and unlimited equipment. Some mountaineers have said in jest the Italians trussed up the icy giant with enough nylon rope until it resembled a Christmas turkey, but jesting aside, conquering a Himalayan peak of this caliber can only be accomplished by brave and determined mountaineers. A certain amount of "nationalism" seems to creep into the narrative reminiscent of some expeditions of the 1930s. The book is illustrated with photographs and maps.—R.G.

A SPLENDID contribution to western Americana, and for those who are building libraries about the Indian, is "The Fighting Cheyennes" (University of Oklahoma Press, $5). George Bird Grinnell, an old hand at spinning true tales of the redmen (this is his 13th book on the subject) gives an interesting and accurate account of the Cheyennes—most warlike plains tribe—which until 1856 was friendly with the whites but then turned to savagery and massacres that were unparalleled in the history of the west. Here is the whole true story of a remarkable tribe, written by a man who, as a naturalist, accompanied General Custer's expedition into the Black Hills in 1874.

NAOMI LANE BABSON'S "Another Sky" (Harcourt, Brace, $3.50) is the story of Annis, New England girl, who followed her fiance to the Sandwich Islands in 1820.

Traveling with a group of dedicated missionaries, Annis found herself in a convention-bound world and the transgressions that got her into trouble seem mighty trivial by today's standards. But trouble it was until a handsome sea captain intervened and married the purty gal.

WITH MARGARET TRUMAN'S "Souvenir" (McGraw-Hill, $3.95) the events in the lives of President Harry's family are fairly well brought up to date. Unless, of course, Bess is getting the literary urge.

Margaret, aided by Margaret Cousins, tells of the thrills and chills that come to a young girl when she becomes a princess—the daughter of the president. Best anecdote: Saying goodbye to a swain on the White House porch, while a Secret Service man hovers over the couple.

PAPERBACK originals (never before printed in book form) that make good reading (all Dell First Editions, 25c): "Singapore Passage," an exciting voyage through the South China Seas, by Donald Barr Chidsey; "Be My Victim," violence and suspense in Florida, by Robert Dietrich; "Segundo," a western steeped in vengeance, by Frank O'Rourke.

Dinner, Yes—Lunch, No

THE LADIES — bless their curious little hearts — just can't get used to the idea that they're not invited for lunch at Ricarts Restaurant, 4363 Atlantic Ave.

From 11:30 a. m. to 2 p. m. daily Tuesdays through Fridays this elegant restaurant serves luncheon "for men only." Occasionally a few hungry feminine guests will try to get in, and they become slightly miffed when politely informed that the main dining room and adjacent Petroleum Club facilities are off limits for women during the luncheon hours.

As a result, scads of men eat lunch at Ricarts every day. They enjoy the "freedom" this policy gives them because it means they can be themselves, laugh loudly if they wish over a risque story, engage in serious business talk — and even put their elbows on the table.

ART MORGAN, owner of Ricarts, and Bob Bryan, recently promoted to manager, have devised a menu for these luncheons which is highly appreciated by all males. Served buffet style, the luncheon offers three entrees — choice round of beef, corned beef and smoked tavern ham — all priced at $1.50. The diners get their choice of a dozen cold salads, potato and another vegetable, choice of a wide variety of desserts and choice of beverage. Also available are beef, ham and corned beef sandwiches for 75 cents each.

The ladies know, of course, that they are extremely welcome at Ricarts at all other times. (They are allowed in during the Saturday luncheon period.) And you should see them dig into the restaurant's famed prime rib au jus dinner, served from a gleaming copper cart. They display equal enthusiasm for other Ricarts dinner specialties — such as sizzling grenadine of beef, whole baby lobster, glazed Long Island duckling, or chicken livers and mushrooms on toast.

The restaurant is open daily except Monday from 11:30 a. m. to 2 a. m., with Janet Henderson featured at the piano bar.

ROCKET BLAST KILLS SCIENTIST

Tiny 'Stowaway' Rescued

Mangling of Child Averted by Boy, 16

By BOB SANDERS

A 16-year-old part-time concession worker was credited with saving a 2-year-old "stowaway" girl from serious injury and possible death Saturday night when she got her clothes caught on a moving Pike merry-go-round and was dragged 50 feet.

The little girl, Martha Searcy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Searcy, of 11605 E. 209th St., was treated at Seaside Hospital for severe brush burns of the head, back and both arms and legs.

Police Officer Robert H. Brizendine credited William A. Archerd, an employe of a baseball concession at 413 E. Pike, with pulling the girl from under the merry-go-round and holding her away from a safety guard that threatened to dissect her.

Archerd said he looked out from his booth and saw the little girl lying on her stomach on the edge of the moving carrousel with one leg and part of her body hanging over the side.

"I didn't know what to do," the youth said. "I ran out and tried to hold back the merry-go-round. That didn't work, so I grabbed her and tried to pull her away.

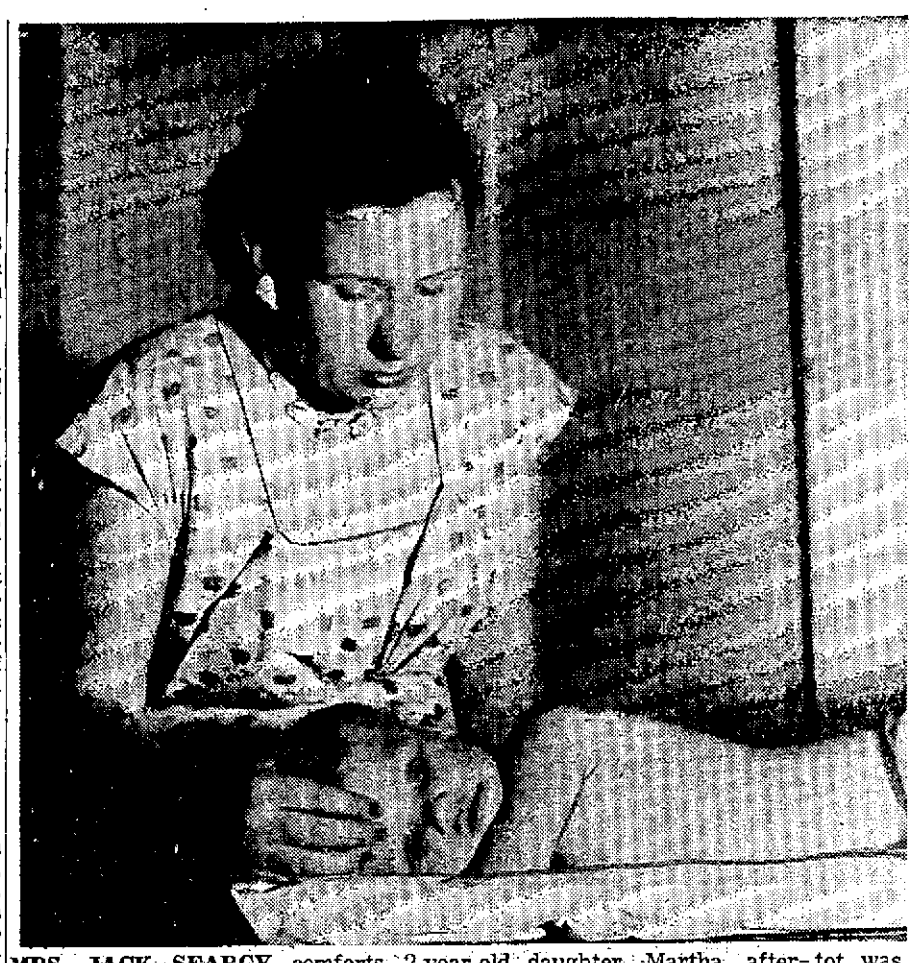

"Her dress was caught on something underneath, though, and I couldn't. I ran alongside, trying to hold her away from the edge but dropped her to the pavement several times before the merry-go-round finally stopped."

He told police the girl tried to get on the merry-go-round while it was in motion.

The operator, George H. Pierce, 39, of 32 Neptune Pl., said he didn't know the little girl was on his machine until he heard bystanders yelling at him to stop the merry-go-round.

Mrs. Seacy, 21, said she and her other two children, Fred, 4, and Alvin, 1, had been visiting the Virginia Park amusement

Ike Promises Support to Gen. Chiang

Nixon Arrives at Taipei With Personal Message

TAIPEI, Formosa (U.P.)—U. S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon flew here Saturday night to talk with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on the new Red Chinese bid to negotiate the Formosa dispute. He gave the Nationalist leader a personal message of "continuing support" from President Eisenhower.

Nixon delivered the message to Chiang shortly after he arrived from Saigon despite the lateness of the hour.

"International communism alters its tactics from time to time, but we have as yet no evidence of any change in its objectives," Mr. Eisenhower's message said.

"The American people and government realize this. Likewise, let there be no misapprehension about our own steadfastness in continuing support to the Republic of China."

* * * *

IT WAS THE SECOND such message in as many days Mr. Eisenhower had sent through his vice president to heads of free nations on the frontiers of Communist China. Nixon delivered a similar message Friday to South Viet Nam President Ngo Dinh Diem.

"I am encouraged to hear of the progress which has been made in improving security and well-being to the people of Taiwan (Formosa) despite the dangers and difficulties confronting you," the message to Chiang said.

"I am sure you share my own confidence that the close cooperation which has so long characterized our relations will continue. No problems are too great for solution when the will to work together exists. . . ."

Nixon arrived here late Saturday night and received an immediate briefing from U. S. Ambassador Karl L. Rankin and American military officials before delivering the note to Chiang.

He scheduled a secret conference with Chiang for this morning.

Japanese Electing Senators

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—Millions of Japanese voted today for their equivalent of U. S. senators after a campaign based largely on two issues involving the United States.

At stake were 127 of the 250 seats in the House of Councilors. The upper house is expected to remain Conservative despite rising Socialist strength.

The results of the voting basically a test of strength between Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama's Conservatives and the Socialists, are expected to indicate:

How fast the Conservatives can push rearmament, advocated by the United States but distasteful to many Japanese who remember the terror of World War II bombings.

How deep is the resentment of the Japanese people against U. S. military-base policy on Okinawa. Socialists are demanding the Americans leave.

A definite trend probably will not be established until sometime Monday.

L.A.C. Says: The Health Issue

Old-time reporters who served in Washington a quarter century ago recall how closely guarded was the secret of Franklin D. Roosevelt's being a cripple. They report that they never remember a news story or radio commentator referring to the candidate for President being unable to walk or even stand without braces. It was years later before millions of Americans realized the President's condition. It is now recalled how in the 1944 campaign no word was given that Mr. Roosevelt was in such desperate condition his life was despaired of.

Now we find some of these same reporters—some of them columnists with large circulation—almost daily harping on President Eisenhower's health. These men and women, who suppressed all information about Mr. Roosevelt, now set themselves up as health experts. They are columnists who were New Deal supporters all

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Dame Irene Ward served notice in the House of Commons Saturday she is going to uphold vigorously efforts of British army girls to escape wearing government issue panties.

Panties is the government word—the girls call them "baggy bloomers."

"When it comes to undies," said Dame Irene, a Conservative member of Parliament, "women like to choose their own."

She said she would bring up the matter formally in the House of Commons next Wednesday.

* * * *

"WITH THAT MONEY," said Dame Irene, "they can buy their own and not have to wear those horrors presently supplied by the Women's Royal Army Corps (WRAC)."

The pantie trouble has been a simmering issue for two years. The army girls, supported by service chiefs of both sexes, appeared united in their demand for an undie allowance, but the British treasury says the government can't afford it.

* * * *

TWO WRAC GIRLS, interviewed at a London service club, expressed their opinions. The first said:

"Those khaki bloomers are so long that they would show beneath our skirts—if we wore them. Not one girl in 50 wears them. We buy our own."

Said the other:

"No one can feel well dressed in baggy bloomers."

Asked about the bras, she declared:

"We could fasten them over our battledress. They are more like harness."

They said the trouble stems from the fact that the WRAC underwear was designed for World War I and no one has thought of changing it.

N.Y. Poles March on Red HQs

NEW YORK (AP) — Angry crowds protesting the suppression of riots in Poznan, Poland, marched on Soviet and Polish U. N. headquarters Saturday and twice nearly got out of hand.

Outside the Soviet delegation's headquarters at Park Avenue and 68th St., the yelling fist-shaking crowd of 800 surged through police lines and crowded police to the very doorway of the building.

For about one-half hour they surged about, shouting insults, singing patriotic Polish songs, and displaying black-draped flags and placards protesting the suppression of the Poznan riots.

* * * *

THEN THEY marched a few blocks to the Polish delegation's headquarters, the crowd growing to 1,400, and the performance was repeated.

Better prepared this time, police threw a line of 100 men around the building and kept the pressing crowd across the street.

5 Killed, 5 Hurt in Car Collision Near Elgin, Ill.

ELGIN, Ill. (U.P.) — Five persons, four of them in one family, were killed Saturday night and four others injured in a two-car collision near Elgin.

Dead were Mrs. Gladys Perkins, 49; her daughter, Gail, 16; and father, 80-year-old William Raywood, and Raywood's other daughter, Mrs. Marie Boyer, 52.

They were riding in a car driven by Mrs. Perkins' husband, Edison, 48, of Elgin.

Also dead in the broadside collision was 20-year-old Oliver Christenson, of Chicago, a passenger in the other car, driven by Russell Morris, 25, also of Chicago.

Air-Collision Probe Chief, Aide Disagree

Director of Crash Investigation Says TWA Pilot at Fault

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Two Civil Aeronautics Board officials disagreed Saturday on the question of pilot responsibility in the two-airliner crash which took 128 lives a week ago.

A United Air Lines DC7 and a Trans World Airlines Super Constellation presumably collided at about 21,000 feet and plunged into the Grand Canyon. They had left Los Angeles, eastbound, three minutes apart.

William K. Andrews, CAB director of safety investigation, told a House subcommittee investigating the catastrophe, worst in commercial aviation history, that "TWA had full responsibility for maintaining separation" of the two planes after the TWA ship had changed flight plans.

* * * *

ANDREWS ALSO said, "I would not hesitate to say that it was a definite collision."

Later in the hearing Oscar Bakke, deputy director of the CAB Bureau of Safety Regulations, took issue with Andrews' statement on TWA responsibility, saying that "both pilots were on their own."

* * * *

BAKKE SAID the United pilot was "burdened" to look out for other planes despite his instrument flight rules clearance if he was flying above the cloudy weather.

"Nowhere in the regulations is positive separation (of planes) provided for off airways," Bakke said.

Man Disintegrates in Plant Explosion

REDLANDS (AP)—A scientist was killed Saturday in an earth-shaking explosion at a plant manufacturing rocket fuel to be used in the proposed man-made earth satellite.

The San Bernardino County sheriff's office said Benjamin J. Kimbrig, 51, was apparently disintegrated when the powerful rocket propellant exploded at the Grand Central Rocket Co. in Mentone, five miles east of Redlands.

A shoe identified as one Kimbrig was wearing was found on the roof of a nearby building, and bits of cloth believed to be part of the scientist's clothing were found in the wreckage of the small building in which the blast occurred. There was no trace of a body.

Officials of the company said Kimbrig was inspecting a batch of the fuel in a curing oven when it inexplicably caught fire. The fuel generates about 40,000 degrees Fahrenheit when it burns, it was reported.

It is designed to supply the final boost needed to speed the satellite up to 18,000 m.p.h. and enable it to overcome the earth's gravitational pull.

* * * *

THE FORCE of the explosion ripped a steel roof off the building and tore a crater six feet deep in the earth.

Bits of debris were found scattered half a mile away, and persons five miles distant reported hearing the noise and feeling the ground shake.

Nearly all the work being done by the company is of a classified nature, but it was recently announced the plant was engaged in making and testing a solid fuel for use in Project Vanguard, the name given to the satellite-launching project.

Firing of the Vanguard Satellite is scheduled for next year off the east coast of Florida.

85 Derby Fliers in Race East

Eighty-five of the nation's best women aviators, competing in the 49-plane Powder Puff Derby, ended the first leg of their flights Saturday night at points ranging from southeastern California to west Texas.

The 2,366-mile handicap race started at 9:37 a.m. Saturday, at San Mateo County Airport, 37 minutes behind schedule, due to a low-hanging fog. Planes must cross the Flint, Mich., finish line before 5 p. m. EST, today. Winners will be selected on a time-elapsed basis, taking into account the make and horsepower of the planes.

'Leave Baby in a Church,' Parents' Plea

Second Call Made by 'Kidnaper' Who 'Will Be in Touch'

WESTBURY, N. Y. (U.P.)—The desperate mother of kidnaped 5-week-old Peter Weinberger appealed to the abductor Saturday to leave the child in any church or synagogue in the New York City area. Religious authorities agreed to keep every house of worship open around the clock to receive the child.

The appeal was made and acted upon as the search for the infant entered the crucial stage. Police sealed off a 16-block area around the Weinberger home on Long Island and clamped a tight secrecy lid on their activities while awaiting possible word from the abductor.

In a dramatic television broadcast from the back lawn of the Weinberger home Saturday night, the distraught mother pleaded tearfully with the kidnaper to return her baby.

* * * *

"WE DON'T WANT revenge," the mother said. "We want our baby back. Please believe us when we tell you with every bit of sincerity at our command that the police have given us their word they will not interfere with our attempts to get our baby back."

Peter was kidnaped Wednesday for a $2,000 ransom. A telephone caller later increased the ransom to $5,000 and the family

Truck Driver Offers $2,000 to Kidnaper

CINCINNATI (AP) — A truck driver walked into the Cincinnati Enquirer newsroom Saturday night with a plan he thinks will turn the trick in returning kidnaped Peter Weinberger to his parents.

And Bernard Waterman says he is willing to spend $2,000 of his own money to make his plan work.

Waterman said he figures the kidnaper might be willing to meet some one far removed from the scene of the kidnaping. "I think this kidnaper is too scared of police to try and collect now," Waterman said.

* * * *

THE WEINBERGER baby, only five weeks old, was snatched from his carriage last Wednesday from the family's Westbury, N. Y., home. A ransom note asking $2,000 was left.

Waterman said he is willing to take time off from work to meet the person with the baby anywhere in the country.

He said, "Me being from out of the state, he might be willing to meet me and take my money. And I promise the police will never know who he is."

Waterman said he has $1,000 now and will borrow the other $1,000. "If he can prove to me that he's the person who took the New York baby, I'll give him my $2,000."

If the kidnaper thinks Waterman's offer is good, the truck driver lives at 2350 Losantiville Rd. in Golf Manor, a Cincinnati suburb, and his telephone is Redwood 1-0538.

SEEKING THIRD WIN, Mrs. Gordon Bera, left, of Los Angeles, and her sister and co-pilot, Mrs. Jack Bower, of Long Beach, look up from a map just before the start of the Powder Puff Derby of women pilots Saturday at San Mateo County Airport. Mrs. Bera won in 1953 and 1955. The finish is at Flint, Mich., 2,366 miles east. The 49 competing planes must cross the finish line before 5 p.m. EST, today. —(AP Wirephoto.)

L.A.C. SAYS:

The Health Issue

during the Roosevelt-Truman regimes. Their present purpose is to sell the idea that Mr. Eisenhower cannot serve because of his health.

Their predictions are not borne out by the best known specialists on heart and ileitis, the bowel obstruction for which Mr. Eisenhower was operated on. These specialists have stated that there is very little danger of a recurrence of the President's troubles. They state there is no reason why he should not run for re-election. Some of the anti-Eisenhower columnists have deliberately misled their readers with misquotations from these same specialists.

When comparing the complete cover-up of President Roosevelt's health condition with the widespread publicity given that of Mr. Eisenhower, the question arises as to why newspapers did not give out such information concerning Mr. Roosevelt.

Ray Tucker, one of the veterans in Washington and not a New Dealer, says it was considered indecent to play up the physical troubles of Mr. Roosevelt. But during the 1944 campaign, when Mr. Roosevelt had apparently already had a stroke, the news was kept from newsmen by those around the President. It was recognized that Mr. Roosevelt was essential to a victory for the party. Nothing was said of his almost desperate condition until after the November election. Five months later he was dead. Mr. Truman and most of the present Democratic party leaders had a part in the secrecy surrounding Mr. Roosevelt's condition.

The newsmen are not so much at fault as it may seem in the way they handled the news in the two cases. There was planned secrecy around the Roosevelt health conditions. In the case of Mr. Eisenhower there has been a wide open discussion of every possible phase of his case. That means the President has himself set the example of how he wished the people to be informed. He has stated that he will make the final decision as to his standing for re-election.

Because the people have complete confidence in his integrity they feel certain that he will not run again, if he has any doubts about being physically able to conduct the nation's business in a firm and capable manner. That is the big difference in the way the health situation is conducted now and the way it has been conducted in the past.—L.A.C.

Parents Ask Baby 'Be Left in Church'

said it was willing to pay "any amount" for the return of the child.

* * * *

THE WEINBERGER family disclosed Saturday they had received another call Friday afternoon from the same person who increased the ransom. The call was made after the family announced to the press they would pay the higher sum.

"I'll be in touch with you again," the caller said.

* * * *

IT WAS LEARNED, however, that the caller had not yet identified himself in a way to make the family certain he was the kidnaper. A reliable source said there were definite means for the abductor to identify himself to the Weinbergers by telephone.

New York police said Nassau County police had not yet sent out the routine 13-state alarm alerting East Coast police to be on the lookout for the kidnaped baby. A police spokesman said failure to send out an alarm was "unusual."

The hopes of some police officials dimmed on the third day after Peter was snatched from his carriage in the family patio. There were fears the boy would never be found alive, but police still worked on the theory he was all right.

* * * *

TWO MEN PICKED UP for questioning Friday night failed to give any useful information, police said, and were released.

In her latest appeal for the return of her child, Mrs. Betty Weinberger asked that all places of worship be available as a point where the baby can be left by the kidnaper. The religious hierarchy of the Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths immediately announced their houses of worship would remain open 24 hours a day.

The church leaders said they would telephone police immediately if a child were left.

Mrs. Weinberger also appealed for prayers in churches of all denominations for the return of her child.

* * * *

THE ANGUISHED parents were near collapse in their $45,000 home in this Nassau County community about 20 miles from New York City's Times Square.

Detectives were assigned to around-the-clock duty in the Weinberger home and police were stationed outside. Other police closed off the entire area extending two blocks in each direction from the Weinberger house. Every person entering or leaving the area was questioned and residents were asked to report any suspicious recent events they could recall.

The Long Island Daily Press offered a $5,000 reward to the person or persons whose information leads to the return, alive, of Peter to his parents.

Hopes for Peter's early return were high Friday night after a telephone caller claiming to be the kidnaper told the father Peter was "alive and well." Then a cryptic telephone message saying only "MW PF OK" was received by television newscaster John K. M. McCaffery Friday night just before he broadcast a message from Weinberger saying the kidnaper's increased ransom demand would be met.

* * * *

THE CRYPTIC message was interpreted in several ways. Police said it could have meant that everything was all right. Nassau County Detective Chief Stuyvesant Pinnell said he thought the message was meaningless, however.

Police became increasingly secretive as they followed up every tip, even all the "crank" calls, in their all-out effort to solve the baffeling kidnaping. It was known that attempts were being made to make personal contact with all callers posing as the kidnaper. Pinnell said "stand-ins" were being used for Weinberger, 48, and his 33-year-old school teacher wife, Betty.

John McDonald, press secretary for the 1,600-man Nassau County police force, said no ransom had been paid and none had been left where the kidnaper might find it.

Many mysterious telephone calls had been received at the Weinberger home, by police, by telecaster McCaffery, and by newspapers.

Yukon Forest Fire Extinguished by Rain

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Rain has done in two days what a fire-fighting crew was unable to do in two weeks in Western Alaska. It stopped a forest fire that blackened more than 63,000 acres of spruce and brush country.

Lightning was blamed for the fire along the Yukon River, near Nulato. The flames had spread steadily in warm, dry weather.

Hoover Outlines Six Rules to Follow If Your Child Is Victim of Kidnaping

WASHINGTON (UP) — What should you do if your child is kidnaped?

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Saturday that six rules should be followed immediately as the best method to insure safe return of the kidnap victim.

He laid down the rules as FBI agents and other investigators pressed their search for the kidnaper of little Peter Weinberger of Westbury, N. Y.

Hoover said parents should:

1. Call the FBI.

2. "Maintain absolute secrecy" about the abduction except to investigating officers.

3. Hand ransom notes at once to investigators.

4. Not touch or disturb anything at the scene of the crime. Clues invisible to the naked eye might be destroyed.

5. Be calm. Try to maintain a normal routine around office and home.

6. Place full confidence in investigators and provide them with full details on the victim including "personal habits, characteristics and peculiarities."

"When kidnapings occur the first concern of the FBI and other law enforcement agencies is always the safe return of the victim," Hoover said.

* * * *

HE ALSO listed precautions parents can take to thwart kidnapers. They were:

Make certain doors, windows and screens are securely locked at night.

Keep the door to the child's room open so any unusual sound may be detected.

Be certain the child's room is not easily accessible from the outside.

Never leave young children at home alone and unprotected.

Instruct children to keep doors and windows locked. Never admit a stranger.

* * * *

TEACH CHILDREN as soon as possible how to call the police when strangers prowl about the house or attempt to get in.

Keep the house well-lighted if it becomes necessary to leave children at home.

Avoid obvious indications that parents are not at home like leaving garage doors open and newspaper outside the door.

Instruct servants never to admit strangers.

Do not advertise family finances or the household routine.

Hoover said that since 1932 when kidnaping became a federal offense the FBI has investigated 459 cases. Of that number, 457 have been solved. The other two still are under active investigation.

Airliner Collision Blame Put on Pilot of TWA Craft

United Air Lines was traffic. There is no indication that United Air Lines was advised TWA was traffic."

By this, Andrews meant that the TWA pilot had been advised that the United airliner was flying at 21,000 feet before being granted permission to change his elevation from 19,000 feet to "1,000 feet on top" of thunderclouds.

The top of the thunderclouds was estimated at about 20,000 feet, which also put TWA in the 21,000 foot range.

* * * *

ANDREWS, first witness at the subcommittee hearing presided over by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark), also said:

"United was on IFR (Instrument Flight Rules) control as it crossed the airways. The TWA captain was free to go up and down as he saw fit because he was on VFR (Visual Filght Rules).

Pressed by congressmen, Andrews agreed that the only safety factor under the circumstances was "the sight of the pilot given the VFR clearance."

By this, Andrews said, he meant that it was the TWA pilot's responsibility to be on the lookout for and avoid the United plane.

"TWA had full responsibility for maintaining separation," Andrews told the subcommittee.

Apparently she saw the merry-go-round and decided to take a ride by herself. As she climbed upon the edge, the operator started it and she couldn't get off.

Archerd said he got hold of the girl just as she was approaching the edge of a six-inch-high wooden safety guard that extends most of the way around under the machine.

HER RIGHT LEG and part of her body were hanging over the edge of the carrosuel floor and probably would have been wedged into a gap about two inches wide between the guard and undercarriage of the machine if Archerd had not grabbed her.

Test Pilot Bails Out of Jet

Rescued by Amphibian in Channel

A Douglas test pilot who bailed out of his F4D jet Skyraider into the San Pedro Channel Saturday was rescued by the crew of an Avalon Transport amphibian 37 minutes after he hit the water with a ripped parachute.

Pilot Raleigh Guynes, 28, of Los Angeles was flown to Long Beach Municipal Airport and then taken to Seaside Hospital where a spokesman said he apparently was unhurt but suffering from shock.

Guynes, who radioed he was bailing out after his jet fighter went into a spin, parachuted into the sea six miles off Marineland of the Pacific at Portuguese Bend.

* * * *

HE LEFT THE PLANE by ejecting the aircraft's seat. His 'chute ripped when it billowed open, he reported later.

"I came down awfully fast," Guynes described. "When I hit the water I thought I had broken my legs."

Guynes, a veteran of World War II and the Korean campaign, was equipped with a life jacket, and put out a dye marker after striking the water.

A dozen military and civilian aircraft flew to the scene, including the Avalon Air seaplane and the Goodyear blimp. The County Lifeguard boat, Baywatch, put out from Hermosa Beach.

Guynes, bobbing in the sea, first was spotted by Capt. Stewart Kilgour, piloting the Avalon Air Amphibian, and Jimmie L. Harris, the airline's operations manager.

As the pair pulled him aboard, Guynes exclaimed:

"This is the most beautiful airplane I have ever seen."

"The plane went into the most terrifying spin I've ever been in," Guynes said later. "When the water began to look too close for me I bailed out."

* * * *

THE AVALON PLANE left Long Beach Municipal Airport at 12:20 p.m. and picked up Guynes 17 minutes later.

Other rescue planes and ships continued to search for the wreckage of the jet fighter.

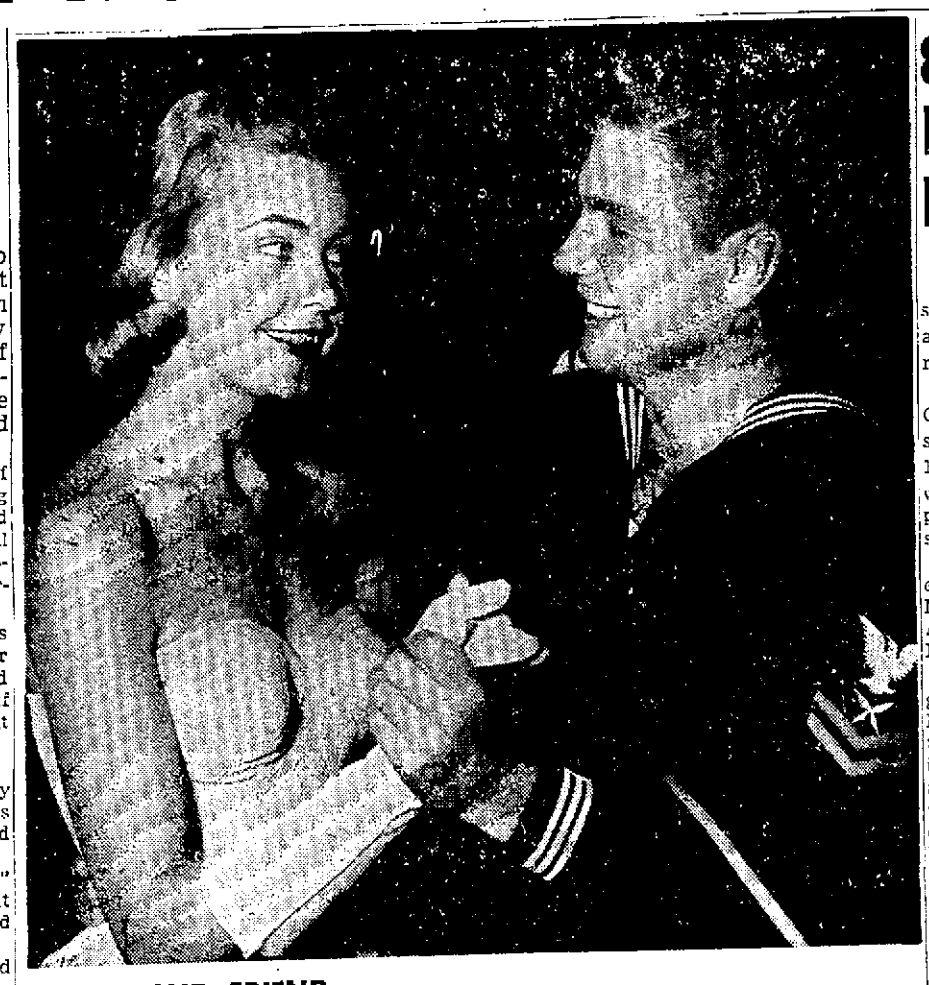

Guynes figured he struck the water a half-mile from where the plane plunged in.

A Douglas spokesman said the cause of the plane trouble had not been determined.

The ship currently is in production at Douglas' Torrance plant.

Saturn Rings as Observed Through Telescope Thrill Children of L.B.

Know one of life's greatest thrills?

Showing Saturn's rings and Jupiter's moons to children who are seeing them for the first time.

"They hardly can believe their eyes," said Arthur Cook, 1764 Chestnut Ave., who operates a home-made telescope for the pleasure of himself and his friends, many of them juveniles.

"They stand in line to look, and when their turn is over they run around to the end of the line and come through again," he added.

Cook has taken his telescope to Explorer Scout meetings and Sunday school gatherings as far away as Upland and Oxnard. He never has charged a "thin dime" for persons to look through the telescope.

* * * *

THE TELESCOPE is 7 feet long and the lens has a seven-foot focus. It was made by his brother, Samuel G. Cook of McAllen, Tex., who for 40 years taught science in the East St. Louis, Ill. high school.

Arthur Cook, who for 40 years was in the accounting department of the St. Louis Public Service Co., came to Long Beach last year.

"With my telescope," he said, "you can see Saturn's rings and four of Jupiter's moons.

"And our moon is practically in our back yard. Through the telescope you can see the mountains so you feel that you could reach out and touch them.

"That certainly thrills the kids."

$375 Ton Albacore Price Set

Franco Italian Packing Co., San Pedro, signed an agreement with the Federated Fishermen's Assn. Saturday to pay $375 a ton for albacore.

Joseph M. Mardesich, company president, said the figure was arrived at in a negotiated settlement. He said he believes Franco Italian is the first cannery to agree to that price.

The fishermen had been asking $400 a ton and most canneries were offering $350.

"The local albacore is very important to my operation," Mardesich said, "and I have to make certain of getting a fair share of the domestic albacore production to assure my being able to fulfill my commitments."

some navigational difficulties and landed at Daggett, Calif., to refuel.

Miss DeWees later landed her Cessna 140, which she is flying solo, at Needles, Calif., where 19 other planes had stopped to wait for thunderclouds to disperse and were expected to spend the night.

Two of the Long Beach-area entrants also are flying solo: Mrs. Cleo Morrison, 3291 Lewis Ave., and Jean Clark, 14341 E. Flomar Dr., Whittier.

Mrs. Frances Bera, Los Angeles, and her sister, Mrs. Edna Bower, 4913 Dunrobin St., won the race in 1955. Mrs. Bera won in 1953, finished second in 1954, and was co-pilot in the 1951 winner. They were among 20 entries who spent the night at Needles.

Another entrant is Mrs. Iris Critchell, 1604 Via Montemar, Palos Verdes Estates, copilot for Mrs. Alice Roberts of Phoenix, Ariz.

THREE AND possibly four planes flew as far east as Amarillo, Tex. Spending the night there were a Piper Apache flown by Mrs. Lois Cassidy, Chicago, and Dora J. Doughterty, Savoy, Ill.; a Bonanza with Joyce Failing, Baker, Calif., and Lauretta Foy, Van Nuys, and another Bonanza with Jane Hart, wife of Michigan's lieutenant governor, Philip Hart, with Mariana Rudolph of Mackinac Island, Mich., as copilot. Hart and Rudolph earlier had set down at Albuquerque but decided to continue.

Also believed at Amarillo was Miss Grace Harris, Kansas City, Mo., in a Cessna 140. All planes were accounted for by 9 p. m., Pacific Standard Time, with 10 stopping at Prescott, Ariz., according to late reports.

Man Hit by Auto on Ocean

A 59-year-old pedestrian was critically injured when he was hit by a car and knocked 23 feet as he walked across Ocean Blvd. at Chestnut Ave. late Saturday.

Driver of the car, Kenneth Roland Baker, 37, of 902 Kornblum Ave., Torrance, told officers he didn't see the pedestrian, who was dressed in dark clothing, until he was directly in front of his car.

Witnesses said Erickson apparently tried to beat the car and ran directly in front of it.

CITY MOVES SLOWLY ON OVERNIGHT PARKING

Flat Prohibition of Present Custom Regarded as Unlikely

By GEORGE WEEKS
City Hall Reporter

The city intends to proceed cautiously toward the regulation of overnight parking on streets—and a flat prohibition of this prevailing custom is unlikely.

Councilman Virgil H. Spongberg, chairman of the ordinance committee, has made this point clear in a letter to the City Council, made public Saturday.

Although the committee has the subject under review, Spongberg declared:

"The committee is not considering the prohibition of overnight parking; we are considering the regulation of it."

He invited persons who are interested to express their views orally or in writing to the committee, which will take up the issue again at its Aug. 6 meeting.

* * * *

WITHOUT BEING INVITED, many have already told their opinions to individual councilmen. Objectors predominate, chiefly on grounds that they have no place to park except on the street.

Spongberg recalled that at several meetings of the committee two questions arose:

Should cars be allowed to stand on the street for days at a time without being moved?

How many people who have offstreet parking or garages be encouraged to use them at night and thus relieve the congestion on many streets?

Spongberg noted it was pointed out—by himself and by J. L. Bentley, spokesman for the North Long Beach Commercial Club — that many garages are being used for storage instead of for parking.

Latest action of the committee was to request City Mgr. Sam E. Vickers' office to bring in a recommendation "similar to the Milwaukee ordinance that would be applicable to Long Beach."

* * * *

THE MILWAUKEE measure limits street parking between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m. to two hours, except by persons holding permits issued by police at a fee of $4 per month.

In order to facilitate street cleaning, the ordinance further limits 2-6 a. m. parking.

Police Chief John W. Polcyn of Milwaukee reported that, although the ordinance met strong opposition originally, it has proved effective "in building of private garages and offstreet parking spaces in various sections of the city." He added that it has yielded net revenue of $2,033,098.

Long Beach Police Chief William H. Dovey, however, expressed opposition to a similar ordinance here.

"It's impractical," he said. "Administering and enforcing such a permit system would be a big police problem. Of course it would bring in revenue, but how would it cure the parking problem when there's no place to put the cars?"

* * * *

COUNCILMAN TOBY WICK, only member of the ordinance committee to vote against any further action on parking, said he will persist in his opposition before the Council as a whole, if necessary.

Wick cited as a typical protest a letter from a woman living in the downtown district, which he represents.

"I am sure that a short survey will prove that there are not sufficient garages in this area to take care of more than a small percentage of the cars necessarily parked in the streets, and very few lots available," she wrote.

"In addition, women such as myself are reluctant to use alley parking lots, even when available at night, considering it much safer to park under street lights as close as possible to our residences."

Another committee member, Councilman Lewis D. Reese, said his main interest is in reducing the present five-day parking limit to two or three days.

City Council has already taken one short step toward relieving the parking congestion. Last month it enacted an ordinance prohibiting auto dealers from parking their overflow vehicles on streets within a quarter-mile of their agencies. The ordinance will become effective July 13.

Adults Barred From Teen-Age Hangout

"WHAT'LL YOU HAVE?", hostess Georgianne De Palma, 15, asks Norman Slaughter, 17, and Andy Cole, 17. Name card on her shoulder says simply "Georgia," keynoting simplicity of teen-ager restaurant.

SELECTING A RECORD on the juke box holds the attention of Berta Bruno, 15; Helen Perez, 14, and Judy Buss, 13. This is a decision not to be taken lightly by admirers of 1956 versions of variegated jazz.

Father Qualifies for Lollipops at New Restaurant

By VERA WILLIAMS

"Jumping with teen-agers!"

That's what Joe De Palma says of the Sugar Bowl Teen-Agers Only Restaurant he has just opened at 6095 Atlantic Ave.

"Teen-Agers Only" means what it says—adults may enter only as guests of teen-agers. And it can't be more than two adults to one teen-ager.

Let an adult, not in the firm control of a teen-ager, cross the threshold and fingers point:

"Adult!".

That means that someone—probably Ronnie Manda, 18, the more or less official "bouncer"—meets the adult at the door, tells him the rules, presents him with a lollipop, and ushers him out.

Lollipop is right. The lollipops, on sticks, hang on the ice cream bar under a sign "FREE! For adults Only."

It's a subtle way of turning the tables on other places where kids get the lollipops and adults have the fun.

* * * *

"THIS PLACE IS the idea of my kids, especially my daughter Georgianne," explains De Palma, 43, father of three teen-age daughters, who has been in the restaurant business here since 1945.

"We had a lease on this building and no particular plans for it. Georgianne said 'Let's open a place for teen-agers!'"

It opened last week but the formal opening will be at 6 p.m., July 30. City officials will be invited, Klieg lights will sweep the sky, and the teen-agers have promised to "dress" for the occasion. That means that one night there will be no T-shirts, sports shirts, jeans, pedal pushers. The girls will wear party dresses; the boys will wear flannels, shirts, coats, ties.

But now a rollicking, noisy, happy informality prevails. The juke box plays rock n' roll and once in a while sweet music from morning to late at night. The teen-agers play an old, tinkling nickelodeon. They play shuffleboard and skill pool. They put away unbelievably huge hamburgers, stacked-up sandwiches they hardly can get their jaws around, a variety of pizzas, French fries, cokes, root beers, ice cream.

INVADING ADULTS are put in their place by offer of free lollipops.

* * * *

NO ONE NEED spend any money.

"We don't ask anybody to buy anything," explains Joe De-Palma. "If they want anything, they have to go after it."

The room is probably 50 feet deep, 35 feet wide and 150 teen-agers are packed in it almost every evening.

At the left is the ice cream "bar." Flavors are lined up in bottles on the bar, and are poured on the ice cream by means of a shot glass.

"Makes the kids feel grown-up," comments Joe.

Joe's daughter, Dolores, 17, is the cook; his daughters, Georgianne, 15, and Barbara, 14, wait on the ice cream trade.

At the back of the room are the juke box, nickelodeon, skill pool and shuffleboard tables, and an old-fashioned motion picture eye-view affair with scenes reminiscent of Keystone cops and the Perils of Pauline.

Shuffleboard is free; skill pool costs a dime a game. It's a nickel—not a dime—juke box. Food and soft drink prices are comparable to those in other restaurants.

* * * *

"YOU CAN FOOL an adult with a hamburger, but you can't fool a teenager," explains Joe. "Ours are the best we can make. . . . And we make our banana splits like they were 25 or 30 years ago, ice cream all the way through."

No intoxicating liquor is sold, of course, and no cigarettes. Matches are supplied on request.

At intervals Joe hands out free peanuts. He gave out 100 pounds in three days and it is all right to drop the shells on the floor.

Hours are 11 a.m. to midnight, closed Mondays.

What about rules?

"There aren't any. The kids police themselves."

Liquor? . . . Arguments? . . . Bad language?

"They haven't brought any liquor. I don't think they will. The kids promise if they have any serious arguments they'll go some place else to settle them. And as for the language, I haven't heard a swear word or an off color joke here. The kids are so glad to have a place of their own that they won't do anything to spoil it."

JOE DE PALMA, right, holds the basket and Mack Lang, 15; Delmar Nye, 14, and Mickey Mize, 15, grab for peanuts.—(Staff Photos by Bob Shumway.)

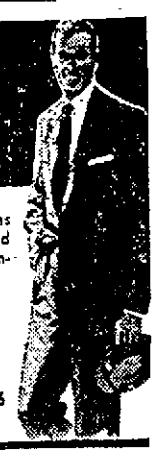

Philip Invents Electric Cloth

LONDON (UP)—The Duke of Edinburgh has invented an electrified table cloth, a London newspaper reported Saturday.

The Evening Standard said it will enable Queen Elizabeth to stick electric candelabra onto the table cloth of the royal yacht Britannia and have them light up without unsightly wires.

The paper said the 58-foot table cloth has "hundreds of yards of wire sandwiched between layers of felt and latex." Each of the candelabra has two small pins in its base which stick into the conductors.

India Envoy Cooper Tosses Hat in Senate Ring at Ike's Request

Former Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper announced Saturday he will run for the Senate from Kentucky at the personal request of President Eisenhower.

It marked the third time Mr. Eisenhower had given his personal endorsement to big-name Republicans in the GOP drive to recapture control of Congress in the November elections.

He previously had successfully persuaded former Interior Secretary Douglas McKay to run against Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), and Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington to oppose Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash).

Cooper is now ambassador to India at a salary of $25,000 a year. He presumably will relinquish that post although that is a matter between him and Mr. Eisenhower. He previously had refused to seek the Kentucky seat but changed his mind after a telephone talk with the President Friday.

* * * *

COOPER WILL OPPOSE former Kentucky Gov. Lawrence B. Wetherby. Cooper said he would seek the office because the President told him "he would be pleased" if Cooper would run.

The Kentucky Republican Central Committee, meeting in Louisville, nominated Cooper by acclamation soon after receiving a telegram in which he agreed to run.

Cooper, now in Washington on diplomatic business, told the committee he acceded to Mr. Eisenhower's wishes only Friday. He said he talked to the President by telephone and "the President told me the support of these (administration) programs in the Congress is of great importance and that he would like for me to be a candidate for the United States Senate, if it was desired in Kentucky."

* * * *

REPUBLICANS are hopeful that a ticket headed by Mr. Eisenhower, Cooper, and former assistant secretary of state Thurston B. Morton will sweep normally Democratic Kentucky in November. Morton is opposing Sen. Earle C. Clements (D-Ky) for a full six-year term.

Cooper is seeking the unexpired four years of the term of the late Sen. Alben W. Barkley, the Bluegrass State's political powerhouse who toppled Cooper from the Senate in 1954.

Mr. Eisenhower carried Kentucky in 1952 by only about 700 votes. Cooper, who was defeated by the late Sen. Thomas Underwood (D-Ky) in 1948, ran ahead of Mr. Eisenhower. He and Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) were the only Republican senatorial candidates to run ahead of the President in their states in 1952.

* * * *

ON THE PRESIDENTIAL political level:

In Raleigh, N. C., Gov. Luther H. Hodges, a Stevenson supporter, predicted New York Gov. Averell Harriman won't get much support for his Democratic presidential nomination campaign when he speaks at a Young Democratic rally July 14 at Asheboro, N. C. Hodges said he will stay away from the rally.

A group of college students and recent graduates opened a campaign to nominate Harold E. Stassen as the Republican vice presidential candidate. Stassen, former Minnesota governor and now an assistant on disarmament to Mr. Eisenhower, unsuccessfully sought the GOP presidential nomination in 1948 and 1952.

H. Brooks Baker, 22-year-old resident of Washigton, D. C., heads the group. He said it is acting without any indication of Stassen's personal feelings about the matter.

Baker said he telegraphed Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall that "we are not certain a majority of the American people and the Republican Party is happy with your choice" of Vice President Richard M. Nixon as Mr. Eisenhower's second-term running mate.

And in Chicago a new third party movement started up.

The Independent Elector Plan, an offshoot of the "For America" political group headed by Clarence Manion, circulated petitions to nominate Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind) and Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) as presidential and vice presidential candidates, respectively.

KENTUCKY REPUBLICAN leaders greeted w[illegible] jubilation Saturday a wire from John Sherman Cooper confirming he will quit as ambassador to India to run for U. S. senator. Reading the telegram in Louisville are (left to right) Dewey Daniel, chairman of GOP State Central Committee; James Park, who withdrew as candidate for nomination; and Thurston B. Morton, a Republican candidate for the second Senate seat at stake in Kentucky in November.—(AP Wirephoto)

Boy, 'Mad at World,' Says He Set Santa Anita Blaze

SIERRA MADRE (UP) — A 16-year-old boy who said he was "mad at the world" has admitted starting an Angeles National Forest fire which was brought under control early Saturday, Sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said the boy, an inmate of a state school for the mentally retarded at El Monte, Calif., told them he started the fire which burned in Santa Anita Canyon, by striking two rocks together.

District U. S. forest ranger William Dresser said a youth was reported dropping lighted matches in the area shortly before the blaze. He was believed to have scampered into dense brush when firefighters arrived.

The fire broke out late Friday along the trail from Sierra Madre to Chantry Flats. Fire fighters flown in by helicopters, were dropped along the fire lines and finally contained the blaze.

2 Jets Collide, One Pilot Killed

GLENVIEW, Ill. (AP) — Two jet fighter planes collided over the Glenview Naval Air Station Saturday and one of the pilots was killed.

Sources close to the air station said the other pilot safely crash landed his plane.

Both planes were piloted by Marine officers.

The collision occurred during preparations for an air show to be staged in connection with a 10th anniversary observance of the founding of the Naval Air Reserve Training Command.

The Cook County coroner's office said the dead pilot was Lt. George Crane, 27, Chicago.

Chinese Actress Outshines Sultan in S.F. Arrival

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —Li Li-hwa, a leading Chinese motion picture actress, arrived Saturday aboard the liner President Wilson.

On the pier to greet her was a large delegation from San Francisco's Chinatown.

Also around was a covey of newsmen and photographers. They got quite a few pictures. Miss Li-hwa wielded a shuffleboard stick. She had a split skirt. Nice legs.

She told reporters she might possibly become an American citizen, that she had played in 63 money-making pictures, that she has signed a contract with Cecil B. DeMille and expects to make a pirate picture in this country.

Newsmen got so interested they failed to produce much about another passenger, Sir Abu Baker Tengku Azem T. Omar of Pahang Pekan Pahang of Malaya. He's a sultan.

Boat Safe After Tow by Navy

A 34-foot cabin cruiser turned up safe, though seven hours overdue, in Newport Harbor Saturday night after Coast Guard ships and planes had scoured the waters off the Long Beach breakwater.

Coast Guard officials said they received a distress call from the Koa Mei, owned by M. C. Graham of Walnut, Calif.

The Coast Guard sent out a search plane and two boats to search the area five miles south of the east end of the breakwater but failed to turn up the missing craft.

* * * *

AT 11 P.M. the Coast Guard was notified that Graham and eight to 10 passengers were safe in Newport Beach.

Graham said the Koa Mei had had a breakdown and that a Navy craft had towed his ship to port.

The Coast Guard said no explanation was available concerning the distress call which said the ship was "breaking up."

Season's High Tides Hit

The season's high tide hit the beach Saturday night but failed to do major damage.

Lifeguards said the Saturday night tides were not accompanied by the large swells which caused considerable flooding of beaches Friday night.

Waters overflowed a sand embankment built along the main beach at the foot of Linden Ave. but did not damage the $28,000 public rest room there.

The only area flooding from the 7.1-foot tide was reported along The Toledo in Naples east of the 2nd St. bridge where several inches of water covered the street.

Russia Behind West in Color Television

LONDON (UP)—Russia, which claims it invented the radio, is trailing far behind the West in the field of color television, a Soviet electronics engineer admitted Saturday.

Engineer Mikhail Sobolev, head of a delegation to a color telvision conference in Leningrad, said the Communist world still is in the experimental stage of color TV.

Navy Rescue Team's Plane Wrecked but Man Rescued

SEATTLE (AP) — Five Navy airmen, dunked in the North Pacific when their plane broke apart on a mercy-flight landing, got their mission accomplished anyhow. But they had to hitchhike a ride home by ship.

Lt. H. A. Marlin of Detroit, the pilot, and his companions told of their chilling experience on their arrival here Saturday on the troopship Gen. W. A. Mann.

It was a week ago that they flew 750 miles from Adak Island, in the Aleutians, in answer to an emergency call for surgery for a ship's crew member with a perforated ulcer.

* * * *

"ACTUALLY, we made a normal landing," said Lt. Marlin. "Then some part of the hull gave way."

After the five were rescued from the sinking plane, one of them, Lt. Rodger Alspach, a Navy surgeon from Van Wert, Ohio, performed the operation on the ailing ship's crew member, M. E. Johnson of Seattle. His condition was reported satisfactory as he was taken to a Navy hospital Saturday.

Other members of the dunked plane crew were Lt. V. A. Dauro, the copilot from Long Beach, Miss.; Thomas Johnson, Abilene, Tex., and John Humphrey, Los Angeles.

Illinois Girls Just Overlooked

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP) — It wasn't a lack of beauty that kept Illinois girls from entering the national "College Queen" competition, it was a lack of entry blanks.

Contest officials at Asbury Park, N. J., said they were surprised last week when no Illinois girls submitted entries.

The Champaign News Gazette said it had received a "lot" of calls from girls who read the officials' statement. The girls explained they were unaware of the contest and wanted to know how to enter.

Mind Patient Called Crazy Like a Fox

SPARKS, Nev. (AP)—Authorities in Sparks and Las Vegas finally unraveled Saturday the strange case of a Las Vegas burglary suspect who slipped into the state mental hospital by posing as another man.

And, they concluded, if 63-year-old Trinidad Swenson needed mental treatment it was only because he was crazy like a fox.

Here's the tale of Swenson's escapade as pieced together by Police Chief Robert Galli of Sparks, Police Chief Raymond Sheffer of Las Vegas and Dr. Sidney Tillim, superintendent of the Nevada State Hospital.

Swenson, with an impressive record of 38 arrests in past years, was in the Clark County Jail, waiting trial on a burglary charge in connection with the looting of a motel room.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, another Las Vegas man was lodged in the jail pending arrival of Sparks attendants to take him to the hospital.

When they arrived early this week, they gathered up the patient's personal belongings and papers and called out his name.

Instead of the patient, Swenson stepped forward.

He reportedly enjoyed the state-financed 440-mile ride to Sparks in the hospital ambulance.

It wasn't until Friday that Las Vegas police discovered the awful truth.

Working on the assumption that Swenson was motivated by a sound belief that it would be easier to escape from the hospital than the jail in Las Vegas, they telephoned Chief Galli in Sparks to collar him at the hospital.

* * * *

GALLI DID SO and Swenson spent Friday night in the Sparks jail.

Dr. Tillim said he had noted some contradictions between Swenson's story of his life and the background the hospital had in connection with the patient it was supposed to receive.

"But," observed the doctor, "we don't call a fellow a liar on the first acquaintance."

He added that Swenson, in his three days at the hospital, had not yet undergone the examinations aimed at diagnosing his alleged illness.

Star of Graziano Movie in Hassle With Police and Irate Bartender

ROSLYN, N. Y. (AP) — Paul Newman, 31, who plays the part of boxer Rocky Graziano in the movie "Somebody Up There Likes Me," found himself in need of friends Saturday.

He and a party came to the Jolly Fisherman here Friday night to celebrate his successful movie appearance. Sometime after midnight came the need for friends.

* * * *

SOON AFTER Newman drove away from the restaurant bartender Thomas Hutchek complained to police that Newman had knocked down shrubbery with his car. He gave police Newman's license number. They went in pursuit.

Several miles up the road the police nabbed the actor and charged him with leaving the scene of an accident and with passing a red light.

Taken immediately to Nassau County police headquarters for booking, Newman was surprised to find a battery of photographers waiting.

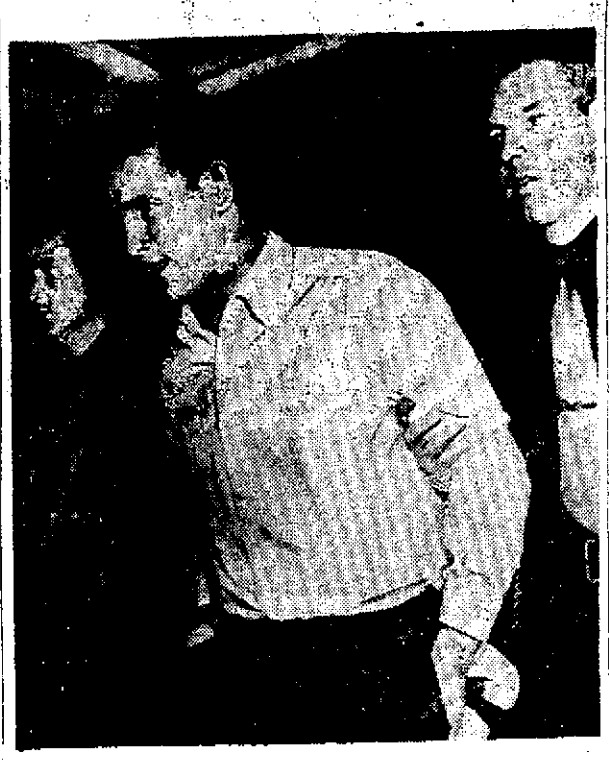

"How did you hear about it so soon?" he asked.

* * * *

THE PHOTOGRAPHERS were not there to meet Newman. They were waiting for a break in the Peter Weinberger kidnaping case in nearby Westbury. They snapped him anyhow.

Newman was kept at headquarters until his arraignment in First District Court where Hutchek demonstrated a change of heart.

The bartender told Judge Kathleen Kane he did not want to press the charge and said he had received compensation for damage to the shrubs. The judge allowed the charge to be withdrawn. Newman pleaded innocent to passing a red light and he was released for trial Aug. 16.

Lady Athletes --Men, Too-- Nab Burglar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three generations of muscular athletes pounced upon Louis C. Bell, 30, when he was discovered in the Frank Mrak home early Saturday.

The alarm was sounded by Mrak's wife, Mrs. Alyce Mrak—a champion lady bowler—after she allegedly heard Bell enter through a window, police said.

Her cries awakened other members of the household. They included:

Mrak, who was an outstanding athlete at St. Regis College, Denver, where he pitched two no-hitters and played football and basketball.

Fred Mrak, their son, an All-City tackle at Los Angeles High School and a candidate for the UCLA varsity this fall.

Mrs. Mrak's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Gaard, a one-time ice skating champion.

The Mraks' weekend visitor, Fred's fiancee, Mary Hooker, champion girl swimmer.

Police arrived in time to prevent any serious injury and Bell was booked at the Wilshire station on suspicion of burglary.

Court Protects Bachelor

TYLER, Tex. (UP)—A Tyler bachelor asked and obtained a temporary court injunction Saturday to protect him from the apparent romantic wiles of a woman.

The bachelor, Ross T. Phillips, told District Judge Connally McKay of Tyler that the woman had pursued him many days and nights in one way or another.

The injunction was granted and a hearing on it set for July 13. The petition listed the woman's name as Guinndoline Maddin of Smith County. She could not be located for comment.

Phillips said the woman's action had put him "in fear and embarrassment," causing him "great mental worry" to the extent that his health and well-being are impaired.

The bachelor said in his petition that the woman had telephoned him so often that he has "practically ceased to answer the telephone."

Phillips did not give his exact age but one of his attorneys said he was in his 50s or early 60s.

Glimpse of Pope Cures Paralysis, Woman Asserts

TERMINI IMPRESE, Italy (U.P.)—Mrs. Titi Polito, wife of a post office worker, said Saturday the sight of Pope Pius XII at his study window cured her of paralysis of the right arm.

Mrs. Polito said her arm suddenly became paralyzed in February, 1955, while she was slicing bread in her home. Medical treatment proved no help.

Three days ago, she said, she and her husband went to Rome and mingled with pilgrims in St. Peter's Square, waiting for the Pope's daily appearance at his study window.

When he offered his blessing to the crowd, she said, she crossed herself—with her right hand.

SHERIFF LOSES IN POLL, FIRES HIS DEPUTIES

GUYMON, Okla. (AP)—Texas County Sheriff Jim Tucker said not even his deputies supported him in his unsuccessful bid for re-election. And he fired them.

In Tuesday's primary election, Tucker ran last in a field of six candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for sheriff.

He confirmed Friday that he had fired C. F. (Jake) Gibson, jailer, and Deputies W. L. Hitchcock, and Bill John Pugh.

"I figure the least my deputies could have done was to go to the polls and vote for me," Tucker said.

Negro FHA Aide Quits, Raps Boss

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Mrs. Corienne R. Morrow, Brooklyn Negro who was fired and then reinstated, resigned Saturday as racial relations adviser to the Federal Housing Administration. The job pays $10,000 a year.

She charged in her letter of resignation that the agency "stands firmly as the last bastion of governmentally sanctioned racism in the United States."

Mrs. Morrow was discharged by Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole on July 25, 1955, in what he called a "reduction in force." But the Civil Service Commission's appeals examining office ordered her reinstatement on grounds her job rights had been violated.

* * * *

SHE WROTE Douglas E. Chaffin, the agency's personnel director, that despite her victory she found it necessary "in good conscience to terminate my services with the federal government."

She has accepted a similar position with a New York City inter-group relations organization.

By discharging her, she wrote, Cole acted "to repudiate and reject the concepts of sound racial relations in administration of the federally assisted housing programs" with which she had been identified since 1936.

* * * *

HIS ACTION, she said, was "an open invitation for the unchallenged pursuit of housing programs and policies calculated to restrict the right of racial minorities in access to housing."

The administration, she said, is promoting a "minority housing program conceived to counteract the effects of the Supreme Court's decision calling for public school integration."

Stolen $12,000 Rings Returned in Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two rings valued at $12,000 were found in a telephone booth Saturday by a detective who received an anonymous tip that they were there.

Detective George Green said they were part of the loot in a $17,000 burglary in West Palm Beach last Sunday.

Green, who recovered the rings from the booth at the rear of bleachers at Flamingo Park baseball field, said they had been wrapped in tissue paper and placed behind the coin slots of the pay telephone.

One ring was set with a seven-carat diamond and the other set with a huge pearl, Green added. They were taken from the home of a West Palm Beach accountant in a burglary for which Gerald Chesley Bond, 13-year-old Louisville, Ky., boy is being held in New York, the detective said.

Green said he believed an adult who either bought the jewels from the boy or was holding them for him became frightened, hid the rings and tipped the detective by phone.

3 on Tug Killed

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 3,121-ton Swedish freighter Sunnanland rammed the tug which was docking her here Saturday and three of the four members of the tug's crew perished. Witnesses said the tug, the Tyr, exploded and sank in less than a minute.

Pedicab Drivers Hit Proposal for Cutback

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Pedicab drivers are protesting a municipal move to cut the number of pedicabs in Taipei from 10,000 to 7,000. Authorities say there is not enough space for pedicab stations and that brawls between roving pedicab drivers and those allotted stations are common.

Iwo Jima Division Pays Tribute to Fallen Marines

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., (AP) — Veterans of one of the world's finest groups of fighting men—the 5th Marine Division. Assn.—paid tribute Saturday to departed comrades.

It was the division's seventh annual reunion and it ended with election of Dr. Bernard Botsch of Toledo, Ohio, as president.

Vice presidents elected were: Cmdr. Leon Elsman, USN, Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Ill.; Brig. Gen. C. H. Shuey, Newark, N. J.; Col. George A. Roll, Washington, D. C.; and Capt. Paul Preston, Miami.

Maj. States R. Jones, Washington, D. C., was elected secretary-treasurer and the group voted to hold its next convention in Buffalo, N. Y.

It was 11 years and four months ago that the 5th Marine Division stormed ashore on Iwo Jima, a cindery island born in the heat and flame of volcanic eruption.

* * * *

THE DIVISION'S brief battle record—it was created late in World War II and disbanded shortly after hostilities ceased—was as fiery as the forces that created Iwo Jima itself.

Of the 19,000 men attached to the division, some 60 per cent were casualties on the rugged slopes and parched valleys of the Pacific island. The dead numbered 2,500. But at the end of the division's ordeal the stars and stripes were flying proudly from the top of Mount Suribachi. The mission was accomplished.

Unfortunately, as so often happens in the fury and chaos of war, names of the infantrymen who actually took the hilltop are lost.

But there were many in the 5th Division who deserve the name of hero. Many are living today, and those have another mission — that of helping the children of the men who died on Iwo to obtain a college education.

There are only 571 children, for most of those who gave their lives were young men of college age.

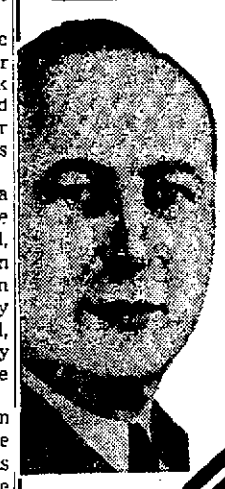

Fifth Division Assn. men are contributing as much as they can to this educational fund. At the convention, they invited anyone else who would like to help to send a contribution to "Marines, P.O. Box 108, Miami, Fla."

REGIONAL POLITICS

Fog of Indifference Covers Council Race

By THE LOOKOUT

Although the special election there is less than three weeks away, indifference lies like a pea-soup fog over the Fifth Councilmanic District in Long Beach.

That's the word from candidates and others who have started canvassing the area where a successor to the late Councilwoman Ruth H. Bach will be elected on July 26.

One candidate reports he found many people unaware that there is to be an election. When he asked for support, some citizens voiced surprise he was around so long before the next general city election.

* * * *

THERE ARE MORE than 16,000 registered voters in the Fifth District, but present indications point to a small fraction of that number balloting in the special election. More active campaigning in the next two weeks may change the picture, but at present the outlook for a representative vote is gloomy.

The district is bounded roughly by Los Coyotes Diagonal on the southeast, Carson St., Bellflower and Del Amo Blvds. on the north; Lakewood Blvd., Cherry and Redondo Aves. on the west.

Candidates are getting their campaigns under way. Capt. Charles M. Garrison, long-time civic worker who lives at 4315 Faculty Ave. in Lakewood Village, has announced a lengthy list of citizens as "supporters and sponsors."

Captain Garrison said he will devote full time to Councilmanic duties. He stated he will work for cleaning up and lining drainage districts, and for a square deal for the people on the sidewalk issue as well as on taxes, water, gas, transportation and subsidence problems.

* * * *

CANDIDATE Oliver W. Speraw, 2360 Tulane Ave., said he favors increased water pressure to give better fire protection, more water for lawns and reduced insurance rates in the district. Speraw, who is vice president of the Long Beach Board of Water Commissioners, urges immediate acquisition of the Lakewood Power and Water Co., a private utility. Tying in the company's pipelines, he said, will provide a flow of water from the Alamitos reservoir to produce greater pressure in the district. He explained that 8 to 20-inch reinforcing mains also could be installed throughout the network of smaller company mains to help boost water pressure.

Candidate Clarence E. Wolf, engineer at the Pacific Coast Club, has been campaigning by house-to-house visitation. He said he feels his candidacy is steadily gaining headway.

Other candidates, becoming increasingly active, are Fred Russell, 4426 Tulane; Gertrude Anderson, 3225 Charlemagne; Erik Flamer, 2578 Gandia; Murray Striewig, 4325 Pepperwood, and Joseph Strigel, 4528 Warwood Rd.

PARTY UNITS AT WORK

Twenty-eight residents of the Long Beach area will begin their official duties Tuesday as newly elected members of the county central committees of the two major parties.

Organization meetings of the committees will be held in Los Angeles Tuesday evening, with the Republicans meeting in the Alexandria Ballroom and the Democrats convening in the Assembly chamber of the state office building. Officers will be elected, with Republican V. John Krehbiel and Democrat Don Rose expected to be reelected as chairmen.

Here are the committeemen from the two assembly districts here:

Republican, 44th District — Ward Johnson, Sammie Gilstrap, Dorothy Goodknight, Owen M. Murphy, Edna W. MacGregor, Celeste F. Brougher and Woodrow W. Baird.

Democratic, 44th District — Louis O. Fasnacht, Charles M. Gallagher, Edwin J. Wilson, Carl M. Baker, R. E. Corbett, Ferdinand Suhrer and Elizabeth B. Farrell.

Republican, 70th District — Orville W. Cole, Robert A. Wenke, James K. McCall, Gladys O'Donnell, Grace C. Bixby, Murray E. Striewig and Gilberg G. Wagner.

Democratic, 70th District — Mary C. Rene, George Nye Jr., Arthur N. Sandler, Mary J. Boyd, Jack Feuer, Samuel E. Peters, and Paul Malmuth.

At Tuesday's meetings the committees will plan their roles in behalf of their respective tickets in the November general election.

Native Sons Plan Joint Installation

Ormand P. Rogers will become president of Native Sons of the Golden West, Long Beach Parlor 278, in a joint installation of Native Sons and Native Daughters at 2:30 p.m. today in Los Cerritos Ranch House, 4600 Virginia Rd.

Walter H. Boerner will be installing officer for the Sons, with Harcourt M. Hocker chairman.

Other officers will be Harcourt M. Hocker, Leslie E. Still Jr., past presidents; Gerald Desmond, Irving W. Duelks, John R. Lawrence, vice presidents; Richard D. Myers, marshal; Frank W. Boynton, Alfred T. Hiefield, secretaries; Joseph E. Sousa, treasurer; Freeman W. Sinclair, Lester Smith, sentinels; John A. Schwamm, Fred E. Dunn, William V. Artman, trustees.

New officers of Long Beach Parlor 154 of Native Daughters are listed on Page W-4.

Grace's Heart Still in Movies

MONACO, Monte Carlo (UP)—Princess Grace (nee Kelly) is still movie struck. She has a wide screen projection room in the royal palace and sees a different program every day. She and Prince Rainer III have seen three films in public movie houses in the past week—two French, one American. The other day, while motoring, she had the car stop so she could watch a movie team work.

Gringos Can Walk to See Patio Beauty

MEXICO CITY (UP) — The huge patio of the national palace is visited by about every tourist who visits this capital.

It had come to be an eyesore of parked cars contrasting with the famous murals of the patio. The story is that high officials the other day overheard a tourist say: "Such a big garage."

That did it.

Seashore Vanishing for Public

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Park Service came up Saturday with some bad news for vacationers: Much of the seashore is rapidly vanishing from public use for recreation.

Park Director Conrad L. Wirth based the report on a recreation area survey of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts from Calais, Maine, to Brownsville, Texas. Wirth said:

"The facts uncovered by the survey are alarming. Only a fraction of our long seacoast is left undeveloped for potential public use, and much of this small portion is rapidly disappearing before our eyes.

"The survey will have served its purpose well if public-spirited citizens and local, state and federal governments are stirred to take necessary steps, before it is too late, to preserve this priceless heritage."

* * * *

THE SURVEY report showed: Only 240 miles of the 3,700 miles of general coastline from Maine to Texas are now in federal and state ownership for public recreation purposes. About half of this 240 miles embraces three areas of the national park system—Acadia and Everglades National Parks and the Cape Hatteras National Seashore.

The major remaining opportunities for conservation of seashore resources are largely confined to 54 undeveloped areas comprising 640 miles of beachfront.

"The supply of undeveloped seashore is dwindling fast under pressures of a booming market for beachfront holdings," the report said. "The number of persons seeking to acquire seashore property is sky-rocketing and so is the price."

Steel Strike Enters Into Second Week

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The nationwide steel strike marched through its first week Saturday more as a disagreement among friends than a major economic struggle between mighty forces of big labor and big business.

There was no sign of a solution. Ninety per cent of the nation's basic steel production had been halted; 650,000 steelworkers were idle. Their walkout spread its effects to other industries where nearly 50,000 more workers were furloughed "for the duration."

* * * *

IN PHILADELPHIA, the Pennsylvania Railroad declined comment on a report published by the Philadelphia Bulletin that the railroad has ordered a 10 per cent pay cut for all non-union employes as an economy move resulting from the steel strike. The newspaper report said the cut would hit PRR officials, including President James M. Symes, and that employes affected will be granted two extra days off each month.

The total of strike-idled workers was certain to climb swiftly next week as business generally returned to a more normal course after the July 4th holiday week—a widely-used vacation period.

* * * *

CONTRACT TALKS remained stalled on dead center of the deadlock existing when the United Steelworkers struck last Saturday midnight. Even the entry of the federal mediation service, for brief separate talks with union and industry leaders, brought no hint of progress toward resumed negitiations.

$65,000 Loss on Liberace Ohio Concert

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Liberace's concert turned out to be a bad financial tune for its two Youngstown, Ohio, promoters.

The concert, originally scheduled for July 4 but postponed because of rain, was held Friday night with 5,000 fans showing up at the 36,000-seat Rubber Bowl.

Reporters were told the promoters, Frank Gorgic and David McComb, lost $65,000 on the program.

Liberace and his brother, George, were paid $35,000. Variety, the entertainment newspaper, called it one of the biggest fees paid for a single performance.

Handler Returns, Dog Still Roams

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y. (UP)—Lonesome "Sheba," the vicious sentry dog who has been on a week-long hunger strike, continued to roam the Plattsburgh Air Force Base Saturday despite the return of her handler.

The hunger strike began when her handler, Airman 3/C Matthew Bardsley, 20, of Pawtucket, R. I., went on leave. He was called back to duty Saturday because he is the only person the German shepherd will obey.

The dog has been spotted several times since but no one has been able to get close enough to attempt a capture.

U.S. Fisheries-Aid Bills Passed by House, Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Saturday passed and sent to the Senate a bill designed to rehabilitate and give federal aid to the commercial fishing industry. The Senate has passed a similar bill.

The House measure creates a new Assistant Secretary of the Interior and upgrades the present Fish and Wildlife Service to include a Bureau of Commercial Fisheries and a Bureau of Wildlife. And in addition, it authorizes a permanent fund to provide loans to the fishing industry.

In reporting the bill to the House, the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee said depletion of fishing resources, rising operating costs and the need for new marketing and research techniques make federal help necessary.

It said the proposed changes in the law will "go far toward rehabilitating an industry important to the well being of the nation."

It cited the New England groundfish Carlifornia sardine and the salmon fishing industries as examples of problems requiring federal assistance.

Under the bill, conservation and control of game fishing is assigned to the director of the Wildlife Bureau to meet needs of sportsmen.

A similar bill has been passed by the Senate.

Airline Collision Shows Failure of Control Plan

By BEN PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two commercial airliners crashed into each other over the Grand Canyon a week ago Saturday and 128 people died in a four mile plunge.

In Congress there is concern and alarm. Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla) has asked the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to investigate whether present air operations are keeping pace with developments in the flying industry.

The answer is a clear no. The "why" of it is something else again.

Off and on for 10 years the people concerned with flying have been warning that the air space over the United States is becoming overcrowded. Already there are 90,000 active aircraft in operation. Since 1950 there have been 66 air collisions.

They have been warning, too, that the present control system is being outmoded rapidly by high speed, high altitude planes. The complaint is that the system depends on voice radio control, eats up air space and doesn't provide broad enough supervision. Only 15 per cent of all the air traffic now flies under controlled conditions.

As far back as February 1944 the then head of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Charles Stanton, was warning of the need to improve control equipment immedately after the war.

Last December the air facilities study group headed by William B. Harding, Wall Street banker, reported to the Budget Bureau:

"Our present traffic control system is incapable of handling all the traffic that operates in good weather and any attempt to require all traffic to fly at all times under positive control with tools now available would be chaotic."

* * * *

THE CONTROL SYSTEM now used by the CAA was set up in 1936—Saturday was the 20th anniversary. It is essentially a manual system of tracing the progress of aircraft along 167,000 miles of controlled air space. All plane locations are posted by hand from information received by radio checks.

Harding's group concluded: "This obsolescent system is far too slow and too cumbersome to handle today's high speed, high density air traffic."

The CAA control system, called Federal Airways, was established primarily to handle 160-mile-per-hour DC3s. Now it is being asked to carry planes with a cruising speed of 300 miles per hour. The jet age in commercial availation will begin in 1959 when the air lines begin taking delivery on a billion dollars worth of 500-mile-per-hour plus turbine powered aircraft.

The commercial airlines can foresee the day when coast-to-coast flights will be made at 1,000 miles per hour. Meanwhile supersonic speeds by military aircraft are commonplace.

The future needs of the aviation industry currently are being studied by a special presidential committee headed by Edward P. Curtis, former Kodak company official from Rochester, N. Y. It will be another 18 months, though, before his report is ready.

As for the here and now, H. S. Chandler, deputy chief of Federal Airways, said the situation was something like trying to regulate today's powerful automobiles over horse and buggy highways—along with the horse and buggy.

Chandler also said there is stuff on the shelf—electronic gear already developed—capable of providing faster and safer control of planes.

* * * *

THE BIG PROBLEM at CAA is money, though no one will stand still for direct quotation. One official said, "We simply can't talk about money at this time. There are too many other interests involved."

In the records of the Senate commerce committee are figures introduced by Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel (R-Kan) indicating the money problem.

In 1950 the CAA asked for $127,000,000 for navigation aids. The Department of Commerce cut that request to $67,200,000. The budget Bureau whittled it to $42,200,000. Congress actually appropriated $37,500,000.

For fiscal 1956 the CAA requested $26,500,000. Congress set aside $16,000,000.

It was not until this year that Congress got around to approving a 246-million-dollar construction program for control and navigation aids to be spent over five years. The first $40,000,000 will be spent for long-range radar to control flying above 24,000 feet, which presently is limited to military flights. Eventually radar control will be lowered to 18,000 feet.

Money for reseach has been very limited. In no year since 1947 has the CAA received in excess of $1,800,000 for developing new gear.

DEPUTY DIRECTOR of air traffic control for Civil Aeronautics Authority—H. S. Chandler—uses models in Washington, D. C., Saturday to demonstrate the 1,000-foot difference in altitude the CAA considers safe for planes passing each other while flying in opposite directions. Chandler said that under present control systems, the handling of high-speed, heavy air traffic is something like trying to regulate modern automobiles over horse-and-buggy highways.
—(AP Wirephoto)

Meanwhile, the Air Force has spent $3,000,000,000 on a system which can track and identify any plane in the air anywhere in the United States. It uses an enormous electronic brain for computation.

This Air Force system is not a control system, but there are people such as Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Assn. (ATA) who believe that something similar could be developed for air traffic control.

The CAA only now is moving into the electronic computer experimental stage. It will be a card-fed machine which will track planes for the ground controller.

* * * *

THIS AIR CONTROL business is immensely complicated. There are in the United States 167,000 square miles of controlled air space; that is, established routes set up for instrument flying along radio ranges. It is a sort of sky highway with a radio beam for the center line. This network presently extends up to 24,000 feet. It does not cover the United States by any means. There are great gaps, especially in the West.

Further, it was set up during the era of short-range aircraft and the control areas do not necessarily follow the shortest routes between two points.

For this reason long-range aircraft, such as last week's ill-fated United Air Lines and Trans-World Air Lines planes, take other routes than the controlled air lanes. These two planes collided outside controlled areas.

Visibility out of the pilot compartment of an aircraft, by the way, is poor. Chandler said, "it stinks." There are guesses around the CAA that this may have been one of the factors in the TWA-United crash.

This matter of visibility and the possibility of air collision long has been of concern to pilots. As yet, ATA officials say, there is no airborne radar device to detect approaching aircraft or other obstacles. Just four days before the big collision the ATA's board of directors urged the development of a "proximity warning indicator."

However, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Waldemar A. Ayers, former assistant chief of research for Sperry Gyroscope Corp., said at least three radar devices for prevention of air collisions had been developed.

Ayers urged federal legislation requiring use of anti-collision equipment.

* * * *

BECAUSE OF THE increasing performance of aircraft, technicians foresee the day, and that shortly, when all high speed, high altitude flying will have to be radar controlled.

When a pilot is off in the wild blue yonder, his eyesight tends to shift into neutral; that is, he is gazing into space without focusing.

If he is in a jet traveling at 500 miles per hour and sees another jet one mile away approaching at the same speed and altitude, he is a dead pigeon. It will take four seconds for the two planes to collide.

A pilot at those speeds needs seven second to focus, figure out the situation and do something about it. He is three seconds short.

Syria to Draft All Fit Refugees From Palestine

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian Parliament Saturday passed legislation subjecting all fit Palestinian refugees in Syria to Syrian military conscription.

This means all Palestinians in Syria between 18 and 26 years of age will have to serve a two-year term in the Syrian army, an official source explained.

The legislation, passed at the government's request, gave the 100,000 Palestinians who took refuge in this country during the 1948 Arab-Israeli war equal rights with Syrians in work, employment and commerce. It did not, however, grant them political rights or change their nationality.

Wrecks of 2 Giant Planes Smudges Against Backdrop of Grand Canyon

By FRANK WETZEL

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (AP) —The bags are olive drab and formless. Army men silently lift them from a helicopter and transfer them to another plane.

No one speaks. The bags contain the bodies of the dead, the victims of the world's worst commercial airline disaster.

Army helicopter pilots are ferrying out what is left of 128 people, killed in the crash of a Transworld Airline Super Constellation and a United Airline DC-7.

* * * *

THE PLANES dropped from 21,000 feet—some say they collided—on June 30. They smashed into Grand Canyon in a deep and rugged gorge close to the point where the Little Colorado and Colorado Rivers merge.

Air Force doctors, hurried to the crash site, report little is left — either of the planes or their passengers.

Now they bring out the bodies.

Bystanders count the bags as they are transferred. Someone sticks his head into the helicopter and signals that's all. The other plane immediately taxies out to the grass runway and takes off. Conversation slowly resumes.

* * * *

THE TOTAL WEIGHT of the planes was more than 100 tons. But in Grand Canyon they are nothing. Just two black smudges, some shiny metal. And from a distance of only a few feet, the pilots say, you can't see any bodies.

Reporters scurry from group to group, afraid they're missing something, until gradually the knots disperse and the pilots take off again.

The newsmen are quiet while the bags are transferred. But the rest of the time there is curiously little emotion. Perhaps the crash is like the H-bomb. Tell me about megatons, or the size of a blast equal to even 1,000 tons of dynamite, and I can't imagine it. It's too big.

Later, when we finally were able to fly over the wreckage in Army helicopters, the effect was the same. The mess below was too far divorced from airplanes and people as we knew them to create empathy.

It wasn't a matter of being hard. It was just too big for us.

Expert in Financing Sees Public Mass Transport Need

An expert in transportation financing said here Saturday he believes that the Los Angeles Metropolitan Area must come to a form of mass transportation owned by the public rather than by private enterprise.

Leland M. Kaiser, senior partner in the investment banking firm of Kaiser and Co., San Francisco, and executive vice president of Insurance Securities, Inc., Oakland, spoke to 300 sales representatives and clients of the securities firm in the Lafayette Hotel.

* * * *

KAISER SAID the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transit Authority is making good progress in preparing its case for broader powers, to be presented at the next meeting of the state legislature.

He referred to the Authority's request to be taken out from under regulation by the Public Utilities Commission, to be given authority over a much wider area—possibly four counties, and to be able to work with any type of mass transportation, not just monorail, to which it is now restricted.

Granted the requested legislation, the Authority envisions a three-year program of buying and consolidating existing privately-owned lines, eliminating multiple executive staffs, eliminating overlapping transit coverage.

* * * *

AT THE END of three years, the Authority would break into new types of mass transportation.

Kaiser would be a key figure in the financial planning of the program. Kaiser and Co. is credited with working out the financing of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

Speaking on the securities firm, Kaiser said it holds the largest aggregation of fire, casualty and life insurance stocks in the world, over $215 million. He predicted it would be a billion-dollar institution within 10 years.

Luncheon host was David Feuer, divisional manager of the corporation. Kaiser was introduced by Fred Dean, of Long Beach, a member of the Los Angeles, Metropolitan Transit Authority.

Paralyzed Vet's New House Under Vandals' Attack

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP)—A paraplegic veteran Saturday pleaded with vandals to stop wrecking his special house being constructed on city-donated land.

Richard J. O'Brien Jr., who was paralyzed from the waist down in the Korean war, asked police for special guards for the house.

O'Brien noted that the city's gift of some unused park property for his house was resented by some people who said "there will be no park property left soon."

The house is being equipped with special devices to aid the paralyzed veteran. In recent weeks, O'Brien said, vandals ripped down every piece of insulation installed by the contractor, broke windows, ripped valuable electrical equipment, and stole building materials.

Mexican 'Oscar' for Documentary Given Minnesotan

MEXICO CITY (UP) — A multilingual documentary film named "Fuego Cautivo (Captive Fire)," produced by Irving Levy of St. Paul, Minn., won a Mexican "Oscar" Friday night as the best short subject of 1955.

The Ariel Award was presented at special ceremonies here.

"Fuego Cautivo," which was produced in Italian, French, English and Spanish, concerned Mexico's nationalized oil industry. It was the first documentary produced by a company organized here by Levy mainly for the purpose of producing commercial films for movies and television.

Levy and his family, who have lived here for 2½ years, plan to return in September to St. Paul, where he was formerly an attorney and a dealer in electronic equipment.

"The terms of the agreement provide that Mr. Bottomly shall have an option until July 31, 1956, to buy these assets. The agreement provided for the supplying of working capital until the option date, July 31, 1956."

Fox had shut down the newspaper Friday night because of financial difficulties.

THANKS, LONG BEACH

Your Welcome to Dr. Glass More Than Expected, the Greatest Month in the History of Pridham Davis, Long Beach

Five weeks ago Pridham Davis announced the coming to Long Beach of Dr. Ben E. Glass, Opt.D. You responded to our welcome as never before.

"Dr. Glass and I want to merit the confidence shown in us by Long Beach people," Dr. Davis said. "No one profits in the long run, unless they have service in mind first, with profit secondary. You can depend on us to show our appreciation for the past record setting month."

BACKGROUND OF DR. GLASS INTERESTING

Dr. Ben E. Glass, Opt.D., graduated from Los Angeles Polytechnic High School. After which, he graduated from the Los Angeles School of Optometry, obtaining the degree of Doctor of Optometry. Dr. Glass operated as an individual optometrist for many years previous to joining Pridham Davis.

An interesting sidelight in the career of Dr. Glass is his study in subjects other than optometry. He studied drama, music and make-up. His study of make-up ties in well with the science of fitting glasses to match facial characteristics.

WHY DR. GLASS DECIDED TO JOIN PRIDHAM DAVIS

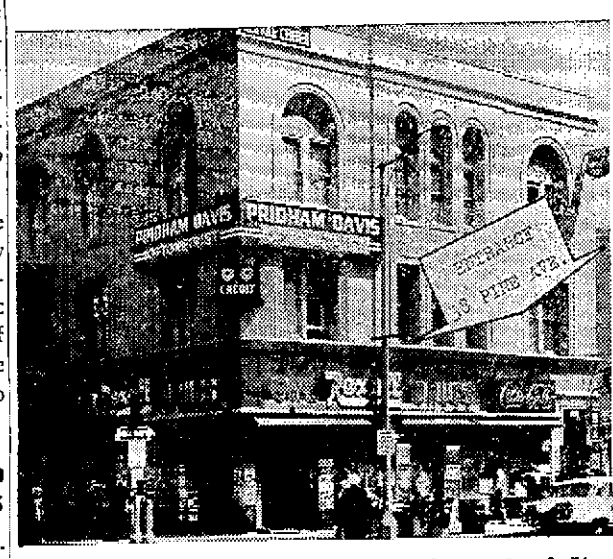

"A man feels proud to operate his own professional practice," Dr. Glass said. "But I am better adapted to serve well with Pridham Davis. I am happy in my work, because I am usually busy, and a good income is assured. I am happy too that Pridham Davis has good principles professionally and insists on such a liberal attitude toward everyone we serve."

Dr. Pridham Davis, Opt.D., Head of Service Bearing His Name

Dr. Ben E. Glass, Opt.D., in Charge of Long Beach Office

LONG BEACH OFFICE—38 Pine Ave., Corner 1st & Pine

Dr. Glass Stresses Importance of Good Guarantee

Dr. Glass' professional training qualifies him as an optometrist but an interesting side light is his attitude on dealing with people.

"I believe that, as a whole, people are honest," Dr. Glass said. "Very seldom has anyone tried to take advantage of me when I have done my best to solve their eyesight problem. Therefore, I welcome the opportunity of giving a money back guarantee. You trust me to give you eyesight entirely satisfactory to you, and I'll trust you to decide whether I keep your money or give it back to you."

GUARANTEE DARING IN VIEW OF CREDIT OFFER

"An unqualified guarantee is more daring when credit is involved," Dr. Glass said. "On our credit plan, payments are so small it may be quite a time after you wear your glasses, before your last payment is made. If you are not satisfied and have paid only a part of the cost of your glasses, I will cancel the balance you owe and return the money you have already paid."

Optometrists Are Responsible for Better Vision

To start with, an optometrist examines your eyes. Without an accurate eye examination no one knows what you really need. An optometrist is more extensively educated in the science of vision measurements than any other profession.

After Eye Examination

Suppose your eye examination is completely accurate. Suppose the prescription for lenses is exactly what you need for the most efficient sight. Then it's up to whoever fills the prescription to accurately follow through.

One of the main reasons why it's good to put your eyesight in the hands of an optometrist is that he is responsible for the grinding of your lenses, as well as the prescription itself. There's no chance of one service blaming the other in case you are not satisfied. One person, the optometrist, is responsible for everything from your eye examination to completed glasses.

Styling and Fitting Frames

Style of frame may be more important than you think. You need a style both suited to your facial features and adaptable to your seeing needs. You need these fitted so that you are comfortable and not distracted by a fit that may be improper for the type of lens you have.

An optometrist is a specialist in both styling and fitting of glasses. He is solely responsible for a good result in these respects, as well as accurate eye examination and grinding of lens. Every phase is handled by the optometrist and you can hold him solely responsible. You don't have to wonder whose fault it is in case you are not satisfied. Your optometrist backs up every process in the creation of corrected eyesight.

VISUAL TRAINING

"Eye exercises often correct muscular deficiencies not correctable by glasses." Dr. Davis said. "The optometrist not only offers all the services pertinent to getting glasses, but he offers visual training so that, if you need it, you may have added help."

Proper Emphasis on Eyesight Pays Off in Work and Play

"If you are a secretary who is slowed down by not being able to read typewritten material at arms' length, you are handicapped," Dr. Davis said. "It won't be long until this shows up in the amount of work turned out. Why take a chance on inferior eyesight? Your problem, as a rule, can be solved with the proper kind of glasses. Maybe you need eye exercises plus glasses. Only your optometrist gives you both, as a regular custom."

"Suppose you are a golfer and can see well only at certain distances. You may need sight correction for several distances. You have the opportunity of improving your game with proper eyesight correction," Dr. Davis said.

"Those in precision machinery work, drafting, secretarial work, sewing, and many eye-demanding occupations can protect their income and future with proper eyesight care," Dr. Davis said.

Service That Always Pleases Aim of Each Pridham Davis Office

First, you want glasses entirely efficient and pleasing. But Pridham Davis wants you to have more than this. He wants to help keep them that way.

"Please don't neglect to have your frames adjusted when first needed," Dr. Davis said. "There's no added cost for this service. It's part of the price you pay for your glasses."

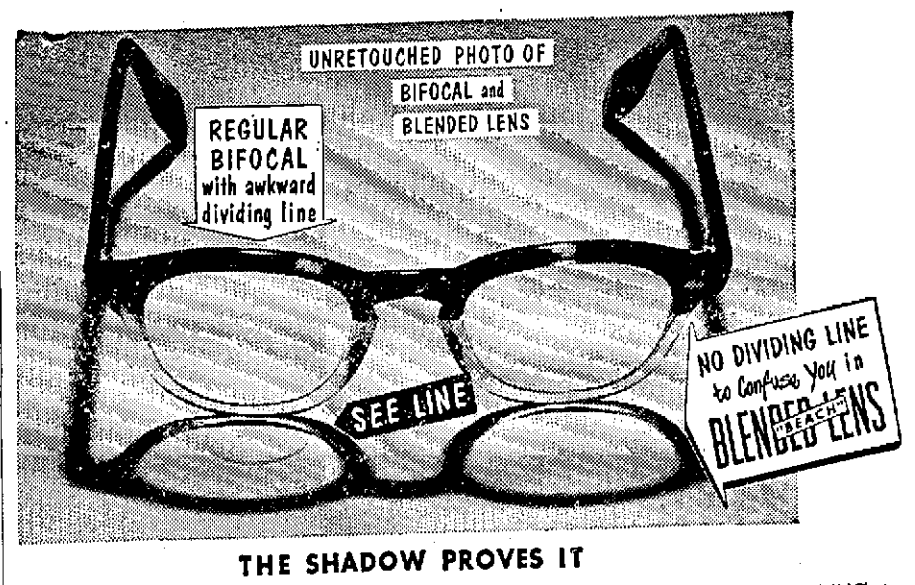

"We want to take care of your eyesight needs, and this doesn't stop after you have finished paying for your glasses," Dr. Davis said.

Visual Needs Come First The Money Is Secondary

Your eyes are so important to your work, and in every way, that money should not stand in your way, according to Dr. Davis.

"Let's take care of your eyesight first and put the money secondary," Dr. Davis said. "You can wait six weeks before making your first small credit payment, and the down payment is so small you'll hardly miss it."

ALL TYPES OF GLASSES, BUT ESPECIALLY BLENDED LENSES

THE SHADOW PROVES IT

HOW BLENDED LENSES WORK

You use Blended Lenses like bifocals or trifocals. The big difference is that you DON'T HAVE AN ABRUPT JUMP when you move your eyes. You have gradual changes from reading to arm's length and distance areas. Gradual changes are more acceptable to bodily functions than quick, abrupt shifts.

With bifocals, when you move your head and objects jump, beware of STUMBLING. There is possible confusion of SEEING DOUBLE. When moving about or driving with Blended Lenses you are safe, because objects will not jump, and you will not see double through any part of lens.

EYE EXAMINATION

Examination of your eyes will indicate the type of lenses best for you. Whether these be Blended Lenses, or any other type, Pridham Davis is prepared to fit you for your needs.

Committee OKs Democrat Probe of Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee gave its approval Saturday to a proposal by the Democrats for an investigation of the foreign aid program.

It approved a resolution setting aside $300,000 for the study and directing the Foreign Relations Committee to determine how the multibillion-dollar program "serves, can be made to serve, or does not serve, the national interest."

The Senate is expected to act on the resolution next week. The measure calls for a report by Jan. 31 on the results of the investigation.

The foreign relations committee would be assisted by outside experts who, Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said, "have no axes to grind." He said the investigation would be conducted wholly indpendently of the administration.

Ships Collide

DOVER, England (AP) —The 3,333-ton English Channel ferry Lord Warden collided in dense fog Saturday night with the French freighter Tampa outside Dover's harbor. The Coast Guard said damage appeared minor.

Social Security Compromise in Senate Monday

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats will offer a new compromise plan next week to liberalize social security benefits for women and disabled workers.

Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga) said Saturday he will introduce half of the two-part compromise on Monday. Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla) will follow with the other half.

George said he is "very hopeful" about the chances of passage. Other Democratic sources said the plan clears the way for Senate action on the delayed legislation possibly next week.

Truman Says Parents Cause of Delinquency

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Former President Harry S. Truman, who "got plenty of the woodshed treatment" as a boy, Saturday advised modern parents to pay more heed to the Biblical admonition, "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

Truman, his wife and 34 pieces of luggage stopped here briefly between trains, en route back to their home at Independence, Mo., following a European tour.

"Mama and papa are more to blame than the kids," Truman said of the juvenile delinquency problem. "Parents should stay home and raise their children, and spend less time in taverns. They should instill discipline and moral principles in them."

Truman said he disagrees with "progressive" methods of child-rearing.

"I believe in the woodshed treatment," he said. "That is the best there is. I got plenty of it when I was a boy. I don't know if it did any good, but I've never been in jail."

The brief visit coincided with the second day of a two-day hearing on delinquency problems in the St. Louis area.

TV Man Shot At After Dope Telecast

DENVER (UP)—The news director of a Denver television station reported to police today that a mysterious assailant fired a shot through the windshield of his car a few hours after he had made a telecast threatening to make public a list of alleged narcotics peddlers.

Tom Carlisle, 30, said the shot was fired from a car parked near his home in suburban Lakewood at about 1:30 a.m. Carlisle said he believed the bullet, which left a hole in the car windshield and then apparently passed out an open window of the automobile, came from a .38 or .45-caliber pistol.

CAPITAL CAPERS

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM
(Independent, Press-Telegram Capital Bureau)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Former President Harry Truman has just about decided to come out for a candidate before the balloting starts at the Democratic convention. This would be a startling about-face, but Mr. Truman has been known to change his mind before.

Up until now, the former president has steadfastly refused to give his blessing to the candidacy of anyone, although he obviously likes Harriman and Stevenson and is cool about Kefauver.

Now, it can be reported from a reliable source, Harry is considering getting things off to a booming start at Chicago by coming out strong for one man. The odds here are that it will not be Harriman because the former president thinks Stevenson has the nomination sewed up.

Some of Truman's closest friends here who are in the Stevenson camp took the extreme precaution of putting in a transatlantic telephone call to him just before he boarded the ship to come home from Europe. They cautioned Truman against making any off-hand cracks when the ship docked in New York that could be interpreted as rocking the Stevenson boat.

THE COLLISION of two airliners over Grand Canyon has touched off new demands for radar on commercial planes. For more than five years, the Civil Aeronautics Administration has received similar appeals.

The CAA has always brushed them aside on grounds that the devices lack sensitivity, are too bulky and heavy, and require intense concentration of the pilot or co-pilot, almost to the exclusion of other tasks, such as flying the plane. But now CAA will have to take another look.

* * * *

FOR THE LAST four years the Democrats have been needling the Republicans for calling the Eisenhower presidential campaign and the GOP national administration a "crusade." But the Democrats apparently see some political value in such a religious connotation. The Democratic National Committee, opening a drive for increased voter registration this year, now calls for a "pilgrimage to the polls."

SLY LYNDON JOHNSON is using a short respite from his duties as Senate Democratic leader to get in some digs about President Eisenhower's physical condition.

Like the President, Johnson was the victim of a heart attack last year. He has been taking an unpublicized 10-day rest cure ordered by doctors after a checkup at Minnesota's Mayo Clinic.

Johnson tells intimates that the job of maneuvering legislation through the Senate is a heavy one requiring occasional rests, in the opinion of his doctors.

SEN. ESTES KEFAUVER'S political charm, which seems to hypnotize all kinds of Democrats except those in command of the party, is at work again.

The Tennessean has been all but counted out as a threat for the presidential nomination, but he's still considered very much in the running for the vice presidential slot — regardless of who the nominee is and despite Estes' own disclaimers.

DR. CHAN SAYS: NO LONGER MUST YOU SUFFER FROM

For the past two generations, the offices of Dr. Chan, D.C., located at 928 American Avenue, have had outstanding results in treating chronic ailments such as ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, ARTHRITIS, NEURITIS, RHEUMATISM, HIGH OR LOW BLOOD PRESSURE, HEART TROUBLE, STOMACH OR LIVER DISORDERS, KIDNEY OR BLADDER AILMENTS OR A GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION. Men and women from all walks of life come to take these treatments because other methods of healing have failed to help them. Many have spent a fortune in seeking cure before they try this simple, effective natural method of Dr. Chan. Our patients tell us that they wish they had known of our wonderful treatments sooner so that their suffering could have been avoided.

READ THESE AMAZING TESTIMONIALS

Dear Mr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method." Signed, Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "Five years ago I was badly stricken with neuritis in my shoulders and extremities. My hands and knees were so badly swollen that I could hardly use them. I wasn't able to raise my arms above the shoulders. I was told by several doctors that they have done all they could for me and that I no longer will be able to work again. Finally a friend referred me to try Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy. After the first week I felt much improved and the fourth week found me walking much easier with the pains in my shoulders disappearing, my hands returned to normal and I had use of them once more. I cannot too highly recommend Dr. Chan to anyone who is ill." Signed E. H. Irving.

Ike Continues Silence on Second Term

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (U.P.) — President Eisenhower passed up another chance Saturday to speak out on his second term plans but may make an announcement within a fortnight.

The President sat on his sun porch and read newspaper predictions that he will stay in the reelection race. He made no effort to squelch or confirm them.

Late Saturday, the President took advantage of a warm sun to chip and putt golf balls on his green near the farm house. Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton swung a club with the President. Maj. Gen. Howard Mc C. Snyder, the President's personal physician kept score.

White House Press Secretary James Hagerty disclosed that presidential assistant Sherman Adams would meet with the President Monday on White House business.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower planned a quiet weekend with their son, Maj. John Eisenhower, and his family. Hagerty said there would be no other visitors and Eisenhower "doesn't plan to do anything—just take it easy."

B'nai B'rith Aide Called in Red Quiz

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The House Committee on UnAmerican activities Saturday subpoenaed the chief counsel of the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League to determine whether he contriubted secretly to a report alleging widespread "blacklisting" of left-wingers in the entertainment world.

The committee said the witness, Arnold Forster of New York, will be questioned behind closed doors next Wednesday in connection with its investigation of the report which was issued 12 days ago by the fund for the Republic. The fund is financed by the Ford Foundation.

Also called for questioning Wednesday was Frederick Woltman, staff writer for the New York World Telegram and Sun who has protested that the report made "false" charges against him.

* * * *

THE INVESTIGATION opens Tuesday when John Cogley of Baldwin, N.Y., author of The Report and former editor of the Catholic magazine Commonweal, will be questioned behind closed doors. After he was subpoenaed last week Cogley protested that it is not "right" for the committee to question him about "confidential sources of information."

In ordering the inquiry, Committee Chairman Francis E. Walter (D-Pa) asserted the report "leaves very grave charges against organizations and persons in the entertainment industry" who have fought the "Communist conspiracy."

The report alleged that the radio and television and movie industries have been subjected since World War II to a Communist - fearing blacklisting practice.

* * * *

IT TOLD of an alleged "security clearance" system through which suspected performers can become rehabilitated. It suggested that the blacklisting practice had affected the morale and livelihood of many performers.

A spokesman said the committee wants to find out whether Forster is the unnamed "public relations expert" who is quoted extensively in the report about his experience in arranging for the "clearance" of artists falsely suspected of pro-communist leanings.

The spokesman said there has been widespread speculation in the radio-television industry in New York to that effect since the report was issued.

The "expert" was quoted in the report as saying he had guided more than a dozen once-blacklisted performers to the "right people" to help get them cleared. He named Jack Wren, an executive with the advertising agency, Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, as a key figure in arranging for such clearances.

The unnamed expert also said the clearance process sometimes involved getting "affidavits" from such writers as Woltman and newspaper columnists George Sokolsky and Victor Riesel.

Woltman has denied ever giving such "affidavits."

London Thefts Acknowledged by U.S. Schoolma'am

LONDON (U.P.) — American schoolteacher Sarah Sterett, 51, of Buffalo, N. Y., pleaded guilty to stealing goods from four London shops in Magistrate Court here Saturday.

She was fined $71 for court costs and discharged. She told Magistrate Paul Bennett she was ashamed and did not know what had come over her. The stolen goods were worth about $30.

"I trust you won't lose your job over the matter, disgraceful as it is," Magistrate Bennett told her.

Explorer's Life Lost in Congo River

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The body of Jack Yowell, 36, photographer and explorer, was found Saturday near a pier at Bukama, a port on the Congo River—six miles from where his kayak overturned six days ago. Burial was in Bukama in the southern part of the Belgian Congo.

Yowell and John Goddard, an American explorer, were traveling the 3,000-mile river from its source to the Atlantic when they became separated in a stretch of crocodile-infested rapids. Yowell had recently appeared in the United States on a lecture tour. His British-born widow and three children survive. They made their home in Nairobi.

* * * *

IN HIS LAST letter to his wife, Yowell reported that he and Goddard had covered 300 miles of their planned exploration.

Goddard sent a cable to Mrs. Yowell from Stanleyville telling her of Yowell's disappearance. Belgian Air Force planes joined in the search for him.

Goddard, whose home town was listed as Los Angeles, Calif., and two French explorers, made a 10-months trip to the Nile River from its source to its mouth in 1951.

Heat Kinks Texas RR Track, Throws Train

POTTSBORO, Tex. (AP)—It got so hot in this north Texas town Saturday afternoon that 15 cars of a southbound Missouri-Kansas-Texas freight train was derailed.

The train split into three sections. Several of the cars caught fire. The derailment was due to a kink in a rail caused by the heat.

Probe Mystery Death of Tax Trial Judge

ST. LOUIS (AP)—U.S. District Judge Rubey M. Hulen, who presided during the conspiracy trial of two former top Truman administration officials, died on the operating table Saturday after he had been found shot in the yard of his suburban home.

The 61-year-old jurist's death came less than four hours after he had been found in a spot in his yard where he occasionally practiced marksmanship.

He had been given preliminary treatment at St. Louis County Hospital and rushed to Barnes Hospital for an emergency operation. He died while this was in progress.

* * * *

JUDGE HULEN, who physicians at County Hospital said was shot in the left temple, had been given a blood transfusion in an ambulance en route to the second hospital.

Mrs. Hulen said her husband occasionally practiced revolver marksmanship by a wood pile in the back yard on squirrels and rabbits.

Matthew J. Connelly, White House appointments secretary to former President Truman and T. Lamar Caudle, former head of the Justice Department's tax division were convicted of conspiring to defraud the government by a jury in Judge Hulen's court June 14.

* * * *

THE TWO MEN were scheduled to be sentenced by him July 19, the same date motions for a new trial are to be heard.

The death of Judge Hulen raised a question whether another judge who had not heard the trial could pass sentence on Caudle and Connelly.

JUDGE RUBEY M. HULEN
Shot in Temple

In Washington, the Justice Department, which directed the prosecution, declined to make any immediate comment on the situation.

Judge Hulen was found by a Negro gardener, Ivory Robertson, who told officers the jurist was lying on his back with a .32 caliber revolver near his left foot.

* * * *

ROBERTSON said he thought nothing about the shot after hearing it because it was Judge Hulen's practice to shoot in that section of the yard. Robertson estimated it was about 20 minutes before he walked over toward the wood pile and found the judge, who was conscious when first taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Hulen, who has arthritis, said her husband had planned to enter a hospital for a general physical checkup Saturday and had made arrangements for a friend of the family to come and stay with her while he was in the hospital. He had been suffering from high blood pressure.

The judge's wife said he told her earlier Saturday that he would remove the revolver from a dresser drawer where it was kept because he didn't want anyone "to get hold of it" while he was in the hospital.

She said he then took the gun to the spot in the yard, about 50 yards southwest of the house, where he had practiced marksmanship.

Rome Jails Aerial Drug Smugglers

ROME, Italy (AP) — Police announced Saturday they had smashed the airborne operations of a ring which smuggled narcotics wrapped in waterproof plastics and hidden in the seats and toilets of air-line planes.

Police Chief Arturo Musco said seven persons, including two baggage loaders for the Scandinavian Airlines and the clerk of a jewelry store at Ciampino Airport, were arrested. Three others are being sought, including Maria Kopacs, attractive 32-year-old Yugoslav refugee, and her Italian lover, Eugenio Cogni, 36, a former air-line pilot.

* * * *

AGENTS SAID the arrest of several Rome aristocrats on June 24 helped break the case. Among the jailed aristocrats were Prince Giuseppe (Pepito) Pignatelli, Duke Ludovico Lante della Rovere and Marquis Emanuele de Seta, who are still being questioned.

Police said the ring operated with precision, smuggling about 2.2 pounds of narcotics aboard westbound planes at Tehran, Iran, regularly for the past several months, for delivery to Rome. Other shipments were left aboard to supply other points further west.

Report Strong Tibet Revolt Against Reds

KALIMPONG, India (AP)—New reports of spreading resistance by Tibetans to Chinese Communist rule have been brought to this north India border town by travelers from that isolated country. There are indications a strong resistance movement may be in the making.

These reports say the Chinese Reds are still sending bombing missions daily to hit at "resistance centers" in eastern and southern Tibet in an effort to stamp out a revolt that started in early April.

* * * *

THE TRAVELERS refer to Mimang—the Tibetan peoples' committees—an anti-Chinese political group organized in 1951, a year after the Chinese Reds occupied Tibet.

Among those arriving in Kalimpong are former Tibetan officials who claim membership in Mimang. One report said Mimang is preparing to establish its own provisional government inside Tibet in opposition to the Chinese.

The Dalai Lama, Tibet's spiritual and temporal ruler who is under the thumb of the Chinese Reds, is reported leading the opposition in Mimang. But despite his opposition, open rebellion is being preached in nearly all the important villages and towns throughout the country, the travelers say.

* * * *

MIMANG IS SAID to have some influential members and sympathizers, including two former prime ministers. But there is no way of actually knowing its strength.

There is no firm evidence Mimang sparked the revolt, which appears to be thus far a largely unorganized struggle against the Chinese. This account of its activities has been unfolded here:

In 1952 Mimang demanded withdrawal of Chinese troops and for several days demonstrations occurred in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The Chinese Reds forced the Dalai Lama to declare Mimang illegal, and prominent Mimang leaders were jailed.

In the following year Mimang, now underground, planned to send a delegation to the United Nations. The Chinese Reds were tipped off and the planners of this dramatic move were jailed.

Ana Pauker, Purged by Reds in Romania, 'Living Well'

VIENNA (UP) — A Viennese newspaper Saturday published an alleged interview with purged Romanian Foreign Minister Dr. Ana Pauker by way of denying reports she died last month in disgrace.

The newspaper, "Die Presse," said the stocky onetime strongwoman of Romania's Communist party was interviewed by Miss Carol Coghill, onetime staffer for a British news agency, in her "elegant villa" on Dr. Koch St. in Bucharest.

It said the 62-year-old Mrs. Pauker refused to discuss politics on grounds that "I am an old woman."

She was ousted from government and party posts for "rightist and leftist deviations" and for "living on the slope of aristocracy" in 1952.

A French newspaper last week quoted Bucharest sources that she died last month and had been cremated secretly.

Western diplomats said in 1952 that Mrs. Pauker was living like a queen with fleets of cars and a group of villas. She still apparently lives well.

Miss Coghill said she was extremely well dressed and groomed.

She "was wearing a blue tailor-made suit and extra fine nylon stockings when she received me," the correspondent said.

"Her fingers were manicured, her hair combed back."

Avoiding politics she "talked about paintings, books, cooking and art."

She declined to pose for photographs.

Child Plunges 3 Stories, Caught

NEW YORK (AP)—Victor Fernandez, 22, was walking in lower Manhattan Saturday when he heard a scream.

He looked up, braced himself and held out his arms. Edwin Talavera, 7, fell right into them. Neither Fernandez nor the child was hurt.

Edwin had fallen out of a third-story bedroom window while his mother was in another room. He weighs 49 pounds.

508th Airborne Sets Sail en Route Home

MOJI, Japan (AP)—The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team sailed for the United States Saturday to serve as a cadre for the newly organized 101st Airborne Division. The 101st is the unit that held Bastogne in the Battle of the Bulge in World War II.

The 508th came to Japan a year ago in "Operation Gyroscope," a big airlift switch of troops in which it replaced the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

18 W. Germans Flee Draft, Red Radio Reports

BERLIN (UP) — The Communist radio reported Saturday that 18 young Germans have gone behind the Iron Curtain in the past 24 hours to escape the proposed West German draft.

The broadcast from Red Berlin said the draft dodgers asked for political asylum because "they did not want to serve in the NATO (Atlantic Pact) Army."

The lower house of West Germany's Parliament voted 270 to 166 early Saturday in favor of a bill making some 12 million Germans aged 18 to 45 eligible for conscription for an unspecified term. The bill now goes to the West German "Senate."

None of the 360,000-odd draftees scheduled to be called under the pending law will don uniforms until late next year.

The Reds were quick to seize on the draft as an issue that might reverse the tide that has sent scores of thousands of Germans westward through the Iron Curtain to escape communism.

Dentures FIRST, money LATER, at Dr. Campbell's for over 20 years

Difficult cases invited with NO MONEY DOWN

Putting service first and money later has been at Dr. Campbell's for over 20 years, but never more than right now. Even difficult cases are welcomed on Dr. Campbell's no money down credit plan. You get your new dentures, but may wait 45 days before paying anything. Dr. Campbell carries his own credit, with no outside financing, so he is not regulated by ordinary credit standards.

"I prefer that you get your dentures on credit," Dr. Campbell said. "We want to serve you first, and the money is secondary. Take as long as you need to pay on my easy-credit plan."

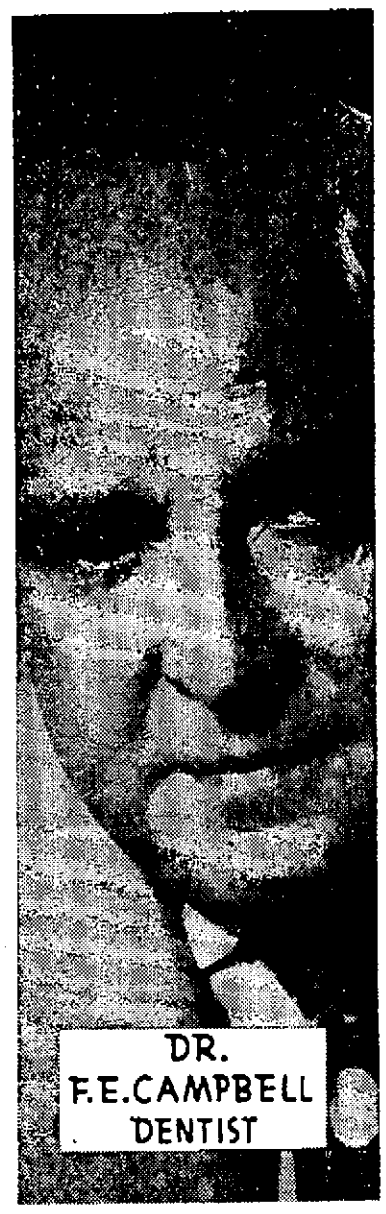

Why Dr. Campbell says pay NO MONEY DOWN

"I don't have to worry about paying my expenses as a dentist if I am interested first in giving service," Dr. Campbell said. "I have found through trial and error that every one of my offices must give a lot of credit to be prosperous. In the past, when one of my offices curtailed credit, this office became less prosperous. People are glad to pay for good service when you are thinking of them before the money. My records prove that insisting on immediate cash, even in small amounts, hurts my dental practice. No money down helps my dental practice."

LOW PRICES BRING BIG DENTURE SAVINGS

Dr. Campbell's twelve offices make a lot of dentures. The story of volume production is well known to everyone. We have many things we could not have if it were not for volume production. If it costs Dr. Campbell less to make dentures in volume, it stands to reason it costs you less.

"My low prices and no money down credit plan enable me to hold prices down despite rises in salaries and materials," Dr. Campbell said. "By not taking advantage of the trend to increase prices, I make more dentures and still make a profit at no increase in price. Living costs have gone up a lot, but my prices are the same as they were years ago."

SEE YOUR SAVINGS—no doubt about these prices

When you go in to buy something at a department store you see the article tagged with a price. That way you know it's not a bargaining proposition. You don't have to be a good bargainer to get a good price.

"I am doing this in dentistry," Dr. Campbell said. "I want you to know that the price of the denture you select is the best I can make, and that no one can bargain for less, making others pay the difference in higher prices. Each sample denture, which you choose from, has a price permanently molded into the denture. You see the denture, you see the price, you take your choice.

Translucent Dentures

Translucent DENTURE MATERIAL and translucent TEETH are recognized by dentists as the FINEST available for making dentures. Even if these materials were expensive, they would be economical in the long run. But my price for my finest denture is so low that there is no need to accept less.

Immediate Restoration

New dentures may be put in the SAME DAY the last of your teeth are extracted. If your case permits it, and you desire it, impression is taken BEFORE teeth are extracted. Dentures are started immediately and finished the same day.

Save on Partial Plates

Modern methods of casting metal parts enable me to make them for less money than formerly. Now my prices for partials are lower, with the best work I have turned out.

Frego Strengthener for Thinner Extra Strength

Imported Frego Strengthener now available to dentists, is a gold plated stainless steel mesh, which is molded into denture. It permits VERY THIN construction. Fragile looking dentures are strong with Frego Strengtheners.

SKIPPERS SWAP YARNS ABOUT . . .

Pierpoint Landing's 50,000 Sleepyheads

By LEE CRAIG
I. P-T Marine Editor

Every year, more than 50,000 otherwise sane men, women and children leave warm beds during the early morning chill and make their way sleepily to Pierpoint Landing to board boats of the "largest live bait fishing fleet in the world."

A dozen or so hours later, weary, sunburned and happy, they head home, proudly burdened with their share of the 2,000 to 3,500 fish caught daily from the decks of the fleet's 10 boats.

Sometimes, however, they've left behind a fishing boat skipper shaking his head with mingled wonder and amusement.

"For instance," Charlie Davis, skipper of the Hurricane, says, "what is there about having a fish on the line that makes a man deaf?"

"I put my mouth about an inch from their ears and bellow instructions until my lungs give out . . . and they never hear a word."

Don McLean, captain of the Sea Angler, agreed.

"But the ones that get me," he said, "are the people who don't know how to fish, then get huffy when you try to help them. Don't they realize that we want 'em to catch fish, too?"

• • • •

THIS REMINDED Dutch Krutzfeldt, of the Dutchman, of a type of fisherman he calls "reel inspectors."

"I had one of those aboard the other day," he said. "He never looked at the water, or me, or the boat. Just stared at his reel, like he was hypnotized.

"Well, he hooked a seagull, going after a fish. He reeled in like crazy, finally letting his eyes travel along the line.

"You should have seen his face when he saw the line ended in a seagull, 40 or 50 feet in the air."

Some newcomers, who don't know that each boat carries 150,000 anchovies and other small fish in its bait tanks, think they have to bring their own bait.

A few have shown up with worms, laboriously dug from their gardens. Others have tried to use lures which work well in fresh water but leave ocean fish cold.

"I had a fellow once who tried everything," Dutch said. "He used feathers, anchovies, two hooks, four hooks, everything. No fish.

"Finally, I looked over his shoulder and darned if he wasn't putting a marshmallow on the hook.

"'Thought maybe they'd go for something sweet,' he told me."

• • • •

THE SKIPPERS put in about 16 hours a day, seven days a week, during the 175-200 days of the season.

"When I can stand to look at people again, I come back," McLean said.

They work for the Pierpoint corporation, in which they all own stock.

The captains pool their encyclopedic knowledge of the best fishing locations—sunken ships, types of rock formations or floating kept masses which attract fish—with one important reservation.

Each retains an "ace in the hole," perhaps a spot he's been "salting" daily with chum, for those days when fish are scarce.

"Sometimes, though," Dutch said, "it 's not lack of fish that's the trouble, it's lack of talent. We welcome the new ones, but we sure wish they would let us show them how to fish."

One such neophyte, Dutch recalled, was on his boat recently.

The beginner was standing idly on the deck, bemused by tiny saury fish leaping from the water around his line.

Suddenly, an unseen albacore lunged at the bait, nearly jerking the man overboard.

Goggle-eyed with amazement, he turned to Dutch as he fought to control his pole.

"I never would have thought a six-inch fish could pack so much power," he gasped.

'SO HE HOOKED THE GULL . . .'

Event With Class

THAT ROSY GLOW just over the horizon is the Miss Universe pageant. The girls will be here next weekend, there'll be a lot of talk of blondes, brunettes and redheads, of bust, waist and hip statistics, of exotic homelands and Long Beach hospitality.

This will be the fifth year Long Beach has been in the international beauty business and the community still seems a little surprised at its role.

The record says that the Miss Universe project has been a success. It has steadily gained in worldwide recognition, it has contributed to international friendship, it has gone unmarred by scandal, it has brought favorable publicity to Long Beach and it has benefited the community economy through stimulated visitation and tourist business.

In the four years since Miss Universe was inaugurated, tourist business here has been double that of the previous 10 years. Only a part of this may be attributed, of course, to the beauty pageant, but it has made an important contribution.

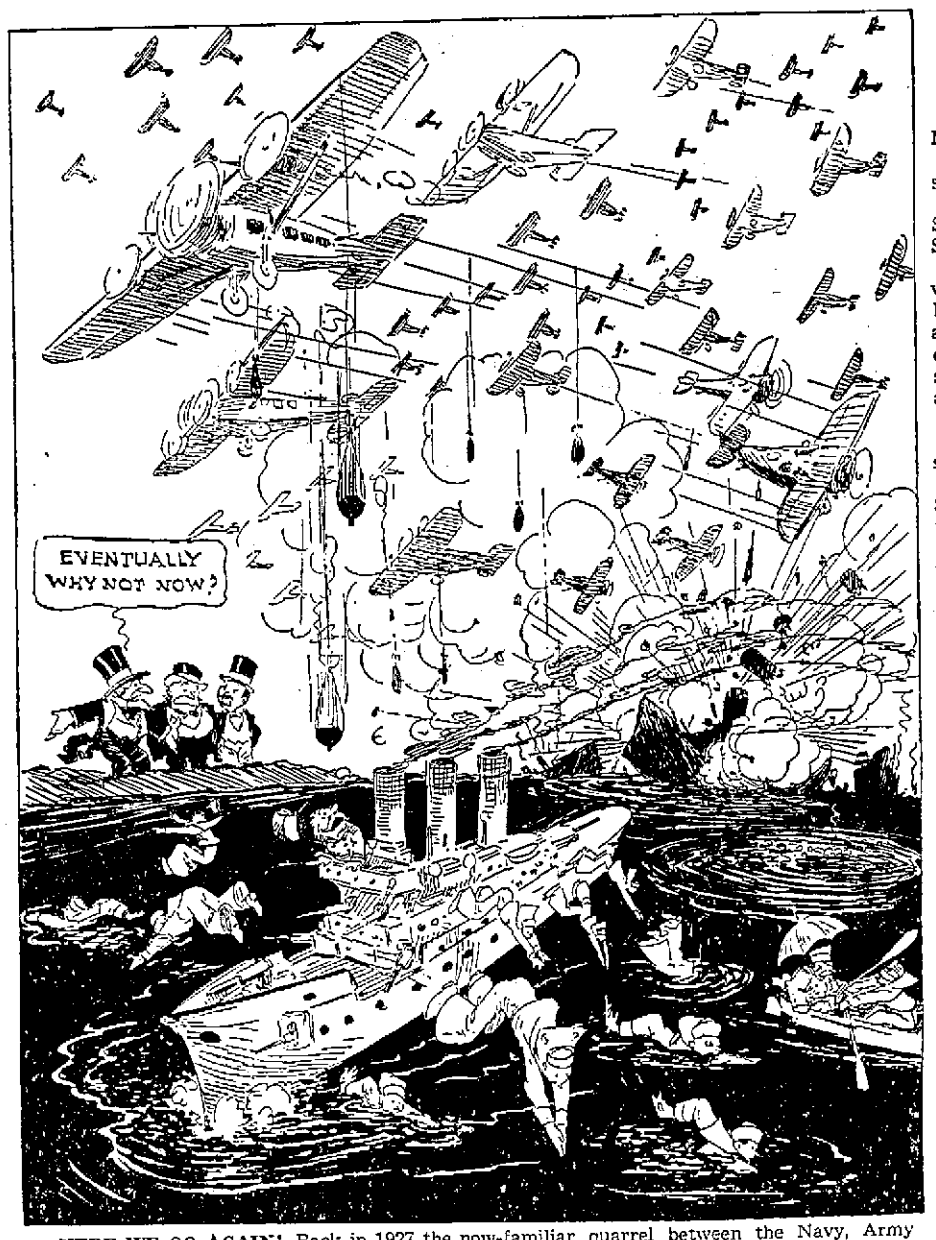

We can take satisfaction in the high plane on which this event has been conducted. Its no mere girl show nor even a mere beauty contest, but a pageant which glorifies feminine beauty and personality on an international level. It is conducted with care and good taste, and the young women who have participated as representatives of their states and nations have earned respect and admiration as wholesome, friendly and, of course, beautiful girls.

The pageant has its commercial aspects but these, too, have been handled with restraint and good taste. We have seen nothing objectionable about them.

Summing it up, we can say that the Miss Universe pageant has established itself solidly as an event with real "class," and those who may have had misgivings when it started in 1952 must have long since dropped them. As host community, Long Beach has its responsibilities, and it has generally discharged them satisfactorily.

Miss Universe is on the calendar for next week. Let's "spruce up" the city and give it the support it deserves.

IT IS AN OLD ARGUMENT

HERE WE GO AGAIN! Back in 1927 the now-familiar quarrel between the Navy, Army and Air Forces had been under way, in its louder phases, for a couple of years when Ding (Jay N. Darling) drew this cartoon which very well could have been done 29 years later—in 1956. The late General "Billy" Mitchell in 1925 had been fired from the Army for insisting in his way that the Army should build airplanes which could then sink Navies. Despite his court-martial, what the general preached was being accepted to such an extent that when the United States, Great Britain and Japan met in the summer of 1927 to talk naval arms limitation, Ding drew this cartoon on July 25, and the American people understood. The conference accomplished little immediately, but it led to the 1930 conference which agreed the U. S. might build as many naval ships as Great Britain, if it wanted. This it didn't do until World War II.

Steel Row Inflation Aspects Will Jar Complacent Public

NO ONE knows for sure when the steel strike will be settled.

The pessimists in Wall Street think it may last until September.

Others feel that a strike which neither side wanted will be brought to an earlier conclusion, possibly within a few weeks.

KNIGHT

Meanwhile, some 650,000 steel workers are losing $8,500,000 in wages every day. Each week the strike continues, 2,000,000 tons of steel go out of production. Layoffs in industries dependent upon steel are mounting.

Since neither side to the controversy is generating much heat in this "peaceful" strike, the public remains apathetic. Summer is here and how about going fishing?

* * * *

I PREDICT, however, that this complacent mood will change some weeks hence when the settlement terms are announced.

The steelworkers will get a substantial increase. Steel prices will then go up. So will everything else, including the prices of hundreds of items which all of us buy, or want to buy.

Inflation will take another jump. Your dollars will buy less of what you need.

Without going into the merits of the dispute between the steel companies and the United Steelworkers of America, the currently accepted bargaining pattern of larger and larger annual wage increases is helping to produce more and more inflation.

So is lavish government spending with federal appropriations and expenditures continually rising to new peaks.

Everything costs more, including the taxes you pay to local, state and federal governments.

* * * *

INFLATION IS a sort of creeping confiscation which gets its hand in your pocketbook before you realize what is happening.

It robs the worker of his pension security.

It robs the man who has invested in government securities as part of his savings.

It robs the dependents of veterans who depend upon insurance.

It robs widows and children of all people who have tried to provide for their families through insurance.

It makes Social Security a fraud.

It cuts down the amount of goods that can be purchased by the growing army of old people.

It robs everyone who is dependent upon a fixed income from investments.

* * * *

These are the insidious dangers of inflation which can imperil our prosperity and standards of living.

In due time, the steel masters and the steelworkers' union will settle their differences with flash globes popping and TV cameras recording warm handshakes and expressions of mutual respect of their erstwhile antagonists.

The union will win a substantial increase and the usual "fringe" benefits.

The steel companies will promptly annouuce a sharp hike in the cost per ton to provide for future expansion of their facilities.

In a superficial sense, both will win.

But only you, the luckless consumers, are to lose.

And this pattern, duplicated thousands of times every year in strikes and over the bargaining tables, is what has ironically come to be known as "progress" in labor relations.

What a fantastic misconception!

ATTORNEY GENERAL Herbert Brownell picked Martha Rountree's new commercially sponsored TV show to announce that the Justice Department will sue General Motors for alleged monopoly of the bus-making business. . . . Under the rules of the program, the personality interviewed must break a big news story . . . Brownell, who would rather vote for a Democrat than hold a press conference, was glad to oblige. . . . No, no . . . nothing political.

If this sort of thing keeps up, Lawrence Spivak will soon have the Supreme Court on his program, with the understanding of course that the august justices will come prepared to hand down at least one important decision each Sunday evening.

Foreign aid, which is getting to be an unpopular term, is now known in Washington as the "mutual aid program." . . . Next we'll be hearing how lucky we are that other nations are willing to accept our money.

When Harry Truman was asked if he would be the keynoter at the Democratic convention, the former President replied, "Hell, no!" . . . But Harry will be busy . . . in the smoke-filled rooms. . . . The stop-Stevenson forces haven't given up.

Greek Ambassador George V. Melas, discussing the Cyprus situation before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, compared Britain's stern attitude toward "the white people of Cyprus" with their more gentle treatment of Nigeria which he pronounced with a hard "g". . . . The audience didn't like it.

Demo Chief Serves Notice GOP Faces Hot Races

DEMOCRATIC OPTIMISM about the November California election is keynoted by Alan Cranston, the president of the California Democratic Council. Even allowing for a little wishful thinking on his part, what he says is enough to put Republicans on the vote-winning trail hard and early.

The Republicans find GOP control of the Legislature threatened for the first time in many years.

They must win seven out of the nine Senate contests to keep the upper hand in that house. The Democrats, with holdovers and primary winners, are assured of 17 Senate seats, while the GOP is only certain of 14. Cranston thinks the Democrats can win four more seats if they work hard, and that would give them the edge. Some politicos claim, however, that Republican nominees are the favorites in five of the nine open races, and note that GOP nominees had popular vote edges in two more. Obviously, the Senate contests constitute a horse race.

EPLEY

Cranston says he's sure the Democrats can capture 38 or 39 of the Assembly seats, and he sees a chance to get the 41 necessary for control.

The Democratic Council chief also has a hunch the Democrats will reduce the Republican majority in the California Congressional delegation, and he likes Richard Richards' chances of upsetting Republican Thomas H. Kuchel in the U. S. Senate contest.

This general picture will be influenced to a considerable extent by the presidential election campaign which will come to a climax along with the voting on California legislative and Congressional seats. The odds are so close that the national trend could make the difference.

But smart candidates know that nothing replaces vigorous personal campaigning. Nominees of that type aren't depending on national trends—and besides, who knows what the national trend will be?

L.A. Tax District Proposed

(Hollywood Citizen-News)

LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE has denounced the action of the Board of Supervisors which provided for the development of a $51,500,000 auditorium and music center in downtown Los Angeles.

The chamber pointed out that the taxpayers of Long Beach will have to share the tax burden that will result from the huge deficits under which the center will be operated and to compensate for the loss of taxes from the properties to be taken off the tax rolls.

It points out further that the auditorium and music center will benefit primarily the City of Los Angeles to the detriment of other cities in the county.

Actually, the project is of benefit principally to the downtown business district of Los Angeles. All taxpayers who do not own property or business in the downtown area will be taxed unjustly to support the project.

In fairness to the taxpayers of Los Angeles County, the Board of Supervisors should create a special tax district including those properties which will benefit from the center.

The downtown interests which will reap millions of dollars from the convention delegates, and whose property values will be enhanced, should pay the deficits from this project.

Big Business and Big Unionism Have All the Advantages in Present Laws

WASHINGTON—What's good for the Eisenhower Administration evidently isn't good for General Motors, after all. An antitrust suit has just been filed by the Department of Justice seeking to break up a monopoly which the big motorcar company is alleged to have in the manufacture of buses.

LAWRENCE

Presumably in this political year this will disappoint, if not frustrate, the Democrats, who have been taunting their opponents with a campaign slogan taken from an abbreviated version of what Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson once said about what was good for General Motors being good for the country and vice versa. The Democrats conveniently leave off the "vice versa."

But the real question now is whether what the Department of Justice has done is good for the country. There's nothing in the antitrust laws, for example, which says that if 80 per cent of the buses bought are products of a single company, as happens to be the case this time, then there's a "monopoly."

* * * *

GENERAL MOTORS for years has been getting a larger and larger share of the bus-making business, and this has been just as true under the Democratic administrations as it is today. If one company makes a better product or if, because of skill and efficiency, it can sell products at a lower price than competitors, must the government step in and, in effect, compel the buyers to purchase some other products when they might not prefer them? Does the large company now call in its sales staff and say: "Don't try to sell any more of our goods, help the competitor sell his line"?

The allocation of business volume by order of the government could lead to a cartel system such as they have abroad and which in Nazi Germany gave state capitalism the whip hand.

The competitors of General Motors would have a grievance if it is proved that General Motors has been pursuing any unfair trade practices. The principal allegation is that, since Diesel engines are made by a subdivision of General Motors, these have not been available to other manufacturers of buses.

The broad question, of course, which has been occupying the Department of Justice in recent years, is the size of modern businesses. Shall corporations be permitted to grow to the point where they have as much as 80 per cent of the business in a given industry? Do those corporations enjoy any privileged position in getting capital or in financing customers' purchases? How far shall companies be allowed to use their financial and economic power in a competitive way?

These points probably will be aired before the antitrust suit is adjudicated. But the way to more effective competition in America doesn't lie in the courts. Rather it is in the action that can be taken by Congress itself. Many members of the House and Senate talk a lot about "big business," but they are indifferent to the things that cause big business to get bigger and bigger.

* * * *

UNDER the Democratic regime, big business got its best breaks. The excess-profits-tax laws were written in such a way that the larger corporations paid relatively little tax because they had the benefit of large capital in the first place, whereas the smaller businesses were penalized heavily and were unable in their best profit years to accumulate needed capital for future expansion.

Even today the tax laws favor big business. Likewise, neither political party leadership has the courage today to do anything about the fixing of production costs which is brought about by the concerted action of labor unions in a given industry. Although a company is small and trying to compete with the larger one, it is saddled just the same with the wage scales and "fringe benefits" and expensive provisions of labor contracts that the larger companies can easily absorb but which the smaller companies cannot.

It's harder and harder for small business to compete because big business and big unionism have all the advantages in existing laws. Antitrust suits can do little to cure the situation. They merely penalize efficiency while Congress forgets that its own laws prevent competition from growing as it should under the private-enterprise system.

I ASK A CHILD

When I want God to grant me gifts . . . I need especially . . . I always ask some little child . . . To say a prayer for me . . . Because I know that children are . . . His special ones on earth . . . And that their fond petitions are . . . Of so much better worth . . . I know that they are innocent . . . And they sound more sincere . . . And by their very childishness . . . They make my meaning clear . . . My heart is not deceiving, for . . . I know God understands . . . Why I am speaking to Him through . . . Their little folded hands . . . And as He loves to hear their prayers . . . However brief they be . . . I thank those little angels when . . . They intercede for me.

Republicans Deserted Ike on Air Force Cash Issue

WASHINGTON — Despite White House pressure, every Republican deserted Eisenhower on the question of money for the Air Force when they sat down in the secrecy of the Senate-House conference committee.

It was their job to straighten out differences between the House and Senate, and, with no one present to record their views, not one Republican stood up for Ike's low budget for the Air Force.

PEARSON

Even Congress' chief penny-pincher, New York Congressman John Taber, muttered resignedly: "I suppose we'll have to give the Air Force something. I hope we do not give them too much."

Congressman Dan Flood, Pennsylvania Democrat, moved to increase Air Force appropriations by $1.1 billion—the same motion that had been shouted down by the House two months earlier. Flood pooh-poohed the fact that Secretary of the Air Force Quarles himself was against an increase.

It was Georgia's potent Sen. Dick Russell who led the closed-door battle for more Air Force funds.

"Don't forget," he lectured the conferees, "that we simply do not have the aircraft. In February, there were six B-25s produced, four were accepted. In March and April none were accepted. . . . All the information I have been able to gather directly and indirectly convinces me this money can be and will be used by the Air Force."

* * * *

RUSSELL REMINDED the conferees that the proposed budget increase "isn't exclusively a program of B-52s. The Air Force also needs tankers and Century-class fighters."

Congressman Errett Scrivner, Kansas Republican, tried to cut the Air Force increase in half.

"No matter how much money we give them at this time," he insisted, "it is not going to produce one more B-52."

He also hinted that politics might have something to do with the clamor for more Air Force appropriations.

In the end, however, every last Republican deserted the President and voted with the Democrats for a compromise $980 million increase in the Air Force budget.

Note—The Air Force is so short of construction money that it has slowed up construction of our Spanish bases. It now looks as if the bases won't be completed until 1963—the same year our lease runs out. In other words, we may be forced to turn the bases over to Dictator Franco before we get a chance to use them.

TOWN MEETING

Storing Car Costs a Lot

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to know if any of the Councilmen have ever asked the price for storing a car in one of the garages here? Well, I can tell you they aren't exactly cheap, to store a car in one of the less expensive garages would run about $1 per day. That runs into money at the end of the month. Most people who live in the restricted parking area are living there from necessity rather than by choice. To live in most residential areas here a person has to pay higher rent, and some people can ill afford $55 a month which some of them are paying for those places downtown. Add $30 to that for garage space and you've got $85 going for rent. Not many people could pay that much for rent and still be able to feed their children with prices as they are.

Why don't you Councilmen get busy and tear down the Pike, and make parking lots there? I feel that the Pike is an undesirable feature of our city.

Theater Phones Always Busy

TO THE EDITOR:

Theaters complain of lack of attendance since TV hit our homes. Have they done anything to improve conditions?

I am sure I am not the only person who wants to go to a show when it begins, and not 10 or 15 minutes after it has started. I'm sure I'm not the only person who does not wish to see two features.

Many a time I've tried to sandwich in a show, between various demands on my time. Have you ever tried to phone some of the theaters before opening time, just at opening time or just after? Busy signal. Constant. I have inquired about this and been informed it's a custom in at least two theaters to take the phone off the hook while they are busy.

All right, they are busy. I don't like to answer a phone when I'm busy either. However, it costs them the price of at least one theater ticket from me, more than once. Sunday I tried for an hour to reach one theater to time the showing of "Alexander the Great," as my boys wanted to see it, and I was going somewhere—they could have been dropped off on my way and walked home, as it is a mile or more to the theater, bus busy. We gave up and they stayed home. They didn't care for the second feature.

If I were a theater manager, and couldn't afford the time to answer my phone, I'd get a group to hire a girl to answer all the phones for a number of theaters at the busy hour. She could have all the information given her ahead of time. Or I'd print the times in my ad.

Too Little Known of Seal Symbols

TO THE EDITOR:

Take a look at the right-hand circle on the back of that dollar bill you have in your pocket.

The eagle first became our national emblem in 1782 when it was chosen for the Great Seal as a symbol of strength and victory.

The shield on the eagle's breast signifies self-reliance. It contains 13 stripes as a reminder that each individual state is expected to help protect the freedom of all the states.

The bar across the top of the shield stands for Congress as it unifies and binds all the states.

On the original seal, the color of the bar is blue and the stripes of the shield are red and white.

Red—hardiness and valor. White—purity and innocence. Blue—vigilance, perseverance, and justice.

In the right talon or claw of the eagle, note an olive branch—peace comes first—composed of 13 olive leaves.

In the left talon is a bundle of 13 arrows—the power of war. War is second, after peace.

Finally, above the eagle's head is a ring of light in gold, surrounding 13 stars of silver on a blue field. The stars denote "a new nation taking its place and rank among other sovereign powers."

Today little is known about the high ideals on which our national was founded. This letter is a little effort to remedy the illness.

Soap Box Speedsters Try Redondo Course

Boys entered in the annual Long Beach Soap Box Derby July 28 will try out their cars today on the Redondo Ave. hill just north of Pacific Coast Highway.

The derby is sponsored by The Independent, Press-Telegram and Long Beach area Chevrolet dealers.

The Redondo Ave. hill will be closed to traffic from 8 a. m. to noon today and the next two Sundays for the trial runs.

More than 425 boys competed in last year's race. The winner, Albert Cobble, 15, of 14426 Keene Ave., Compton, went on to the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron where he placed third and won a $3,000 college scholarship.

He plans to use the scholarship to study dentistry at the University of Southern California.

* * * *

AGAIN THIS YEAR, the Long Beach area boys will be competing for coveted trophies and an expense-trip to the national derby. Winners of the national race will share in scholarships totaling $15,000.

Long Beach derby drivers and their families will be guests of the Huntington Beach Jalopy Assn. Saturday night at a jalopy race at the American Legion track northeast of Huntington Beach. The free tickets will be mailed to contestants this week.

A parade of drivers and their gravity-powered racers will be held on Ocean Blvd., west from Alamitos Ave. to Cedar Ave., on Thursday evening, July 26.

The three trial runs scheduled for today and the next two Sundays "are designed to let the kids get the feel of their cars," derby director Fred Stover explained.

The trials also will give derby officials a chance to look over the wooden cars and offer suggestions to help the driver-owners pass the final inspections for safety and conformation to race rules, Stover said.

* * * *

THE YOUNGSTERS will race in two classes, with the winner of each class competing against each other for the right to represent Long Beach in the All-American Derby.

Class B is composed of boys 11 and 12. Class A consists of boys 13-15.

Final inspection of Class B racers will be held from 8:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. Thursday, July 26, at the derby site. Inspection of Class A entries will be held during the same hours on Friday, July 27.

After the inspection, the cars will be impounded. They will not be released until race time.

Class B entries will race Saturday morning, July 28, followed by the Class A races.

Reunion This Week of Ike's Old Outfit

WASHINGTON (LP) — President Eisenhower's old outfit, the Society of the Third Army Division, holds its annual convention and reunion here this week.

RACER TAKES SHAPE

Lakewood Merchants Plan Birthday Sale

Lakewood Center merchants are getting ready to bake a giant birthday cake.

Four candles will top the four-tier, five-foot-high cake in celebration of the shopping center's fourth anniversary, to be announced soon.

The cake will be served free with coffee at the opening of the Center's three-day birthday party, which will feature special sales events in the area's 70-plus stores.

Wallace Bruce, manager of Butler Bros. department store and president of the sponsoring Lakewood Center Businessmen's Assn., said Saturday that final plans for the celebration will be worked out Monday by a six-man committee.

Serving on the committee are Leon Silverman, chairman; Peter C. Nitrini, Fred Sanchez, Marvin Arthur and Jim Arnold.

In preparation for the event, all merchants are stocking special items and receiving large shipments of sales merchandise to give Lakewood Center shoppers some of the best shopping values available, the committee said.

Details of the event are to be announced later in the week.

PCC Jury Still Out on Troy Case

Announcement Due Today; Cal, WSC Also Under Scrutiny in Secret Session

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Pacific Coast Conference Saturday studied charges of illegal payments to athletes by University of Southern California alumni boosters but after seven hours of discussion a spokesman said there would be no announcement until today.

Dr. Glenn P. Seaborg of the University of California, acting as spokesman for the faculty representatives and athletic directors, said the entire day had been spent discussing the SC case and that it was not yet completed.

Questioned by newsmen after the closed door session, he added that both the University of California and Washington State College would be under scrutiny.

He said that Washington State's representative, Prof. Emmett Moore, the conference president, had volunteered Saturday that he had information to submit before the two-day meeting ends. Seaborg said he had no information as to what the evidence might be.

It was not clear whether the discussion would be confined to the three schools mentioned since Dr. Seaborg said that "several" were being considered.

Previously handed stiff penalties by the conference and placed on probation for "slush" fund or "under-the-table" pay to athletes have been the University of Washington and UCLA.

The athletic directors and faculty representatives continued their meeting after dinner Saturday and will begin again the first thing this morning. Seaborg said there would be no further announcement until deliberations are completed.

He said that all of the reports from member schools on athletic payments, asked by July 15, are not yet in; that no specific athletes were named in Saturday's discussion of SC financial aid, and that Stanford University is one that has not yet submitted its report.

Dr. Seaborg declined to comment on whether Bureau of Internal Revenue information was being used in considering athletic "under-the-table" payments or whether if such information was used the conference might be liable to legal action.

* * * *

"THOSE ARE things which will have to wait until final determinations are made," he said. "Any discussions now would be getting ahead of the story."

He added that no legal representative of institutions or persons outside the regular conference membership were present.

Last May Washington was placed on two years probation and UCLA three. During that time neither can win a conference championship, play in a post-season game or share in the Rose Bowl receipts. This will cost Washington about $52,000 and UCLA $78,000. In addition, the Uclans were fined $15,000 for refusal to allow the conference commissioner to make a study of the situation on the campus.

Football players at UCLA were assessed the loss of a year's eligibility unless they could prove they did not receive aid which wasn't allowed by the conference rules.

J. Miller Leavy, a UCLA alumnus, then charged a "blue book" group of SC alumni and supporters had raised $71,235 which had been paid to 60 Trojan athletes over a two year period. He said tax information at the Bureau of Internal Revenue backed his contention.

He also charged California with a "phony job racket" in which gridders received off-campus jobs with pay but with little or no work involved.

Officials at California denied the allegation but said about 20 cases involving "technical violations" had been discovered. The total sum involved was said to be $1,100.

* * * *

IN LOS ANGELES Saturday, four SC football players, including All-American back Jon Arnett, said their careers in college football "could be ruined" by penalties and ineligibility that might be inflicted by the PCC.

Arnett, Ellsworth Kissinger, Ron Fletcher and Dick Westphal jointly issued a statement saying:

"If it's decided in San Francisco that we aren't going to play, we'll promise that we'll play pro ball this year, even if it has to be in Canada."

Arnett said the "wait and see" policies of the PCC universities was wrong because "once a decsiion is made it probably will be impossible to change it." He said players weren't going to "wait around."

Angels Nudge Twinks, 4-3

Bilko Hits 37th; L.A. Nabs Lead

Steve Bilko slammed his 37th homer, equalling his entire 1955 output, as the Los Angeles Angels won their second straight game from Hollywood, 4-3, Saturday at Wrigley Field.

The victory, before 8,895 fans, evened the season's crosstown series at seven games apiece and moved the Angels into first place in the Pacific Coast League standings.

Red Adams, acquired from Portland last month, went the route and held the Stars to seven hits. It was his second win without a loss for the Angels.

* * * *

THE SCORING was wrapped up in the first inning—all on home runs.

Gene Freese got his first hit as a Star, knocking a home run off Adams and scoring Carlos Bernier and Spook Jacobs.

Casey Wise led off for the Angels by hitting Joe Trimble's first pitch into the bleachers for his fifth round-tripper. Gene Mauch was hit by a pitched ball and Bob Coats walked, setting the scene for the hard-hitting Bilko.

The big fellow belted the longest hit of the year at Wrigley Field, the ball soaring across the centerfield fence, landing on a rooftop of a house across 41st Pl.

* * * *

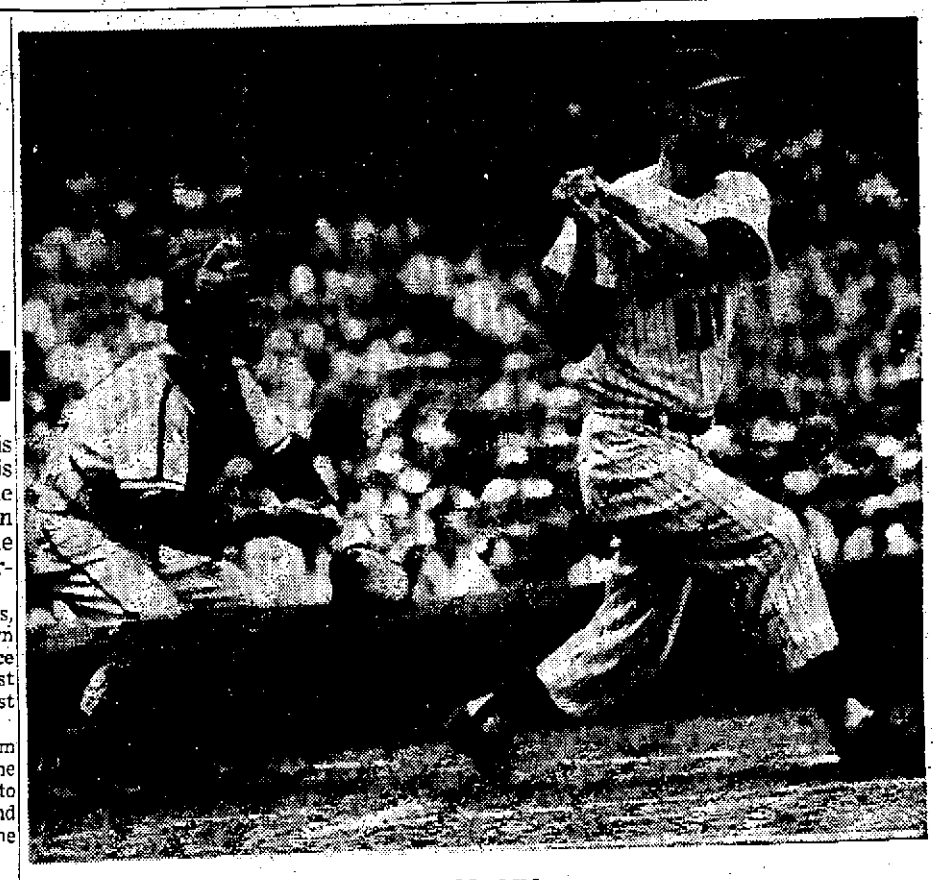

IN THE FIFTH, Los Angeles had the bases loaded with only one away but Trimble pitched himself out of trouble. Hollywood blew a similar opportunity in the top of the seventh.

ROOKIES REPORT THIS WEEK

El Bekal Temple to Sponsor Aug. 11 Ram-Warrior Tilt

Long Beach's El Bekal Temple of the Shrine has assumed sponsorship of the football game between the Los Angeles Rams and the Fort Ord Warriors to be staged here Saturday night, August 11, in Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Arrangement between the Rams and the El Bekal Temple was announced Saturday by Francis H. Gentry, who is in charge of the game for the local Shrine group.

It will mark the fourth straight year the Rams and Fort Ord have launched the football season in Long Beach.

* * * *

THE RAM-EL BEKAL tieup established a precedent in that the Shrine will be sponsoring for the first time a game involving a professional football team. The Shrine's other two important gridiron promotions involve amateur players . . . the East-West classic in San Francisco, featuring college seniors, and the Shrine-Hi game in the Coliseum in mid-summer bringing together the outstanding graduating high school players in the State.

Seating at Veterans Memorial Stadium will be boosted to 16,000 for the game . . . and all seats will be the same price, $3.30.

Tickets will be available at the Shrine office, 801 Elm Ave., late this week and at other locations later on.

The three previous games have drawn near - capacity crowds and a sellout is predicted for this year's affair.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, the largest group of rookies in Los Angeles Ram history—some 58 former collegiate stars—will report to Redlands University on Thursday to launch pre-season training.

Joining the rookie crop are six former Rams who for one reason or another were not on last year's roster. This group includes ends Bob Carey and Dewey McConnell, tackle Bob Fry, halfback Brad Myers, quarterback Rudy Bukich and guard Dick Daugherty.

The bulk of the Ram veterans will report two weeks later, July 26, with the exception of five "senior citizens" who have attained their 30th birthday. This group—Elroy Hirsch, Tom Fears, Don Paul, Woodley Lewis and Norm Van Brocklin—have been granted an extra week of leisure and are not due at Redlands until August 1.

The squad of first year men will take physical examinations and draw equipment Thursday afternoon, Friday will be devoted to camera day for the press, television and newsreels. Coach Sid Gillman has indicated he will start his two-a-day practice sessions on Saturday.

* * * *

ALREADY WARNED by letter to come to camp fully prepared to practice at top speed within the first few days, the newcomers will discover that Gillman has a fast pace scheduled for them.

"From the time our rookies report until our first game with Fort Ord," Gillman said, "we have just 30 days to prepare. Some of the better rookies will be away from camp for two weeks during that period to participate in the College All-Star game. In order to get a good look at them before they leave, we'll get into scrimmaging just as soon as we have enough offense to work with."

Spearheading the rookie crop will be a fine group of backs including fullback Joe Marconi of West Virginia, the Rams' number one draft choice. The retirement of veteran Dan Towler, who has been assigned a Methodist pulpit in Pasadena, will focus particular attention on this position as Tank Younger now represents the lone veteran fullback on the Los Angeles roster.

* * * *

ALONG WITH MARCONI, Ram coaches will be taking a long look at other first year fullbacks, the much-hearalded Charlie Sticka of little Trinity College in Connecticut and 225-pound Mike Norcia of Kent state.

Several outstanding collegiate halfbacks are also included on the rookie roster. Eddie Vincent of Iowa, one of the finest ball packers in the Big Ten, has great potential while Herb Nakken was equally effective offensively and defensively for three years at the University of Utah. Jesse Whittenton of little Texas Western, is an outstanding pass defender and Willie Berzinski, a 195-pounder with fine speed, was a little All-American selection at Wisconsin State Teachers.

FRY WINS AT WIMBLEDON

America's Shirley Fry goes all out, arms and legs flying, as she whips Britain's Angela Buxton in straight sets Saturday to win Wimbledon women's singles title. Miss Fry scored 6-3, 6-1 win. Story on page B-4.—(AP Wirephoto).

Detroit Breaks Chisox Jinx, 12-8

CHICAGO (UP) — A 17-hit barrage including successive home runs by Harvey Kuenn, Earl Torgeson and Charlie Maxwell powered the Detroit Tigers Saturday to a 12-8 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Billy Hoeft gained credit for the win, his 10th of the season and his club's first victory over the Sox this year. Steve Gromek came to his aid in the seventh inning.

The Tigers moved into the lead in the fifth inning, as Hoeft singled and romped home on Kuenn's eighth homer of the year. Torgeson walloped a pitch into the rightfield upper deck stands, and Maxwell blasted the inning's third homer into the stands below.

* * * *

THE TIGERS amassed an additional six runs in the next inning on a variety of six hits, featuring doubles by Al Kaline and Ray Boone. In the seventh, Kuenn brought home the Tigers' 12th run on a single by Maxwell.

AFTER DAVIS CUP

Report Hoad to Turn Pro

SYDNEY, Australia (Sunday) (UP)—The Sydney Sunday Truth reported Saturday that "informed tennis circles" expect newly-crowned Wimbledon champion Lew Hoad to turn professional after the Davis Cup challenge round in December.

Hoad, 21-year-old Aussie star who holds the Australian and French titles in addition to the Wimbledon and needs only the American crown for the first tennis "grand slam" in 28 years, recently said in London he is not contemplating turning professional.

Snead, With 3-Iron Only, Registers 71

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Sam Snead, looking for something to do, toured the Old White course with a 3-iron Saturday.

The Slammer used nothing but a three-iron, even for putts, and finished one over par with a 71. He was two-over on the front nine with a 36 and one under on the back with a 35. The Old White course is a 6,497-yard layout.

Penn Grid Ineligible

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The University of Pennsylvania announced Saturday a member of its 1955 football team had been barred from future intercollegiate athletic competition for accepting unapproved financial aid which violated Penn's Ivy League agreement.

The university, in making the announcement, declined to name the athlete, but he was identified from other sources as Franklyn (Buck) Rodgers, a third-string halfback who played in eight games as a sophomore last season.

L.B. Boat in Tahoe Win

CHAMBERS LODGE, Calif. (UP)—Shanty I won the 4th annual Mapes Gold Cup race for unlimited hydroplanes Saturday on Lake Tahoe—but only because Edgar Kaiser's favored Scooter II threw a prop in the last heat.

Shanty I, owned by W. T. Woggner of Phoenix and piloted by Lt. Col. Russ Schleeh of Castle AFB, was running second to Scooter II in the third and deciding heat when the latter suddenly stopped dead in the water.

Kaiser's second entry, Hawaii Kai III, finished third as Scooter II had to be towed into the dock.

Howard Smith of Long Beach won the Crackerbox division with his boat, Crazzy.

Jim Hubbard of Long Beach was second in the 48-cubic inch hydroplane class with his Little Jim.

Smith Tops Richards for Pentathlon Title

Howard Smith, former discus thrower and quarter-miler at SC, won the National Pentathlon championship Saturday, edging pole vaulter Bob Richards.

Smith totaled 3,033 points, while Richards earned 2,385. The pentathlon, consisting of the broad jump, discus, javelin, 200 meters and 1,500 meters, is not an Olympic event.

Nix Proposed Robinson, Aragon Go as Mismatch

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—California's State Athletic Commission launched a "get tough" policy Saturday by barring a proposed world title bout in Los Angeles next month between middleweight titlist Ray Robinson and welterweight Art Aragon on grounds it would be a mismatch.

The group, which was considerably revised in membership after a recent probe into the state's fight game, also upheld the right of a boxing inspector to enter dressing rooms "at any reasonable time" in performance of his duties.

This latter resolution, proposed by S. Thomas Bucciarelli of Riverside, ended a three year ban against chief Southern California inspector Clayton Frye which was invoked by Promoter Cal Eaton of the Los Angeles Olympic Auditorium.

* * * *

IT ALSO WAS EATON, and Matchmaker Babe McCoy, who sought permission to schedule the Robinson-Aragon bout. The commission had withheld approval last week, citing the difference between the boxers' weights. But Saturday it voted flatly that such a fight would be a mismatch.

"Aragon is ranked fifth among the welterweights by Ring Magazine and seventh by the National Boxing Association," Bucciarelli said before moving that the request be turned down. The vote was unanimous.

Aragon, who listened from the spectators' row, at first said he had no comment but then went before the commission and declared, "Ray Robinson accepted my challenge and I'm certain I could have beaten him and maybe knocked him out."

* * * *

AFTER KILLING off the bout, the board then slapped a two weeks suspension on Olympic ring announcer Jimmy Lennon for "making an announcement not authorized by the commission."

According to Frye, Lennon had asked for fans to write letters to the Olympic office giving their stand on whether they would like to see Aragon fight Robinson.

In other action, Manager Jack Attell was suspended for a period not to exceed six months while the commission investigates charges that he scheduled LeRoy Edmerson (Baby LeRoy) to box at the Olympic last month after the fighter had been put on California's retired list because of an eye injury.

MANN TOPS WORLD MARK

13-Year-Old in AAU Swim Upset

TYLER, Tex. (UP)—Thirteen-year-old Sylvia Ruuska of Berkeley, Calif., overtook defending champion Carolyn Green at the 650-meter mark and swept on to upset Miss Green in the 800-meter freestyle event of the 1956 Senior Women's National AAU outdoor swimming and diving championships Saturday night.

Her time of 10:54.5 lowered the world's 880-yard freestyle record of 11:00.2.

Miss Green, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., led all the way into the 650-meter turn when Sylvia shot past her and increased her lead to three lengths at the end of the race.

* * * *

IT WAS THE first time in the past four years that Miss Green has failed to win the 800-meter race. She successfully defended her 1,500-meter freestyle title in the opening event Wednesday. Her time Saturday night was 10:57.2.

In a previous final of the final night of action, 16-year-old Carin Cone of Ridgewood, N. J. broke her second American backstroke record with a time of 1:14.5 for 100 meters.

It was the second record to be broken in as many finals.

Shelley Mann of Walter Reed Army Hospital became the first world's record breaker to emerge from the Olympic-minded meet earlier as she swam the 100-meter butterfly in 1:11.8.

Miss Cone, who broke her own American record in the 200-meter backstroke Wednesday, lowered Miss Mann's mark of 1:15.5 set last year. Her time was also better than Miss Mann's AAU record of 1:15.5.

* * * *

MISS MANN lowered the world record of 1:13.7 set by Jutta Langenau of East Germany, the American mark of 1:15 and teammate Betty Mullen Brey's AAU record, also of 1:15.

All records are subject to approval of the AAU, although officials here believe there is no question of approval of all new marks.

Three other Walter Reed swimmers, Mary Jane Sears, Mrs. Brey, the defending champion, and Wanda Werner finished in that order behind Miss Mann to give the Washington, D. C., team an 104-71 lead over the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Bragan Blames Long for Bucs' Tailspin

NEW YORK (AP)—Pittsburgh Manager Bobby Bragan Saturday put the rap on his star hitter, Dale Long, accusing the first baseman of "trying to be Babe Ruth" and being responsible for the Pirates' recent tailspin.

"If Dale Long would stop trying to be Babe Ruth and start being Dale Long again, we'd be all right," the brash Pittsburgh skipper said, in trying to explain the Bucs' fall from first place in the National League to fifth.

"Dale is a .280 hitter normally, and that's where I want him to be—normal. Right now, he's at .300, but it's a skidding .300. He's made only two hits in his last 53 at-bats and none in his last 17."

This was the second time this season that Bragan has chastized the 30-year-old player who came from nowhere this year to be chosen the National League's starting first baseman in Tuesday's major league All-Star game.

On April 18 Bragan fined Long and outfielder Roberto Clemente $25 each for careless play in a 5-4 loss to the New York Giants.

Off to a hot start which shot them into first place early in June, the Pirates have lost 15 of their last 19 games to fall below the .500 mark. Long, who set a record of eight home runs in eight straight games, hasn't had a homer since June 9.

Bragan said Long's slump had not affected just himself but also pitcher Bob Friend and the entire team.

"Friend is the best pitcher in the National League, but he needs runs to win," the Pirate manager added. "Bob has lost four in a row but some hits by Long could have made a big difference."

Bragan admitted that Long carried the team in the early stages of the race but added that the slugger's sudden fame brought distractions.

"Wherever he walked he was idolized," Bragan said. "He was getting phone calls for all sorts of appearances. The fans at Forbes Field had him do encores. It was the kind of thing he'd never faced before.

"There's no need kidding ourselves. When he quit, we quit. The way we're constructed, we need his big bat."

Long was not available for comment.

Lawrence Posts 12th Win in Row

CINCINNATI (UP)—Ted Kluszewski took over the undisputed National League home run leadership Saturday night with his 22nd circuit clout to lead the Cincinnati Redlegs in a 5-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals that cemented their hold on first place.

Redleg righthander Brooks Lawrence, the major leagues' leading pitcher, appeared in relief and gained credit for his 12th victory without a defeat.

The Cardinals jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when the first three batters singled against Johnny Klippsten. Don Blasingame singled, took third on Al Dark's single and scored on Stan Musial's single. Dark then scored as Ken Boyer hit into a double play.

But Klippstein didn't allow another hit during the five innings he worked and Lawrence allowed only one over the last four.

The Cards' Vinegar Bend Mizell clung to the 2-0 lead until the sixth when Wally Post clouted his 15th homer over the centerfield fence. Gus Bell followed with a single and Kluszewski slammed his homer into the right-center bleachers, his eighth homer in the last seven games, to put Cincinnati ahead to stay.

Cincinnati added two more in the eighth against Jackie Collum on Frank Robinson's triple and three singles.

Once Over Lightly
by DAVE LEWIS

We have received many requests of late to repeat one of our columns of three or four years ago.

It concerns John King, whose antics have become legend among ballplayers.

I'll never forget a bull session with Frank Gabler several years ago when he happened to mention King.

"Who's he?" I asked.

"You haven't heard of John King?" Gabe roared in disbelief. "Why, you haven't really lived yet!"

Frank was in one of his better story-telling moods and he had us doubled up with laughter with his tales of the fabulous King.

"John would have been THE character of all characters if he had reached the big leagues where the writers would have immortalized him with the nation's sport fans," Frank explained.

FRANK GABLER

And Frank, one of our favorites among the baseball fraternity, should know because he was regarded as one of the funniest guys ever to hit the big time.

"John King," Gabe went on, "was an outfielder who roamed the West Texas League in the 1920s . . . and who hated all lefthanders and umpires.

"John always said, '50,000 of those blankety-blank southpaws went to war (World War I) and every darned one of 'em came back.' This used to make him very sad.

"An umpire was bad enough, but a left-handed umpire was the lowest thing that crawled, in John's estimation. Yet, strangely enough, he became an umpire when he quit playing," Gabe told us.

"I'll never forget the day I first met him," Frank continued. "I was playing in the Southern Association then and John was umpiring. A teammate introduced me to him as a promising new pitcher. John glared at me for a moment, then asked in a menacing tone, 'What are you son, right or left-handed?'

"When I told him I was a righthander, he shook my hand and treated me like a long-lost brother. No telling what might have happened if I had been a southpaw," Gabe said.

"He was very fair as an umpire though . . . not even a lefthander could dispute that. But, oh, how he hated 'em!

"HE WAS A GENEROUS MAN AND NEVER refused a 'touch.' One day he was walking down the street and saw a blind fiddler. John promptly walked up and dropped a silver dollar into the cup. The blind man said 'Thank you, sir,' and began playing a tune.

"John's mouth dropped open when he saw the fiddler was lefthanded. He quickly snatched the dollar back out of the cup and growled . . . "There isn't a lefthander anywhere in the world who'll ever get a cent from me.'

"He really hated them that much," Gabe explained.

"Why, when his wife gave birth to a son, John stewed and fretted for months that the boy might turn out to be a lefthander. So, they say, he finally taped the kid's left arm to its side to force him to use his right hand.

"Why did he hate lefthanders so much? It was simple enough," Frank went on. "He never could hit lefthanded pitching. That's what kept him out of the big leagues . . . and it made him a very bitter man. As for umpires, he claimed they were all against him.

"There was the day when John was going great guns at the plate. He had socked a home run and was in high spirits when the rival manager suddenly switched pitchers and put in a southpaw.

"King's manager, naturally, took him out for a pinch-hitter who could hit lefties. This, of course, made John furious.

"The clubhouse was just under the scoreboard in centerfield and John held up the game as he stormed out there . . . pouting like a little kid. Instead of going directly into the dressing room, however, he climbed up on the scoreboard and took down the '1' they had put there the inning before for his home run . . . and took it into the clubhouse. A moment later he stuck his head out of the door and yelled as loud as he could—'If I can't play, you can't have my run!'

"HE WAS FULL OF TRICKS LIKE THAT," Gabe chuckled. "One day he stole second, but the umpire missed the play and called him out. What followed undoubtedly was the beginning of one of the most famous of all baseball anecdotes which is still being told.

"John was fighting mad and charged the umpire screaming, 'If I didn't steal that base fair and square, God will strike me down in one minute.'

"After about a minute had passed, he snorted in triumph. 'There, you blind so-and-so, I must have been safe.' With that observation, he pulled up second base and carried it into the dugout muttering as he went . . . 'I stole it fair and square so it's mine.' He refused to give it back, too.

"Whenever he had a particularly bad day against a lefthander, he would punish himself in a peculiar, but effective manner. He would go to the best restaurant in town and order the finest dinner on the menu complete from soup to dessert. When it was served, he would pull a cold, soggy hot dog out of his pocket and eat . . . washing it down with a glass of water. 'That's all you deserve for letting bums get the best of you,' he'd scold himself."

Gabe laughed and said "I've just gotta tell you about the time the club wanted to release him . . . but he was so darned mean they finally gave up trying. He was a big man; stood 6-3 and weighed at least 240. Everybody was afraid of him when he went on the warpath, which was often.

"The club ultimately gave up attempting to get rid of him after trying a unique way of slipping him his release. The manager tied it on a string and let it down to him from a second story window one day when King was relaxing on the porch of the hotel where the club was staying. 'Hey John,' the manager yelled . . . and then ran for cover.

"JOHN PICKED UP THE RELEASE, READ IT, turned a bright red and then headed straight for the manager's room ready to commit mayhem. 'Did you write this?' he bellowed. 'No,' the trembling pilot said, 'the owner did.'

"He then barged into the owner's room and darned near scared him to death. 'Did you write this?' he snapped. 'N-n-n-o, the m-m-m-manger d-d-did,' the owner stammered.

"'Hah!' John roared triumphantly. 'He said he didn't, you say you didn't. So it looks like nobody wrote it and I'm not released,' he said as he tore the release to shreds. Needless to say, he remained with the club for several more seasons.

"Still another story they tell about him concerns the time he got into a card game on a train and was taken for everything he had on him. Broke, he got up and went looking for a friend to borrow $10. After getting the money, he marched back to the card game, tore the $10 bill into several pieces as the players watched in amazement, then opened the window and threw out the torn bill.

"He glared at the players for a few seconds, then announced in a loud voice. 'That's $10 you chiselers won't get from me.'

"In later years, of course, he always said that they were all lefthanded and had cheated him.

"That's like the time some confidence men sold him some useless property. He always claimed they were lefthanded, too. In fact, all crooks were southpaws to him.

"They finally struck oil on the 'useless' property, though, and John King wound up a wealthy man.

"Even then he refused to believe that the men who had sold him the property weren't lefthanded . . . maintaining that the turn of events was 'just my plain out-and-out simple reward for all the lousy deals I ever got from blankety-blank lefthanders and umpires!'"

Phils Come From Behind, Rip Bums

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies broke loose with five runs in the seventh inning to break up a pitchers' battle and beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-3, before a crowd of 26,575 at Connie Mack Stadium Saturday night.

Trailing by two runs in the seventh despite a five-hit pitching job by veteran Saul Rogovin, the Phils sent 10 men to the plate in their seventh. They combined five hits with two walks to knock out Roger Craig.

Philadephia's Solly Hemus singled. Two walks filled the bases and Clem Labine came in for Craig.

Del Ennis beat out a hit to shortstop, scoring Stu Miller, running for Hemus. Willie Jones singled through the middle to put the Phils in front 4-3. A single by Granny Hamner and a bunt by Ted Kazanski drove in two more runs.

NODS DORANDO

Mendoza in Upset Win

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rudy Mendoza, 145, Los Angeles, who entered the ring a 2-1 underdog, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Joey Dorando, 144, Los Angeles, at Legion Stadium Saturday night. It was Dorando's first loss in 13 pro bouts.

Mendoza piled up a big lead through the first seven rounds with his sharp jabs and accurate rights but barely withstood Dorando's final surge.

Referee Charley Randolph scored it 97-91, Judge Jimmy Wilson had it 97-92, and Judge Jimmy Wallace gave it to Mendoza 99-91.

McDougald Star as Yanks Romp

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gil McDougald and Bill Skowron each rammed three-run homers Saturday night as the New York Yankees laced Washington, 8-3, and lengthened their American League lead to five games.

Southpaw Mickey McDermott hurled the Yanks to their 11th triumph in 13 games with the seventh-place Senators and in doing so won his second of the season.

McDougald continued his blistering batting pace with two singles in addition to his sixth homer of the year, a wallop into the left field bleachers with Andy Carey and Jerry Coleman on base.

In This Corner with DICK ZEHMS

(While Dick Zehms takes a vacation, guest columnists on occasion will fill This Corner.)

By JESS HILL
Head Football Coach, SC

The 1956 season will mark my sixth and final year as head coach of the SC varsity football team.

During this period, typical of any athletic leader, I've run the gamut from bitter disappointment to great moments of triumph such as the 7-0 win over Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl and that great 42-20 victory over Notre Dame this past season.

Whether deflated at defeat or joyous at victory, the memories of the first five years are very lasting and I'm anxiously looking forward to my final season before humbly moving on to become Director of Intercollegiate Athletics upon the retirement of the honored Willis O. Hunter on September 1, 1957.

After our past spring football practice, I sat down with the other members of the Trojan coaching staff and we have a fairly good idea of what we can expect when drills open in September.

As a whole, the 1956 team is potentially a slightly better club than last year's, but it will take outstanding development at certain spots for that potential to be realized.

I doubt that many people would argue if I remarked that our first string backfield is excellent. It isn't too often a coach has two tremendous running threats like Jon Arnett and C. R. Roberts in the same backfield with a fine blocker and solid runner like Don Hickman. Add to that trio a sharp-thinking quarterback, Ells Kissinger, who has the mind to properly use the tools at his disposal. All four of these men, with an added year's experience, should be ready for their best performances.

Arnett, a consensus All-American last season, is one of the most exciting runners I've ever seen. His shiftiness, balance and speed continue to amaze me every time I see him break away from tacklers.

Roberts gained much-needed experience in 1955 and he showed improvement in each game as the season progressed. A great physical specimen at 6-1, 206 pounds, C. R. is the fastest man on the team and a powerful, explosive runner.

Arnett and Roberts are probably the best offensive one-two punch since Davis and Blanchard were at West Point.

Behind the top four are Frank Hall, Ernie Zampese, Doug Kranz and Jim Decker, along with two halfbacks up from the freshman team, Rex Johnston and Tony Ortega.

WHILE THE 1956 backfield figures to be improved over last year, the line picture is not that bright. Up front, the Trojans suffered their heaviest losses.

Both senior centers, Vern Sampson and co-captain Marv Goux have graduated. Back is a very fine prospect, junior Karl Rubke, 6-4, 225, who will be over the ball when the season opens. Behind him is Walt Gorrell, another junior, whose forte is linebacking.

Three 1955 guards, Orlando Ferrante, Co-captain George Galli and John Miller have completed their eligibility, leaving Laird Willott as the only returning letterman at guard. That doesn't include Ben Lardizabal who lettered in 1945 before returning to school last autumn. Willott and Lardizabal will open fall drills as my first team guards. Behind them, there is a crippling shortage of experienced personnel that could hurt over a tough 10-game schedule.

Our tackle corps is practically the same it was last year, with Dick Enright, Ron Fletcher, Fabian Abram, George Belotti, Dick Westphal and Hank Schmidt returning for the coming campaign. Two junior college transfers, Dave Main of Compton and Rod Humenuik of Pierce did not take part in spring practice, but are outstanding prospects, so the Trojan tackles will be experienced but there are no proven stars in the group.

THE END SITUATION might very well be the key to our success, or lack of it in the 1956 season.

Gone are Leon Clarke and Bing Bordier, who started the Notre Dame game and also letterman Don McFarland, Chuck Griffith, who was with us at the start of last year, is also not among the returnees.

Chuck Leimbach is the only returning letter winner and his performance will have to be more consistent or he will be hustled out of a job by one of the smaller candidates. At the conclusion of spring practice, Ludwig Keehn, 5-11, 170, and Bob Rosendahl, 6-1, 180 had the first team berths.

Some personnel may have to be switched from other positions to fill the void at the ends, but

Ferrier and Barber Head SC-PGA Field

By JERRY WYNN

Opposite in physical dimensions but equal in the fine art of stroking a golf ball, big Jim Ferrier and little Jerry Barber will head a field of 90 in the $6,000 Southern California PGA Championship beginning Thursday at Recreation Park.

The 1956 event should be one of the greatest in the 31-year history of the tournament, the largest PGA sectional in the nation.

1. The purse is a record high and the $1,200 winner's slice comparable to many national tournament jackpots.

2. The perenially classy field of PGA home club professionals from Arizona, Nevada and the Southland will be enriched by the additions of Barber, Jimmy Clark and Joe Kirkwood Jr.

3. The 6,263-yard, par 36-36-72 Long Beach municipal course is ideal, both competitively and gallery-wise, for the rugged match play tourney.

* * * *

AND RUGGED IT IS. The schedule reads first and second rounds, Thursday; third and fourth rounds Friday; quarter and semi-finals, Saturday, and 36-hole finals, Sunday.

Figuring 18 holes a match and par 72 for score, the two men who play through the finals will have walked close to 27 miles with stopovers for 576 swings and four lunches at Harold Sorenson's clubhouse grill.

In addition to the championship, there will be a special $600 Sunday sweepstakes and a $300 Seniors Championship—the victor in the latter earning a trip to Dunedin, Fla., to represent this section in national senior competition.

Ferrier, who ranks only behind Ben Hogan, Sam Snead and Lloyd Mangrum as professional golf's all-time money-winners, is the defending champion. The 6-4, 195-pound Australian, representing Lakeside CC, defeated Cecil Harris of Montebello, 4 and 3, in the finals and met but slight resistance throughout his path to the title.

* * * *

BUT THIS YEAR there appears to be definite roadblock. Coming off the tournament trail to bid for sectional honors is Barber, all 5 feet, 5 inches and 135 pounds of him.

It is one of golf's greatest attractions to see the little Wilshire CC pro boom his drives farther than most of his robust opponents with power generated from strong forearms, wrists and hands.

While Ferrier is noted for his rigid left leg—the result of a football injury—which gives his swing a rocking motion, Barber is so loose jointed that he has to strain to keep his body intact.

For Clark, the Huntington Beach product who rose to fame as a Long Beach amateur star, it will be a homecoming after many successful years on the tournament trail. He holds the course records at both Lakewood and Meadowlark and was a two-time Long Beach City champion.

* * * *

KIRKWOOD, the Joe Palooka of the movies, caused quite a stir on the national circuit before hanging up his clubs for the flickers a few years back. This will be his first major comeback effort.

In addition to Ferrier, the lineup will include these former champions: Eric Monti, Ralph Evans, Fay Coleman, Paul Runyan, Zell Eaton, Harry Bassler,

RACING ROUNDUP:

Porterhouse Easy Hollypark Winner

Porterhouse strengthened his hold on the sprinting championship of the West Saturday by racing to a win by better than a length in the $27,300 Lakes and Flowers Handicap at Hollywood Park before 45,000 fans.

TOM BREWER
Notches 11th Victory

The Llangollen Farm star, conqueror of Swaps earlier in the meeting found the six furlong distance to his liking as he closed with a rush to nail Scent and Moolah Bux in the stretch and pull away by a length and a quarter.

The time of 1:09 flat was just a fifth of a second off the track record and Porterhouse accomplished his easy win with top weight of 124 pounds.

* * * *

SCENT AND Moolah Bux finished second and third. Spring Count was fourth, while the well-regarded Cyclotron was fifth in the seven-horse field.

The speedy Moolah Bux broke out in front and quickly opened up a length's lead. Jockey Ismael Valenzuela let Porterhouse coast along in sixth position for the first eighth and then moved him up to fifth approaching the turn.

But it was on the turn that Porterhouse opened up. As Scent took away the lead from Moolah Bux, Porterhouse was third rounding into the stretch but by the eighth pole he was charging up on the leaders.

* * * *

LEALLAH, THE 1-5 favorite, romped to an easy four-length triumph in the $35,180 Arlington Lassie Stakes for 2-year-old fillies at Arlington Park. Leallah was ridden by Willie Hartack, who totaled five winners for the day. Splendored was second, Frank's Flower third.

Ricci Tavi was only two-fifths of a second off the track record for a mile and a sixteenth in winning the $30,400 Saranac Cap at Belmont Park. Bill's Sky Boy was second, St. Amour third.

Woodland Farm's Blue Sparkler won the $28,500 Molly Pitcher Handicap by eight lengths at Monmouth Park.

Piersall Beats Birds

BOSTON (U.P.)—Jimmy Piersall's bases-loaded single during a three-run Boston third inning scored the winning run in a Red Sox 4-3 victory Saturday over the Baltimore Orioles before 10,320 paid fans.

Piersall lined a single into left field off starting and losing pitcher Billy Loes, scoring Ted Williams with the margin of victory. The Red Sox scored two other runs on two singles, a walk and a wild pitch.

After Piersall singled Mike Fornieles came on to retire the next three men and pitched three-hit ball the rest of the way. However, his brilliant relief effort was wasted as ace right hander Tommy Brewer threw a seven-hitter to notch his 11th win of the season and third in a row over Baltimore this year.

SLAMS 45 HOMERS IN 80 GAMES

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Dick Stuart, the hottest home run slugger to hit the class A Western League in years, has a hopeful eye on organized baseball's all-time record for circuit clouting in a season.

The 23-year-old from Culver City, California, who plays movie bit parts in the off season, laced out homer No. 45 for the Lincoln Chiefs this week to set a new modern-day Western League home run record.

Stuart's 45 homers have come in 80 games. He needs 27 more to equal the all time record of 72 set by Joe Bauman of Roswell in the Longhorn League two years ago.

STAR GAME STILL SHY ONE 'PITCHER'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The problem of who's to toss out the first ball at Tuesday's All-Star game at Griffith Stadium is still unsolved.

President Eisenhower sent word Friday he was unable to fill the chore. The President is recuperating from abdominal surgery at his Pennsylvania farm home.

Vice President Nixon is on a trip through the Far East.

Chief Justice Warren, the next hurler in line, is leaving for Europe.

Vaulting Star Defends Title

The Rev. Bob Richards goes after his third straight National AAU Decathlon Championship July 13-14 at Wabash College, Ind.

The three top men in the 10-event test of all-round athletic ability will represent the United States at Melbourne in the Olympic decathlon. It was won at Helsinki in 1952 by Bob Mathias of Tulare, Cal., with a record 7,887 points.

Richards, representing the Los Angeles Athletic Club, scored 6,873 points to win the 1955 national title and it may not be enough this year.

Rafer Johnson of UCLA upped the world record of 7,983 points last year in the Pacific Coast decathlon. He didn't compete in the AAU meet.

Other standouts in this year's field include Milt Campbell of the Navy and Indiana University, second to Mathias in the 1952 Olympics and national champion in 1953; Sam Adams, former California weight star; Howard Smith, ex-Trojan athlete; Aubrey Lewis of Notre Dame and Bob Lawson of Southern California.

Softball Player Hurt

Possible fracture of the right elbow was suffered by Roger J. Teske, 16, of 2277 Clark Ave., Friday night, when he collided with another softball player during a game at Recreation Park. He was treated at Community Hospital.

OLSON LONE L.B. ENTRY

National Public Links Meet Begins Monday

The butcher, the cop, the truck driver and the boy from next door tee off on Monday in one of the most democratic of all golf events: the National Public Links tourney at Harding Park in San Francisco.

Defending champion Sam Kocsis of Detroit and 154 others, including school teacher Craig Olson of Long Beach, will battle in a 36-hole qualifying round for the 64 places in the match play that starts on Wednesday.

OLSON

In addition to the problem of qualifying for the match play in the first two rounds, there will be inter-city competition for the first 36 holes.

Three men from each city will be competing as a unit and their total score will win the city trophy.

The favored team probably will be the Detroit club headed by Kocsis, and including Jim Seltzer and Mike Andonian.

Other strong teams include Seattle (Jim North, Dan Barkley and Hans Turner)) and Los Angeles (Joe Gallardo, Jerry Gallardo and Mike Furgo).

Olson is Long Beach's lone qualifier. He fired rounds of 73-72—145 in qualifying at Brookside Park last month. Another area qualifier is Frank Donaldson of Santa Ana, 71-77—148.

Mantle's Injury Big Blow to AL All-Stars

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mickey Mantle's injury has struck a heavy blow at American League hopes in the 23rd All-Star baseball game at Griffith Stadium Tuesday against the power-packed National League lineup that includes five Cincinnati Redlegs.

Billy Pierce, talented Chicago lefty who has won his last eight and 13 in all, probably will get the job of trying to tame the National's homer - happy sluggers in the first three innings. Four National starters including first baseman Dale Long of Pittsburgh, centerfielder Gus Bell and catcher Ed Bailey of Cincinnati and rightfielder Stan Musial of St. Louis are left-handed batters.

Bob Friend, Pittsburgh's ace righthander, is the likely starter for the National on the strength of a topheavy vote for him as the league's No. 1 pitcher by the eight managers.

Bob Friend

Starting pitchers and batting orders will not be announced officially until Monday morning by Managers Casey Stengel of the American and Walter Alston of the National. The eight starters, selected by the vote of about 300,000 fans, must play the first three innings at least. Pitchers can not go more than three unless it's an extra-inning game.

Although the Nationals have won five of the last six games, including the 12-inning thriller at Milwaukee last year on Musial's dramatic home run, the American still holds a 13-9 edge.

* * * *

THE 25-MAN squad of the National has hit well over 220 home runs, about 70 more than the entire American squad, including Mantle's 29.

Birdie Tebbetts' slugging Reds, with a heavy surge of home town support, placed left-fielder Frank Robinson, shortstop Roy McMillan, second baseman Johnny Temple and Bell and Bailey on the starting team. The others, picked by the fans, are third baseman Ken Boyer of St. Louis and Musial and Long.

The National lineup represents a complete switch from 1955 with not one repeater. Of course, there are several of last year's team on the rest of the squad selected by Alston.

Musial, selected for the 13th year, sets a new record by just starting the game. His total of four homers also is high for the series.

* * * *

MANTLE, of course, was to have been the big gun in the American lineup with his Yankee teammate catcher, Yogi Berra. Al Kaline of Detroit in rightfield and Ted Williams of Boston in left rounded out the outfield picked by the fans. The infield was made up of first baseman

Musial Wins Poll as 'Player of Decade'

ST. LOUIS (U.P.)—Stan (The Man) Musial Saturday was named "player of the decade" in a poll conducted by the Sporting News, the national baseball weekly.

Musial, outfielder - first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, won out in a poll of 260 players, club officials, umpires, writers and sportscasters over Joe DiMaggio, former New York Yankees outfielder, and slugger Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

The selection of a star for the period from 1946 to 1955 was suggested by Bob Feller, pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, who finished fourth in the balloting with 1,647 points.

Stan Musial

Musial, garnering 97 first-place ballots to 83 for DiMaggio and 52 for Williams, received 2,654 points. DiMaggio had 2,433 and Williams 2,312.

"The Man," as he is often called, has won six National League batting crowns and been selected most valuable player three times. He had an average of .342 for his career when the season began.

Musial will be presented with a grandfather's clock at ceremonies next Tuesday in Washington. Feller will make the presentation on behalf of J. G. Taylor Spink, editor of the Sporting News.

Others receiving notice in the poll, and their points (based on 14 for first, 9 for second, 8 for third and down to one for 10th), were Robin Roberts, Phillies, 1,333; Yogi Berra, Yankees, 1,277; Jackie Robinson, Dodgers, 1,004; Roy Campanella, Dodgers, 1,000; Johnny Mize, Cardinals, Giants and Yankees, 615, and Hal Newhouser, Tigers, 522.

What Giants Need Is More Friends

NEW YORK (U.P.) — Johnny Antonelli bested Bob Friend for the third straight time this season Saturday when Hank Thompson singled with the bases filled and two out in the eighth inning to give the New York Giants a 3-2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Friend carried a 1-0 lead into the seventh inning but Daryl Spencer hit his eighth homer of the season in that frame to tie the score at 1-1.

Eddie Bressoud tripled in the eighth and walks to Willie Mays and Bill White filled the bases before Thompson stroked a 2-2 pitch into left center field to drive in two runs.

ALL-STAR TILT

Name Score, Lopata Subs

CHICAGO (AP) — Catcher Stan Lopata of the Phillies and pitcher Herb Score of the Indians have been named to fill vacant positions of the National and American League All-Stars teams.

Lopata will replace National League catcher Del Crandall of the Braves, who will be out of action for several days with an injured elbow.

Score, sporting an 8-5 record, replaces teammate Ray Narleski on the American League team. Narleski hurt his elbow pitching against Kansas City last Tuesday. The injury is still hurting Narleski.

Amy Hiland Nears Juan De Fuca Swim

Amy Hiland of Long Beach is putting the finishing touches on her training grind prior to her attempt to become the first woman ever to swim the murderous Strait of Juan De Fuca from Port Angeles, Washington, to Victoria, B. C.

Distance of the swim is 18.3 miles, but the distance is the least factor in conquering the Strait. Juan De Fuca not only is laced by swift tidal currents vicious rips and exceptionally strong tides, but it is the coldest strait in the world. The water temperature ranges between 46 and 50 degrees during the warmest part of the summer.

The cold water more than anything else is responsible for making the Strait so tough to swim.

A total of 45 attempts have been made to swim the Strait starting with Florence Chadwick in August, 1954. Florence gave up after five hours when she got caught in a bad rip tide about five miles out.

Only one person has ever made the swim. He is Bert Thomas, 270-pound Tacoma logger who accomplished the feat on his fifth attempt in 11 hours and 10 minutes last July 7 under the finest water conditions possible.

Mrs. Hiland has been training daily in the waters off Port Angeles. She started with 30 minutes in the water and has worked her way up to three and one-half hours at a stretch.

Amy appears to be taking the water temperature very well and veteran observers are optimistic over her chances of completing the swim.

Her navigator is Captain Loring Hyde, the man who navigated the successful swim by Thomas. Hyde also is confident that Amy will make it. In fact, he is predicting that if she gets water conditions as good as Thomas that she will swim the strait in nine hours.

Mrs. Hiland's jumping off date has not been set, but she is expected to plunge into the water the first time conditions come up "favorable."

Amy wants to make the crossing before Marilyn Bell, well-known Canadian swimmer who has been offered $30,000 by Canadian interests to make the attempt.

Miss Bell will arrive in Victoria on July 15 after training in Eastern Canada for the past two months.

Thus, Mrs. Hiland is expected to hit the water as soon as possible after the 15th.

Since Amy is an amateur swimmer, no offers have been made to her. However, her expenses are being underwritten by the Port Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Wilbur Slater of Long Beach arrived in Port Angeles the past week to help Amy train and to serve as her physician on the trip.

Dr. Slater, a distance swimmer of note himself, revealed before leaving for Washington that he expects to take a crack at Juan De Fuca Strait shortly after Amy's attempt. He originally had planned to swim the English Channel this summer, but has put off that trip until next year.

PLANS FOR BOAT SHOW CANCELLED

July Title Regatta Here Sunday

By BOB RUSKAUFF

Though emphasizing that next Sunday's big regatta at Marine Stadium will go on as planned, Commodore Jack Gouldstone of the Los Angeles Speedboat Assn. on Saturday "announced with regret" cancellation of the allied boat show which had originally been scheduled.

"The reason certainly was not lack of interest," Gouldstone said. "The idea of such an event right on the course was well received. But we are a racing organization and it just took more than we had the manpower to offer. We've not abandoned the idea at all."

There'll be plenty to do to handle the nearly 100 drivers expected to clash in the July championship regatta.

Nothing is planned on the Southland speedboat schedule today. Next Sunday, though, in addition to the Marine Stadium clash, stock outboard drivers will wind up their two-day regional championships at San Diego.

* * * *

ON THE SAILING front today things are a-boom.

Upward of 90 small boats will sail final races of the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club's big July 4 regatta this afternoon.

On Newport Bay, sailors vying for the right to compete for Southern California Yachting Assn. in Pacific Coast eliminations will complete their two-day series.

At Victoria, B. C., today skipper Lanny Coon and his crew, Peter Geib and Craig Cadwallader, meet top youngsters of the coast in western sail-offs for the Sears trophy. Finals are slated in August in Montreal. The NHYC lads defeated contenders from seven clubs in the recent Southland eliminations.

The Sears award is emblematic of the North American championship for sailors 13-18 years of age. The Mallory Cup, which will be defended in Seattle by Bill Buchan, is the same for seniors.

A dual sailing race around Catalina Island, with fleets starting respectively from Portuguese Bend and Los Angeles Harbor, both finishing off harbor light, has been announced for Saturday. It will be co-sponsored by the West Coast and Win'ard yacht clubs.

PAR TICULARS

by JERRY WYNN

It was 1941. The mighty Olin Dutra, former U. S. Open and National PGA champion, stood at the threshold of winning his seventh Southern California PGA Championship. His opponent in the finals was lightly-regarded Bud Oakley, who had never won a major tournament.

Although Dutra was two down after the first 18 holes, he was still considered a cinch. But he wasn't for long. While Dutra was parring the entire front nine in the afternoon, Oakley rattled off six birdies and went on to record the biggest upset in SC-PGA Championship history, 8 and 7.

That was the first of the Championships to be held at Recreation Park and it set a pattern that has lasted through 15 consecutive years of play here.

* * * *

PAR GOLF DOESN'T win the big sectional.

It was 1947 Lloyd Mangrum, the defending U. S. Open champion, faced Zell Eaton in the first round. At the end of the regulation 18 holes the match was even. Eaton birdied the first extra hole for the victory.

The fact that it was a startling upset was underscored by what must have been one of the greatest two-man exhibitions of match scoring in golf history. The birdie on the extra hole was Eaton's sixth straight. For the prior 18 holes, both Eaton and Mangrum were eight under par!

It was 1955. Cecil Harris was a surprise finalist against Jim Ferrier. But the outcome was no surprise. Ferrier was 10 under par for the 33 holes he needed to post a 4 and 3 decision. He was 31 under par for the tournament.

* * * *

PROBABLY THE finest pair of consecutive holes was played by Babe Lazane in a 1953 quarter-final match with Jack Smith. One down going into the 18th, Lazane evened the score by holing a 75-foot chip from the hill on top of the home green for a birdie-two. He won on the first extra hole by reaching the green with his drive and canning the eagle putt.

But sub-par shooting has by no means supplied the only SC-PGA Championship highlights at Recreation Park.

Just last year, Ralph Evans and Fay Coleman battled through 30 holes of a scheduled 18-hole match before Evans came away with the win. It was the longest tournament match in golf annals.

And who but Clayton Aleridge can boast of having beaten two former U. S. Open champions on the same day? It happened in the 1943 event. His victims were Dutra and Ralph Guldahl. The former Huntington Beach pro went on to win the title.

A tournament of stature, thrills and great golf . . . Long Beach is proud host to the Southern California PGA Championship.

AREA OLYMPIC HOPEFULS

Dr. Steve Seymour of Long Beach, one of the all-time great javelin throwers, instructs two bright area women track stars bidding for U. S. Olympic team. Seymour believes Earlene Brown of Compton (right) will be a threat to Russia with best marks of 48 feet in the eight-pound shotput and 135 feet in the discus. He also has high hopes for Gay Trollinger (center), Wave discus star stationed at TI Navy Base. They will compete in Far Western AAU regionals in L. A. today.

Stars of Tomorrow

By DOUG IVES

A few weeks ago the question was asked, what is the top baseball school in this area?

A long list of former kid leaguers more than established the Long Beach Kid Baseball Association as the school which has fashioned more than their share of bright young ballplayers.

In looking back over the list, which would easily fill a page in the telephone directory, we find a good number who are trying to make their way in the pro ranks.

Ballplayers like Jim Pagliaroni, Roger Jongewaard, Jay Cooke, Nick Hopkins, Bill Balcom, Bob Schuler and Gordie Seyfried are former kid leaguers who may some day blossom into top-notch major league stars.

Ironically, just as these former kid leaguers were stars of the kid ranks some six to eight years ago, they are still sharing the spotlight in pro baseball.

Jongewaard, a former Poly High catcher who signed with Milwaukee, is hitting .288 for Evansville, Indiana in the Class B. Three-I League. Rog has batted over .300 in both his seasons of pro ball.

Another success story is that of Schuler, the former shortstop for Wilson High and City College. Little Bob, the shortest player in the league incidentally, is hitting .327 and has whacked eight homers for Clinton, Iowa, a Class D league.

No one in this area, when speaking of up-and-coming ballplayers, can bypass the name of Jim Pagliaroni, Pag, former Wilson High catcher, signed with Boston Red Sox for over $50,000 two years ago. He was with the club up until a few weeks ago until he was inducted into the Army.

Two other players who are making names for themselves in baseball are Cooke and Hopkins, both ex-teammates of Pagliaroni.

Both boys are hitting over .300, Hopkins for Lafayette, Indiana, and Cooke for Valdosta in the Georgia-Florida League.

Cooke, who like Hopkins signed with Detroit, is hitting .305 and is the top fielder in the circuit. Moreover, he leads the league in homers with 14.

Balcom former Poly High football, basketball and baseball star, also is doing a splendid job in the pro ranks. Playing in the Arizona-New Mexico League, he is hitting .307 and has seen action on the mound, at first base and in the outfield.

ACTION WILL BE HOT and heavy in Rotary League play this week with first place hinging on the outcome of games in both the American and National Leagues.

Nutrilite and Eagles 791, who share the National League lead with the Lakewood 'Y' with 5-1 marks, will battle it out Monday at Truman Boyd Park at 8:15 p.m.

The North Long Beach Lions, sporting a 5-1 win-loss mark, will attempt to knock off unbeaten Petrolane (6-0) when the two teams clash Thursday at Cherry Avenue Field at 7:15. The Lions are one game back in second while Petrolane is tied with the Legion Braves for the league lead.

WHILE I WAS inquiring about some of the former kid baseballers who have either started professional baseball careers or are being sought by major league teams, I ran across an interesting sidelight.

One of the most promising young ballplayers in the Southland today is heavy hitting Compton outfielder Bob Henrich, who has been sought by several major league clubs.

His dad, Ed, who is an avid baseball fan and who seems to know his way around in the coaching and scouting end of the game, also has done well for himself in the majors.

Young Bob went to a Cincinnati Red tryout camp not long ago, accompanied by his father, of course. The Reds were very much interested after the tryout, but Bob decided to get an education first.

Nevertheless, the Reds did manage to sign Henrich. The Henrich that signed, however was ole dad Ed, who inked a scouting contract.

EVER STOP AND THINK how many youngsters are competing in kid baseball these days? To be truthful, this writer has a tough time figuring out the number of leagues let alone the number of ballplayers.

New leagues and new teams, thus more players are popping up all the time. At last count there were 14 leagues in existence and well over 3,000 kids playing ball.

The biggest league is the Elks 888 Midget League. There are 6 teams in the league with 20 players on a team. This makes 820 ballplayers. I'm glad I'm not a statistician.

Next week I think I'll take stock of all the different leagues and teams and figure out approximately how many youngsters are participating in kid baseball.

DOW FINSTERWALD
Holds 1-Stroke Edge

MONTREAL (CP)—Dow Finsterwald, a slim 26-year-old pro with a picture swing, fired a five-under-par 67 Saturday and a 54-hole total of 203 to take a one-stroke lead in the $15,000 Canadian Open golf championship.

The young pro put together rounds of 67, 69 and 67 over the 6,665-yard, par 36-36—72 Beaconsfield layout for his slim edge over Marty Furgol and Dick Mayer. Just two strokes back was amateur Doug Sanders, 22-year-old shotmaker from Miami Beach, Fla.

"There was nothing special about the round," Finsterwald said after sinking a six-foot birdie putt on the 18th. "I missed several putts I should have made and I had to scramble from time to time." He birdied the first, sixth and ninth on the front nine and parred the other six holes and then shaved par on the 11th, 12th, and 18th and recorded his only bogey when he was short to the left on the par-three 13th and three-putted for a four.

Fry Wins Wimbledon Laurels

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Shirley Fry's 12-year quest for a major singles title met success Saturday when the steady veteran from Ohio won the Wimbledon women's championship, one of three honors salvaged by Americans on the final day.

The 29-year-old Miss Fry, her backcourt game bristling with accuracy, cut down Britain's intent Angela Buxton in a workmanlike, 50-minute final, 6-3, 6-1. The American never lost her service.

Later Miss Fry teamed with Vic Seixas of Philadelphia to capture the mixed doubles, beating Althea Gibson of New York and Gardnar Mulloy of Denver, 2-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Miss Gibson, tall New York Negro, paired with Miss Buxton to win the women's doubles with a 6-1, 8-6 triumph over Fay Muller and Daphne Seeney of Australia. She thus became, the first of her race to win a Wimbledon title.

Australia's Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall walked off with the men's doubles. They trounced Nicola Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirola of Italy, 7-5, 6-2, 6-1.

Hugh Stewart of Pasadena, Calif., rallied to defeat Mulloy, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, in the finals of the consolation tournament for competitors eliminated during the first two rounds of the championships.

Ronald Holmberg of Brooklyn, won the boys' singles title by trouncing Ron Laver of Australia, 6-1, 6-1. The girls' singles crown went to Ann Haydon of Britain, who defeated Ilse Buding of Germany, 6-3, 6-4.

APPEARS TO BE HONORARY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Shirley Fry of St. Petersburg, who was promised the city pier if she won the Wimbledon women's singles tennis championship, cabled Mayor Sam Johnson Saturday:

"Coming soon to collect my pier."

Johnson said Shirley likely will be made honorary owner of the pier, inasmuch as he "wouldn't want to embarrass her with its revenue."

"I would hate to cause her to lose her amateur standing," the mayor added.

Anyone for Catcher?

POPLAR, Mont. (AP) — If you're of age and want to live dangerously, there's a place for you as catcher on Poplar's Junior Legion baseball team.

The line of this season's backstops went like this:

Jerry O'Brien lost his little finger in an elevator accident.

Blaine Bergie jammed his thumb from a foul tip, then cut his foot while swimming. Willis Bublitz fractured his finger and ripped the nail. Thomas Buckles was hit on the head by a bat, causing a scalp laceration. Jerry Corne, who caught in practice, dislocated his knee.

The sixth catcher this season, "Swede" Christian, came out for practice. He took his licks in batting practice, returned to the bench, got up and fate struck again. He's now lame with a muscle spasm.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Southern California anglers should know considerably more about the whereabouts of the albacore within the next week. There's a good reason for this—many of the private boat owners and their fishing parties will be searching almost every square mile of the Pacific from Ensenada to Santa Barbara and 100 miles out.

First of all, more than two score of boats representing all the big-game fishing clubs of this area are winding up the two-day inter-club albacore tournament at 2 p.m. today. They will check in at the Balboa Angling Club by 6 p.m. today. This is strictly a contest among nine different clubs. The Southern California Tuna Club of Long Beach has five boats and teams in the event.

Next Saturday marks the first intra-club albacore tournament of the Southern California Tuna Club. It's a one-club affair and more than 24 boats will carry upwards of 80 anglers vying for all sorts of awards.

The SCTC tournament is a one-day contest, with fishing starting at 6 a.m. and ending at 3 p.m. Results will be mailed in to the headquarters of the club at the Lafayette Hotel. Winners probably will be announced at the club's meeting Thursday, July 19.

SCTC MEMBERS kicked off their tournament Friday night with a banquet that could have been mistaken for a political convention. Teams were drawn for the various boats and the maneuvering that followed, both on top of the table and under, provoked a lot of merriment. These men take their fishing seriously, but they have a lot of fun while they are doing it.

Eugene V. LeGrand and Cliff Brignall carried the ball in committee work and certainly deserve a lot of credit for drawing up regulations and obtaining the boats. They were aided by Dr. N. R. McCoy Sr., Robert L. Joy and Arthur Dinel.

By under-the-table maneuvering, I mean that each team has drawn its own map of the Pacific, with its own ideas of where the albacore might be. Those maps were being snitched, copied and returned with VARIATIONS to their owners. All in fun, of course! It will be hard to determine just who is fishing where, come next Saturday.

The tournament will be strictly a three-six event, with members using a line that has a breaking point of 18 pounds, when wet. It breaks at about 14½ when dry.

Only artificial lures may be used. No chumming, live bait or teasers are permitted. Boats may leave any port from San Diego to Santa Barbara at any time Friday, but fishing can not start until 6 a.m. the following day.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Who took a swim last Sunday in Balboa Bay while fully clothed? None other than Russell Pray and Ralph Larraby! Larraby was giving Pray his first sailboat ride when something went wrong with the rudder and the small sailboat overturned.

Both started a long swim to shore, decided they couldn't make it, returned to the capsized craft and hung on for an hour. Several boats flying albacore flags passed by without noticing them while Russell remarked: "Looks like the albacore are getting closer." Finally a skiff-rental attendant saw their plight and rowed out to their rescue.

Today marks the windup of the silver anniversary meeting of the Western Association of Angling and Casting Clubs at Buena Vista Park in Burbank. Several Long Beach Casting Club members (men and women) are taking part. Events begin at 9 a.m. and end about 5 p.m.

SAN FELIPE going modern? It looks that way from Friday's reports that the popular fishing village on the Gulf of California is starting the construction of an artificial bay, where fishing boats and yachts of all kinds may enter and dock without regard to tides.

The plan was announced by Mayor Rodolfo Escamilla Soto, who said that the project will be started within 60 days. Both the municipal and state governments will join in financing the harbor.

San Felipe, 100 miles south of Mexicali, has been a favorite spot of California fishermen, but extreme tides, unsanitary conditions and undependable boat skippers have plagued them and caused them to go elsewhere. Let's hope this is the beginning of an entirely new face for San Felipe.

Ensenada reports a tremendous catch of yellowtail for the week just ended.

SCHENLEY SPORTSMEN'S Club has added the marlin classification to its ocean fishing contest and, in so doing, announces that skippers, as well as those making the catches, will be eligible for awards.

THAMES CUP

Princeton Crew Wins

HENLEY - ON - THAMES England (AP) — Princeton University's undefeated lightweight eight rowed to two victories over the windwhipped Thames River Saturday to capture the Thames Challenge Cup of the Henley Royal Regatta.

The Princetonians eliminated Kent School of Connecticut in the semi-finals, then outsped the Royal Air Force oarsmen of Britain by a length.

Princeton was timed in 7 minutes, 38 seconds for the semifinal test over the mile, 550-yard course and was clocked in 7:10 for the final.

Believe Veeck Group High Detroit Bidder

DETROIT (UP)—The game of speculation on "who bid how much" for the Detroit Tigers was in full swing Saturday.

The present Tiger ownership is studying eight bids for the club, Briggs Stadium and other baseball property. The top bids will be submitted to Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and the American League sometime next week after study by club officers.

Two Detroit newspapers rated the bid by the Bill Veeck syndicate as among the highest or perhaps the highest. But Veeck, like most of the other bidders, wasn't talking. The published guesses were that Veeck's bid was $5.2 or $5.3 million.

One guess placed the bid of Hollywood producer Robert Goldstein's group, which includes Clark Gable, at $5.2 million also. But another said Goldstein bid below $5 million.

The bid of Detroit radio executive Fred Knorr and his group was placed at both $5 million and $4¾ million. The bid of Jack Kent Cooke, Toronto sportsman, was put at $4¾ million by one source, also.

Walter O. "Spike" Briggs, president of the Tigers, said the decision on who buys the club will depend on factors other than the amount of money.

Rockets, All-Stars in Rematch Here Today

The long awaited rematch between the Long Beach Rockets and the Los Angeles All-Stars is scheduled at Recreation Park this afternoon when they clash in a semipro Summer League game beginning at 2:15.

In their first meeting on May 6, the L.A. nine walloped the locals, 12-0, as Red Lynn, a veteran of many Pacific Coast League summers, pitched four innings in relief. Lynn has since signed to play in the California League.

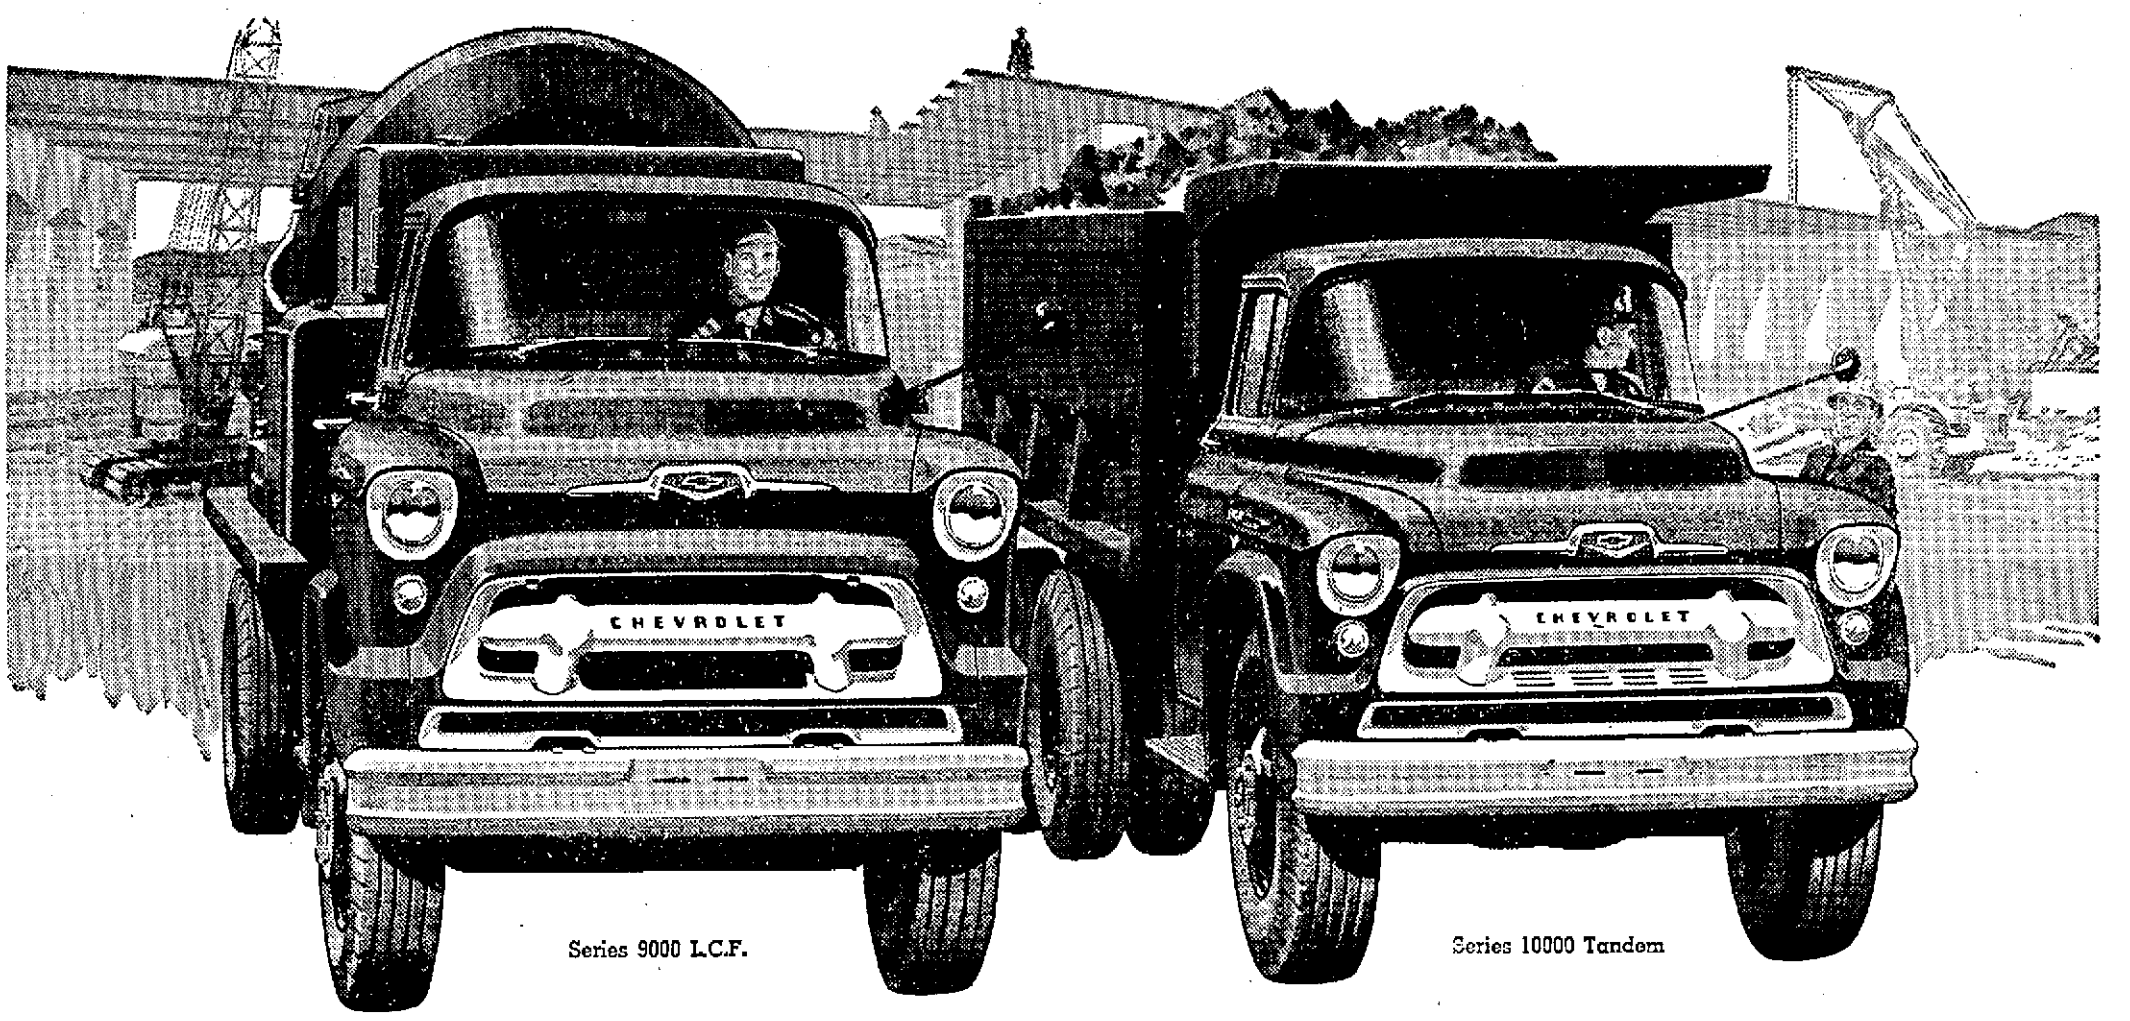

And since then the Rockets have waltzed through seven straight foes without defeat, including the last two in league play. The All-Stars are still rated as the top semipro club in Southern California, but the Rockets are moving up fast. Their season record is now 13-4.

Pete Cassidy, who pitched both Rocket league wins, will get the starting call again today. Cassidy was the losing pitcher in the first meeting with the All-Stars.

The Rockets, held to six hits in the May 6 game, have averaged better than 10 safeties per game in their last seven outings.

BEACH COMBING

With MALCOLM EPLEY

IT TAKES a pretty girl, they say, to make a man doll up. Same seems to go for a city.

The testimony is in the City Auditorium area, where they've at last got some real improvements going just in advance of the Miss Universe pageant.

Why "just in advance," is an interesting question. The tree-planting and landscaping in the entrance area, while it holds great promise, is obviously late in getting started.

When I was down there yesterday, the trees were in, but the sprinkler system for the lawn was just in process of installation and no grass had been planted. If it's up in time to greet the lovely maidens and the spectators, it will be the fastest growing grass in history.

Likewise the new parking lots are just being finished, and there's a lot of work going on at other spots. The whole thing has an air of emergency about it.

Well, maybe it's just that it's all in keeping with the show business, which just doesn't seem to be able to operate without last minute rush of preparation of physical properties. That's part of the glamor. We'll see how the grass responds to the spirit of the occasion.

THIS isn't exactly a recent event, but it happened here and was related to me yesterday by a fellow who had charge of a local employes credit union operation.

Four employes showed up one day and wanted to borrow $25 each from the union. They had no money, they said, for an immediate need, and presented such woeful countenances that he o.k.'d the four loans.

That evening some one came by and invited him to a poker game, saying there was a missing player for a planned party.

He went and found, among others, the four borrowers seated at the gaming table.

Playing with his own money, he found it rough going with the relaxed lads with the borrowed union funds.

SO FAR as I've heard, no name has been given to the new city golf course to be built soon on the east side of the Long Beach Municipal Airport property, and this is as good a place as any to invite suggestions from the interested public.

Probably something related to the airport or to aviation would be good, but not necessarily the best. Send your ideas along and I'll pass them over, for what they're worth, to the proper city authorities.

I hope there won't be a repetition of what happened the last time this dept. conducted a little naming project. When the Auditorium Annex, or sports arena, or exhibition hall, was on the drawing boards with tidelands oil financing seemingly assured, I invited name suggestions.

A lot of good ones were turned in, before litigation and legislative monkey-business put a block in the way of the project. There's a file of them around here somewhere, a painful reminder of the happy days B.M. (before Mallon).

The aud annex, however, is not entirely dead. The use of tidelands money has never been actually tested in court, and it's still possible this financing method could be employed. If it is, we can revive the naming enterprise.

Meanwhile, let's name the golf course and get it built. Nobody has spent more time on crowded tees than this scribe.

FROM the Oakland Tribune Knave comes this intriguing story about a deputy county auditor up there who couldn't understand what was going on with a new tubeless tire.

Each day he'd fill it with 30 pounds, each evening it held only 15. Finally, the perplexed owner took it to the tire company, which found that someone had removed the tubeless tire from its special rim, replaced it with an ordinary casing, but had neglected to put in the usual inner tube.

The casing would hold 15 pounds of air, and no more. Nobody knew why. Matter of fact, no one knew why it held any air. The auditor was congratulated on driving around on the first non-tubeless tubeless tire.

CAROL MORRIS . . . She Hopes Swimming Counts
(Photo Courtesy Des Moines Register and Tribune)

By NICK LAMBERTO

DES MOINES, Iowa — (Special to the Independent, Press-Telegram) — If Miss Universe is picked this year for beauty and swimming ability, Iowa's entry should be an odds-on favorite to win.

Carol Morris, 20-year-old Drake University junior, on June 24, was picked over 19 finalists to represent Iowa in the Miss Universe contest.

Carol, a dazzling brunette, has a fistful of medals won in competition swimming meets, with national significance in a case or two.

In fact, her friends say she can do anything in the water a fish can do. She is a summertime teacher and lifeguard at the Ottumwa, Ia., pool when she's not competing in beauty contests.

* * * *

CAROL IS the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. LaVerne Morris of Davis Street Christian church, Ottumwa. The church is the largest Christian church in Ottumwa and it has the largest Sunday school of the denomination in Iowa.

She's no newcomer to beauty contests. In 1954, she represented Iowa in the Miss America contest (bad word?) at Atlantic City, N. J. She played "Stardust" on the violin in the talent contest and was told she was among the first five in that division.

At the time Carol said: "I wish I could have demonstrated swimming instead — but there was no pool on stage."

Since then Carol has matured and grown in some places. She still stands 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 131 pounds (4 pounds less than when she was a Miss America aspirant). But her vital measurements have expanded from 35-25-35 to 36-25-36.

* * * *

CAROL WAS GRADUATED fourth in a high school class of 300 at Ottumwa. She plays the piano and has studied violin for 12 years. She also sings in the choir at her father's church.

At Drake she is majoring in education and is also studying music. She also writes poetry, her father confides with pride. Carol doesn't think it's worth mentioning.

Besides being an expert swimmer, Carol finds time during the summer to work as a television model and as a salesgirl in a clothing store.

Carol's parents approve of her

A BERLIN BRUNETTE talented in ballet and singing will represent Germany in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant. Marina Orschel will be 19 Saturday. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall and measures 36-23-35.

BLACK HAIR and fair skin bring contrasting beauty to Miss Utah, Cheryl Brown, 18, of Spanish Forks. Hiking is the sport that guards her 35½-23-35½ measurements and she hopes for a career in dramatics.

74 Lovely Misses to Vie Here

By BEN ZINSER

Long Beach once again becomes Beautyland of the world this week.

By Friday all 74 contestants in the fifth annual Miss Universe Beauty Pageant will have arrived to compete for the title of the most beautiful girl in the world.

This year's international beauty congress will be opened at 8:30 a.m. Thursday when 30 of the candidates, including all European contestants, fly in to Long Beach Municipal Airport in a special plane.

On hand to greet them will be the current Miss Universe, Sweden's Hillevi Rombin; the reigning Miss United States, Vermont's Carlene King Johnson, and Miss Welcome to Long Beach, Sibyl Smith.

Among the European representatives on the plane will be representatives of Sweden, Germany, France, England, Italy and Greece. Some of them will appear tonight on television's Ed Sullivan Show in New York.

Also aboard the special plane will be Miss Turkey and many of the state titlists.

Other candidates will arrive during the week by plane, train, automobile and bus.

* * * *

BEAUTYLAND'S attractions this year include 32 contestants from foreign nations and 42 from the United States including the District of Columbia.

Represented for the first time in the pageant will be the Dominican Republic, Iceland, Paraguay and the Guianas in South America. One girl will represent all three of the Guianas—British, French and Dutch.

The states of Pennsylvania and Missouri will send two representatives. Besides Miss Pennsylvania and Miss Missouri, there will be a Miss Philadelphia and a Miss St. Louis.

All candidates have now been selected with the exception of Miss Greece. She will be chosen in Athens Monday and will emplane for Long Beach Tuesday, arriving here Thursday.

Already on hand here for the 10-day beauty extravaganza are Miss Japan (Yoshie Baba), Miss Washington (June Svedin of Seattle) and Miss Oregon (Maralyn Turner of Portland).

* * * *

JUDGING FOR this year's pageant is expected to be speeded up, what with the paring of the experts' panel from 11 to nine. Four new judges also have been appointed.

The new judges are Dorothy Kirsten, opera star; Max Factor, makeup authority; Claude Berr, of France, founder and president of the Miss Europe contest; and James H. Noguer, professor of foreign languages and foreign student advisers at Long Beach State College.

An alternate judge, also a newcomer, is Betty Jones, manager of Slenderella International, a chain of figure-perfecting salons.

Returning will be Vincent Trotta, former Paramount Studios art director and dean of judges; Robert Palmer, Universal-International Studios talent executive; Alberto Vargas, artist who created the Varga Girl;

Suppliers Will Hear AF Purchase Rules

Air Force business opportunities available to local manufacturers and suppliers will be explained at the Chamber of Commerce Breakfast Forum at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday in the Wilton Hotel.

George Byrnes, chief of the small business division of the Los Angeles Air Procurement District, and Richard Lyon, the district's contract administration official, will speak.

Byrnes said there is an ever-increasing demand for component parts needed under the expanding guided missiles program.

* * * *

FOLLOWING the meeting, Byrnes will meet with interested suppliers to discuss the Air Force procedures for qualifying potential manufacturers and dealers so they may become established in the master bidders' lists maintained at the various buying depots. He also will give information on how local manufacturers may bid on requirements they may be able to supply the Air Force.

Lyon will show a 19-minute color-sound motion picture on the successful "firing" of a dummy strapped to a rocket sled propelled along a 12,000-foot railroad-like track in excess of 900 miles an hour. The dummy is catapulted from the sled's cockpit and floats to the ground with a parachute.

Big Welcome Due Today for Cruisers

City and Chamber of Commerce officials today at noon will greet Cruiser Division 3, returning from six months in the Far East.

The USS Helena and USS Columbus, the other vessels in the division, will go directly to the naval shipyard.

A musical welcome for the Navy vessels will be provided by the Junior Concert band, majorettes and pompom girls directed by Jim Son.

Councilman John Baker, executive director of the Mrs. U. S. Navy Contest will represent the contest, as well as the city. Members of his staff will pass out application blanks to homecoming sailors.

Young Peterson was treated at Seaside Hospital and released.

$ Million Staked in Will Suit

By DON MADDOCK
Court Reporter

A million dollars in Hancock Oil stock will be the stake in a civil suit which starts Monday before Superior Judge McIntyre Faries.

The disputants are A. C. Malone, 86, one of the original investors in Hancock Oil Co., and long-time Republican party leader here, and his estranged wife, Irene R., 55.

Mrs. Malone, 212 Quincy Ave., has possession of the controversial stock. Her husband, of 250 Termino Ave., is trying to get it back.

The suit has been in Superior Court since Aug. 2, 1955.

That day, Malone sued his wife to regain the stock, claiming she "tricked" him into giving it to her.

* * * *

HE CHARGED that she began in 1949 "a plan and scheme" to acquire all of his property — then valued at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

She "importuned, begged and nagged" him to transfer his property to her, he claimed.

After Mrs. Malone gained control of the stocks, she "induced him to add a codicil to his will" providing for deduction of inheritance taxes before she received her share of the estate, the elderly investor and former excursion steamer and amusement zone roller coaster owner added.

Mrs. Malone answered that no fraud was involved. She claimed the stocks were outright gifts to her over a three-

Mine Laying Due Offshore, Navy Warns

HUNTINGTON BEACH — Laying of drill mines offshore here is planned from July 9 through 13 and all mariners are advised to remain away from the area, according to Coast Guard District Headquarters at Long Beach.

The Coast Guard said vessels from the Navy's Mine Squadron 11 will lay the mines at a depth of about 25 feet.

Some of the mines, which are painted yellow, may contain pyrotechnic material and could be dangerous if handled by unqualified persons, the Coast Guard advises.

Church's Record Players Stolen

There will be less music this morning for Bible school classes at the University Baptist Church, 3434 Chatwin Ave.

Church secretary Mildred C. Russell said two record players were stolen Friday by a burglar who smashed a rear window to gain entrance to the building.

The machines were used to play religious music for Sunday school classes, she said.

Naval Reserve Officers School Prepared for Long Beach Area

To accommodate the 2,000 Naval Reserve officers of the Greater Long Beach area who wish to study for professional advancement as officers, Long Beach Naval Reserve Officers School will be established in September, to run through the regular college year.

Classes will be conducted at various Naval locations in the area, with headquarters at the Naval Reserve Training Center, Terminal Island.

Cmdr. Monroe Hubbell, who has been selected for promotion to captain, will be director and Cmdr. Frank George, assistant director.

* * * *

BOTH OFFICERS are administrators in the Long Beach Unified School District. Hubbell is supervisor of business education in high schools and City College and George is supervisor of radio and television education in the schools.

Cmdrs. Hubbell and George left Saturday for Atlanta, Ga., where they will attend a national conference of Naval Reserve officers who head these schools, at Georgia Institute of Technology. They recently finished intensive training at the 11th Naval District headquarters, San Diego.

Upon their return they will select the staff and faculty of 20 persons and set up the classes.

Thirty-seven different courses will be offered, ranging from air navigation to military justice in the Navy. Personnel administration and industrial relations.

Each class will meet one night a week. The school itself is expected to be conducted 3 nights a week.

* * * *

THE COURSES are those required for promotion. The purpose of the school, it is emphasized by the director and assistant director, will be to provide instruction for professional advancement and increase knowledge and ability.

The courses will be free to Naval Reserve officers. Books and materials will be furnished.

Although the program is nation-wide, established 3 years ago, this will be the first school of its kind in the Long Beach area. Previously, the closest school of the kind has been at USC.

CHECKING THE SCHEDULE of the Naval Reserve Officers School to be opened here in September are Cmdrs. Frank George, left, and Monroe Hubbell. Cmdr. Hubbell will be director and Cmdr. George assistant director.—(Staff photo.)

His schedule calls for visits to many European capitals.

Lifeguard, Battered by Oregon Surf, Dies

CANNON BEACH, Ore. (U.P.) —Jerry Varnel, 20-year-old Santa Barbara, Calif., college student working as a lifeguard at Cannon Beach, Ore., was drowned in the surf about 10:30 a. m. Saturday, according to state police.

The lifeguard station said Varnel was wading along the beach when a large breaker hit him and washed him into deeper water.

U.S. Bullfighter in Appeal Today to Spanish Court

MADRID (U.P.) — American Bullfighter Harry Whitney will appear before the Supreme Court here Monday to appeal a six-year and one-day jail sentence for defaming Spain.

Whitney, a 31-year-old matador who bills himself as "The Texan," already has apologized for the language he used in anger after an automobile accident.

His attorney, Augustin Barrena, said he would not predict the outcome of the case but that it has "encouraging aspects."

Whitney has been at liberty pending the appeal.

year period, and that she made no false reprcsentations to get them.

As for the codicil, she said Malone told her and her attorney, George H. Johnson, that he wanted each beneficiary of his will to pay his share of estate taxes. Johnson drew up the needed form.

* * * *

MRS. MALONE claimed Malone's attorney, F. A. Knight, "compelled" him to destroy the codicil so the lawyer could "protest the tax-free status of his own legacy of 1,000" shares of Hancock Oil stock.

She also alleged her husband made a written demand for return of the stock while under the "domination" of Knight.

She in effect charged Knight with breaking up their marriage of 26 years' duration.

Judge Faries will decide the case without a jury. The hearing is expected to take between one and three weeks.

Malone is represented by Attys. Knight and Donald P. Lane, and his wife by Attys. George and W. Ward Johnson and John and Bender Moore.

SAVE SILVER DOLLARS

L.B. Merchants Plan Three Bargain Days

Cooperating in the greatest sales promotional event ever staged by Long Beach Retailers Inc., downtown stores will observe Silver Dollar Days Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Don Spring, president of the retail group, said a record number of stores is participating in the event and, he added, "from the bargain standpoint, all previous promotional events will be greatly overshadowed."

A separate section of bonafide bargains will be carried in the Independent, Press-Telegram Wednesday evening and Thursday morning.

"Save Your Silver Dollars" has been advertised by the retail group for several days. This is part of the promotional event and some of those dollars will be worth up to $5 in value in making purchases.

Dates on the silver dollars will determine their value in shopping, said Vito Romans, manager of the retail group.

* * * *

ELSEWHERE IN today's Independent, Press-Telegram will be found an advertisement listing the date of coining of dollars that will be worth $2 in trade during the sale. Monday will be listed the date for those worth $3. Tuesday the $4 value will be announced while Wednesday the coining date of the $5 value silver dollars will be announced.

To help publicize the event, downtown stores are giving out silver dollars in change and clerks are urging customers to keep the silver until the three big days.

Through cooperation of the Farmers and Merchants Bank and the Federal Reserve Bank in Los Angeles $150,000 in silver dollars was sent here for distribution the past week.

* * * *

"THIS IS NOT just another Dollar Day event," explained Lyman Clark, promotoin chairman.

"The 131 participating stores have been planning this event for many months and have purchased special stock to offer the public. While the stocks are heavy, some lines naturally will be limited so the early buyers will have some advantage.

"All the stores have extra clerks on duty."

Romans said the stores will observe regular hours during the 3-day event with all of them open Friday night.

"And with our Park and Shop plan downtown the customers may park at the many large lots near the stores free," he added.

YOU COULDN'T CARRY your merchandise to every door in town seeking buyers . . . but a Classified Ad quickly tells thousands what you have for sale. Dial HE 2-5959.

Notice the bonus dates. Spend your silver dollars for bonus merchandise values at Downtown Stores displaying Silver Dollar Day window streamers July 12, 13 and 14. Watch this ad each day for new bonus dates.

CAROL IN 1955 was named "Queen of American Sportsmanship" by the Christian Athletic Foundation, Tullahoma, Tenn., and reigned at the Christian Bowl game at Murfreesboro, Tenn., Dec. 26, 1955.

Carol's Irish ancestry shows in her dark brown, almost black, hair and her blue eyes.

She's the kind of a girl who'll attract stares even in Long Beach, the city of beautiful women, and the kind of a girl about whom many former Iowans now residing in California will be proud to say: "She's from Iowa."

New Records
AT CITY LIBRARY

The spirit of gay summer living is reflected in the new lps the Public Library suggests for your listening.

Especially noted this week were "Adventures of Marco Polo" (starring Alfred Drake); "Boston Pops Picnic" (Fiedler presenting the orchestra in light favorites); "County Fair" (Ken Griffin plays "In the Good Old Summertime, etc.); "The Harp," "Malaguena," etc. (played by Edward and Joseph Vito); "Holiday in Hawaii" (Danny Kuaana's Musicians) and "Pleasure Time" (Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians).

Cadillac

His Last Switch in Motor Cars !

We have no way of knowing, of course, how many different makes of motor cars this gentleman has owned through the years. But we'd wager that he has changed his preference a great many times in his years on the highway.

And we're also willing to bet that he has now made his last switch in motor cars!

For this time it's a Cadillac! And it is historically true that once a motorist makes the move to the "car of cars", he is usually a Cadillac owner for life.

What are the reasons for this great loyalty? Well, let us count them off.

First of all, there are the things which everyone recognizes in Cadillac. There is its great beauty . . . its matchless luxury . . . and the unquestioned respect which the car commands the world over.

Then there are those qualities with which anyone who has ever driven a Cadillac is familiar. There is its marvelous comfort and ease of handling . . . its magnificent power and performance . . . its wonderful balance and agility . . . and its extraordinary quietness of operation.

And, finally, there are those things which only Cadillac owners themselves can fully appreciate. There is the car's remarkable economy of operation and upkeep—its incredible longevity—its marvelous resale value—and the great pride and happiness that it bestows upon the man at the wheel.

If this little check list of Cadillac virtues coincides with what you've been looking for in a motor car, you ought to come in and see us very soon.

You'll find, by the way, that we have recently made two additions to this list of things you get when you make your decision for Cadillac.

We're talking about prompt delivery and a generous trade-in allowance!

Better come in while the circumstances are so favorable—and make your last switch in motor cars!

It Happened Last Night
By Earl Wilson

THE FIRST SIX MONTHS

NEW YORK—A couple of brides—Bridey Murphy and Bridey Kelly—were responsible for many of the best laughs of the first six months of 1956.

Looking back on that 10 days in Monaco (a country that at the time couldn't have been Rainier), we think Her Grace handled herself well. Gagster Martin Ragaway said he was sure the wedding would last—he wasn't so sure about the country.

Everybody thought it was strange the wedding happened to be held while the Jewelry Thieves' Convention was in town, and Art Buchwald said Prince Rainier had decided one jewel thief would be let into the wedding to represent all the other jewel thieves. Papa Jack (King John) Kelly earned the applause of the American press when he said the prince would have to learn to roll with the punches like people do in Toots Shor's.

The "regression" theme of Bridey Murphy intrigued the wits, who said the film would be made by 18th Century-Fox, the TV version broadcast from 9 to 8 p. m. Comic Joe E. Lewis said he read the book and decided to will his money to himself.

• "CBS calls Phil Silvers' TV show 'You'll Never Get Rich,' but NBC calls it by the rest of the sentence," Jack Benny said.

Jayne Mansfield pulled one of the howlers when she said that she and Paul Mansfield got married and had a baby "nine months and 10 seconds later."

"My ex-husband was very emotional," Shelley Winters said. "He'd grab me in his arms, hold me close and tell me how wonderful he was."

* * * *

MOREY AMSTERDAM gave his diet secret: "Eat all you want of eevrything you don't like."

...Howard Dietz composed a poem to an MGM star, as follows: "I'll say this much for Cyd Charisse, I'll give her half of my valise."

CYD CHARISSE

Down at the Statler Hilton opening in Dallas, George Gobel told of a man who dieted off 11 pounds a day for three months: "Last time he was weighed, he only weighed 112 pounds, including the casket." . . . Lana Turner, also on the subject of taking off, said, "After I'm dressed for the evening, I look at myself and ask, 'What more can I take off?'"

* * * *

JERRY LEWIS, m.c.ing the Oscar Awards, was brilliant, especially when after an insufferably long commercial, he said, "And now a brief word from our Academy."

"I had a wonderful time with my husband last night," a Hollywood woman reported. "He got drunk and thought I was his secretary."

Sid Caesar told of a boss who bawled out an employe for praying for a raise. "I don't like anybody going over my head!" thundered the boss.

Zsa Zsa Gabor, asked on TV whether she changed perfume if a man didn't like it, said, "No, I change men."

Yes, 1956 looks like one of our best years, "laugh-wise," as they say. With the politicians sure to be funny while trying to be serious, '56 is certain to wind up a laugh riot.

A local actress makes so many catty remarks that Lou (Roseland) Brecker says, "She must have taken a language course through the ASPCA." That's earl, brother.

Jeffrey Hunter on Spot Taking James Dean Role

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Jeffrey Hunter has a feeling that he's on the spot.

The actor was cast in "Gun for a Coward." He knows that the late James Dean was going to have the lead, according to plans announced by Warner Bros. However, after Dean's death, the studio let an option laps on the story, and Universal-International bought the screenplay for Hunter and co-stars Fred MacMurray and Janice Rule.

"This is really a strange situation," he said: "It's tough enough to act the same role as another actor has done well previously. But it's even tougher to compete with the ideas of how people may think another actor would have done the role.

"This thought haunted me before I got to work. I knew I had to do something about it.

Hunter made up his mind that the thing to do was to play the part his way and forget any other factors.

"I'm giving it my very best," he said. "I'm not trying to be an actor with his own set of mannerisms regardless of the parts he plays. I'm trying to interpret the part as I think the author intended it."

Hunter said that after his soul-searching, his decision and his actual work he felt different about the whole picture.

"I still have that feeling that I'm on the spot," he said. "But now I'm not worrying about it any more."

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

Ed Sullivan and Steve Allen are battling it out in the ratings, and "smiling Irishman" is finding competition in the spectacled humorist. On his first show Steve came closer to Sullivan's ratings than any of the NBC comedians have done in the past seven months . . . and last Sunday beat Sullivan in the Trendex ratings. Allen rated 20.2 to Ed's 14.8 . . .

Tonight at 8 p.m. you takes your cherce between the two, with Steve on (4) having Jack Palance changing his spots from film menace to an entirely different character. Also guesting will be Vic Damone, singing on a New York street, Margaret Truman doing a musical burlesque of "Medic" with Steve, humorist Don Adams in a monologue, Gogi Grant sings "The Wayward Wind" and to wind things up there'll be a couple of surprise guest stars.

Sullivan counters with the French singing star Patachou, movie star Constance Bennett, Senor Wences with his "man in the box", Myron Cohen in some dialect stories, some chimpanzees, a new comedy team and an instrumental group. Late entries are Ted Williams of the Red Sox and comedienne Charlotte Rae.

DRAMA—Barry Jones heads the cast of "The Alcoa Hour" on (4) at 9 p.m. in a story about a youth who is willed a Scottish bagpiper. The latter stirs things up really good and causes many changes in the family way of life . . . Alexander Scourby portrays Joseph Priestly, English-American scientist who is credited with the discovery of Oxygen, during "Telephone Time" on (2) at 5:30 p.m. . . . Marisa Pavan stars on "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" over (2) at 9:30 p.m. in a repeat story of a young wife terrorized by an escaped homicidal maniac. . . Another repeat is on "G.E. Theatre" at 9 p.m. on (2) with John Payne and Keenan Wynn costarred. The two men and a girl (Nancy Gates) are riding a stagecoach during the Civil War period and an Indian attack threatens. This changes the destiny of the trio.

TELE-TIPS—"Focus on Los Angeles" debuts on (7) at 6:30 p.m. with Dick Tufeld narrating films taken in this area, interviewing guests and in general holding the show together . . . Lynn Michaels premieres a weekly, live do-it-yourself fashion show on (7) at 5:30 p.m. . . . "Let's Take A Trip" on (2) at 9 a.m. visits the LIFE magazine photo lab to see what pictures are being readied for the next issue and to get some tips on shooting pictures . . . "Sexual Ignorance" is blamed for many a marriage failure so "Paul Coates' Confidential File" looks into the matter on (11) at 9:30 p.m. . . . "Adventure" concludes its stay on (2) with a real old-time type whale hunt at 1:30 p.m.

GUESTING—Capt. McCutcheon and his challenger, Joseph Amblard, the chef, will continue their battle toward the $64,000 top money during "$64,000 Challenge" on (2) at 10 p.m. They are at the $4,000 level now . . . Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler (D-Ky) will "Meet the Press" on (4) at 6 p.m. . . . Margaret Bourke-White, famed photographer, will answer the questions during "Youth Wants to Know" on (4) at 12:30 p.m.

STORY LINES—In his first outing as "Man Against Crime" the new hero, Frank Lovejoy, certainly didn't come up to his acting abilities. Besides appearing scared to death he also let a big gangster get in back of him (the story was so weak the gangster didn't clobber the hero anyway) he also shelved his gun to light another crook's cigarette and in general did a very poor job of replacing Ralph Bellamy in the role. Maybe with more experience (and better story and direction) he can pull this farce out of the hole it got in to start with. Tonight on (4) at 10 p.m. he finds out the "badger game" can be played more ways than one

Woman Finds Long Lost Kin Is Neighbor

SAN RAFAEL (AP)—Mrs. Naida Bosley, 45, of nearby Fairfax will enjoy a happy reunion dinner today with the brother she hadn't seen in 35 years.

She didn't know where he was—or whether he was alive—until she located him Friday, purely by chance.

Thus, she learned that they had been living 10 miles apart for the past four years.

Mrs. Bosley, a marketing and travel research worker for a publishing company, stopped at a residence in Alto. There was no one home. She saw a woman in the yard next door and talked to her. The woman said she was Mrs. York. Mrs. Bosley said York was her maiden name.

Mrs. York asked where Mrs. Bosley was born, and when told it was Wichita, Kan., said "I wish my husband could find some of his relatives back there."

Mrs. Bosley related: "She asked me my first name and when I said Naida, she started crying and said 'Come in for some coffee.' Then she referred to her husband as Frank, and I went to pieces."

Disease in Rubber

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—Rubber planting circles are alarmed at reports from major Ceylon planting areas that a new disease called phythopthara is spreading. The disease is said to be seriously affecting rubber production.

U. N. Educators Plan Sessions

PARIS (UE)—The 22-member United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization executive council said today it will open a 15-day meeting here July 11.

The committee will select major UNESCO projects for 1957-58.

Projects for consideration include development of elementary education in Latin America, broadened research on cultivation of arid lands, and greater production of reading aids for illiterates.

Skulls of Medicis Returned to Rest

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—The skulls of the magnificent Medicis are back with their other bones—after eight years apart. Scientists decided to study 23 skulls of the famous family that ruled medieval Florence, and they opened the huge granite coffins in the church of San Lorenzo. Skull measurements proved nothing much of scientific value.

Canada C.O.L. Rises, Near All-Time High

OTTAWA (AP)—Canadian living costs rose in May from 116.6 to 117.8. The yardstick, using 1940 prices as a base of 100, stands at the second highest level in the bureau of statistics records—just two-fifths of a point below December 1951. May's sharp rise was caused mainly by a jump in food prices.

Colorama Homes New Unit Showing Rapid Sales Pace

More than 60 4 and 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes have been sold in Colorama Homes, a new A. Anthony Kuri development on Delhi Rd. just east of Bristol St., for a total value in excess of $810,000, it was announced today by the Don Coleman Co., sales agents for the property.

With the first unit sold out, the second unit is now at the halfway mark in sales and has shown a more rapid sales pace than the earlier unit. Prime reason for this has been analyzed by the Coleman office as increasing demand by veterans for homes of quality and distinctive design.

The latter factor is best illustrated by the 21 highly varied stylings offered in Colorama Homes as designed by architect Martin A. Stern, Jr.

Veterans may still buy any of the homes for nothing down except costs and impounds. Full price is from $13,500, with monthly terms of $68.45 for principal and interest.

* * * *

KEY FEATURES of the homes include real, wood burning fireplaces, forced air heating with summer control and vents in every room, built-in oven and range with hood and fan, automatic dishwashers, kitchen nooks, desks and service bars, sliding glass doors and concrete patios.

A standout attraction for many buyers is the completely landscaped yard, with lawns and shrubs front and rear. A five-foot-high redwood fence completely encloses the rear yard, assuring privacy upon moving in and presenting a great economy to the new homeowner.

Craftsmen's Club Installs Sarver

John S. Sarver has been installed as president of the Harbor Area Craftsmen's Club, succeeding Orville Darnell.

JOHN SARVER

The Harbor Club, chartered in 1953, is a district branch of the International Printing House Craftsmen Movement, and has a membership of 120 members, engaged in the graphic arts of 8 cities.

Other officers installed were: Milton Darnell, 1st vice president; John Spinell, 2nd vice president; Leo Casper, secretary, and Hollee Kasell, treasurer. Board members include Ben Brown, Orville Darnell, James E. Wagner, Max Zaetler, Don Petty and Bob Roach.

Area Has Best Buys in Homes

Homes in this region are not only setting the style trend for other sections of the United States but today represent the biggest bargain in the nation when compared to homes rising in all other parts of the country.

So stated R. Reese Myers, president, Home Builders Institute, yesterday as he released figures gathered by the HBI research department showing the average home in the Western Region to be both larger and less expensive than the average American new home.

The figures which were based on a survey conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed that during the first half of 1955, the average home started in the 11 Western states was 40 square feet larger than the United States average and 110 square feet larger than the average home in the North Central Region.

At the same time, the HBI president pointed out, the typical selling price in this region was $600 less than in the North Central Region (Great Lakes area states) and $400 less than in the United States as a whole.

"Significance of Western Region figures become apparent when it is understood that we build in the Los Angeles area nearly one-third of all homes constructed in the 11 Western States," Myers said.

"While we have been famous for many years for giving home buyers more "indoor-outdoor" living space, the figures show that dollar for dollar our builders are giving more actual living space within the new homes," the HBI official said.

INVENTION SHOWN

New Plant in Long Beach Producing Fuel Injectors

One of the newest inventions in the automotive field is now being manufactured in Long Beach, Lionel Dyck, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's Industrial Advertising subcommittee, reported after visiting the plant.

"The name of the product," Dyck said, "is the McClain fuel injection system, and it is manufactured here at the National Products Manufacturing, Inc., 1740 Daisy Ave., which is one of Long Beach's new industries.

According to F. W. Dodson, executive vice - president, and manager of the Long Beach plant, the system is the brainchild of H. W. McClain, who is the plant's chief engineer.

"The revolutionary injector, which is available for all makes of cars, trucks, buses and tractors and industrial engines, has only been on the market 6 months," Dodson said.

He explained that the main plant is located in Lubbock, Texas, but it is being planned to move the whole operation to Long Beach. The company also manufactures steel tanks, parts and accessories.

Only the fuel injector is being manufactured here at the present time.

* * * *

McCLAIN, THE inventor, said: "We believe this fuel injector is the most advanced of all butane systems. It completely replaces conventional carburetors. Servicing is rarely required and can be done in less than five minutes without changing the adjustments.

"There are only two moving parts. These are the throttle valve and the delivery piston. The delivery piston and metering needle are assembled as a single unit, designed so that the needle actually rides on air, eliminating any possibility of the mixture ratio being unbalanced due to wear of the needle, after it has been set."

Dodson, explaining why the company located in Long Beach, said "We do not handle any retailing at the plant, but sell through regular distributors."

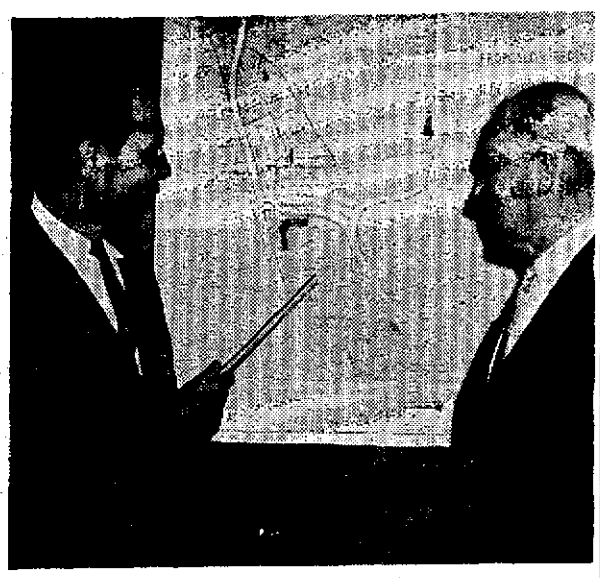

DONATE WINNINGS

I. N. Page, second place, and Glen Crabtree, first place, are shown presenting their winning prize money to Arnold Berg, chairman of the interior decorating committee for the Long Beach Board of Realtors. This money will be used to complete further, the interior decorating of the Realtors' new home at 3747 Long Beach Blvd. During the contest, 170 homes were processed through the multiple listing system. This resulted in there being 170 new home owners and another 170 people who were able to make other arrangements because their property was sold.

Lamp, Picture Show to Open

The 14th California Lamp, Picture & Accessories Show will open at the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles, today for a five-day market. Approximately 170 lines of merchandise will be displayed, according to Trade Shows, Ltd., managers of the key market event.

Newest trends in lighting and home decorative accessories will be revealed at the show which is expected to attract thousands of buyers from all parts of the country.

PARKS UNLIMITED

Donald D. Obert, director of parks, and Max Livoni, program chairman for the Long Beach Board of Realtors, review proposed park development for the City of Long Beach. Obert will address the Realtors at their regular Tuesday morning breakfast in the Lafayette Hotel.

Six Prudential Agents Honored

Six Long Beach district representatives for the Prudential Insurance Co. will receive the National Quality Award, one of the highest honors accorded in the life insurance profession.

From the Long Beach district agency the winners are L. O. Benson, R. E. Davis, D. D. McCollum and E. A. Weidel.

Recipients of the Downtown Long Beach Agency are W. C. Frey and G. E. Neal.

The award is conferred jointly by the National Association of Life Underwriters and the Life Insurance Agency Management Association.

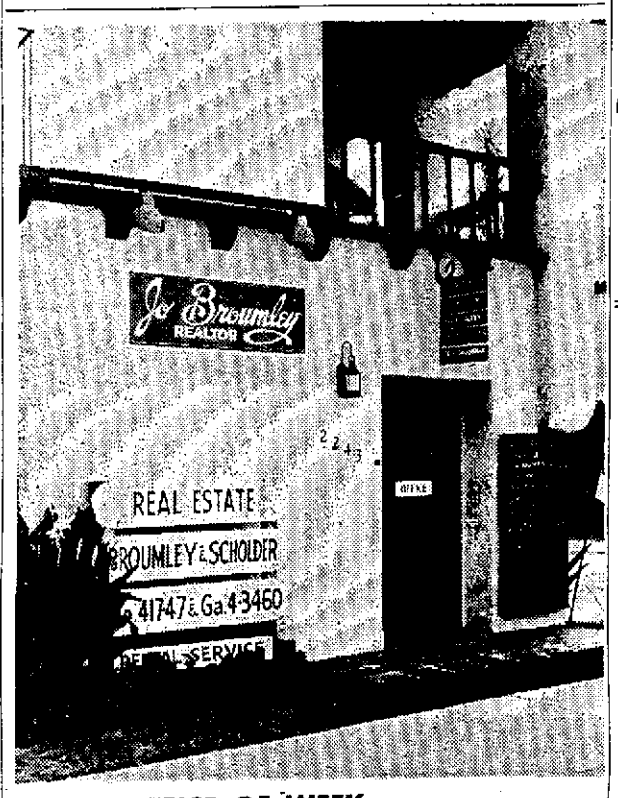

Pioneer Savings, Loan Assn. Increases Dividend Payment

Celebrating the 125th anniversary of the organization, Pioneer Savings and Loan Assn., 232 American Ave., announced an increase to 4 per cent in the dividend to depositors.

Norman Dixon, manager, and his staff held open house the past week in observance of the event and Miss Judy Ware, Miss Welcome, served as hostess.

Dixon reviewed how the savings and loan industry is the main real estate financing agency in the nation with all accounts insured.

Because the overhead isn't too great, no short-term costly handling loans are carried and the fact they are able to lend the depositors funds on good real estate investments, the agencies were able to increase their dividends, Dixon said.

REALTY OFFICE OF WEEK

Honored by being selected by the Long Beach Board of Realtors as the Realty Office of the Week is this office of Jo Broumley, 2243 Pacific Ave. In real estate since 1947, first with her late husband and now operating alone, Mrs. Broumley reports business this year has been exceptionally good. Past president of the Realettes Toastmistress Club, Mrs. Broumley lives at 2266 Pine Ave.—(Staff photo.)

ESTATE CLASS HOMES

Luxury Features, Locale Boosting Signature Sales

Attraction of a prestige location and special luxury features has thus far resulted in sales totaling $1,794,000 for Signature Estate homes in the top-rated Sunny Hills area of Fullerton, it was announced yesterday by James H. Waters, sales manager for the Midwood Construction Co.

Price range for home is from $22,490 to $24,220 with both VA and FHA terms available to buyers, noted Waters.

"Signature Estate homes are on sites averaging 80 feet in width," said Waters, who added: "The community with its gently curving roads in El Dorado Dr. is just north of Del Monte West—in an area noted for its many $30,000 to $100,000 residences."

* * * *

A TOP ATTRACTION of the Signature Estate Homes are the all-electric kitchens which include color-matched wall-hung refrigerators, freezers, built-in ranges and ovens, automatic dryers and washers, automatic dishwashers, and garbage disposers.

Also receiving special attention of visitors at the 4 furnished model homes are wood-burning fireplaces of Texas white stones, flagstone, and used brick; entries and porches of flagstone; preview sliding aluminum windows; aluminum sliding doors linking indoor and outdoor living areas; paved patios; planters and veneers of quality materials; ash hardwood paneling in family room; select hardwood floors, real marble pullmans, and 105,000 BTU forced air heating with thermostat controls.

The homes are reached by following the Santa Ana Freeway to Commonwealth Ave., Commonwealth to Richman Ave., and Richman north for one-half mile to Del Monte West where a right turn leads to El Dorado and the Signature Estates model homes.

John K. Gallagher Receives Promotion

John K. Gallagher, 5106 El Cedral St., has been appointed district sales manager for California for the Hooker Electrochemical Co., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Gallagher has been in the sales department of the company since 1941. He is a graduate of UCLA and served three years in the Navy. He was aquatics director of Long Beach in 1940-41. Gallagher is past president of the Chemical Market Research Assn. of Southern California.

Large Park South Homes Big Favorite of Buyers

Biggest contributing factor to the continued selling pace at Park South, now in its third and final unit at La Palma and Miller in Buena Park, is the 10-room floor plan with 3 and 4 bedrooms and family room, reports Richard H. Doremus, president of Exhibit Homes, Inc., builder.

Priced from $15,125, any vet with a monthly income of $350 can qualify. Non-vets require only a small down.

Living rooms feature sliding glass walls opening on patio, sloping acoustical-type ceilings, and fireplaces in Roman brick, used brick or flagstone. Every home features a "walk-in" pantry, which doubles the kitchen cupboard space. Garages have direct access from kitchen and provide an additional 350 cubic feet of storage area, providing ample room for work bench, complete laundry facilities, a 50-gallon water heater and two cars.

* * * *

MASTER BEDROOM suites have spacious dressing alcoves and private baths with tile stall shower, Pullman lavatory, twin medicine cabinets and wall-to-wall mirror over sink. A built-in 21-inch Emerson TV with remote bedside controls is optional.

Kitchens are equipped with "Dyna-Vent" hood over range, with indirect lighting and exhaust fan, wall ovens, ceramic tile counters, flush design natural birch cabinets, pulverator and snack bar.

From Long Beach, Park South can be reached by going north on Lakewood Blvd. to Carson, right on Carson to Miller, then left on Miller to furnished model homes.

N.L.B. Realty Club to Hear Builder

The North Long Beach Real Estate Club will meet for breakfast at 8 a.m. Thursday at Mayo's Cafe, 5935 Cherry Ave.

Merle Lacey-Baker, program chairman of the day, will introduce John Cannon, builder, and a past president of the club, who will speak on "Building Replacement Costs."

Big Walnut Manor Homes Priced Low

Walnut Manor announces immediate occupancy for qualified buyers. Individuality and customized appearance are listed as major reasons for this unique tract's continued popularity. Engineers designed Walnut Manor to provide the greatest number of cul de sacs possible, creating a maximum of safety and privacy especially suitable for children at play. Street lights, sidewalks and parkway trees are also included, and all utilities are in and paid for.

To reach Walnut Manor, drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to Walnut St. in Anaheim. Walnut St. is midway between the new Broadway Department Store shopping center and Disneyland. Then turn south and continue 1 block to the furnished models.

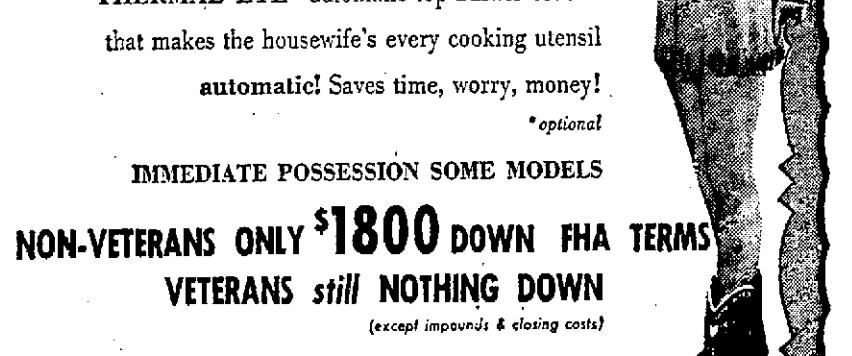

These 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are unbelievably low priced from $13,000 to $14,500. The land and materials were purchased over a year ago when costs were at least 10 per cent lower, the builder says. This saving of at least $1,400 is now being passed on to those value-conscious buyers who purchase the few remaining homes. Vets pay nothing down except small costs and impounds, and easy terms have been worked out for non-vet buyers who qualify.

Kitchens in Sunny Crest Homes Appeal to Buyers

Located on Orangewood Ave. just west of the Santa Ana Freeway, Sunny Crest Homes are experiencing large crowds of prospective home buyers all through the week. The biggest attraction, according to visitors, is the all-electric kitchen.

With GE ranges and built-in ovens, washer-drier combinations, dishwashers and disposals, these kitchens are considered to be among the most advanced in design to be found in Orange County.

Sunny Crest homes are all built in a distinctive modern or provincial exterior design. Three and 4 bedrooms with bath and a half are offered and prices start from $15,250. Either GI or FHA financing is available.

The 40-home development by Homer Toberman can be reached by getting on Orangewood Ave. from either Harbor Blvd. or Haster St. Orangewood is located between Chapman Ave. and Katella Ave. and the development itself is just west of Lewis St., a few hundred yards off the Santa Ana Freeway.

Popular among home buyers is the large number of custom features incorporated in the interior design of the homes. The spacious bedrooms have ample closet space. The interior design is built around the central hall floor plan and interior planters or louvres are used to augment the roominess of the homes.

Each home is built on a deep lot and a sliding glass door at the rear of the living room opens out onto a paved patio area. Sunny Crest homes are located near newly constructed shopping centers, schools and churches, yet retain all the atmosphere of country living.

Grandview Palos Verdes Homes Attract Throngs

IN BEVERLY GARDENS

This is the large living room of one of the Beverly Gardens model homes. Donna Cole, starlet, will demonstrate the new kitchens in the homes today.

Starlet to Demonstrate Beverly Gardens Kitchen

An important "California first" will be chalked up today at Unit 5 of Beverly Gardens, George J. Heltzer's planned community of 3 and 4-bedroom big-family residences at Chapman Ave. and West St., Garden Grove., when Donna Cole, motion picture, radio and television starlet, dials the cooking temperature control on the model home's built-in Western-Holly double oven, to set the first automatic top-burner temperature control in action for the first time anywhere in the Southland.

Miss Cole, who is also known professionally as "Queen of the Western Ranges," will demonstrate this new flame-control device by cooking and serving doughnuts and coffee to home seekers visiting Beverly Gardens today.

"At the same time," Heltzer explained, "Donna will demonstrate the 'indoor barbecuing' features of the built-in double oven that can cook an entire meal in the upper oven, while a large turkey, chicken or roast turns on the spit of the lower king-size rotary barbecue."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH APPROACHING the sell-out stage, these residences are still available to non-veterans on original 1953 financing that calls for an FHA down payment of only $1,800, spokesmen for Walker and Lee, sales agents, explained.

Qualified veterans still pay nothing down, with monthly payments from $82.36 including principal and interest.

Immediate move-in into some models is now possible, Heltzer pointed out. And financing at 4½ per cent can be easily arranged for all purchasers.

Although everything going into the construction of these residences, including sites, has advanced approximately 21.4 per cent since all units of Beverly Gardens were planned and financing approved, original purchase prices from $14,000 to $14,750 remain unchanged, even though duplication on today's market could increase them from $2,500 to $3,000.

Beverly Gardens, Unit 5, is reached from Los Angeles by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to the La Palma turnoff; turn immediately left on Brookhurst, and drive south to Chapman Ave.; go left on Chapman to West St. and "Gateway to Quality" model home show, open daily and Sundays from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Continued attendance of nearly 10,000 visitors a week and sale of 25 per cent of the luxury-styled homes in the first unit of Grandview Palos Verdes were reported yesterday by Edward K. Zukerman and Barney R. Morris, heads of the Grandview Building Co., only 2 weeks after introduction of the new Palos Verdes Peninsula community.

"A steady flow of visitors is inspecting our 10 display residences, with particular attention to the 3 which are furnished by Barker Bros., with decor by Mary Gibson of the Beverly Hills studio," the builders added.

The model homes, introducing a fashionable new property which becomes in effect an extension of Palos Verdes Estates, Rolling Hills and Portuguese Bend, reflect a wide selection of luxury-planned stylings, totalling 50 diversified designs based on 10 varied floor plans, according to Walter W. Mansfield of Mansfield & Associates, sales agents.

* * * *

"THESE STYLINGS were especially created for this new peninsula community," Mansfield explained, "by two leading architectural firms — Harris & Rice, AIA, and William M. Bray, AIA. In our first unit there are 218 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes and eventually there will be $75,000,000 worth of homes built in Grandview Palos Verdes."

Mansfield declared reaction of the estate-class home-seeking public has been enthusiastic, because never before could such homes in such a location be offered to veterans on 30-year 4½ per cent VA terms, with down payments as low as $1500. For non-vets, there is conventional financing with 20 per cent down.

Overlooking the Palos Verdes Golf Course, the homes are priced from $19,500 to $26,525, and all are landscaped, with front, side and rear yards, ornamental shrubs and slopes planted with ice plants.

HOMES HAVE 75,000 to 90,000 BTU forced air heat with thermostat control; lath and plaster construction; big two-car garages and polished marble-topped pullman cabinets of natural-finish ash with slab-type doors.

Many of the models have attractive brick fireplaces and hearths with log-lighters.

In the smart work-saving kitchens are natural-finish ash cabinets, range hoods and exhaust fans, ceramic tile worktops, General Electric garbage disposals, Armstrong "Corlon" floor coverings, and in some models built-in Gaffers and Sattler gas ranges and custom-styled ovens in decorator colors.

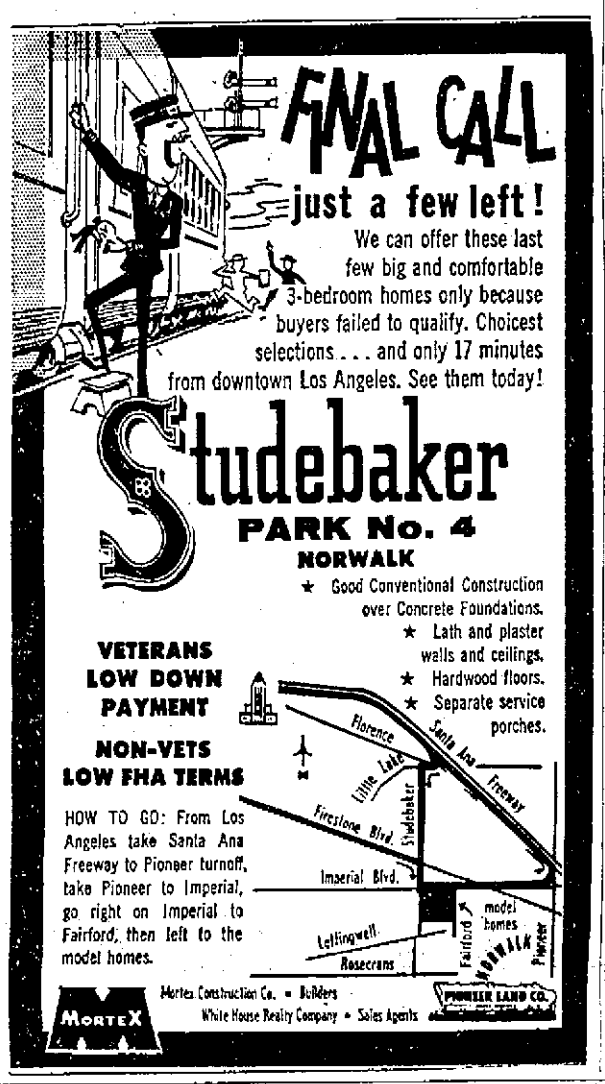

Because of the recent completion of a new link in Crenshaw boulevard, visitors may now take Crenshaw south, past Highway 101, to Palos Verdes Dr. N., turn right to Montemalaga Dr., then go left to the model dwelling display.

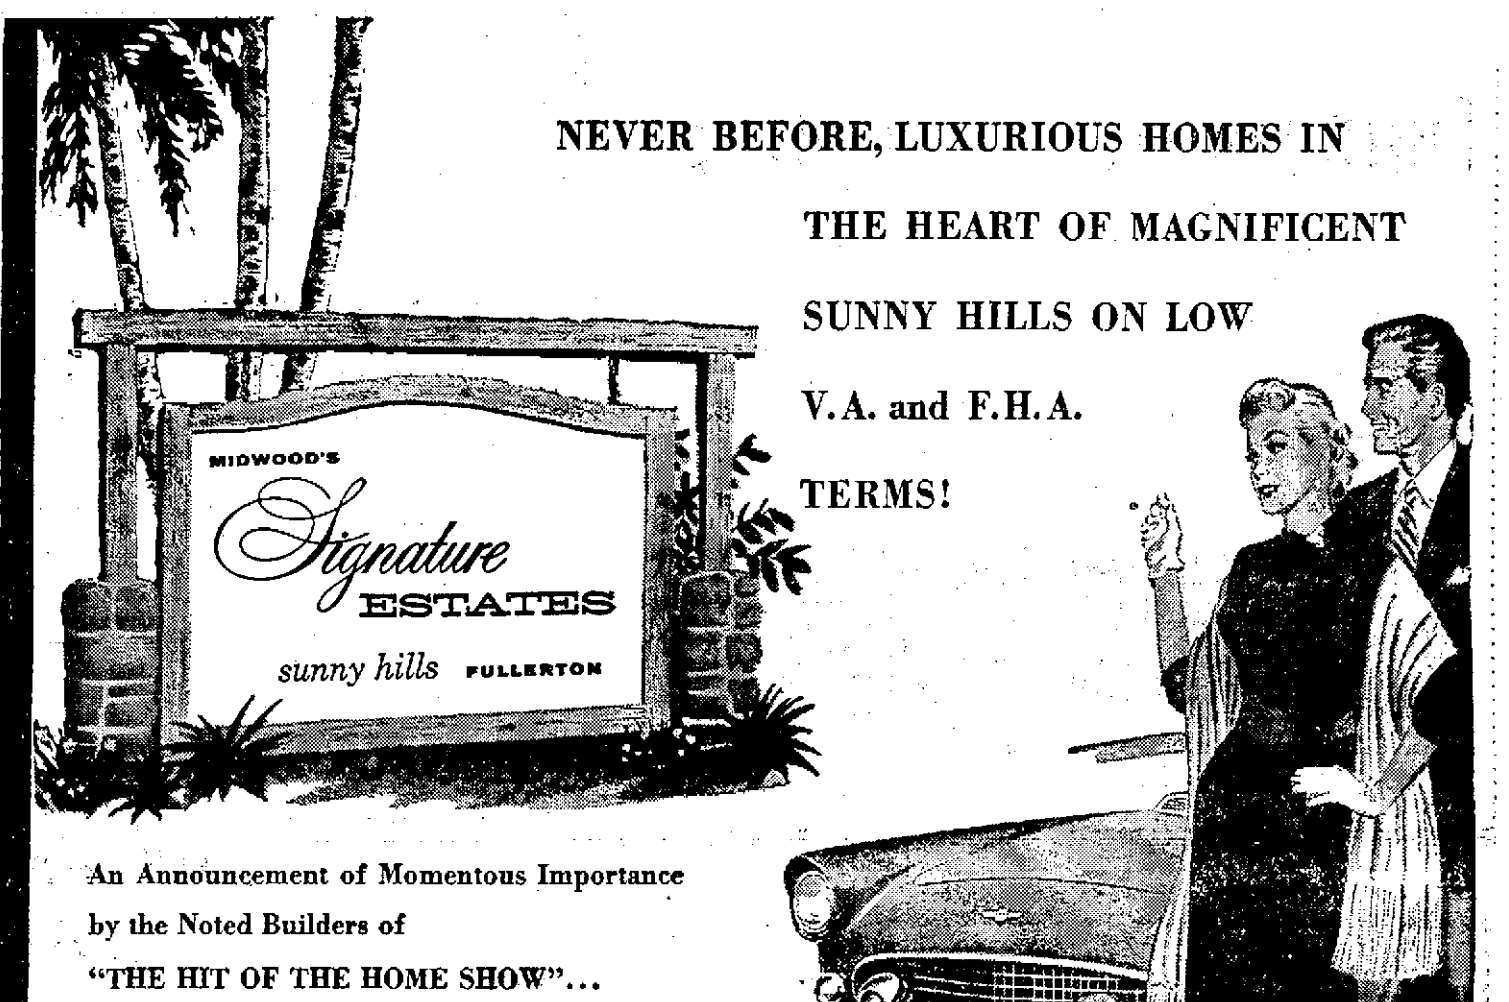

Visitors may also go by way of La Brea-Hawthorne Blvd., past Highway 101, to Palos Verdes Dr. N., then left to Montemalaga Dr. and right to the model home display.

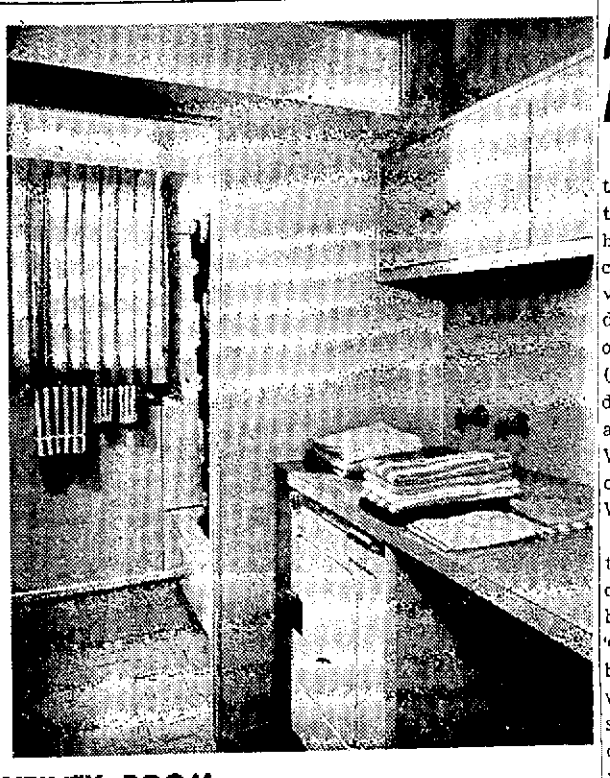

ON THE PENINSULA

UTILITY ROOM

Buyers' favorite at Katella Park is the separate and new idea in a utility room, located just around the corner from the kitchen and near the children's bath. The built-in and color-matched washer-drier is included in the sales price of these Garden Grove homes, built by H. Cedric Roberts & Sons. The cabinets above hold washing needs, while a linen cupboard also is located in the room.

Katella Park Home Ideal in Southland

Summertime living is particularly pleasant in Katella Park, it was announced, as the homes are so planned to take every advantage of the climate, yet minimize any disadvantages.

Only a 20-minute drive from the beach, the homes are so located on the lots to protect the interiors from western sun and also to protect the patios from the prevailing westerly winds.

Large overhangs shield the houses from the sun, and the location of the windows was planned to allow good cross ventilation. There is access from the kitchen areas of every home directly to the patio for ease in serving outdoor suppers.

Located in Garden Grove, the models are at the corner of Brookhurst St. and Katella Ave. Only a few homes are left in the second half of the second unit. The builders also have put the 3 model homes on the market as they are getting ready to close out the development.

Included in the sales price of $16,450 are a built-in and color-matched range, oven, dishwasher, washer-drier, waste disposer and refrigerator. Schools, churches and shopping are near the homes.

Other popular features are the sliding wall between two of the bedrooms, a floor to ceiling brick fireplace, and the hardwood panelling.

Some Choice Luxury Home Sites Still Are Available

Although the public's response to the low-priced Garden Grove Luxury Homes has been unprecedented, the builder reports that several choice locations premain. However, Bill Lyon, Luxury Homes executive says, "The way things are going, we predict the next few weekends will see the entire development sold out."

Priced as low as $12,350, with monthly payments of less than $64, including principal and interest, these homes are affordable to persons earning $350 a month.

Possession is available to veterans with no down payment, while non-vets who meet credit requirements may avail themselves of liberal FHA terms. Government guaranteed 4½ per cent loans, with 25 or 30-year first mortgages are easily obtained. No second mortgages are required.

These 3 and 4-bedroom, two-bath "Luxury Homes" feature built-in suburban oven and table-top range, garbage disposal, mahogany cabinets, sliding glass doors, forced air heating, summer ventilating systems and other quality features usually confined to homes selling at a much higher price. Fifteen exterior designs are available. Landscaping and redwood fencing are in. Incinerators and clothes poles add to the homemaker's convenience.

"Luxury Homes" are located just a few minutes from the Santa Ana Freeway, away from the smog area, yet close enough to metropolitan Long Beach and Los Angeles for easy commuting.

Located at Brookhurst Ave. and Ball Rd., these Luxury Homes are easily reached from Los Angeles, via the Santa Ana Freeway to La Palma St.—turn right and follow the signs to the tract.

Easy to Buy New Home in Beach Areas

"Our experience has indicated that many Veterans are reluctant to make use of their GI home purchasing benefits because of the "red tape" involved in such a deal," say the developers of Hi Way 39 Plaza, on Huntington Beach Blvd. (Highway 39), 2 miles S. of Garden Grove Blvd. in Midway City and at Sun Garden Estates, on Westminster Ave. ½ mile East of Huntington Beach Blvd. in Westminster.

"We have a complete elimination of annoyance to the purchaser. All details are handled by us in what might be called a 'One stop Service,' in that the buyer does not have to go anywhere to complete his deal from start to finish, except the sales office itself located right on the tract.

"It is not necessary for the purchaser to obtain his certificate of eligibility nor to contact the Veterans Administration at any time during the processing period. Neither is it necessary to go to the offices of the lending agency nor to an escrow company, just the sales office.

"Another advantage afforded by this 'streamlined' service is that the buyer can be in his home within 10 days. The same situation applies to FHA purchasers of those homes in Sun Garden Estates. Non-veteran purchasers may also buy in Hi-Way 39 Plaza under attractive conventional terms."

Award-Winning Frematic Homes Prove Popular

Growth of Frematic Homes in Anaheim as a well-established new community was underscored yesterday by announcement of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, that 36 families already have moved into homes in the development and 10 more are arriving each week.

Because everyone likes a winner, a spokesman said, the national-award-winning homes of Ross W. Cortese are attracting large crowds to the display of model dwellings.

"Sales in the new third unit at Frematic Homes are up 25 per cent," a spokesman stated.

"Crowds come to see the model homes on view at Gilbert St. and Lincoln Ave. because they won Awards of Merit in the most recent countrywide competition of the National Assn. of Home Builders and then they buy because they like the excellent Anaheim location and the many added features, including the all-electric kitchens," he explained.

* * * *

INCLUDED in the large 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes, some of which have family rooms, are built-in electric ranges and ovens, 12.5-cubic-foot electric refrigerators, garbage disposals and electric dishwashers, all color-matched to harmonize with kitchen colors.

Generous cabinet space, breakfast bars, exhaust fans and Formica counter tops are other features of the modern kitchens.

Buyers are given a choice of 28 diversified stylings, it was stated, with the 3-bedroom models containing 1,362 square feet of living space, priced at $15,250, while the models with family rooms have 1,506 square feet at $16,350.

* * * *

FOR THE SMALLER homes, vets pay $500 down with monthly payments of $75.80, plus impounds. Non-vets, on FHA terms, pay $2,450 down with monthly payments of $64.50, plus impounds. Terms for the larger homes for vets are $550 down and $81.40 monthly plus impounds, and for non-vets, $2,750 down and $69.45 monthly plus impounds.

Among the many distinctive features offered by the new homes are hooded fireplaces of slumpstone, brick or cement blocks with raised hearths which continue to form a seating space and adorn the living room, sliding walls of glass, gabled windows, custom-styled bathrooms with Pullman sinks, colored fixtures, oversize stall showers with terrazzo base, tile walls and glass doors.

The bath adjoining the master bedroom also has a private dressing room and added storage area while the bedrooms are king-size.

28 Hazelwood Homes Left to Sell

Offering 1,300 square feet of living area in a popular 4-bedroom, 2-bath home plan, Hazelwood Freedom Homes are nearing a sell out, salesmen report.

The last 28 of these suburban homes are expected to be sold by the end of July, according to sales manager Marion Thomas. Roomy and low priced, a family having $310 per month gross income qualifies for these homes.

Illustrating the spacious living area in these homes are the king size master bedrooms of 12 feet by 15½ feet. Along with the tremendous roominess, the attractive exteriors and interiors make these homes compare with most others several thousand dollars higher in price, salesmen say. The colored bath fixtures, Rockwool insulation, paved streets and sidewalks safely away from fast through-streets and parkways, sewers, and easy to maintain yards are just a few of the features.

Hazelwood Freedom Homes are close to new schools and many uptown shopping centers. A few minutes drive from the beach areas and just a short 10 minutes from the heart of Long Beach as well. These homes are ideal for the modest income of the GI or FHA buyer.

To see the furnished models, drive out 7th St., in Long Beach 3 miles beyond the San Gabriel River.

High Construction Standards Stressed in Enchanted Homes

Although many thousands of home seekers have moved through the display models of Enchanted Homes in Garden Grove, the homes are as unmarred as the day they were opened, it was reported by Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Constructed to exacting standards by the Godbey Development Co., veteran builders, Enchanted Homes feature hardwood floors, sweeping shake roofs, and a host of especially durable features.

All homes have 3 bedrooms, a round-the-clock family room, 2 bathrooms and a completely self-contained powder room with its own shower, wash basin, make-up table and wall-to-wall mirror.

* * * *

THE KITCHEN features built-in range and oven, garbage disposer, long-life work surfaces and natural wood cabinets.

* * * *

AN UNUSUAL feature of Enchanted Homes is the planning for summer cooling; this includes special apparatus in the 75,000 BTU forced air heating unit, unusually wide eaves, diamond-lite windows and a carefully planned layout to allow breezes to circulate throughout the interior.

Priced from $15,200 to $15,400 Enchanted Homes are available both to veterans and non vets on VA and FHA terms.

AN ENCHANTED HOME

Charming and unusual is this Enchanted Home in the Garden Grove development. Shake roofs, wide eaves and sparkling diamond-lite windows blend with the colorful California country-side. For both vets and non-vets, Enchanted Homes are located at the intersection of Magnolia and Orangewood Blvds.

A FAIRVIEW RANCHO

This is one of the many models of homes offered in the Prince Charming series of Fairview Ranchos in Santa Ana.

Gold Keys Given Buyer of Prince Charming Home

D. & E. officials, developers of the Prince Charming series of Fairview Ranchos at Fairview Ave. and Bristol St., Santa Ana, have received hundreds of requests for miniature "Mr." and "Mrs." golden keys they give each buyer, from key collectors all over the country, according to Lincoln Moss of Key Land Co., sales agents.

"However," Moss went on, "since the Golden Key of D. & E. is strictly limited to purchasers of these charmingly rustic, traditionally-styled residences, and since they actually unlock the front door of the buyer's home, they are, of course, collector's items only for new buyers."

Residences in the Prince Charming series are identifiable by their low sweeping eaves, diamond-cut windows, bright exterior colorings, quaint shutters, and rustic architectural trim, Moss explained.

* * * *

MODEL HOMES, furnished in keeping with the custom decor, by C. Tony Pereira, may be reached from Long Beach by driving out 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol; right on Bristol to Fairview and development.

The homes "star" the new Waste King complete kitchens in their first official Southern California showing. It includes built-in Waste King gas range with automatic pilot, gas wall oven with window and automatic timer, built-in Dishmaster semi-automatic dishwasher with a special rinsing-drying action, and sink-installed Waste King Pulverator.

These 3 bedroom and 2-and-a den, 2 bath homes are as modern as tomorrow, for all their quaint charm, it was explained. Each is dominated by a log-burning brick fireplace cornered or set in the middle of the living room.

Residences in the new Prince Charming series are available to qualified veterans for nothing down except small impounds and closing costs, Moss explained.

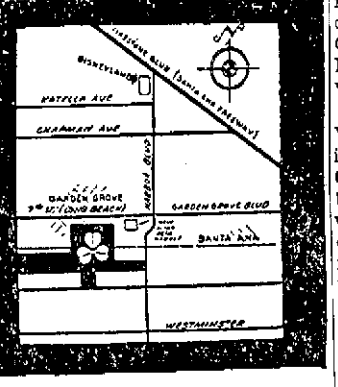

Realty Blue Book Now Available

"More than 23,000 members of the California Real Estate Association are listed in the new roster issue of the California Real Estate Magazine which was recently mailed to a circulation list of over 25,000" said Morris Holmquist, president of Long Beach Board of Realtors, Inc. "This is 1,000 members more than were in last year's book. The roster issue reveals our own board with a total membership of 733."

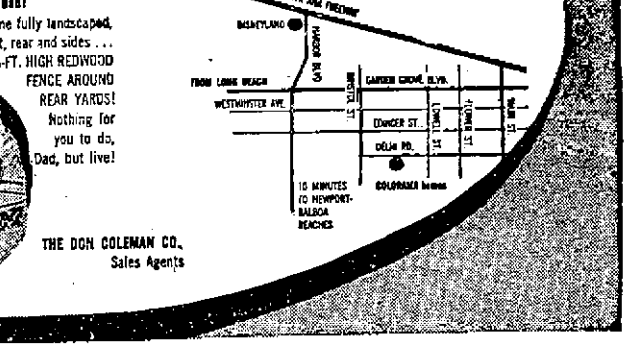

According to Archie Culpepper of Larkspur, chairman of the June Blue Book Roster Issue committee, this year's magazine is the largest in the history of the association. In the 268 pages is a complete reference section of the names and addresses of all the 23,000 Realtors, salesmen and associate members of the California Real Estate Association, listed under the 147 local real estate boards which are affiliated with the state association.

"This magazine" said Holmquist, "does a tremendous selling job for California and should have a great influence on out-of-state realtors, industrialists and businessmen."

IF YOU'RE MARRIED TO A DEPOSIT BOX GET A DIVORCE QUICK!

WHY? Because the money in that deposit box has been steadily decreasing in value, and every month you keep it there, the less it seems to buy. Whereas, if you take it out, and put it into Long Beach Property—

YOUR MONEY SHOULD INCREASE IN VALUE

WHY? Because—and don't let any one try to tell you different—

THIS IS A RISING MARKET

Lots are scarce—very scarce—and getting scarcer. Building costs are still advancing. People are still flocking to Long Beach. Six more big Navy Ships to be based right here. Then

WHY NOT BUY ALREADY BUILT?

Do a little fixing up and probably make a lot more money. Remember

University Club in Polynesian Mood

Independent-Press-Telegram
Women
LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, JULY 8, 1956 SECTION W

Club to Stage Giant Luau as Major Summer Affair

By IOLA MASTERSON

The Pacific wears a necklace of island jewels known as Polynesia and the beauty of these baubles of nature and their inimitable way of life are legendary! Occasionally mainlanders, yearning to share in this carefree existence, are able to capture its mood, if but briefly, through the party magic of a luau.

The University Club will provide just such an escape for its members and their invited guests with a spectacular and authentic luau on Sunday, July 29. It will mark the club's largest and most lavish function since moving into new clubhouse headquarters at 1150 E. Ocean Blvd. Co-chairmen for the big event are Mrs. Kelly W. Williams and Jack Miller.

All sections of the big, rambling ocean front club will be opened to accommodate comfortably the pleasure-bent crowd. Reservations will be limited to 1,000, according to Mrs. John Marriner, ticket chairman, and many will heed the gay invitation to come costumed in the South Seas manner.

Merrymakers will begin arriving at 1 p.m. to enjoy the day-into-evening festivities. A dance band will play around the pool and another orchestra will play on the beach directly below the clubhouse where a dance floor will be built especially for the party. This private beach area will be enclosed with backdrops of palm fronds and cleverly designed island "scenes."

An island decor will be used throughout the club and each guest will be presented with a lei, in true luau fashion, upon arrival. Native hat makers will provide atmosphere as well as headgear for guests. Promptly at 5 p.m. the imu will begin. This is the ritual of roasting the traditional pig for the Polynesian feast which will be done, Polynesian style, on the beach. Kau Kau (dinner) will be served at 5:30 p.m. at tables on the terrace and beach. The menu will fea-

JOHN WEBB WILL BE IN A PRETTY kettle of Hawaiian fish if he doesn't have two gardenias—one for Mrs. John Richards as well as the one he is presenting to Mrs. Charles P. Morgan! Actually, the one gardenia will be sufficient this time because these wives of University Club members are merely coaching John in a fine, old native flower custom in preparation for the "U" Club's colorful party to take place just two weeks from today.

WANT A RECIPE FOR ROAST PIG, POLYNESIAN STYLE? First you dig a hole along a warm stretch of beach and the food is greatly enhanced if the preparations are accompanied, as shown by these University Club members, by more fun than digging! Jack Miller readies a cooking pit with the help of Mrs. Miller, right; Mrs. Kelly Williams, and Mrs. Ralph Smith.

Hurrah for Summer Parties!

By ILKA CHASE

Now is the season of the outdoor gorge—sing hey nonny nonny and hot roast corn. The columns of smoke rising into the sky are redolent not of burning leaves but of the clambake, the barbecue and the crisped mosquitoes that the harried but determined householder is struggling to vanquish.

My husband has already given his annual office clambake on our beach and only slightly more than half the merrymakers were unable to show up for work the next day. We rated it a happy time. And just the other night we were invited to a sumptuous barbecue on the lawn of Mr. Jack Mohr, the gentleman who is the head of Lentheric. The Mohrs are a grand family. Four boys, 19, 15, 13, 10 and a beguilding damsel of one and a half. With all those big brothers and doting parents the apple of whose eye she is, Miss Susie will hardly be spoiled at all!

Betsy Palmer, prudent girl, drove to New Jersey where the Mohrs live, with her husband but Bobby, Sherwood, Ogden Nash and I went with Herbert Wolf who produces the program. Our boss is a dear and capable chap but he hasn't yet received the word that jet propulsion is for airplanes in the sky. He thinks it's meant for automobiles. We got to Jersey with the speed of thought. We also got there with nerves unhinged—but we were in one piece and, more important, so was everybody else on the road, including an improbable character who works a steam shovel in the new tube of the Lincoln Tunnel. Apparently finding his work on the prosey side, this gent wears a large ape mask which diverts him but which must give his colleagues a nasty turn when they first spot him in the tunnel gloom.

Smoke Clouds

When we arrived at the Mohr house we thought we'd get there just in time for the fire. Great clouds of smoke were billowing forth as from the nostrils of an outraged dragon but it turned out to be our amiable host wielding an informal machine to dispel mosquitoes. The joys of the great outdoors! However, he was successful. The mosquitoes vanished and there was no sand, no ants and the food was memorable; steamed clams, cold lobster and marvelous thick steak cut in thin slices with a fine cole slaw salad. Solid fare and very American. It amused me and also filled me with a kind of wonder to think how far away in time and space were the purveyors of today's product from the man who first developed it. Like thousands of similar stories it too is a graphic example of the power of international trade, the ingenuity of commerce.

It was in 1885 that Monsier Guillaume Lentheric opened his first small labora-

WHERE THERE IS HAWAIIAN MUSIC there is bound to be dancing! There will be both in festive amounts soon and singing, too, at the University Club's authentic day-long luau. Here Mrs. John Webb demonstrates a "Waikiki two-step" as William Six, left, and Reg Dupuy accompany her with a hands-clapping rhythm. All are members of the committee planning this largest social event of the fun-loving club since moving to its new ocean-front quarters at 1150 E. Ocean Blvd.

Bachelorettes End Rushing Season With Gay Dinner

Bachelorettes, now busily preparing for their annual summer charity dance to take place July 28 at White's Point, Palos Verdes, added another gay note to their summer activities with a sparkling dinner party Thursday night in the Boulevard Room of the Lafayette Hotel in honor of new members.

The dinner climaxed the club's three week's rushing season which was ushered in with a formal tea at the home of Joanne Potter, 6539 Rose Ave.

Thursday evening's honorees were Colleen Marron, Janet Reynolds, Janene Laycock, Margo Robertson, Mary Ann Martin, Shirley Williams, Sharon Vansant, Lou Ann Barnett, Pat O'Donnell, Carol Crosby, Mary Ewan, Shirley Irvine and Marilyn Irvine.

'Miss Universe' to Be Theme

Wives and officers of the U.S.S. Bremerton will serve as hostesses for the July meeting and luncheon of Fleet Officers Wives Club, to take place in the Officers' Club at Allen Center Thursday.

Cocktails will be served at noon with luncheon to follow at 12:30 p. m. Mrs. C. C. Kirkpatrick is in charge of arrangements for the luncheon which will have a "Miss Universe" theme.

Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

There are few more exhilarating times in life than when you're a bride-elect or bridegroom-ditto and have lots and lots of friends. Dorill Jones and Jim Thompson are finding that out. After next Saturday they'll be doubly sure of it and will continue to be convinced right through to their wedding date in September.

Next Saturday Nancy Ott and daughter, "Bindy" Vossburg, will have a linen shower and luncheon for Dorill, who will be in Long Beach for a week from her new home in Lodi. Naturally, Jim will be excluded. But that same night he'll be brought out of the usual strictly-in-the-background status of bridegrooms-to-be and will be co-feted with his fiancee at a buffet supper being given for them by Betty and Bill Barbee. Assisting the Barbees with the gay evening will be Jim's folks, Bobbsie and Greer Thompson.

While the joy of Saturday is still fresh in their memories up will pop another party on July 19, this time Carrie and Al Vignolo will be the hosts dinner entertaining informally for the young couple.

If your good friend Minta Springer didn't see you on the Fourth of July it isn't because she didn't try! Minta is here with that sea-goin' husband of hers, Capt. Frank of the U. S. Navee, en route from Alexandria, Va., to new duty at Pearl Harbor. The Springers and their three young "sailors" are staying with her mother, Mrs. James Bonner, 5605 Seaside Wk., which proved a most fertile area on Independence Day in which to sieve through the beach crowd in search of friends. Minta found any number of them and conversation sparkled like fireworks as she renewed acquaintances after her two and one-half year absence from this old home port! They "lift anchor" in about a week bound for Honolulu.

Ed Iliff is up there in San Francisco helping keep the world safe for democracy. He is not haunting the $2 window at Hollywood Park as some people suspect! Ed is taking his annual two weeks Naval Reserve training and we have a hunch he may even enjoy wearing his commander's cap again, with its slightly tarnished scrambled eggs. In Ed's former Navy career he served as Judge Advocate of the General Court-Martial in the Eleventh Naval District and will again be under court-martial jurisdiction while he snaps salutes for this two weeks' warrior phase. If anything like a Caine mutiny-type story breaks with a San Francisco dateline, look for the name of a certain local barrister to be involved!

Last Sunday from mid-afternoon and far into the night, Doris and Frank Preissler entertained Roger Wagner of Hollywood and other members of the Roger Wagner Chorale in which Doris is a well known performer. The party took place in the Preissler's canal front home in Naples which gave guests an ample opportunity for swimming, rowing, sailing or just plain loafing. After good things to eat and drink all day, guests still found they could manage generous servings from the buffet dinner array of food. Assisting Doris and Frank with the "swellicious" day were Marushka and Orville Darnell, Kitty and Charles Wire of South Gate and Grace Hurt. Except for Orville turning his Skimmer class boat upside down trying to launch it in the canal all was smooth sailing that day. A high point of the affair was watching the Ed Sullivan show and seeing several of the chorale group featured!

For purposes of quick identification Della Lawson used maiden names on her guests place cards when she entertained daughter Jane (Lawson) Keegan's "old gang" at a luncheon at the Virginia Country Club. Jane is here from home in Long Meadow, Mass., for a summer vacation. Gill will arrive next Wednesday to complete the familial picture and, with the children, they will remain until August 1. Della's party included 27 of Jane's long-time-ago friends and the maiden name idea was not only novel and fun but quite helpful, really, memories being what they are!

Most fun in a long time was helping initiate Marineland's new "Champagne Cruise" last Monday. Cruising along the coast at twilight and sipping champagne is quite a way to build an appetite for dinner! Murray and "Ollie" McDonald were among those on the inaugural sipping-seeing ride which is now featured regularly each weekend for Marineland diners.

Surrounded by children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, Dorothy and Karl Hawthorne had the time of their lives entertaining for their two clans at a family patio picnic on the Fourth. Nose counting would have netted you a count of 18. The week continued to glisten for Dorothy and Karl with arrival Friday of Dorothy's sister and husband, Marjory (Grace) and Kent Bell here for a few days from San Francisco.

The fun of showing California off to a "first time" visitor belongs to Winifred and Dr. Harold Morris, who are entertaining Harold's neice, Donna, here for the summer from Des Moines, Iowa. They left Wednesday for Pebble Beach to attend a dental golf association tournament—the Southern California "fillers" competing against the Northern California "yank-'ems!" After the mashie and niblick duelling, they'll go on to San Francisco for a few days. This is the first of a series of little trips to see all the sights which we Californians love to brag about.

An antique rocking chair continues to be the center of a simple yet charming family tradition for the Townsends. "Baba" Graham, last to use the rocker for its original purpose, presented it to Coni and "Bud" Townsend and when Coni sets it to rocking with a baby in her arms sometime in August she will be lulling to sleep the third generation of Townsends the little rocker has assisted into dreamland.

Speaking of Coni reminds us of her parents, Polly and Burton Chace who, with other daughter, Paula, have been having a grand time entertaining four pert Delta Gammas from the University of Iowa. One of the girls, Ann Dunkerton, was with Paula on a tour of Europe last year and Ann, with her travelling companions of this year, Sandi Shelton, Dot Thompson and Mary Lee Lytle, were invited to make the Chace's home their headquarters while here. Lots of side trips, of course, and in between times large portions of the Chace's famed hospitality!

Norman Allumbaugh, exalted ruler of the Elk's here, should have been as exultant as exalted Wednesday. Before he and wife, Faye, left by plane for a trip to Chicago to attend the Elk's convention all the lodge officers honored the pair at a farewell cocktail party. And if that sort of attention wouldn't make a guy exultant, what would!

Mr. and Mrs. William Henry McCarthy

Nuptials Solemnized in Palo Alto Chapel

William Henry McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy, claimed attractive Mary Katherine Manning of Berkeley as his bride during recent nuptial services at St. Ann's Chapel in Palo Alto.

Following a honeymoon trip to Canada, the newlyweds are now residing in the Palos Verdes area. Both received their master's degrees from Stanford University, the bride in education and her husband, a Polytechnic High School alumnus, in metallurgical engineering.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Manning, Berkeley, the young bride wore a traditional long-sleeved gown of antique taffeta as she walked down the chapel aisle with her father. The gown's portrait neckline was set off by an inset of Angel-skin lace embroidered with iridescent sequins, and the full-flowing skirt fell gracefully to a sweep train. Four tiers of illusion net cascaded from a sequin-embroidered lace headpiece. White butterfly orchids and lilies of the valley nestled together in the bridal bouquet.

Members of the entourage included Miss Marcia Manning who served her sister as maid of honor; bridesmaids, Miss Jane McCarthy, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Joyce Penn of Long Beach, a Stanford classmate of the bride; the bride's brother, Brian Manning, best man, and ushers, Gerald Peters of Fresno, Alan Scow of Gardena, and Clyde E. Taylor of Long Beach.

The newlyweds greeted well-wishers in the lovely gardens adjoining the chapel and at a later reception in the Newman Club of Palo Alto.

Kappa Delta Alums Seat New Leaders

Mrs. J. Albert Brown was installed as president of Long Beach Kappa Delta Alumnae Association following a dinner party at the Petroleum Club. Mrs. Brown is a graduate of USC and received her master's degree from Long Beach State College.

Mrs. Alexander Cameron, president of the Southern California Kappa Delta Council, was installing officer. Other new board members are Mrs. John Valuch, vice president; Mrs. Joseph Kellogg, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Russell Rees, editor.

Appointive chairmen named by Mrs. Brown are Mrs. C. B. Brothers, philanthropy; Mrs. E. John Hanna, courtesy; Mrs. Paul Johnson, magazine; Mrs. Alexander Cameron, diamond anniversary; Mrs. Gauss Loper, rush chairman; Mrs. Sterlin Fisher, social chairman; Mrs. Jonathan Booth, membership, and Mrs. Rees, college adviser.

The group presented Mrs. Booth, retiring president, with a miniature gold gavel and a pearl necklace in appreciation of her service as president.

Recent college graduates invited were Misses Jonine Booth, Rosemary O'Donnell and Beth Sudenga.

Nuptial Date

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Lang, 11100 Elm Ave., Lynwood, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Linda Lu, to James Craig Richards, son of Dr. and Mrs. Jesse Richards of Inglewood.

The couple will be married Aug. 26 in Lynwood Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Summer Is Relaxing for Juniors

That Ebell Juniors are enjoying sparkling vacation days is evident in news of their trips hither and yon and of gay parties in their Long Beach homes.

Envy of their many friends are Mr. and Mrs. Howell Gester, who are off on a 21-day cruise to Alaska. Hoping to be rewarded with a totem pole for good behavior are the four little Gesters, awaiting them at home.

And heading up the California coastline toward Alaska (but only as far as San Francisco) went Mr. and Mrs. Ray Berbower last week, when Berbower attended the first World Earthquake Engineering Conference at Berkeley University.

Also in the bay city the same gay week was Ebell Junior president Mrs. R. F. Carter, who called the St. Mark Hotel home for the length of her vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken McCulloch have other spots in mind for a carefree vacation—they are spending a week at the delightful La Valencia in La Jolla with their two children, Barry and Tom.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Swigart are swimming and sunning at Las Vegas this week, and enjoying that city's entertainment.

Loud spashes and whoops of laughter heard in Park Estates last Wednesday eminated from a party hosted by the Bill Berrys. Having a wonderful time were the Al Beachs, Don Hazzards, Jack Daltons, Richard Leebricks, Douglas Benwells, Richard Barry Jrs., Jules Bradys and Mrs. Marshall Pitts.

After weeks of scanning road maps and figuring mileage, the Chet Weides are off on a trip to Norfolk, Va., where they will visit relatives and tour spots of interest.

Sisterhood to Stage Annual Millinery Event

Representatives of well known millinery shops will judge a millinery contest to be conducted in conjunction with a Temple Beth Sholom Sisterhood luncheon Tuesday at 12:30 p. m.

The latest creations will be unveiled at the annual affair in the home of Mrs. Bernard Baskin, 4501 Hazelbrook Ave., who is co-chairman of the event with Mrs. Norman Baskin.

Other hostesses will be Shirley Albert, Ruth Apple, Anne Berlow, Anne Gerber, Yetta Granowitz, Trudy Heller and Sara Marcus.

Vows Link Prominent Pair

Margaret Suzanne Waddelow was a picture of bridal grace as she walked down the center aisle of Belmont Heights Methodist Church June 29 to join Stephen Branson Mulhollen who awaited her at the altar.

The Rev. Richard V. Kendall read the wedding lines which united the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Edward Waddelow of 169 Claremont Ave., and the late Mr. Waddelow, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stephen Mulhollen.

White gladioli, stock and carnations added their fragrant beauty to the setting as the petite, dark-haired bride approached on the arm of her brother, Thomas E. Waddelow. Her gown was fashioned with a bodice of Chantilly lace and a bouffant skirt of tulle billowing over lustrous satin. A tiny crown of pearls fastened her fingertip length veil and phaleonopsis and lilies of the valley cascaded in her bouquet.

Apple blossom pink frocks of embroidered nylon sheer over taffeta were worn by the bridal attendants, Miss Diane Adams, maid of honor, and Miss Gwain Branson, Miss Joan Jahnke, Mrs. Robert F. Peyton and Miss Barbara Peterson, bridesmaids.

Completing the party were James A. Morford, best man, and Robert Morford, Gene Powell, Gene Wilkinson and Richard Davey, groomsmen.

In the church's Wesley Hall, the newlywedded couple greeted 300 guests before they departed for a honeymoon trip to an undisclosed destination.

Both young persons are graduates of USC and are members of Alamitos Bay Yacht Club. She is a graduate of Wilson High School and is affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta. Alpha Lambda Delta and Long Beach Junior Philharmonic.

He attended Pasadena City College and is a member of Delta Sigma Phi and of Knights.

On their return they will establish residence at 256 Rafael Walk.

Bon Voyage for Traveler

A bon voyage party took place recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Olivadoti, 3751 Walnut, for Gloria Rossi who is leaving for a three months' tour of Southern Europe.

With particular emphasis on Italy, Miss Rossi plans to study the language and take movies of the numerous native festivals which are given there every summer. She and a companion, Miss Gilda Del Signore, former Long Beach resident now residing in Washington, D.C., sailed from New York City Saturday aboard the Italian ship Conte Biancamano. They will visit the ports of Lisbon, Gibraltar, Barcelona, Genoa, Messina and will disembark in Naples.

From Naples they plan on a leisurely tour through Italy, Switzerland, Germany, France, Spain and Portugal by auto wherever possible. They plan to return on the Italian ship Christopher Colombo, from Gibraltar, arriving in New York City on Sept. 25.

Gilkerson-Davis Vows Solemnized

Honeymooning in Mexico City and Acapulco are Ensign and Mrs. Jess David Gilkerson Jr., who were married June 24 in Hollywood Beverly Christian Church.

Honor Pair at Reception

To introduce their nephew's lovely bride to close friends and relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Marcoux entertained at a garden party recently in their Fleethaven Road home in honor of newlywedded Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Scott (Gay Hawkey).

A profusion of pink and white flowers, colorful ribbons and filmy tulle created a lovely background for the festive patio reception where the nearly 150 well-wishers gathered to meet the new Mrs. Scott, daughter of William Hawley and the late Mrs. Hawley of South Gate. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Scott of Bellflower.

The couple was wed in recent services at St. Bernard's Catholic Church.

The 1 p. m. double ring ceremony, witnessed by members of the family, was performed by Cleveland Kleihauer. Later, the newly-wedded couple received felicitations of 250 friends at a reception from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Officers' Club, Allen Center.

The lovely bride, the former Peggy Jo Davis, wore an exquisite gown of white Chantilly lace. Its fitted bodice was fashioned with a demure collar and tiny cap sleeves and the bouffant skirt was ballerina length. A tiny crown of matching lace caught a filmy fingertip length veil. She carried white orchids atop a white prayer book.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George A. Davis of Los Angeles. The bridegroom is the son of city engineer Jess D. Gilkerson and Mrs. Gilkerson of 3585 California Ave.

Both young persons are graduates of USC where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi and he of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Fashion Leisurely Turns Back the Clock

(Editor's Note: Fall's fashion mood is elegant and nostalgic, looking back to the serene days before World War I, when ladies not only were ladies but dressed the part to the teeth. New York designers are preparing to show their collections to the press this week, and AP's women's editor has taken a preview peek.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK — Fashion looks backward 44 years to the elegant era of 1912 for the newest in fall clothes. In both silhouette and fabric, the mood of fall and winter fashions for 1956-57 is a nostalgic renaissance of the Golden Era of American History, when wars were forgotten and woman's place was in the home

New York designers, preparing to show their fall collections to the nation's fashion press this week, are almost unanimous in their revival of the manners and look of an earlier, gentler day, when ladies were ladies and dressed the part.

This was the age of dust ruffles and ostrich plumes, of pomp and ceremony, of formal manners and fashions. Ladies sat on the front porch with their fine needlework of an afternoon, instead of behind a desk in a business office. They dressed with care and wouldn't dream of going out in the sun without their parasols.

It was the age of chivalry, when women were clinging vines and men were sturdy oaks, when gentlemen came calling on Sunday afternoon to take their ladies riding in surreys with fringe on top.

This new feeling of fashion is evident principally in clothes for late afternoon and instep length dinner dress and the full length evening gown, the softening of the sheath silhouettes by panels and draperies, the use of feminine laces, embroideries, stiff, rustling silks and brocades. It is evident in the Empire line so important in daytime as well as evening fashions, in a new air of elegance and formality, in feminine detailing of even tailored fashions.

It is seen in the revival of the fringed sheath, the harem cape and the long velvet evening gown. It is dramatized by the new importance of big and elegant hats, by the return of big fur muffs, by fur-trimmed coats and suits.

Daytime dresses are principally of the sheath variety, but with a difference. There may be a draped bodice and a floating panel at side or back. There may be a soft, surplice closing, with a wide V neckline. There almost certainly will be some softening of the straight-and-narrow silhouette by means of drapery or panels or trimming.

The newest suits manage also to suggest an Empire line by a subtle change in cut, by a mere accent of above-the-waist detail, such as bands, tabs, bows or pockets. Jackets usually are brief, waist or hipbone length, with waistline accent, if any, above the belt. Back fullness in suit jackets is likely to start just below the shoulder blades. Panel backs are seen frequently in suits, these usually hugging the hipline. Skirts are uniformly slim, many with low-placed back interest in the form of a pleat, a slit or a small tailored bow.

Coats also present a new facade for fall. The line again usually is narrow, sometimes entirely straight, sometimes sloping slightly outward from shoulder to hem, sometimes narrowed at the bottom to a subtly barrel-shaped silhouette. Belts, if any, usually appear only in back and well above the waist. These actually are only accents in the form of tabs or bands which do not alter the line of the coat. More fur-trimmed coats are seen this season, more elegant fabrics, more attention to detail. This applies to town coats. In the sports coat category, the hooded car coat is the big favorite, designed for wear in open sports cars and slated for wide popularity among the college and high school crowd.

Hoods generally are evident in sports fashions, with many hooded dresses, sweaters and coats in evidence, especially in junior sizes.

The accepted skirt length for daytime is about the same—mid-calf or slightly below, but the full-length evening gown is back in force, and the lines have been more clearly defined between day and evening fashions.

The costume, that perennial favorite of American women, is important in all collections, consisting of dress and jacket or full-length coat, all executed in the new and nostalgic manner.

Miss Joan Christie

Joan Christie to Wed Frederick R. Seykora

Of great interest in music circles is the announcement of the engagement of Joan Christie, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Christie, 1336 E. 8th St., to Frederick R. Seykora, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Seykora, 271 Junipero Ave.

Methodist Rite Joins Long Beach Pair

Stately baskets of white stock, gladioli and delphinium adorned the candlelit sanctuary of California Heights Methodist Church for the recent nuptial ceremony uniting Phyllis Marie Hamann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Hamann, and Alton E. Hutchinson. Rev. James Hughes solemnized the double ring service witnessed by 250 friends and relatives of the young pair.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white imported Swiss embroidered organdy fashioned with rounded neckline and short sleeves softly accented with graceful scallops which were repeated on the tiers cascading down each side of the full skirt. A heart-shaped organdy headpiece held the fingertip bridal veil. In her hands was the bride's bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids mingled with sprays of stephanotis.

Lovely blue organdy was fashioned becomingly for the ankle-length gowns of the bridal attendants. Dainty Peter Pan collars and tiny buttons down the front accented the short-sleeved fitted bodices, and wide organdy sashes were tied in big bows at the back of the full circle skirts. Baskets of multi-hued garden flowers were carried by each attendant.

Members of the bridal entourage were Mrs. Ruth Austin who served her sister as matron of honor; bridesmaids, Mrs. Jerry Plum, Mrs. Marjorie Gilpin and Miss Janet Yeager; best man, George Manooshian; ushers, Don Paxton, John Jones and LeeRoy Gilpin, and flower girl, Milsie Curry.

Traveling from their home in Longview, Wash., for the evening nuptials were the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hutchinson.

The bride is an alumna of Polytechnic High School, attended Long Beach City College and received her degree from Whittier College. Among her affiliations is Beta Sigma Phi, Iota Chapter. Her husband, schooled in North Dakota, is attending LBCC.

Following return from a San Francisco honeymoon, the couple will make their home at 5313 E. Carson St.

Jean Pratt Becomes Bride

One of the season's loveliest brides was Jean Darlington Pratt, who chose the last day of June for her marriage to Leland Murray Larsen.

More than 500 guests witnessed the reverent exchange of vows in the mid-afternoon ceremony solemnized by the Rev. John Gunn. The service culminated a romance which began when both young persons were enrolled at Fresno State College, where each was graduated with a BS degree.

A wedding gown of fragile beauty exquisitely designed of white Chantilly lace and tulle over shimmering satin, enhanced the charm of the radiant bride.

From the molded bodice, long sleeved, tier over tier of net cascaded into a floor-length skirt. An overskirt of the delicate lace swept in the back to a chapel train. A sparkling tiara fastened a fingertip-length veil and the young bride carried a fragrant bouquet of white roses and stephanotis, centered by an orchid, on a white Bible.

The former Miss Pratt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don F. Pratt of 5720 Bay Shore Walk. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Murray Larsen of Reseda.

Kinsmen of the couple who were members of the bridal party included matron of honor Mrs. Robert J. Reed, the bride's aunt, and bridesmaid Susan Pratt, her sister; best man Robert Larsen, the bridegroom's brother; bridesmaid Miss Barbara Larsen, his sister; bridesmaid Cheryl Anne Reed, flower girl Cathy Jean Reed and ring bearer Robert Timothy Reed, all cousins of the bride.

Others in the entourage were another honor attendant, Mrs. Marvin Heupel, and bridesmaid Marilyn Arey; little Carolyn Maley, ring bearer; and ushers James F. Halen, Victor H. Koehler, Richard M. Tullar, Carl Bowden and Ted Silwester.

The matrons of honor wore waltz-length gowns of deep turquoise crystalline, accented by bouquets of rose and pink roses. Bridesmaids were similarly attired in costumes of light turquoise. The little girls wore frocks of pink.

Before enrolling at Fresno State College, the bride attended Wilson High School and the bridegroom was graduated from Van Nuys High School. Her affiliations include Phi Mu; he is past president of Chi Beta Alpha, honorary agriculture fraternity.

The young couple will reside in Honolulu for the next 14 months while he completes his term of duty with the U. S. Army Veterinary Service.

New Suburban Trend Set by California Designers

Fall fashions are in the news!

Yes, the fashion picture has been clearly drawn for Fall, 1956, and from California the newest styles are flattering and functional . . . imaginatively suited to the sportscar trend—the surburban trend—the travel trend.

Here are a few "thumbnail sketches" depicting California fall fashion ideas as highlighted at Fall Press Week, held recently in Los Angeles, where fashions from noted California designers were revealed to fashion editors.

In dresses the prime favorite is the narrowed, ribbed line that goes equally well with a slim costume coat, or with dressmaker details all its own. The basic sheath gains interest through the pronounced Empire influence. Rising above a smoothly fitted waistline, the Empire line is seen traced with bands of braid, simulated boleros, or underscored with ribbons, belts and sashes.

Fall '56 will go down in fashion history as the season of the Knit Look . . . beyond a doubt the most influential fall fashion trend. From hand knits to novelty stripes, and fabrics designed with the surface look of knit . . . you need only to tend to your knitting to be in fashion for fall. Bulkies, in a variety of stitch patterns, dominate the sweater scene. Knit collars, (small and large) cuffs, yokes and sleeves carry this trend to dresses. In sportswear-separates the knit look is carried out below as well as above the waistline . . . in ribbed knit skirts, topped by sweaters and jackets sporting . . . of course . . . knit trim!

And where does one begin this fall changeover . . . to the new silhouette, new colors, lines, detailing? California designers make it delightfully easy, by offering now their lines of "transitional cottons." Originally planned to span seasons only, transitional or "dark" cottons are appearing in stores now to bring a needed spice to wardrobes bland with summer pastels.

Here is the look for fall, with the feel of summer . . . cool, dark shades of cognac, grey, black . . . styled with breeze-full skirts, snow-fresh collars of white linen or pique. These "transitional" fashions are designed with fall's important fashion features . . . narrow silhouette . . . . Empire line . . . back interest.

A TASTE FOR THE TROPICS

Fond farewells and signs of enviable approval were heard in the garden at the home of Mrs. John Henderson, at left, 2310 Pine Ave., last week when she and Suzanne Marichal, right, entertained Sharon Hilleary and JoAnn Parks, center, who leave for a three-week trip to Hawaii today. A group of the traveling pair's close friends gathered to wish the couple bon voyage at an informal luncheon festive with appropriate island decor of Hawaiian leis, miniature Polynesian dolls and exquisite monkey pod serving dishes.

Presbyterian Ceremony Unites Pair

Embroidered white satin in waltz length complemented the bridal loveliness of Miss Marilyn Jean Corning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene G. Corning, 2991 Gale Ave., when she exchanged nuptial vows and rings with Donald L. Peterson in a recent ceremony at First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Reuben F. Picters officiated.

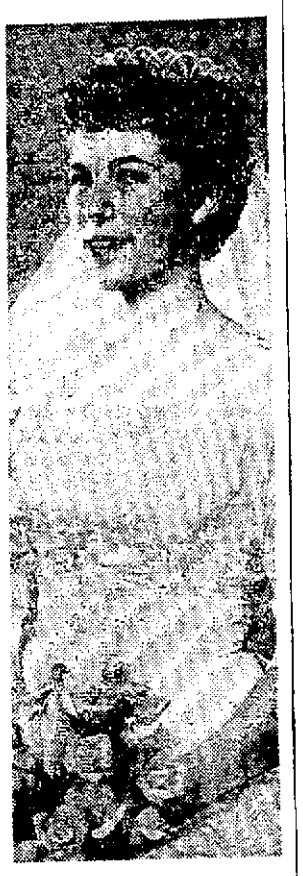

Her shoulder length veil fell from a crown of tiny pearls, and she carried white carnations and baby orchids with stephanotis. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Jensen attended as best man and matron of honor with Mrs. Jensen wearing a waltz length dress of pale pink crystaline with a headpiece of pink blossoms.

A reception followed in Westminster Hall with Mrs. Wanda Womack presiding at the guest book.

The newlyweds will reside in Long Beach on return from a honeymoon trip to Las Vegas.

The bride was graduated from Polytechnic High School where she was a member of Delta Gamma Omega, and attended LBCC. Her bridegroom, son of Mrs. Lena I. Peterson, 2841 Linden Ave., also was graduated from Poly High and served four years with the Marine Corps.

Planned informally, the program featured Leon, local beautician and hair stylist introduced by program chairman Elsie Martin, he gave the secretaries a variety of make-up and hair care tips, lacing his talk with much good humor.

Brief business discussion dealt with plans for the quarterly state board meeting which will take place in mid-August at the Lafayette Hotel with the Long Beach chapter serving as hostess group.

Two new members were introduced and welcomed. They are Barbara K. Smith (with Baker and Williams) and Marjorie H. Barbour (James C. Webb.)

Parents of the couple are the Royal R. Eagons of Norwalk and the August Ehrlichs of Greeley, Colo.

For the double ring evening service read by Rev. A mandarin collar set off the tulle-yoked fitted bodice which was hand-appliqued with lace. A filmy illusion veil fell from a small satin cap headdress edged with seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a pair of dainty pearl earrings, a gift from the bridegroom, and she carried cascades of blue carnations centered with a white orchid.

Wedding Bells Ring for Carolyn Ann Riedman

Repeating the solemn and beautiful vows of the marriage service, Carolyn Ann Riedman and Donald Whitney Berney exchanged wedding bands July 3 in an 8:30 p. m. ceremony in First Baptist Church. The Rev. E. E. Ellis came from San Bernardino to read the nuptials.

The bride was an enchanting picture in a gown designed with imported Chantilly lace on the jewel-sprinkled Empire bodice. The skirt of floating nylon tulle was graced with pleated panels of lace on its chapel train. The delicate lace was repeated in a jeweled coronet which fastened a fan-shaped veil. She carried a cascade of butterfly orchids and stephanotis.

Preceding the bride down the aisle marked by floral arrangements of white chrysanthemums, gladioli and stock, were Mrs. Bruce Henry, matron of honor; Misses Beverly Joe Simpson, Linda Vaughan, Joan Morrison and Joan Fleming, bridesmaids. Kenneth Riedman was best man. Richard Riedman, Jim Erickson, William Lenhart and Doyle Blaney were the ushers.

The feminine attendants were gowned alike in aqua dresses of iridescent crystalline with fitted bodices and skirts of extreme fullness. Yellow roses cascaded in their bouquets.

When all were in place before the altar yellow-frocked Virginia Wright and Diana Dorr, little nieces of the bride, lit tall white tapers beside the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Riedman of 6019 Falcon Ave. Her husband's parents are Mr. Harry Berney of Walla Walla, Wash., and Mrs. Vera Berney of Camas, Wash.

After receiving the many well-wishers who greeted them at a beautifully appointed post-nuptial reception, the newly married pair left for a honeymoon trip up the coast to Santa Barbara and on to Yosemite.

The new Mrs. Berney, a Polytechnic High School graduate, took her BA degree at the University of Redlands. Her affiliations include Alpha Theta Phi, Ski Club and Honor Roll. The bridegroom is a graduate of Willamette University in Salem, Ore., and now attends UCLA law school. He is a Beta Theta Pi.

On their return to the Southland, the couple will live in Los Angeles.

Donna Jean Loucks Exchanges Rings With Ralf A. Nilsen in Baptist Rite

A large white arch entwined with fern and white and yellow carnations, banked by large baskets of white stocks, crysanthemums, white and yellow gladioli and greenery, combined with the glow of flickering candlelight to make a beautiful, impressive setting for the recent marriage ceremony uniting Donna Jean Loucks and Ralf A. Nilsen.

Dr. Owen T. Day officiated at the double-ring service in First Baptist Church.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Loucks of 201 E. 68th St. and the Noralf A. Nilsens of Seattle, Wash., who came from their northern home to be present at the evening nuptials.

Preceding the bridal party were candlelighters Misses Jill and Patricia Menzimer, cousins of the bride. Clusters of fern and white carnations held by white satin streamers marked the bridal aisle down which the bride was escorted by her father.

Complementing the bride's youthfulness was her gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over taffeta fashioned with scalloped neckline and fitted bodice. The full tiered skirt, with over panels of tulle and lace, swept to a chapel-length train, and a tiered veil of silk illusion fell from a Juliet cap of lace embroidered with dainty seed pearls and sequins. On her small Bible, she carried an arrangement of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Nanci McGinn, maid of honor, was attired in a floor length gown of mint green nylon dotted Swiss over taffeta. Yellow dresses of the same material, fashioned like that of the maid of honor, were worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Mary Friese and Miss Jeanette Caro. All wore matching headbands of fresh flowers and carried cascades of yellow sweetheart roses. Little Sherril Hainsworth and Lynn Loucks, cousins of the bride, were flower girls.

For his best man, the bridegroom chose Duanne Jackman. Seating the guests were Mike Snuffin, David French, James Joiner and Lawrence Broderick. Robert Loucks served as special escort for the mothers of the bride and bridegroom.

Hostesses at the guest books at the church were Mmes. Jack Sloman and Kernick Davis, while acting as hosts and hostesses at the later church reception were Messrs. and Mmes. Carl Jensen, Walter Arrowood, Hubert Crozier, Frank Morris, Don Pratt, J. Paul Walker, Martin Erickson and Mmes. Lorine Nelson, Tom Norcross, Harris Rogers, A. E. Saunders, Ora Snook, E. A. Penka, Chester Schadel, Annie Ziegelasch and Miss Lucy Lovell.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Lake Arrowhead and are now residing in Gardena. A graduate of Jordan High School and member of Order of Rainbow for Girls, the new Mrs. Nilsen is an alumna of Long Beach City College where she affiliated with Tammuz Sorority. Her husband attended schools in Seattle, served with the armed forces, attended El Camino Junior College where he was a member of Chi Gamma Iota Fraternity and will continue his studies at the University of Southern California.

News Notes of Military Varied

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

With a great deal to do about summertime, the busy Wives of Navy Doctors' Club will meet for their monthly luncheon and discuss summer activities Wednesday at noon in the Officers Club, Allen Center.

All wives of medical and dental officers in the Naval Service are invited to attend and reservations should be called in to Mrs. Lewis Dorgan of 4200 Linden by Monday noon.

Senior hostess for the event will be Mrs. H. F. Delmore.

Rear Adm. Charles W. Weitzel, USN (ret) and Mrs. Weitzel have returned to their apartment here on 3rd Place from their winter home at Palm Springs.

Recently retired and returning to their "first love," Long Beach, to purchase a home are those wonderful folks and former residents, Capt. and Mrs. Fred C. Fluegel and son, Ricky.

A very wonderful and beautifully planned surprise farewell luncheon event took place recently at the Officers Club at NAS, Los Alamitos, by the Officers Wives Club of that base, honoring Mrs. J. B. Paschal.

General chairman of the event was Mrs. K. R. Miller assisted by Mmes. C. L. Kennedy, G. D. Swisher, H. D. Sturm and R. R. Lovelady.

The tables were most unique and gay with maps of the different states where Mrs. Paschal had resided and scenes from her past done in small figures and objects. There was Bremerton, Wash., where Capt. and Mrs. Paschal had met, and many other interesting scenes with the last small figures of the captain and his wife and their two children in clouds of beautiful spun glass representing the dreams of their future as civilians. The Pascals are now touring the states and will return here to live.

Following the luncheon, a "This Is Your Life" skit was presented with master of ceremonies being Lt. Cmdr. H. D. Sturm, PIO officer at the Air Base.

A tape recording was made of the entire party and pictures taken which will be given Mrs. Paschal as a farewell present. She was also presented by the president, Mrs. A. McDonald, a gift from club members, a lovely silver charm bracelet with the little charms depicting her life.

Those who wrote the skits and program were Mrs. Maurice Kaufmann and Mrs. Howard Sturm. And those performers taking part in the fun were Mmes. W. F. Proper, J. B. Hennigan, C. L. Kennedy and Claude Ross.

On Thursday evening the NCO Wives Club of Long Beach Air Force Base will have a social and business meeting at their club at the Air Base.

Lt. A. C. Plambeck, formerly of the USS Helena, and Mrs. Plambeck have returned from San Francisco, and are now just plain retired Navy folk with plans to make Long Beach their permanent home.

Lt. and Mrs. Walter McDaniels have as their houseguests from Elwood, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Lon Dellinger and Vicki Benedick.

Recently enjoying a few days in Las Vegas together were Mrs. John Price and two children and Mrs. Price's mother, Mrs. Hazel Anderson, and Mrs. William Womack.

Capt. and Mrs. George C. Turpyn and family have returned from a vacation spent at Lake Arrowhead.

Today the Officers Wives Club of the Long Beach Air Force Base will have a pot-luck supper party at the Club at the Air Base, with husbands invited.

Maj. and Mrs. Gustav Kraft have returned from a trip in Northern California and seeing friends at Travis Air Force Base.

Newest newlyweds out at the Long Beach Air Force Base are Lt. Roger Buchanan and Mrs. Buchanan, the former Vivian Houghton, and Lt. and Mrs. Edward R. Williams, the former Lois L. Applegate.

Mrs. William F. Kline Sr., from Clinton, La., is the house guest of Lt. and Mrs. William Kline Jr. of this city.

Cmdr. and Mrs. Howard de Laureal of Rolling Hills had a most delightful buffet supper party on July 4th eve for officers attached to the USS Chemung, which Cmdr. de Laureal commands, and their ladies.

Recent houseguests of Mrs. H. F. Delmore, wife of Capt. Delmore, USN, DC (ret), were the couple's two talented grandchildren, Peter Murphy, who is in his third year at Princeton, and Sue Ann Murphy, who just graduated from Ann Head School in Berekeley and is enrolling in Radcliff this fall. They are the children of Capt. and Mrs. R. P. Murphy of San Francisco.

Mrs. Joseph Long Sr., here from New York, is the houseguest of her son and daughter-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. Joseph Long Jr. of 1739 E. 1st. Lt. Long recently returned from the Far East aboard the USS Chemung.

Ens. D. A. Smith of the USS Helena and Mrs. Smith welcomed a baby boy last week, who weighed in just under eight pounds.

On Tuesday morning at 11, the Nautical Club will have a board meeting at the home of Mrs. H. E. Anderson of 222 Fuego St.

Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Dale Hudgel have his folks here visiting them from Arizona, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hudgel.

On Thursday evening, the Navy Wives Club of America No. 18 had a business meeting at the Navy Clubhouse and announced that a social for the group would be given at the club on July 17 at 7:30.

Teeners Vie in National Christmas Doll Contest

Santa Claus' helpers wear bobbysox! Already at work for that merry old saint are Long Beach teen-agers who are spending summer days making and dressing the dolls that will say "Merry Christmas" next December to needy little girls all over the world.

The nimble-fingered bobby-soxers are participating in the Seventeen Magazine "Save the Children Federation Christmas Doll Contest," an annual good-will competition sponsored locally by Walker's. The project is designed to provide needy children in rural U. S. and abroad with Christmas dolls made by America's teen-age girls.

Starting point for a whimsical elf doll, a delicate Snow Queen or a curly-headed baby, is Seventeen's doll-making kit, containing a man's white sock and a rosy-cheeked plastic doll face. Teenage ingenuity turns the plain white socks into story book heroines, bouncing babies, famous kings and queens, political personalities, fashionable ladies, gay peasant girls and modern movie stars.

To enroll and compete for hundreds of prizes contestants should get a Seventeen doll-making kit from Walker's.

With a few snips of scissors turn the sock ribbing into the dolls's arms, the toe into its head and the foot into its body. Step-by-step directions are included in the kit. Dress the doll from top to toe in one of the three contest categories: Baby, fashion or character.

As costume material, seek out old hat veils, Christmas card glitter, petticoat ruffles, lace from outmoded collars and workbasket scraps of every variety in denim, gingham, corduroy and felt, ribbon, tulle and wool.

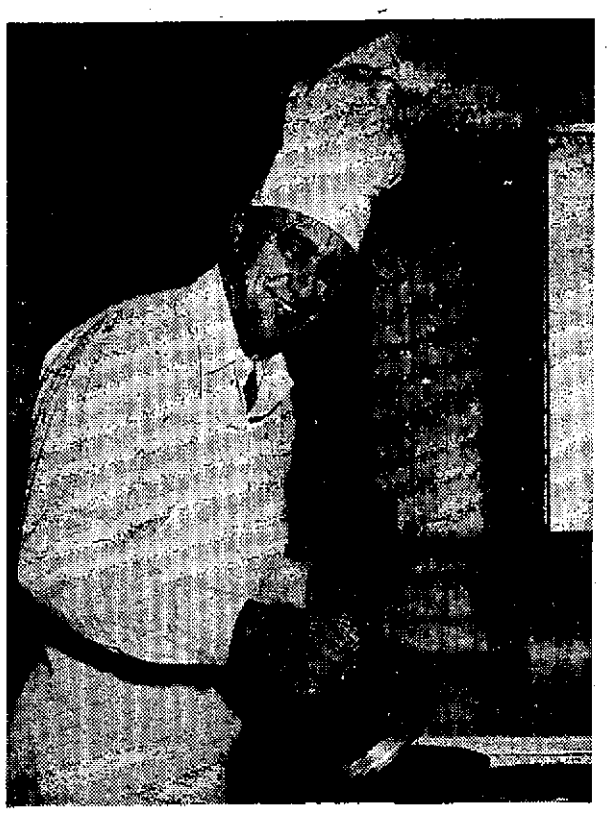

Your doll must be wearing the outfit and accessories entered with her. (No separate clothing or wardrobes are allowed).

Add shoes, handbags, jewelry, parasol and even eyeglasses to your finished doll, and turn it in to Walker's by Sept. 7 for the regional judging.

The most ingenious local dollmakers will receive valuable prizes.

The country's top three dollmakers (to be chosen at a national judging in New York in mid-October) will receive a five-day New York holiday, Nov. 3 to 8, and the grand prize winner will take a two-week-doll distribution trip to Europe via PAA Clipper, Nov. 11 to 27.

All dolls will be distributed at Yuletime by Save the Children Federation to needy children in rural America, Austria, Finland, France, Italy, Greece, Western Germany, Israel, Yugoslavia, and South Korea.

Fred M. Riedman

Chef of the Week

He'll Win His Case With This Paprika Swiss Beef

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent-Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

HE LIKES VARIETY . . . and it bears repeating . . . his interests are many. Chef of the Week Fred M. Riedman is considered a participant in life . . . not a spectator. His variety is varied, too. A bit of sweet after each meal is a must—such as a hunk of peanut brittle after breakfast.

His "broadness of scope," no doubt, stems right back to his birthplace. There was absolutely nothing to stop the natural momentum of anything. It was Barnes County, North Dakota.

He traded the wide open spaces for our own city in 1918; attended Poly High, then graduated from University of Redlands with an economics major and a music minor. He took his law degree at USC.

His practice of law does not, however, take precedence over his other vocations. For instance, a "little" water company in the vicinity of Redlands, or a packing house down San Diego way. He's a rancher, too! That endeavor is divided into three parts, the raising of horses, cattle and citrus groves.

Reidman is said to be an idealist, and a great admirer of skill. He will accept a dare and give a challenge with equal aplomb. A horseman of note, he rides with the Mounted Police. He'll do a skin dive at the drop of a hat, yet will just as readily, and with the same enjoyment, baby sit with his nine-months-old granddaughter. Someday he will perhaps tell her about the letters he won in track, and of his prowess on the football field.

A member of the Long Beach, of the Los Angeles and of the State Bar Associations, he belongs to the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity and the Kappa Sigma Sigma. He also holds membership in the El Bekal Shrine.

Foodwise he has one idiosyncrasy . . . it involves a beet. It MUST be sliced crosswise to become an edible beet.

Today he's very efficiently preparing a Paprika Swiss Beef.

Paprika Swiss Beef

Yield: 8 servings

- 2 pounds round steak, ½ inch thick
- 2 tablespoons fat
- ⅛ teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 clove garlic, peeled
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- ¾ cup sour milk or cream
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 2 tablespoons flour

Melt fat in a skillet. Rub the meat with salt and ⅛ teaspoon paprika. Brown the garlic in the hot fat. Remove the garlic.

Add the meat and brown well on both sides. Add water and Worcestershire sauce. Cover and cook slowly about 2 hours. Add sour milk and 1 teaspoon paprika. Continue to cook slowly 15 minutes. Remove the steak to a hot platter. Thicken the broth with the flour mixed with ½ cup cold water. Stir and boil 5 minutes. Serve the gravy over the meat.

Long Beach Chapter No. 1, Blue Star Mothers of America, will meet Monday at 11:30 a.m. for luncheon in the YWCA, 6th and Pacific. Mrs. Walter Gerloch will preside at the 1 p.m. business session.

tory in Paris. As soon as he decided that his product smelled, not only good but delicious, he opened a little shop and to it flocked the pretty and elegant ladies in the mystifying mode of the day — large hats and shirtwaists and skirts in which, by some strange anatomical feat, the upper half of the female figure appeared to precede the lower half by a good six inches. Still they smelled fine and their powders and rouges were as discreet as the fashion of the time demanded.

Gratitude Shown

Having sprayed his fragrance upon the air, Monsieur Lentheric was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the grateful members of the Chamber of Deputies who had the pleasure of sniffing the ladies who wore it.

Commerce and time marched on and here are Peter Donald, Betsy Palmer, Robert Sherwood, Ogden Nash and myself not to mention the current manufacturers helping to keep green the memory of the humble chemist.

It turns out that even people in the entertainment world like a sniff of back stage doings, that feeling of being in the know. The glimpse of next fall's fashions caught in June in the wholesale market and the peek that we got at a sales meeting of the preparations that will be on sale at Christmas time and are now being readied. It was fun. They're mighty pretty, mighty tempting.

Nothing in the world can ever surpass the glamour of the theater but television can have glamour plus another dimension. It is a prize melting pot for art and business combined. Let us hope that the brew proves tasty and that as they say in the cook books about certain relishes and preserves, "it will keep indefintely."

Lincoln Circle

Sewing group of Abraham Lincoln Circle No. 44, Grand Army of the Republic, will meet for a noon picnic luncheon Tuesday in Bixby Park.

The circle will stage its business session at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in Veterans Memorial Bldg. with Mrs. Elsie Chase in charge.

Your Baby & Mine

Nursing Mothers

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Here is an analytical young mother who has figured out for herself why some young mothers are not successful nursing mothers even though their desire is to be just that.

Mrs. M.S. writes, "I have three children and I am very interested in your discussions of breast-feeding. I nursed all my children and it was a beautiful and satisfying experience.

"But in spite of carefully following all the rules about diet, rest, intake of fluids, etc., I could never nurse much beyond the second month. The babies ended up getting far more from the bottle than from me.

"Lately, I have talked to two friends who have been successfully breast-feeding their babies and now both are talking of weaning them. Both say their husbands practically insist upon it. One husband refuses to remain in the room when she nurses the baby because he says it is 'revolting' to him.

"I know the above attitude is extreme, but it led me to take a mental inventory of the women I have known who were successful in nursing and happy doing it and always the husband's attitude has been enthusiastic or casually relaxed in regard to it.

"I have a wonderful husband and a very happy marriage and he is intelligent enough to understand how I feel about nursing.

"Still he really wasn't pulling with me. He quoted to me the father who claimed that none of his children were fed like animals! He also mentioned other men who insisted their wives were not going to fool around with nursing if they could help it.

"I think I have gained an insight into this subject. I wonder if this is an aspect which may change in a generation or so? In our present state of culture it is acceptable to expose the breast in an evening gown but highly improper to have it seen with a downy head snuggled against it and using it for God's purpose.

"During the first few weeks after birth, when there is joy, confusion, fatigue, and tenderness, a sensitive wife will react more to suggestions from her husband than she would when she was more 'normal.' If he has any antipathy to nursing at this time, it will be a strong influence upon her not to do it."

How right you are. A parent who is revolted at this act is advertising his lack of, or the poor quality of, his sex education. But many boys get no education in sex except from other boys and their attitudes take on that coloration.

Many doctors have had the same experiences and despite later education cannot throw off their emotional bias toward this use of the breast.

Greater familiarity with breast-feeding inevitably will change both women's and men's attitudes toward it, especially since psychologists have made us aware of the psychological benefits to mother and child of this ancient method of nourishing babies.

If you would like our leaflet "Information for Nursing Mothers," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 4 to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of the Press-Telegram.

Portrait Destined for Laguna Festival

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Art Editor

It's quite an experience for a young girl to have her portrait painted for the Festival of Arts!

That is why Judy Cosper, 13, blonde, green-eyed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon B. Cosper (her mother writes under the name of Jule Armin), stands VERY still as Marjory Adams of Laguna Beach transfers her likeness to canvas.

The portrait will be exhibited at the Festival of Arts July 12-Aug. 14 at Laguna Beach.

Judy, 270 Lindero Ave., attends Jefferson Junior High School. She frequently has posed for photographers, but this is her first portrait.

When Mrs. Adams saw Judy recently at a reception given by the Long Beach Branch of the National League of American Pen Women for the Laguna Beach branch, opening an exhibition in Pacific Coast Club, she said:

"I want to paint that child!"

The portrait, she believes, will be one of her best.

Mrs. Adams has exhibited in the Festival of Arts since it began as a street fair in 1932, with pictures strung on a clothesline between a vegetable market and a shoe store.

As an aspiring young artist, she won an art scholarship to the Portland Art Institute. At the age of 17 she won first prize in the Arizona state fair.

FESTIVAL PREPARATION—"Like this?" asks Judy Cosper, 13, as she poses for her portrait painted by Marjory Adams, Laguna Beach artist. The portrait will be displayed at the Festival of Arts, Laguna Beach, July 12-Aug. 14.—(Staff photo.)

She has had many one-man shows, and her pictures hang in England, France, Washington, D. C., New York, Maine, Kansas City and on the West Coast. She took top honors in 1949 in the Festival of Arts; she took first in oils and first in pastels in the Pen Women's biennial in 1954 and first in oils and honorable mention in pastels this year.

Marjory Adams, 541 Coast Blvd., Laguna Beach, also is an inventor. She invented a large beach bag which includes a back rest and a huge beach towel. Every time she opens a smart magazine, she sees it advertised in beach accessories.

Twenty-four water colors and one charcoal sketch by Marie Clark Miller (Mrs. Henry W. Miller) of Glendale will be shown through July in Pacific Coast Club Galleria, replacing the exhibit of artist members of the Laguna Beach Branch of the National League of American Pen Women.

A reception for Mrs. Miller is slated for July 15.

Mrs. Miller has won eight awards so far this year, including the $200 purchase award at the Dixie Arts Festival, St. George, Utah. She has had one-man shows in Iowa, Utah and California and has exhibited in Chicago, New York and Washington, D.C.

Elaine (Mrs. Leo) Malco is art chairman of Pacific Coast Club.

A National Exhibition of the Contemporary Arts of America will be an event of the Los Angeles County Fair Sept. 14-Sept. 30 in Pomona. A total of $8,000 will be awarded in prizes in the fields of oil painting, sculpture, graphics and applied arts.

The prizes will be:

Oil—Purchase prize, $2,000; three honorable mentions, each $200.

Sculpture — Purchase prize, $2,000; two honorable mentions, each $200.

Graphics—Purchase prizes, $200, $150, $125, $100, $75, $50.

Arts and crafts—Total of $2,150.

The exhibition will be selected by regional juries in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Entry blanks may be obtained from the Los Angeles County Fair Association, Pomona. They must be returned by Aug. 1. Closing dates for delivery of work are: New York, Aug. 7; Chicago, Aug. 11; Los Angeles, Aug. 22.

Last year 800,000 persons visited the art exhibition at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Ben Messick this weekend is judging the 3rd annual San Diego County exhibit, sponsored by San Diego Art Institute and Fiesta del Pacifico, which will hang July and August in the Charm Gallery, Balboa Park, San Diego.

Today will be the last opportunity to see "Sport in Art," 100 paintings, drawings and prints depicting sports subjects, and a retrospective exhibition of paintings by Reginald Marsh in the Los Angeles County Museum, Exposition Park, Los Angeles.

The Museum July 27-Aug. 26 will show the Walter P. Chrysler Jr. collection of 100 masterpieces, including pictures by Titian, Rembrandt, Rubens, Goya, Cezanne, Monet and Matisse.

Worry Clinic

Up Student-Teacher Ratio; 'Save' the Small Colleges

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

For many years American insurance salesmen have been selling college insurance policies to parents, so they can provide in advance for their child's university education after he leaves high school.

But all alert Americans should be vitally interested in the matter of insuring the integrity of our colleges. State universities are supported by taxes. That is a coercive type of upkeep.

Most of our colleges depend upon tuition and private generosity of far-sighted Americans who realize the importance of educating leadership at the college level.

The confiscatory nature of taxes has now undermined much of the funds that used to be available for endowment. So we are forced to rely on smaller donations and more efficient operating strategy within the colleges themselves.

* * * *

ONE WAY by which we can help save the smaller colleges and meanwhile actually raise faculty salaries is to increase the number of students per faculty member.

For example, I was asked a few years ago to try to rescue an Indiana college that was going bankrupt. It had one teacher per 4.5 students, which was obviously the reason it was insolvent. The average college nowadays has a student faculty ratio of 12:1, but that is likewise inefficient economically.

Colleges should strive to maintain at least the high school ratio of 24:1, for at $500 per pupil tuition rates, those extra 12 students would bring in an additional $6,000 per teacher in annual revenues. Even if the professors got only part of that, it would materially boost their salaries and still leave a balance for upkeep and even new buildings.

At present, therefore, the ratio of 12:1 means the teachers attract only $6,000 worth of tuition money per faculty member. And that's not enough. The average college pays its faculty members $5,000, so there isn't enough left of that $6,000 in tuition to cover much overhead. But a student-teacher ratio of 24:1 would bring in $12,000 in tuitional revenues per faculty member.

Even if the teachers were then paid $8,000, the remaining $4,000 would be 400% as much as the teacher now delivers for overhead.

* * * *

"GOD HELPS those who help themselves," runs an old proverb which is being realized vividly by astute college presidents nowadays.

Since high school teachers handle 24 pupils apiece, certainly college profs could do likewise, and most of them would be glad of the opportunity if they knew it meant a big salary boost, as well as saving their college from bankruptcy.

With zooming university enrollments in the next decade, we must also schedule a second educational "shift," to begin at maybe 3 p.m. and run through till 10 p.m. This would really be the "profit" shift. For the basic expenses of heat and equipment are already demanded by the present 8 a.m. shift. Except for teacher salaries, the other costs would be much less on that afternoon shift.

This feature appears Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Independent.

Why Grow Old?

How to Solve Middle-Age Beauty Figure Problems

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today I want to give you some first aid therapy for a few of the problems of the middle-aged woman. Actually, we sometimes see these defects in much younger women but not to such a degree.

We all know that the general tendency is to gain weight as we grow older and to accumulate fat around the waist and often on the abdomen, hips and thighs.

We also know that at this age we should watch for those little lines about the eyes and for the blurring chinline and make an improvement as we can. I do not believe in facial massage unless it is done by a real expert. The woman herself is apt to stretch her skin and speed the decrease of fatty deposits under the skin.

The one exception, in my book, is to use massage on those fine little lines at the corners of the eyes before they deepen. Use an eye cream or a hormone oil each night and pat this into the skin underneath the eyes. At the corners of the eyes use a rotary motion, lightly, with your finger, ALONG the lines. It is surprising how you can smooth these out with nightly treatments.

Now let us think of the Dowager's Hump. This is the hump at the back of the neck we so often see on older women. It is due mainly to poor posture over the years. Fat also gathers in this spot.

Here are some remedial measures. Try to improve your posture, especially the way you carry your head. Do not "give in" at the back neckline. Massage also is helpful. Place your fingertips in this spot and dig in with your fingers. Use a circular motion in this massage. Pick the fat up between your fingers and knead it. This stimulates circulation and may help some to break down the fatty deposits.

The following exercise is corrective to the Dowager's Hump and also helps keep the neck youthful: Lie on the floor on your back. Place your hands at your sides on the floor, a little away from your body. Bend both knees and place your feet flat on the floor. Lift your shoulders and hips and push a little with your feet as you roll your head backwards. Your weight will be supported by your feet and the top of your head. Hold for a few moments and lower your torso to the floor. Continue slowly.

If you would like my free leaflet "Dowager's Hump," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 17 to Josephine Lowman in care of the Press-Telegram.

Bidder Avoids Tough Guess

HOW should South play for his game at spades? He must lose a heart and two diamonds, come what may. How can he avoid a guess for the queen of clubs?

Declarer cannot afford to draw trumps and lead a diamond towards dummy. East will win and get out safely with a heart. East can then win the next diamond, cash a heart, and lead a third diamond to make South trump. Declarer must then guess the clubs all by himself.

The correct technique is to draw two rounds of trumps, take the second top heart, and give up a heart. The defenders must now play into South's hands.

West should win the third round of hearts and lead a diamond. Dummy puts up the queen, and East wins with the king. This is the best defense, but still it is not good enough. East must now lead a club to give South a free finesse, or a diamond to set up dummy's jack. Either way, declarer gets his tenth trick without having to guess the location of the queen of clubs.

Our Children

Need Residence Schools for the Feeble-Minded

By ANGELO PATRI

One way to describe a feeble-minded child is to call him The Child That Never Grew Up. That is the fate of the truly feeble-minded child. He must remain a child, though his body may take on the appearance of an adult. This is the difficulty parents must face when they have such a child.

During the years of his childhood, they can struggle along with him. If he is not too severely handicapped, the schools will take him and try to help him develop whatever power is within him. Sometimes this child can be trained to do simple industrial tasks, such as sweeping. Some can learn to do simple errands, such as delivering packages. Such simple occupations make the children's lives happier and, as they take them out of the house for hours at a time in safety, their mothers are greatly relieved.

Too often these children, for children they remain no matter their age, cannot be trusted to do any work without close supervision. For them we are advocating the sheltered workshop. This is a shop where these children can work at whatever their hands can do under the supervision and leadership of a trained leader. Some of these shops can turn out salable articles, and this allows the children to earn some money. That is a great lift to them and, of course, their being able to go to the shop daily is a tremendous lift to the home.

But there are adult children who cannot be trained to any form of usefulness, can never hope to work in a sheltered workshop. They remain helpless children in adult bodies. Most of those I have known were harmless. They were a load on the family materially, socially and spiritually, but they harmed no one. Their chief danger lay in the use bad-tempered people might make of them because they were easily led. This made their protection an anxiety to their parents and family.

Very little of consequence is done to help the families of such children. During the years of the child's early development, the families struggle along with them hopefully. Then the day comes when they see that they have an adult child on their hands. They have no way to care for him, no school will take him and the private schools are too costly to even think about.

Failing industrial work, failing the sheltered workshop, this last helpless group have nowhere to go. The aging parents are helpless. Brothers and sisters, having their own children to think about, cannot help with the care of the unfortunate ones. The public must find a way to help.

Here is a problem, existing in every town and city, that the P-T.A. might well study and then do constructive work upon it. We need residential schools for the adult children.

Tears Shed Over Rude Son

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Is it possible parents can hate their only child, a son? It is a wicked thing to say or feel. My wife and I have talked this over a lot. We are so mixed up.

Our son was a good boy until he married eight years ago. We are not jealous of his wife. His service record was very good and we were proud of him. Since this war service and his marriage he has changed. He is, at times, almost abusive to his mother in his talk. Our pillows are wet many nights with tears.

We do not want to know their business unless they wish to tell us. We help them when possible and, at times, it seems we must for the grandchildren. Anything we do is not appreciated. Anything her kin do is harped on constantly by both. My wife will go without to buy for the children. Then they will tell relations we do nothing for them.

They never include us in their pleasures. The only meal we eat at their house is Christmas noon. We must feed them every other Sunday. It must be something special. No concern is taken over us, yet big meals are prepared for outsiders.

I am a busy man in my business, yet never do they offer to take my wife anywhere unless she pays her own way. She would rather go by bus or train than have to stand our son's cheap talk. My wife, although in her 50s, is beautiful and a credit to anyone.

Maybe we are odd parents. Are we? We get more comfort from the two young couples that live in our neighborhood. They will do anything for us. We love our grandchildren. They are cute tykes.

It is one big heartache where our son is concerned. At times I am ashamed of all of them, they come over dressed so dirty. I hope you can understand our feelings. Can you help us? — LONESOME AND MIXED UP PARENTS.

DEAR LONESOME AND MIXED UP PARENTS:

Yes, I certainly can understand your feelings and you have my sympathy. As for helping you, I don't know. There's so little you can do with your son now, except perhaps leave him alone.

He is such a rude, inconsiderate son. I wonder why he has turned against you for no reason. Perhaps his wife persuaded him that you would be "in-law" problems for them. How very wrong they are and what a lot of pleasures they are missing by not having you for friends.

There's not much I can suggest, also. It seems to me your loyalty and kindness have been taxed beyond endurance. But I suppose you still care enough about your son to keep trying.

Personally, I would send the kit and kaboodle of them packing until they can show you some appreciation and consideration.

Have you thought of talking this over with your son and telling him how you feel? Maybe you could clip this letter and send it to him. When he reads in black and white what an awful son he has turned out to be, he will realize his mistake.

I feel so sorry for you both and I am left with the thought that maybe your son isn't worth your tears on the pillow at night.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've heard how generously your readers respond to requests for cards, so I don't hesitate to make this appeal.

I'm a boy 18 years old, bedfast with rheumatic fever. I would love to write to people —specially girls.

I have dark brown hair, blue eyes, and am 5 feet 7 inches tall. My address is 1324 E. 8th St., Loveland, Colo. — MARTIE BERNHARDT.

Sugar Beets Are Big Business

Gondola cars piled high with sugar beets are backed into yard of Santa Ana beet sugar processing plant.

By Lee Goodman

THE LONG BEACH area's historic beet sugar industry, now 64 years of age, is striding briskly in the direction of a 1956 production figure of $6,000,000-plus.

And that's for the sugar alone. The bountiful sugar beets, each of which yields an average of 14 teaspoonsful of sugar, also will account for a host of valuable by-products.

As of this week, principal attention is focused on the processing end of the industry. Trains are arriving at Santa Ana from the Imperial Valley at a rate of some 40 cars a day piled high with beets to be turned into sparkling white sugar at the Holly Sugar Co. factory here.

THIS "CAMPAIGN," to use the martial word sugar men call the factory run, started last May 12. Soon there'll be a brief breathing spell, probably only a few days long, before the wheels are sent spinning again for the second campaign.

Meanwhile, local sugar beet farmers, whose growing seasons are opposite to those in the Imperial Valley, have just completed thinning the low rows of young plants.

They'll be ready to start harvesting their acreage at about the same time the Imperial harvest is ended.

About three-fifths of the Orange County crop will be processed in the local factory's second campaign, along with beets from Holly growers in various counties between here and Fresno.

THE REMAINDER of the Orange County beets, plus those from Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino counties, will be hauled to the Oxnard factory of the American Crystal Sugar Co., which with Holly, Union and Spreckels Sugar Co. make California the leading beet sugar producing state in the nation.

Superintendent T. H. Lacy says that during the two 1956 campaigns, the Santa Ana factory will process some 180,000 tons of beets into more than 50,000,000 pounds of sugar, plus the aforementioned by-products.

The pulp left over after the sugar has been taken out of the large white beet, along with the tops and other "tare" chopped off during the harvesting process, will feed hundreds of dairy cattle and produce thousands of pounds of juicy steaks.

THESE STEAKS will be made even juicier by applications of the food seasoner with the chemical name of monosodium glutumate, derived from sugar beets.

Beet molasses, still another by-product, goes into the manufacture of such unsuspected products as alcohol, shoe polish, paint and citric acid for blood plasma.

And beyond these things, the sugar beet provides such additional community benefits as an annual factory payroll of more than $800,000, a railroad freight business of close to $1,000,000 and a dependable, cash-producing crop for farmers.

It all started back in the early 1890s when local farmers, looking for a crop that would survive on the highly alkaline land so often found hereabouts, hit upon the sugar beet.

Even in those far-off days the large (about two feet long), white sugar beet was an established and highly respected inhabitant of California, for it was in this state that the nation's beet sugar industry was born.

IT SHOULD BE noted, however, that attempts to launch the industry in the United States go back to 1837 in Michigan and 1838 in Massachusetts. And in the 1850s the Mormons actually hauled a dismantled factory, imported from Europe, all the way across the plains by ox team to Utah.

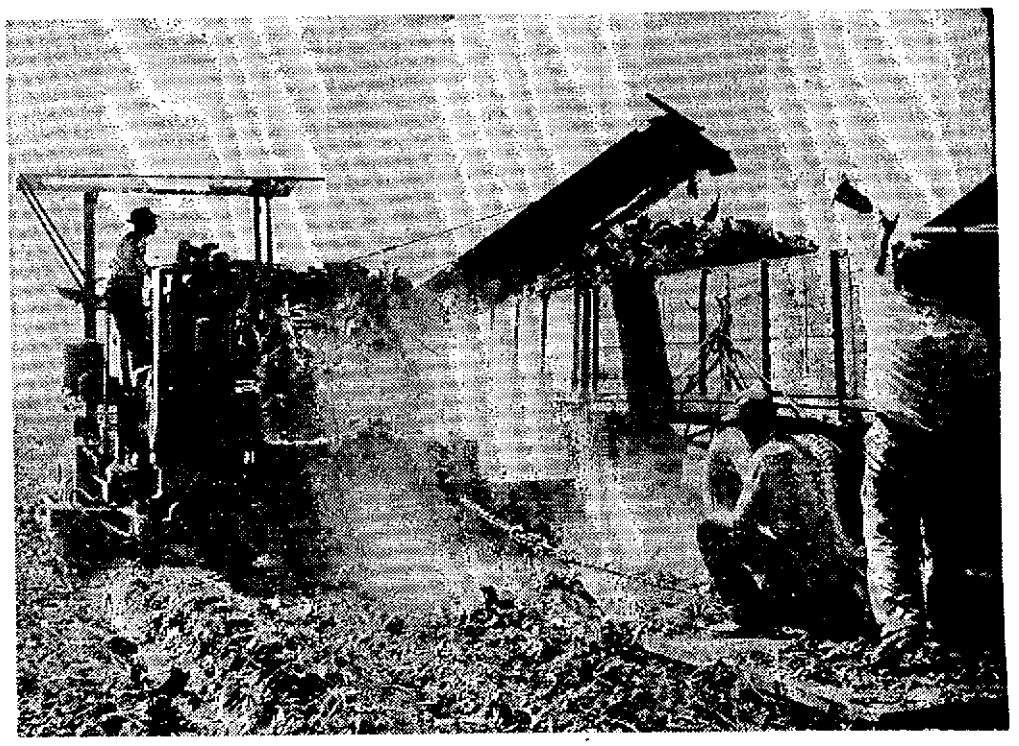

But these and other attempts failed for lack of knowledge of how to produce sugar crystals, a closely guarded secret held by the master sugar makers of Germany and France.

Then, in 1870, a dogged man named E. H. Dyer built a beet sugar factory at Alvarado, near San Francisco. It took him nine years to solve the mystery, but finally, in 1897, Dyer was producing beet sugar on a commercial basis.

When local production began about eleven years later, there was but one factory in operation, located in Chino. Then in 1897 a second was built, at Los Alamitos.

THESE WERE quickly followed by four others—in 1908 by one on Main St. just outside Santa Ana, in 1911 by another

Each of these sugar beets (foreground) will yield about 14 teaspoonfuls of sugar, besides a variety of by-products valuable to modern living.

George Lake, whose $20 bill grew into $6,000, the So. Cal. Professional Golfers' Assn. Championships, tees off at Recreation Park where he's head pro.

GEORGE LAKE AND THE PGA

Success Story of One $20 Bill

By Jerry Wynn

A $20 BILL that grew into a $6,000 golf tournament . . . that's the success story of the Southern California Professional Golfers' Assn. (SC-PGA) Championships which will be held for the 16th straight year this week at Recreation Park.

The man largely responsible for what is now the largest and richest sectional links event in the nation is Recreation Park's own head professional, George Lake.

It was through Lake's efforts that the tournament was first brought to Long Beach and it has been through Lake's efforts that it has stayed and prospered here.

THE $20 BILL was the unusual starter. In 1940, when the tournament was held at Riviera CC, Lake—better known for his executive and teaching abilities than his playing—made a fine showing and reached the quarterfinals. His reward was only $20 of the small $200 purse.

Dejected over his slim winnings and foreseeing a bright future for the Championships, Lake volunteered to underwrite a purse of $500 himself if he could bring the event to Recreation Park and be its chairman.

The SC-PGA agreed and the Championships had a new home, one with a welcome sign that has remained in view for the past 15 years.

THE CITY OF LONG BEACH took over sponsorship in 1943 but relinquished it two years later to the SC-PGA, which under Lake's supervision has conducted it ever since. Today, the SC-PGA Championship Fund contains $7,004 of which $1,497 was net profit from the 1955 event alone.

Lake's own rise to success parallels that of the Championships.

He literally had his roots planted in Huntington Beach, the city of his birth in 1912, for his uncle laid out the original town (Pacific City) and his father, a caretaker-nurseryman, planted all of its trees.

ONE OF 10 children, Lake had to shift for himself early in life. He began delivering newspapers at 12 years old and it was ironically through that employment that he first became acquainted with golf.

He needed an automobile to maintain his growing paper route and discovered a way of financing it by caddying at the old Long Beach Country Club (now Meadowlark golf course). He was then 14.

"A caddy received $1 for a single and $1.50 for a double in those days," Lake reminisces. "Boy, how we used to fight to get A. T. Jurgens' bag. His was the only $5 caddy job in Long Beach!"

LAKE CONTINUED caddying through his years at Huntington Beach High School. Among the top golfers he shouldered for were local amateurs Spec Stevenson and Les Hensley and Long Beach Country Club pro Dallas Jeffers. Once he had the great Walter Hagen, when The Haig was a club guest of Jurgens.

After an unsuccessful venture in peddling ice cream in Hollywood, Lake got his first big break in golf when he was hired as assistant "weekend" pro at Huntington Beach golf course.

During week days, he attended Santa Ana Junior College where he was president of the freshman class and Eastern Division JC golf champion. Upon graduation in 1934, he became Huntington Beach head professional. At 22, he was probably the youngest master pro in history.

IF EVER ONE received a thorough schooling in all phases of golf, it was Lake during his two-year tenure at Huntington Beach. He describes his daily routine thusly:

"At sunup, it was turning off the sprinklers, mowing the greens and setting the cups; in the morning, lessons and repairing clubs; in the afternoon, a round of golf; at sundown, financing, cleaning up and turning on the sprinklers."

Lake made his first move to Long Beach in 1936 as playing pro to Vic Baker at Lakewood Country Club. A few months later, he became head professional at the Recreation Park nine-hole South Course.

THE POST was given to him because of his interest in junior golf, one which would earn him much honor in future years. Already he had seen one of his junior products at Huntington Beach win the first Long Beach Junior Championship. The lad, destined to become a famous star, was Jimmy Clark.

"The South Course is primarily for the kids," Recreation Park Manager J. R. Wotring told Lake. "You like kids and can work with them. It's your job."

In 1940, Lake, then 27, replaced Harry Bassler as head pro at the 18-hole course without relinquishing his nine-hole reins.

NOW IN HIS 20TH year at Recreation Park, Lake has brought Long Beach national golf recognition.

In 1944, he became the youngest president in the history of the SC-PGA and held that office for an unprecedented three terms. In 1946, he founded the National PGA junior program and has been its chairman ever since. In 1952, he was elected National PGA vice president and remained in that office for three terms.

A $20 bill and a boy who turned to caddying to pay for a paper route—both have come a long way.

Teaching kids how to play golf is another of Lake's specialties. Here he shows Tina Ann Orsuga, 5, how to hold a driver.

Laguna Beach's 'Tableaux Vivants'

By Verner C. Beck

WAY BACK in the decade 1770-1780 Comtesse de Genlis was given the job of teaching the Duchess of Cartres' juveniles the folly of ignorance. In her efforts to drive knowledge into their heads the Comtesse used illustrated lessons, which seemed to do the trick. Today's book on information states that "her teaching methods were remarkably progressive, foreshadowing in many respects those in use today."

To all of this the Laguna Beach Festival of Arts can attest, for during the Comtesse's lecture periods on art she invented what was called, "Tableaux Vivants" or what the Festival of Arts today echoes as "Living Pictures." Laguna's living pictures have made this little colony of art and the Festival of Arts world famous, thanks to the teaching methods of the Comtesse de Genlis, born Stephanie Felicite du Crest de Saint-Aubin, at Champcery, in 1746.

THERE ARE PROBABLY persons in Laguna Beach willing to argue the point that the Comtesse did not invent Laguna's famous living pictures in the Pageant of the Masters. But Stephanie's name was in the book first.

However, the late Lolita Perine, one of Laguna's early day artists is given a share of Stephanie's fame, for it was Miss Perine who posed in the first Living Picture in Laguna Beach back in 1934, and thus started the Festival of Arts on its way to become a national phenomenon. Roy M. Ropp, another early day artist and real estater saw great possibilities in picture posing, and gave his heart and soul to dramatizing the possibilities. It was he who gave birth to the title "Pageant of the Masters."

IN 1934 one or two living pictures were used in creating interest in the Festival of Arts. This summer when the 21st annual Festival is presented in Irvine Bowl, July 14 through Aug. 12, the 100,000 anticipated visitors will see a total of 72 living pictures and sculptures divided equally in three programs. Lighting and sound equipment valued at thousands of dollars are used on the Festival's $90,000 stage to present to the public remarkably true reproductions with living models the paintings done by old and new masters.

The Comtesse de Genlis, nee Stephanie, wouldn't believe her eyes were she to return to Laguna and behold what her illustrated art lessons of 1770-1780 have done in the modern world.

STEPHANIE, ACCORDING to the book, did all her Tableaux Vivants background work and posing by herself. Laguna does it differently. Here it is done as a non-profit corporation under the general title "Festival of Arts," more artistically designated as "The Pageant of the Masters." Top of the slate lists a board of nine non-paid direc-

Costuming and making up large cast of the Pageant of the Masters is big project. Here, a group of lovelies is made up for Botticelli's "Spring."

Director John Callan eyes the stance of Dana Jones who poses in Smith's "Little Girl in the Gallery."

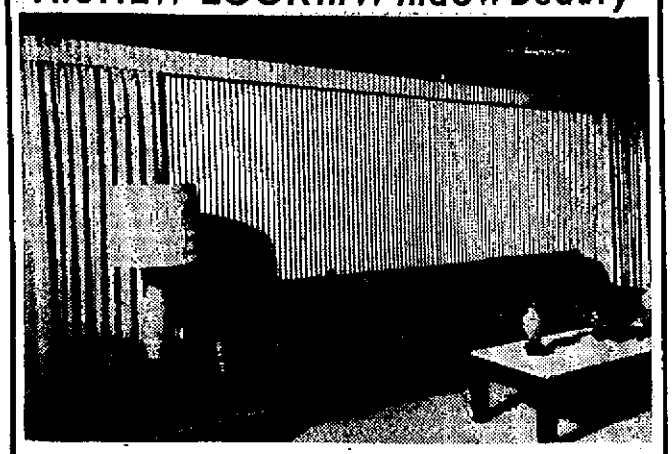

Young folk have prominent parts in the festival. Here, Hazel Babcock makes up Gary Kraft for a part in living picture.

George Pletts, a Laguna policeman and director of a pageant program, stands in as Evelyn Swarting checks details.

A New Don Rules the Hacienda

Casa del Rancho Cerritos, adobe hacienda now part of city library setup, is in charge of Ray Langley, above with Mrs. Langley and daughter, Veda.

By Spencer Crump

A 20TH CENTURY Bostonian named Don Ramon is making his home in an adobe hacienda built on a pleasant knoll in Long Beach more than a century ago by a 19th Century Bostonian named Don Juan.

The first man from Massachusetts was Don Juan Temple, who in 1844 began building the picturesque Casa del Rancho Cerritos.

The adobe, at 4600 Virginia Rd., is now part of the Long Beach Public Library.

AND DON JUAN couldn't be happier with its caretaker.

He's "Don Ramon" Langley who, like Don Juan, was born near Boston.

Before taking on duties as "major-domo" of the hacienda, he was plain Ray Langley, retired U. S. Navy chief petty officer. He has been a city employe for 10 years.

Plan a Day for the Children

IT was THAT day at our house! That day being what is known in the family as "Kids' Day." This unique day coming once a year was instituted by our eldest son three years ago. It is planned entirely by the children and even the destination is kept secret.

However, we insist on three rules regarding the day. First, the drive must not exceed four hours driving time, second, the expense must be kept within reason, and third, we must be notified in advance of the day chosen.

The previous evening had been spent at the desk pouring over maps, with much secret whispering, interjected with not so secret arguments, by our two sons, Jim, 13, and Ricky, 9. Terri, our precious 4-year-old crawled happily in and out under the desk, enjoying their excitement but due to her inability to keep a secret, not let in on the actual planning.

THE DAY BEGAN at 5 a.m. After much prodding on the part of the boys, aided and abetted by "Little Miss Echo," we were finally on our way by 8 a.m.

Now the actual destination was revealed to us. Desert Hot Springs, by way of Palm Springs. Jim had heard of a new public pool, with hot mineral baths, too.

My husband and I exchanged relieved glances. This didn't sound as strenuous as last year when father sprained his ankle trying to keep up with the boys on a long hike.

THE TRIP ITSELF was uneventful. The only argument being where to stop for refreshments. Jim felt that he should choose out of respect for his senior years, Rickey felt he should choose out of respect for his stomach. Terri didn't care either way as long as she could have some pop. Meanwhile, we "silent ones" our throats parched, watched several likely looking places retreat into the distance until a compromise was finally reached. As thirsty parents, we had a little more understanding for the frustration of children constantly overruled.

Palm Springs was rather disappointing to the boys. They had expected to see movie stars lounging on every corner. After a brief glance-over, we were on our way to the new pool at Desert Hot Springs.

THIS POOL, or rather these pools for there were two, were, in the estimation of the boys, well worth the trip! The one for swimming, we found cool and refreshing. The hot mineral pool was inclosed by glass windows and kept at 104 degrees. It was strictly for soaking. We were told that this mineral water comes in at about 154 degrees and must be cooled to the desired temperature.

After the children swam to their hearts content, we found a playground where they played happily while we fixed the supper snack. We ate with the warm desert breeze blowing gently about us and left for home as the sun faded to a giant red ball and slowly eased itself out of sight behind the mountains.

We had to admit, we had enjoyed a wonderful time on this expedition planned by the "younger set."

Getting ready for the family's "Kids' Day" outing are Ricky, Jim and Terri Nelson. They chose destination.

Swimming in pool at Desert Hot Springs provided tops in entertainment for all members of the happy family.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Her Dolls Are Well-Hatted

By Vera Williams

HELEN BAUGH says her dolls are as well-hatted as Hedda Hopper."

And maybe they are. Dolls in her home, 3321 Walnut Ave., have a variety of hats—sports hats, street hats, dinner hats and wide-brimmed garden hats.

Mrs. Baugh, who is Mrs. Leo Baugh, makes them out of scraps of straw, felt, velvet, ribbon, and she trims them with shells, flowers, feathers, lace, veiling, rhinestone, pearls, or whatever else is at hand.

SHE RECENTLY provided 35 doll hats for a Burroughs School P.T.A. carnival, and already "without even trying" she has designed and made 50 more.

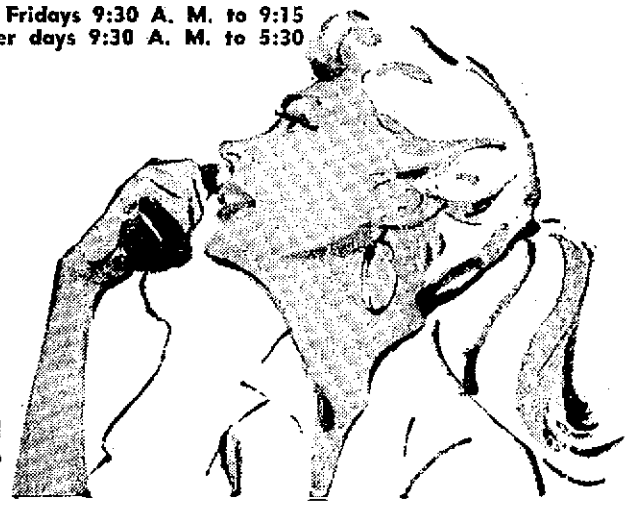

"I find myself looking in the windows of millinery stores to see new styles, and then I go home and make them for the dolls," she says.

Gay bonnet adorning this doll is part of collection made by Mrs. Leo Baugh of Long Beach, pictured here.

tors, and a general manager. Then comes a pageant producer, who is Clarence Upson Young (for the fourth year); three directors, one for each program, John Callan, Lyle Robertson and George Pletts. Each of these directors has a sub-director. There are three wardrobe directors, with assistants for making costumes; a make-up department with chairman and assistants for each program; a wig department director with assistants; three narrators, one for each program, Brainerd Duffield, David Iredell and Russ Potter, the latter serving for the ninth consecutive year. Instead of having a piano, as in 1934, today's pictures are backgrounded by a professional orchestra of 19 members, with Del Castillo as conductor. Altogether more than 200 men, women and juveniles are required for presentation of the living picture program.

AMONG THE MANY new 1956 living reproductions of the Old Masters will be "Bacchus and Ariadne" by Titian, "Mystery of Life" by Gazzeri, "Hercules and Lica" by Canova, "September Morn" by Chabas, "Daring Researcher" by West, "Young Girls at the Piano" by Renoir, and the "Bullfighter" by Llopis. Each nightly program is climaxed with the reverent and traditional "Last Supper" by da Vinci.

But the living pictures aren't all that constitute the Festival of Arts. From its start as a back-fence art exhibition by local artists in 1932, the festival is now presented on a six-acre tract known as Irvine Bowl at the mouth of Laguna Canyon. Artists and craftsmen are given opportunity to exhibit their works in 200 booths erected each summer for that express purpose. The young fry are not overlooked either. To encourage art in the boys and girls of Orange County a large Junior Art Gallery is turned over to them in which paintings are hung. Age range is from kindergarten through senior high school.

Another, strictly a small-fry project, is titled the "Free-for-All" gallery. Here anytime during the afternoon, a youngster may don a smock, take up crayon or pencil, and under supervision of local artists, draw whatever suits his fancy. Then his finished product is hung on a clothesline for inspection by his contemporaries and the adult public. Visiting youngsters who don't care for flourishing a crayon, may take the calmer road and view a puppet show on the grounds each afternoon and evening.

THE LAGUNA BEACH Art Gallery has a prominent part in the annual festival. This year the gallery is sponsoring "The California Show," an invitational exhibition of contemporary painting by artists from all parts of the state.

Scores of ticket reservations for the pageant are received for the next year's show immediately upon closing of the current spectacle. First reservation for the 1957 Pageant of the Masters was received last May 23. There are patrons who time their reservations with the caprices of the moon. They won't come any night but full-moon night, for they claim, sitting in Irvine Bowl and viewing the moon come over the mountain is one of the greatest pictures of them all.

Occident to the Orient

NOWHERE, perhaps, can one make a quicker transition from the Occident to the Orient than in San Francisco, southern portal to the Redwood Empire.

From bustling Market St., one of the world's most modern thoroughfares, it is just a walk of a few minutes to the Street of Virtue and Harmony, or the Lane of Golden Chrysanthemums, in San Francisco's Chinatown.

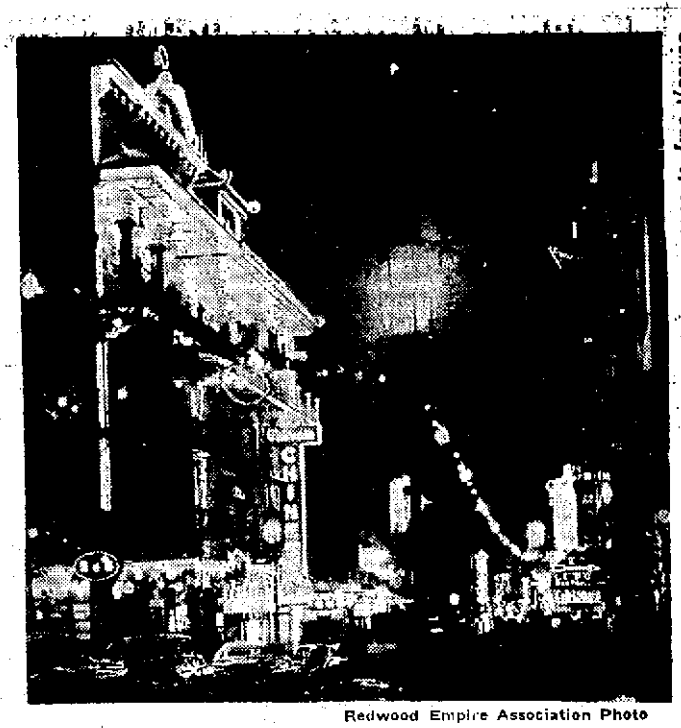

Although these poetic names do not appear on maps of the city by the Golden Gate, the venerables among Chinatown's more than 20,000 residents know Wentworth Pl. and Jason Court, respectively, by their names of yesteryear.

Many of the treasures of Old Cathay can be found in the quaint shops along Grant Ave., the main business street of San Francisco's most colorful segment and one of its main tourist attractions. Here, also, one may glimpse displays of foodstuffs which may appear bizarre to the Occidental eye, yet might well please his palate.

IN DRESS, the inhabitants of Chinatown reflect both the past and the present. Among the younger Chinese in modern clothes one may see, from time to time, oldsters, dressed in mandarin garb, padding silently along in felt slippers. Even the small fry are studies in contrast. One group may be wearing rich brocades, while another is sporting cowboy costumes.

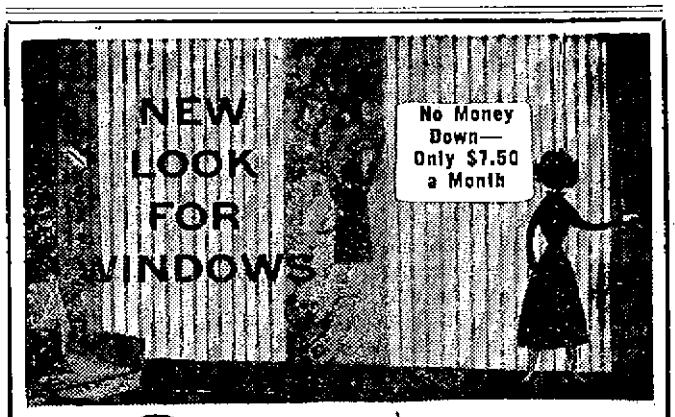

At night, Grant Ave. is a blaze of neon lights, with some of them etching Chinese characters. And sounds of modern jazz spill out in the street from night clubs. In the dimmer back streets, however, one may still hear the plaintive wail of ancient string instruments and sniff the odor of burning incense.

It's a 'Gossip Bench' Now

IT'S AN old-fashioned school desk, but Mrs. W. E. Beeler, 2706 E. 7th St., calls it a "gossip bench!"

It has a place of honor in her home; the seat, she says, is handy for long conversations, and the desk top is just right for the phone book.

Mrs. Beeler bought the desk for $3, and she spent another $2 refinishing it, and putting boards under the feet to hold it steady. She even kept the ink well to hold pencils.

THE DESK IS MAPLE, and she finds that it fits in well with her early American furniture.

I've had more pleasure from this desk and more comments than any other piece of furniture," says Mrs. Beeler, "and I won an award of merit from a magazine for my use of it."

Old desk has been converted to serve in L. B. home as "gossip bench."

A New Don Rules the Hacienda

have chosen a prettier place for his home," Langley says. "The house is above the fog level and in the summer, a cooling ocean breeze makes it pleasant. The walls are so thick that we're warm in the coldest winter weather."

HE AND HIS WIFE, Jean, and their 11-year-old daughter, Veda, live in the north wing of the colorful house.

They occupy four rooms in what was the kitchen wing during the days when Don Juan and his happy companeros staged fiestas in the patio.

Don Juan at one time relaxed in its cool patio with the thought of his 10,000 cattle, 8,000 sheep and 300 horses grazing on his surrounding 27,000 acres which were to become Long Beach.

"Don Ramon" is content with a car—and the thought that he is paid to live in a neighborhood populated by Long Beach's millionaires.

HE VOLUNTEERED for the assignment when the restored ranch house was open to the public in April 1955. (It is open from 1 to 5 p. m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays).

"It's like living in the country," Langley says. "The flowers are in bloom now and practically every kind of California bird can be seen in the gardens."

Since taking the post, Langley is acquiring a new skill—a thorough knowledge of California history. He studies the books being added to the ranch house library and already is an expert on the construction and history of the building.

COOKING

How to Make Your Own Pickles

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

YOU DON'T need to live "down on the farm" to enjoy the taste thrills of home-made pickles.

In fact, you can live in an efficient apartment right in the heart of the city and still put up blue-ribbon pickles, relishes and spiced fruits.

Of course there is a secret, but it's one we'll gladly share. It's the quick pickling method which uses distilled white vinegar both as a flavoring and as a preservative.

THIS SHORT-CUT method does away with much that was tedious and time-consuming in traditional recipes. Instead, fresh vegetables and fruits are cleaned and cut; then, without brining they're popped into the preserving kettle, where they simmer in less liquid, for a shorter time, than pickles ever did before.

This is pickling streamlined for modern living!

It's important to start out with fresh, good quality fruits and vegetables. In addition, they must be thoroughly washed and free of blemishes. Fresh spices mean a lot; and equipment, like jars and lids, should be in tiptop shape.

Needless to say, there are pickles and there are pickles — and each to his own taste. Believing, however, that sweet mixed pickles are favorites with everyone, that recipe is featured today. Then, to give you a well rounded "stock pile" of these favorites, following are recipes for uncooked tomato relish, piccalilli, icicle pickles and for the watermelon pickle.

Uncooked Tomato Relish

To make three pints for keeping in refrigerator rather than canning:

12 to 14 medium tomatoes (2 quarts)
1 cup chopped celery
¾ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper

Sweet Mixed Pickle:

2 quarts cauliflower flowerets (2 medium heads)
2 medium green peppers, cut into ¼-inch strips
2 medium sweet red peppers, cut into ¼-inch strips
1½ pounds (9 medium) onions, peeled, quartered
2½ cups white vinegar
1½ cups water
1½ cups granulated sugar
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 tablespoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon turmeric

Wash cauliflower; break into small flowerets. Cook in small amount of unsalted boiling water 5 minutes. Drain. Wash and prepare remaining vegetables. Combine remaining ingredients; heat to boiling, covered. Add vegetables and boil, uncovered, 2 minutes. Quickly pack one, hot sterilized jar at a time, filing to ⅛ inch from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Seal each jar at once. Yields 5 to 6 pints.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH
DELAPLANE

"Are freighter trips to Europe comfortable and how do you get a price on them?"

SOME freighters are good and others are miserable. Your best bet on this is to book through a travel agent. They get the latest offerings from the freighter lines. And there is this problem: Ship reservations are so in demand that you have to start ordering a year or so in advance. A good freighter in the 12-passenger class can be a lot of fun.

"My husband and I are interested in music and particularly would like to go inexpensively to some place to hear the Calypso music . . ."

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, is your place. Though the time to go is Carnival, just before Lent when the calypso wars are on. Great music and a lot of fun. If you want off island stuff, you can fly to Tobago near by. And all the islands along here have some form of Calypso. Get in the front rows at the wars because the accent is very hard to understand.

The steel oil drum bands are interesting, too.

Get a Chippy's taxi in Port-of-Spain and have him drive you around the various guest houses. Less expensive than Queen's Park and you can get good rooms. The little oysters are a specialty in this country. Tavern-on-the-Green is one of the good restaurants for them. They make rum punch the traditional one-two-three way here too. Rum, lime and sugar.

"We planned to go to Australia for the Olympics but wonder about accommodations . . ."

The Australian government says there is going to be plenty of room. But friends of mine in Australia think they are going to be quite short. And they say Australia hotels are not what we call Class A and mostly not even Class B.

I'd get a travel agent right now and reserve some rooms.

Pan American flies this route and Qantas, the Australian line, has some excellent luxury flights out of the west coast. You ought to write Matson Navigation Co., San Francisco, too. They are putting on two luxury liners to Australia this fall. With stops at Tahiti and Fiji. This will open up Tahiti, which is a difficult and long transfer now by air.

"We read all the books on tipping in Europe and they said the 15 per cent on your hotel bill covered everything. But the help seemed disappointed when we left . . ."

I'LL BET they did. The American invasion has made it customary to add about 5 per cent more and split it around in small portions. Even the Europeans are getting caught in this squeeze. About 50 cents U. S. in francs or marks or whatever to the maid, the porter, the room waiter and the doorman. And a dollar to the concierge is about right. That's per person for a stay of say three days.

Spanish Course

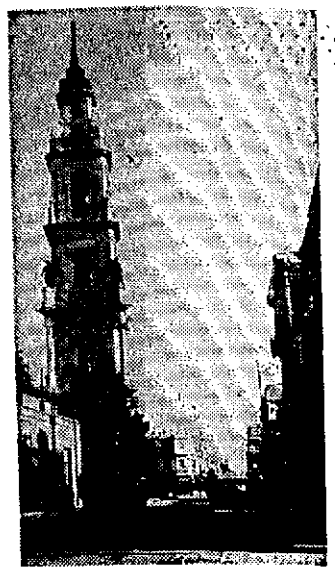

Thousands of visitors to Mexico will extract additional pleasure from their trips this year thanks to a unique arrangement that will provide them with a working knowledge of Spanish in advance of their departure from home.

This will be made possibly by a free gift in the form of a complete home-study course in conversational Spanish (the Mexican way). Known as the "two-week" method, the course comprises a 60-page instruction album and four extended-play phonograph records.

Sponsor of the unusual bonus is Mexico Travel Advisors, prominent tour operator which handles Mexican travel arrangements for thousands of travel agents in the U. S. and Canada. The offer is being made available exclusively through travel agents, with one complete course presented gratis with each Mexican tour booking.

James Dubin, president of Mexico Travel Advisors, explained that "as tourist interest has grown in romantic Mexico, more and more Americans and Canadians want to talk a little Spanish—just enough to get by—ordering meals and drinks, shopping and getting closer to the people. It isn't absolutely necessary, of course, since our staff takes care of visitors' daily requirements, but there's no doubt additional enjoyment accompanies a little knowledge of Spanish."

Mexico Travel Advisors has been serving North American visitors for the past 22 years, having handled over 400,000 visitors during that period in cooperation with U. S. and Canadian travel agents. The Spanish course, endorsed by the Mexican government, has been condensed by the Mexican Spanish Academy. Normally it retails for $9.95.

Trip Around the World . . . for You

RESORTS AND TRAVEL

NELLIE BLY never had it so good!

The average wage-earner who saves up $1,500 for a vacation can make the dream trip around the world at today's low air tourist fares and the speed with which air travel makes the entire globe one quick hop-and-jump. And it can be done on credit, too.

This is according to Trans World Airlines which released a few statistics recently on the market for round-the-world travel. TWA is seeking to provide a second United States flag-carrier round-the-world service by extending its route beyond India and Ceylon to Bangkok and Manila, to connect there with Northwest Airlines for the trans-Pacific portion of the trip. The Civil Aeronautics Board examiner in the case has already approved the route.

"A trip around the world has always had a tremendous appeal for anyone interested in travel and is the ultimate goal of all tourists," TWA pointed out, "but this goal has previously been unattainable for all but a very select few."

Today, TWA continued, "low air tourist fares and the speed of air transportation have put this goal within the reach of millions of individuals."

By 1960, TWA predicts, more than 30,000 persons a year will travel around-the-world, citing the fact that the growth of this global traffic in recent years has been "truly phenomenal." Round-the-world air traffic in September 1955, on United States flag-carriers alone, totaled more than 12,500 passengers, an increase of 2,374 per cent over the figure for September 1948.

At today's air tourist fares one can travel around the world for $1,347.90 plus $22.40 federal transportation tax on the Honolulu-New York portion, spending as much or as little time as desired in stopovers in many countries.

The extent of the market for this type of pleasure travel is indicated, TWA said, by the fact that in 1953 approximately 3,800,000 families in the United States had annual incomes of more than $10,000.

PERMA-DRAPE DRAPERIES
1740 ATLANTIC AVE., LONG BEACH Ph. HE 5-5114

By Eileen Ball

THE HOME of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Spring is a vital, personality-packed dwelling that, in the strictest sense of the word, has grown with their family.

Nine years ago the Springs bought a charming two-story, Cape Cod-style house at 3860 Country Club Dr. It sat upon a rolling lawn and was hugged by trees that sprinkled the flower gardens with dappled shade.

Almost immediately the changes began. The attached garage (facing the front of the lot) was converted to a den. This area adjoins the kitchen. On the other side of the kitchen, to the rear, was added maid's quarters and a garage accessible from the back of the property.

And so it was, a comfortable, spacious family home which enjoyed its additions that blended so harmoniously with the original structure that it seemed all to have been built at one time.

LAST YEAR, an addition was built on the other side of the house, including among other luxury features the most "ultra" of all modern innovations—an indoor swimming pool!

At this point, Mr. and Mrs. Spring, their son Paul and daughter Donna Lee are enjoying a home that has virtually everything, a pool, patio, rumpus room-and-kitchen combination, den, three bedrooms, a formal living room and separate dining room.

The entry hall, from which rises a handsome staircase, sets the mood for the living room to the right. In the entry, pink-beige carpet blends softly with scenic wallpaper and dark woods. A console table holding an antique marble figure of a child is the first display of the collection enjoyed by the Springs, that of acquiring small figures of children as rendered in the limited media of marble, porcelains and cast metals.

OFF THE ENTRY to the left is a small powder room with pink and white wallpaper and turquoise blue fixtures.

The living room is carpeted in the same dusky pink and has soft blue-green walls. There the mood is distinctly of the 18th century, with typical curved and delicately carved furniture legs, lustrous satin upholstery and formal fireplace. Dominating the room is an elegant parlor grand piano.

At one end of the room are French doors opening to the terrace and patio. The doors are flanked on either side by lighted, glass-doored display cabinets. On one side is displayed Mrs. Spring's doll collection while the right hand cabinet houses a fine collection of colored antique glass and china that sparkles brilliantly under the lights.

Blue-green louvered doors open to the formal dining room which, like the living room, boasts doors that adjoin the patio.

THE DINING ROOM is papered in soft grey with clusters of yellow roses. Draperies and upholstery for the Chippendale dining chairs are antique gold silk satin.

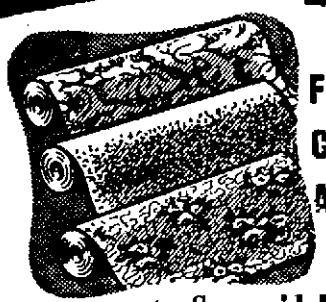

The kitchen has an unusual and enticingly feminine color scheme. White tile surmounts cabinets painted the same greyed French blue as the range. Charcoal grey linoleum bordered with white carries out the grey that is contrasted with white and pink ruffled curtains and—a pale pink refrigerator! In the adjoining service area are washer and dryer in the same shell pink tone.

The converted den is a friendly room with a handsome decorative flair. The mood here is French provincial, with blue-green beamed ceiling, tan and aqua provincial figured paper, bay window displaying items of colored glass and floor covering of random-color carpet.

THE DEN HAS a provincial sofa that unfolds into a bed, a large leather chair, desk and television set. And, just because the Springs enjoy breakfasting with a view, they have moved their attractive oval provincial table and chairs before the bay window that overlooks the front garden and the street.

The new wing of the house, located on the south, is accessible from the living room via French doors that open to the new rumpus room. This large area has a floor of cork cut in plank-size strips and "pegged" with deep brown circles. The floor has the richness of plank with the wonderful sound-muffling qualities of cork

Defining the conversational area before the used-brick fireplace is an oval rug of multi-colored wool braids. A pair of green tweed love seats face each other before the fireplace across a low, maple coffee table.

THE SCHEME FOR the rumpus room is, of course, early American. A round, pine game table doubles handily as still another dining table. It has an assembly of comfortable captains chairs and is within short serving distance of the ingenious kitchenette which, despite its compact dimensions, is every bit as functional as the main kitchen.

Fir cabinets with provincial finish are topped with unglazed terra cotta tile. Pull-down electric cooking units are the latest thing in cooking appliances. (When not in use, the individual units snap up against the wall and out of the way). With similar modern foresight, the Springs built into a cabinet a small and wonderfully compact refrigerator.

A service bar from the kitchen to the rumpus room may be closed off with folding shutters topping a storage cabinet for dishes.

Aged fir vertical paneling and heavy beams keynote both the rumpus room and the adjoining pool room. The latter completely encloses a contoured swimming pool with overall dimensions of about 15x30 feet.

HUGE BEAMS SPAN the ceiling over the pool while around it is a deck of pinkish-toned cement. Handsome rattan and wicker furniture with turquoise and watermelon pads furnish the area. Huge potted tropical plants add touches of greenery.

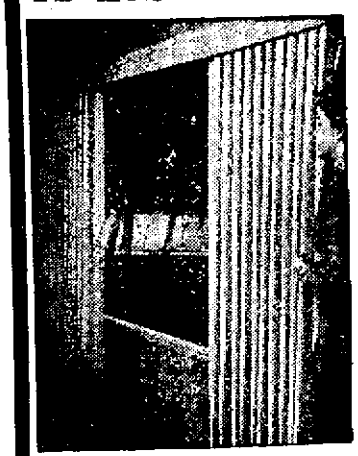

Sliding walls of glass open both to the rear garden and to the bricked patio that nestles into a "U" provided by the house and pool room.

Two dressing rooms and a bath open directly off the pool saving damp-footed wear and tear on the house.

Childrens' bedrooms each enjoy a view of the back yard from their second-story vantage point. The master bedroom is a large room, has views of both front and rear gardens and enjoys its own attached bathroom.

Kelly rejected make-up; said he was no "sissy." Hope pointed to own make-up. Said Kelly: "But you make more money."

Tony, older and more mature, offered no protest as make-up man, Joe Stinton, got him ready for camera action.

HOLLYWOOD

There're Really Lots of Hopes!

Bob Hope hoped it would be a gag when he cast his youngest son, Kelly, 9, in Paramount's "That Certain Feeling," VistaVision and Technicolor feature, but he forgot there were lots of Hopes with movie-role hopes. A week later, Bob, hoping to keep peace in the family, was forced to find parts for his other three youngsters, Linda, 16; Tony, 15, and Nora, 9. "I had to do it," Hope moans. "Otherwise, there would have been a mutiny in the Hope home. I never received so many dirty looks since the time I showed up at Crosby's for dinner." The oldest children, Linda and Tony, are seen stuffing envelopes in an engraving plant sequence with their father. Kelly, who has several lines and the "fattest part of the bunch, plays "Billy," and worked in a scene with Hope and seven-year-old Jerry Mathers, one of the top featured performers. Nora appears in a children's playground sequence with Hope and Mathers. The four children do not work together at any time. Here are some scenes around the set.

Pretty Linda Hope posed with her dad between scenes. Eva Marie Saint and George Sanders are costars with Bob.

Only member of the family not cast in the film is Dolores Hope who visited her husband, children on set. Nora, second from left, also has a part.

SUGAR BEETS ARE A BIG BUSINESS

in Huntington Beach, and in 1912 by two, one in Anaheim and the other on Dyer Road, south of Santa Ana.

Lacy says that in those days three-fourths of all the land in this area available and suitable for beet growing was planted to the crop.

Failure of many farmers to follow sound crop-rotation programs, however, started a decline in yields and sugar content of the beets which reached serious proportions by 1917 and 1918.

Adding to the trouble were pests and diseases later to be subdued by American scientists but raging unchecked in the period immediately after the end of World War I.

And in the course of years, not just sugar beets but all crops gradually had to make way for people.

SO, ONE BY ONE, the sugar factories were closed down, until now there remains only the Holly plant on Dyer road, one of 11 operated in the state by that company, Spreckels, Union and American Crystal.

Lacy thinks that continuing demand for housing will leave no room for any large increases in beet acreages within the county but some expansion probably will occur.

In this area, machines do just about 100 per cent of the tedious, time-consuming chores done by hand only a few years ago.

Today one man operating a mechanical thinner will cover at least 15 acres per day, at a cost of about $5 an acre. Formerly a ten-man crew using short-handled hoes did well to cover five acres a day—and the cost to the farmer was upwards of $20.

Come harvest time, four men operating a mechanical harvester will easily handle seven acres a day, considered a real achievement by the 24-man teams that used to do the job by hand.

WITH SUCH machines, with scientific advancements in seed varieties and pest control, and with their own improvements in farming methods, California beet growers now are among the leading sugar producers in the world.

Their crops, turned into sugar at one of our 11 factories, last year produced nearly one-third of all the beet sugar consumed in the nation.

"Somehow," says Lacy, "many people seem to think of sugar production in terms of stalks of cane growing on tropical islands.

"Actually, our beet growers produce more sugar per acre, at far fewer man-hours per day, than do the farmers of such 'sugar islands' as Cuba. And for decades beet sugar has been THE sugar for the chefs of France and other European countries."

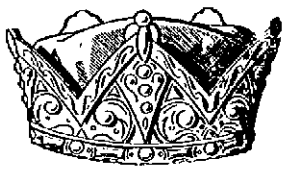

THERE ARE ALSO some people, Lacy added, who have the mistaken notion that there is a difference between beet and cane.

As the U. S. Department of Agriculture always points out in its sugar pamphlets, Lacy noted, the two are identical in every respect.

"Sugar is a chemical," Lacy said, "and it is precisely the same chemical no matter what the source—whether you get it from the toddy palm tree (as they do in Burma), from a grape, from cane or from the sugar beet."

And so, far from the tropics, the local industry is well on the way toward a 1956 production of sufficient quantities of the finest sugar money can buy to meet the needs not only of every resident of Orange County but another quarter of a million persons besides.

Star skaters by the dozens are active in Long Beach. Above, Jean McCollum and Paul Parke, outstanding roller couple, execute a graceful pairs spin.

We're a Bunch of Good Skates!

By Dick Zehms

WHY BE MODEST about it? We're a bunch of good skates in this town. Roller skaters, that is. Much, much more than you realize, too.

Know you that Long Beach has the largest representation of national roller skating champions of any city from border to border and coast to coast?

Ten call the Hippodrome Club their alma mater. Six compete in the name of the Palace Club.

KNOW YOU THAT this local society of roller princes and princesses is rapidly on the increase. The title fever has caught our youngsters. They all aspire to competitive perfection in this fascinating sport.

It wasn't always thus. Today rink operators estimate there are 20 million roller skaters in the land, nearly 30 per cent of whom are intent upon achieving laurels in competition sponsored and supervised by the RSROA, the Roller Skating Rink Operators Assn. of America. This group supervises state, regional and national meets. The clubs confine their competition authority to strictly local activities—shows and meets.

THE LOCAL ROLLER skating set has been reluctant to shout about its national and regional achievements, although proud as a peacock of the conquests. You have to ferret out the facts.

Take the Skating Palace representation. Its club numbers around 125 members, ranging in ages from 5 years to the social security mark. Its national champions are Christy Cowdery, Tina S. Seabern, Doug R. Eley and Jerry E. Tangen, junior fours, and Judith Ann Nance and Richard (Ricky) Mullican, junior pairs.

Over at Hippodrome, where the club membership is virtually the same in numbers and age brackets, they point with pride to Gerry Daniels, Mickey Dupuy, Davis Macomber and Jack Maguire, novice fours; Pat Pennington, intermediate and senior fours; Mike Glatz, intermediate fours, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hammond, novice and intermediate dance champions, all national in scope.

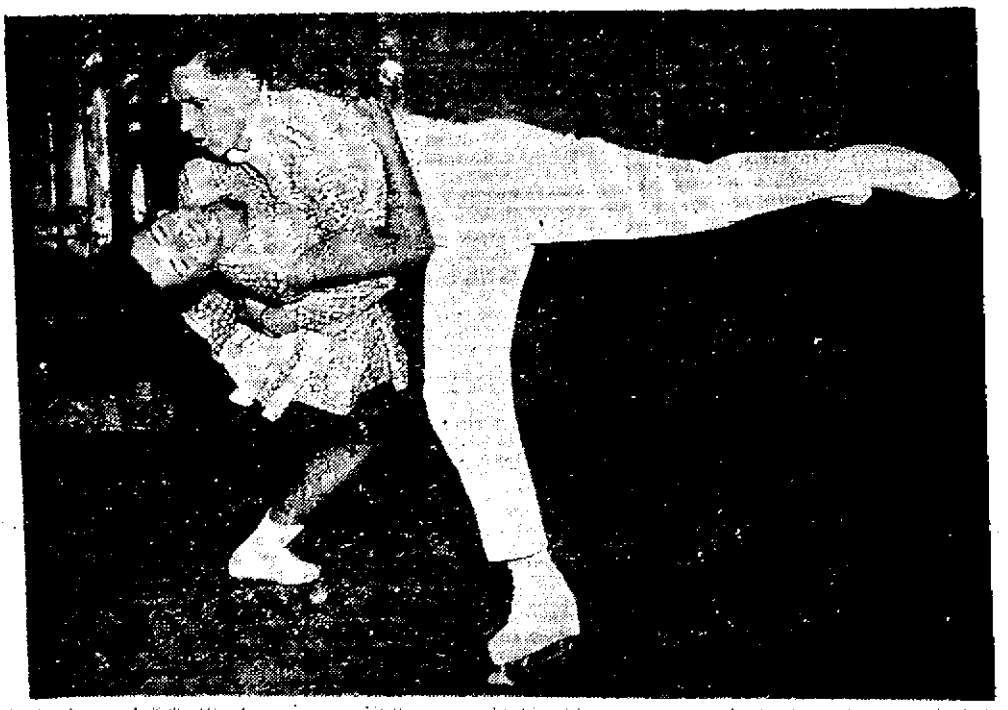

DON BROMLEY, manager of the Hippodrome, and Francis E. Baker, owner of the Palace, agree in the belief that Long Beach's strongest titular bids at San Pablo will be made by the national champions, more specifically by Mullican and Miss Nance and by the dance duo of George and Helene Hammond.

They also ascribe to the belief that competitive roller skating is on the upswing throughout the country, and chiefly in the Long Beach area by reason of the introduction of professional instructors to the local scene.

"Five years ago maybe we had 20 contestants in a regional meet from here," said Bromley. "Now look at the total—more than 70. The increase has mushroomed within the last three or four years. Youngsters will always be fond of roller skating. But now they have more incentive—competition.

"INTRODUCTION OF professional instructors at the two local rinks is another stimulant. A few years ago there was nobody around to help a youngster if her or she wanted to polish up for competition. Now there are six—Mr. and Mrs. Milton May at the Palace and Ray Hough, Marilynne Cormley, Shirley Bromley and myself at the Hippodrome.

"WE CAN'T DO some of the things the ice skaters do on their blades, nor can they do some of the things we do. Our championship meets and shows, however, are just as colorful and entertaining as the best ice revue you will ever see. Roller skating popularity is in an upswing. The competition is as hot on the rinks for titles as it is on the ball fields."

Smooth routines on roller skates produced a national junior pairs title for Judith Ann Nance and Richard Mullican, shown in warmup stunt above.

"Sandwich lift" (above), novel stunt by Gerry Daniels, Mickey Dupuy, Davis Macomber and Jack Maguire. Yes, 2 girls are being held aloft... count the blonde heads.

Kathy Kinton, 6, comes out of a spin. She is a competent young skater.

MAKE PICKLES

2 teaspoons salt
3 teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon mustard seed
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon or half as much allspice
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup vinegar

Peel tomatoes. Combine all ingredients and blend. Will keep well under refrigeration in covered container for 2 or 3 weeks.

Piccalilli

6 pounds (22 medium) green tomatoes, quartered
¾ pound (1 pint) small onions
6 green peppers, quartered lengthwise
6 sweet red peppers, quartered
1½ quarts distilled white vinegar
3½ cups sugar
¼ cup salt
1½ teaspoons ground allspice
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
3 to 4 teaspoons celery seed
⅛ to ½ cup mustard seed

Wash vegetables; put through food grinder, using medium blade; drain, discarding liquid. Turn vegetables into large kettle; add 1 quart vinegar. Boil 30 minutes, stirring often. Drain vegetables, discarding liquid. Return vegetables to kettle. Add 1 pint vinegar, sugar, salt and spices. Simmer 3 minutes. Continue simmering while quickly packing one hot, sterilized jar at a time. Fill to ⅛ inch from top. Seal each jar at once. Makes 6 to 7 pints.

Icicle Pickles

3 pounds 4-inch cucumbers, cut into eighths lengthwise
6 small onions, quartered
6 5-inch pieces celery
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 quart distilled white vinegar
¼ cup salt
2½ cups sugar
1 cup water

Wash, cut cucumbers; soak in ice water 3 hours. Drain; pack in clean pint jars. Add 1 onion, 1 piece celery and ½ teaspoon mustard seed to each jar. Combine vinegar, salt, sugar and water; bring to boil. Pour solution over cucumbers, filling jar to ½ inch from top. Immediately adjust covers as jar manufacturer directs. Set jars on wire rack in covered, deep kettle with boiling water to cover tops of jars 1 inch. Process (boil) 10 minutes, counting time from moment active boiling resumes. Remove, adjust seal as manufacturer directs. Makes 6 pints.

Pickled Watermelon Rind

3 pounds prepared watermelon rind
2 pounds granulated sugar
2 cups white vinegar
6 3-inch cinnamon sticks
2 tablespoons whole allspice
2 tablespoons whole cloves

Use rind from firm, not overripe, watermelon. Trim outer green skin and pink flesh (allowing a very thin line of pink to show). Cut into 1½"x3¼" pieces.

Soak overnight in salt water (3 tablespoons salt per 1 quart water); drain. Cover with fresh water and cook until tender; drain. Heat sugar and vinegar to boiling. Add spices, tied in cheesecloth bag. Add rind. Cook, uncovered, until transparent, about 45 minutes. Remove spice bag. Simmer while quickly packing one hot, sterilized jar at a time. Fill to ⅛ inch from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers rind. Seal each jar at once. Makes 3 pints.

Kitchen Tip:

Mark fruit jars with wax crayons while the jars are hot. The words "flow on" and stay put when the jars are cold.

Lincoln's Web-Feet

PRESIDENT LINCOLN paid a great tribute to the Federal Navy when he wrote: "Nor must Uncle Sam's web-feet be forgotten. At all the watery margins they have been present. Not only on the deep sea, the broad bay and the rapid river, but also up the narrow muddy bayou, and wherever the ground was a little damp."

In "Mr. Lincoln's Admirals" by Clarence Edward Macartney (Funk & Wagnalls, $5) the author also pays tribute to a service which was little noted during the Civil War. Perhaps the reason for this was that there was little change in the policy of the Federal naval command; they started out to do a job—mostly of blockading—and they did it with little or no shaking up of commanders. There was no scandal attached to the Federal fighting ships, and so they sailed and chugged through the war with few to chronicle what was a time of great expansion and excitement in naval warfare.

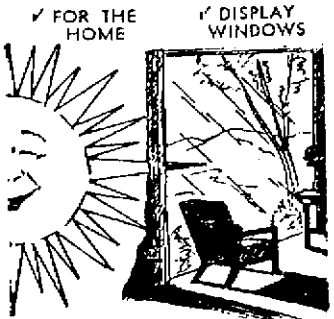

There were only 90 fighting ships in 1861, and in 1865 there were 670, many of them armed with rifled cannon, and many shod with iron over wood, or built from the keels up of metal. The one great loss for the Federal naval cause was the taking of the Norfolk Navy Yard, at the start of the war. This was an outrageous blunder by its commander, Commodore McCauley, but soon efficient and skilled men were in command. There is no lack of color and excitement in this good account of fighting men and ships, and the reader will find it has the pace of a good novel.— G. L.

BEST BY FAR of the books about travel in this corner of the United States is written by Kent Ruth, an Oklahoman, who has roamed the country west of the Mississippi for 17 years. That's because "How to Enjoy Western Vacations" (University of Oklahoma Press, $4.95) not only accurately reports on what-to-see and what-to-do attractions, but accomplishes beautifully what Kent says he attempted—to give some indication in depth of the nature of the vacationland itself. Moreover, the book tells the vacationist what he may expect in the way of lodging and eating

Put Your Family in the Movies

This picture had to be snapped at a time when their hands were still—a movie would tell the whole story.

By the Shutterbug

EVERY FAMILY not only needs its own cinematographer, but every member of the family ought to be one. It is an impressive title, but really just means one who takes pictures with a movie camera.

There's no better way to keep a record of family life than in full color home movies that reproduce all of the brilliance and motion of the activity or scene that caused you to want to take pictures.

WE'RE ESPECIALLY excited about home movie-making for all members of the family since we heard about a new camera that came on the market just a few weeks ago. It's the movie version of the familiar fixed focus or box still camera (except that it has a better lens) and it is priced at under $30. Not much under, just a little. Made by a well-known manufacturer, it's practically foolproof, it's so easy to use.

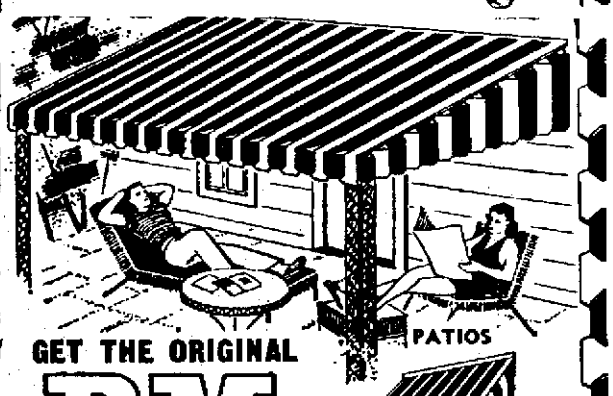

WITH THIS CAMERA you make one simple setting of the lens, wind the motor, and shoot. And, there's a guide on the front to tell you which setting to use, according to the way the weather is.

Birthdays, weddings, graduations, holidays, and all the little every day things that are the material from which happy memories are made — will be kept fresh, colorful, and full of action in your movie films.

HOW TO Make Decorative Kitchen Storage Items of Easy-to-Use Plywood

1. SPICE RACK of ¼-inch striated plywood adds a note of novelty to the kitchen. Bottom shelf is slightly larger than the top for bigger jars and rectangular containers. Saw out each part and assemble with glue and brads, countersinking them and filling the holes. Where the edges of plywood show, cut matching striations with a wood rasp. Bottoms of the shelves should be cut from smooth-surface plywood for easier cleaning. Stain or varnish.

2. DRAWINGS SHOW construction of a pot-lid holder. The holder can be any length—this one's 16 inches—to fit available space. Handles of lids rest in notches cut in plywood pieces, which project at 20-degree angles from the back. Reinforce these joints with wedges glued and bradded between back and holders, as shown on the drawing. Small cup hook or metal pins provide handy hot-dish holders. Use ¼-inch plywood for entire piece, with exception of solid wood for wedges.

Little 'Wigglenose' Can Be Trained

Resting contentedly on Craig Mathison's lap are his pets, Happy, a Dutch rabbit; Gwendolyn, Siamese cat.

By Eleanor Avery Price

THERE HAS BEEN an increased interest in rabbits as pets that can be trained since, three years ago, "Buck" Bunny, a finance company's wiggle-nosed performer, was first seen swiftly picking up silver dollars and neatly depositing them in a top replica of the firm's building in Los Angeles.

Many TV viewers were hard to convince and "Buck" Bunny's sponsors have been deluged with letters, many alleging that the performer is a mechanical rabbit.

"Buck" Bunny is a live, red-blooded rabbit, the original property of Keller Breland of Hot Springs, Ark., a man with a national reputation as an animal psychologist specializing in making trained barnyard animals and fowl do amazing tricks.

BRELAND'S TRAINING formula is simple and one that anyone can follow who has a rabbit to train. When "Buck" did his work well, he was rewarded with food. When he didn't, his mistakes went unnoticed. He never was punished. "Buck" hung his head in shame when he flubbed, proof that a rabbit is sensitive and eager to please.

Craig Mathison, 6-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Mathison, 119 Syracuse Walk, pictured with this article, has been instructed to train his Siamese cat, Gwendolyn, and his Dutch rabbit, Happy, with kindness. Of course, his parents help him.

Happy was given to Craig when the boy was 3 years old. It seems Gwendolyn was lonesome. True, she had Craig for a friend and owner, but even a prize-ribbon Siamese cat likes a bedfellow and someone to romp with when her owner is away. When Craig acquired the rabbit, Gwendolyn ceased to be lonely.

THE RABBIT was very eager to share the cat's sleeping quarters and he matter-of-factly accepted her sand box to which he was housebroken almost immediately. He also liked to sleep in Craig's bed, but that came to an end when he developed a taste for Craig's blankets.

Happy likes attention and he has learned a few tricks. He sits up and begs for his food, and he scratches at the door if he finds it shut between him and the sand box.

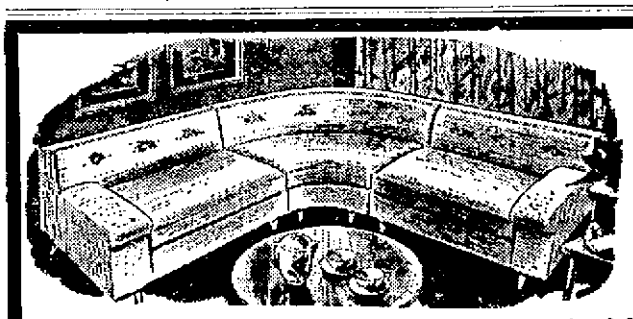

There is only one thing that Happy does that annoys Gwendolyn. The rabbit will start playing with the cat when she is napping. When he gets her up to romp with him, he promptly steals the spot she has warmed.

THERE ARE MANY varieties of rabbits of various sizes that make interesting pets. Lately the smaller breeds have taken a lead in popularity. Craig's Dutch rabbit is one of the smallest in existence, the adult weighing between four and five pounds. The Dutch is well-rounded, cobby, and sleek, with small ears.

IF YOU WANT to enter the 1956 dog photo contest sponsored by Gaines Dog Research Center, 250 Park Ave., New York 17, N. Y., send a card immediately to Gaines for official facts and rules, then get busy with that camera this summer. Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Friday, Sept. 7. First prize is $500.

Annuals Yield Exciting Results

By Bob Gilmore

Centaureas are among annuals that are easy to germinate and develop rapidly from seed in Long Beach area.

THIS IS AN excellent time for sowing seed of annuals. These plants will provide a lot of excitement in your garden. Packets containing mixed colors will prove especially desirable if you want a new adventure in gardening. They usually produce one or more colors that you have never seen before.

When you plant a rose, a hibbertia or a jasmine, for example, you know in advance exactly what the mature plant and flowers will look like. But when you sow a packet of mixed zinnias there is an excellent chance you'll see something new and different. Some packets, for example, contain as many as 50 separate varieties.

Annuals are plants that complete their life cycle in one season. This means their growth is swift and you will have flowers in a hurry. Some annuals, such as alyssum and Virginia stocks, for example, seem to pop into bloom almost over night; even zinnias may flower 40 days after seeding. Others, such as petunias take slightly longer.

BE SURE YOU obtain seed of high viability. Flower seeds, like all other seeds, lose their germinative power over a period of years. Oddly enough, in a certain year, however, the germination could rise over the previous year. The best storage conditions are accompanied by low temperature and humidity.

Annual seeds germinate rapidly although different varieties have their own peculiar growing habits. Generally speaking, you can sow seed at a depth of roughly three times its diameter. Large seeds, such as sweet peas, calendulas, and zinnias can be planted now in the outdoor garden. But smaller seeds like begonias and petunias are best planted in seed flats or pots, later transferring them to the open garden. These tiny seeds should simply be pressed into the soil.

ONE OF THE BEST mediums for starting annuals indoors is a regulation nursery flat. This is made of wood, measures about 18 inches by 18 inches and is just a few inches high. A good starting soil for use in a nursery flat should contain a mixture of one part No. 2 sand and one part peat. This mix is loose, porous and easy to obtain.

Annuals that can be seeded now include amaranthus, alyssum, bachelor button, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, centaurea, cosmos, gypsophila, marigold, nasturtium, nicotiana, phlox, stock, sweet peas, verbena and zinnias.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Azaleas and rhododendrons, even after their flowering season, require shade and an acid soil. Their roots should be kept fairly wet but not soggy. A mulch on the surface of peat or leaf mold will prove beneficial.

Chrysanthemum plants may be set out now in the open garden. Young plants made from cuttings taken last March will produce better results than old divisions. They are available at all leading garden supply stores.

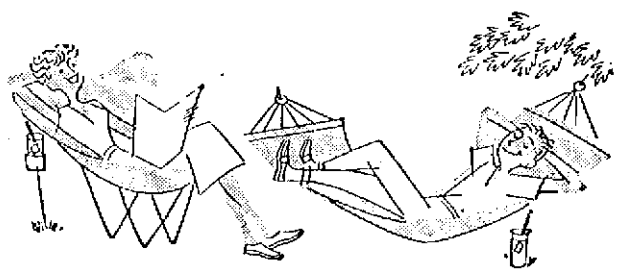

Carnations can also be started at this time. An open, porous soil is advisable. Pinch back the tip of the leader stem to encourage a bushier growth and to delay flowering until the roots are well established.

Chewers are here in force. The Twelve-Spotted Beetle (Diabrotica) that flies about and feeds on roses, chrysanthemums and dahlias; the host of caterpillars and worms that chew both leaves and flowers.

Your "best bet" to fight them is to buy a summer spray that will do double duty . . . kill these chewers and eliminate the sucking insects such as thrips and aphis in the same operation. Life doesn't stand still anywhere and the protection of your garden must adjust to meet emergencies. Right now your battle to defend your shrubs and flowers against insect life is at its peak. So the spray material you use must be ruthless in its ability to kill the widest number of species of destructive insects without doing harm to your plants.

Don't spray too often. Therefore, you should double the death-dealing quality in the sprays you use through July and August in order to get both the suckers and the chewers in the fewest number of sprayings.

RELAXER'S PARADISE

What would a hammock and a campaign chair look like sitting out on a landing strip? But, nestled in the environment of lush foliage, flowering and green . . . here's the relaxer's paradise! Call on us for landscaping help, won't you?

Keep a Windowful of Violets

Simple rules of culture will keep African violets in top form, filling home window areas with extra charm.

By Reba Hines

ARE YOU WEARY of seeing your African Violets without blossoms, or just a mass of foliage, or with leaves drooping? Then, this is written for you.

Your window areas can easily become places of floral beauty for you and your family through proper culture of African violets.

Saintpaulia species run into the hundreds. African violet culture has been one of my favorite hobbies for the past seven years, during this time, only one of my plants was diseased.

Here is my simple method. Bring out the full beauty of the plants by giving them early morning sunshine for about 30 minutes (there must be a little direct sunshine to help promote abundant and colorful blooms). Of course, there must be plenty of light at all times, but during summer months excessive light and heat will produce brown spots on leaves. This may be avoided by lowering window shades in warmest part of day.

I USE MY OWN soil mixture, one part garden loam, two parts, river bottom sand, washed and sifted; leaf mold and peat moss added until soil is friable.

Feed the plants every 10 days with a light application of liquid plant food, insert funnel between leaves down to the soil pour slowly keeping liquid off foliage. My violets bloom the year around with nine to 12 stems per plant, the stems average five to six inches in length, each one has 12 to 14 blossoms. Plants must be free of dust, dirt and insects, and must be dry cleaned occasionally. I use a small camel's hair brush, supporting each leaf individually, then brushing gently downward until clean.

Remove fading blossoms and leaves daily, turn plants twice a week, so illumination will be equal producing an even, upright plant.

PROPAGATING leaf cuttings is simple and easy. Spring and summer are the best months; select mature leaves with stems 1½ inches long and place the end of the damp stem in rooting medium, carefully remove excess rooting substance.

Have two-inch pots filled with above mentioned mixture, insert one or two leaf cuttings in each pot. Within five or six weeks plants will have formed and two or three tiny leaves will appear around the base of the mother leaf. This is time to transplant into a slightly larger pot, lifting out the entire plant carefully. Better root systems and stronger plants will result. Generally, within two months, first blooms will appear; then separate, dust roots with rooting medium, transplant to five-inch pots.

I FIND IT advisable to place a strip of aluminum foil two inches wide on border of pot, allow one inch inside container, press into place, or paint rim inside and out a few days before transplanting, both foil and paint protect foliage from edge, which absorbs acids in fertilizer often producing leaf decay.

Keep soil moist but good drainage is important. Layer of gravel or crushed unused pots should be spread on bottom of container. Transplanting provides gift plants for my neighbors, and for ill and bedridden persons.

Plants That Like Sea Breeze

By Walter Finch

LONG BEACH and its neighboring coastal cities are invaded almost daily by a wind, however slight, that moves in from the Pacific. Meteorologists refer to it as a "gentle breeze" which means its average speed ranges between eight and 12 miles per hour. The effect of this wind on plant life is probably greater than most home gardeners think.

Most gardeners assume that this wind must pack a great deal of moisture, but this is not quite true. The fact is that this "gentle breeze" tends to have a dry-out effect on most plants.

NEVERTHELESS, there are dozens of plants capable of tolerating the sea breeze.

Ivy geranium will prove excellent for use as a ground cover or for landscaping banks or hilly areas.

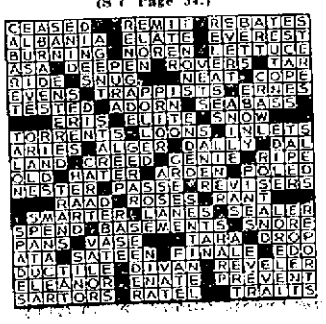

PITTOSPORUM TOBIRA, very popular throughout Southern California, has a remarkable tolerance for cool, salty winds.

Viburnum suspensum has received wide use in the Southland as a foundation plant.

THE NATAL PLUM, known to nurserymen as carissa grandiflora, is a natural for coastal plantings. The plants are at their best out in the sun. This ornamental may be grown anywhere in California from the ocean to the inland desert regions.

Other plants that will prove colorful, interesting and capable of tolerating the sea breeze include pyracantha crenato-serrata which produces crimson-toned berries in clusters as large as a dinner plate; star jasmine, a tough and hardy plant that is actually a perfume factory; camellias, English ivy, viburnum tinus, magnolia grandiflora, the familiar oak, white daphne, abelia, the "strawberry tree" known botanically as arbutus unedo, and juniperus sabina tamarix, which, like most of its relatives, also tolerates a dry, out-in-the-open exposure.

Reviews of Late Books

facilities and what he may reasonably expect to pay. If your vacation is still in the planning stage, by all means read this book—F. T. K.

THE CLASSIC of American mountaineering, "The Conquest of Mt. McKinley" (Houghton Miflin, $6) by Belmore Browne, has been reissued for the first time since its publication in 1913. Here was mountain climbing before modern equipment, oxygen, air lifts, etc., made it a profession, and the description of hardships endured in the frozen northern wilderness mark the author and his companions real adventurers. After Frederick Cook claimed to have reached the summit of the continent, it was Belmore Browne who proved Cook's claim fraudulent. It is a very interesting narrative of Alaska 40-some years ago.

MT. GODWIN AUSTEN, better known as K 2, the world's second highest mountain, has been considered by many mountaineers more deadly than Everest. Five serious attempts on its summit by various international groups ended in failure. In "Victory Over K 2" (McGraw-Hill, $5.75) Ardito Desio, leader of the successful Italian expedition, relates the never-ending struggle to survive and yet advance higher until at 6 p.m. July 31, 1954, two climbers reached the icy summit ridge.

This was an expedition designed to reach its objective, having financial independence and unlimited equipment. Some mountaineers have said in jest the Italians trussed up the icy giant with enough nylon rope until it resembled a Christmas turkey, but jesting aside, conquering a Himalayan peak of this caliber can only be accomplished by brave and determined mountaineers. A certain amount of "nationalism" seems to creep into the narrative reminiscent of some expeditions of the 1930s. The book is illustrated with photographs and maps.—R.G.

A SPLENDID contribution to western Americana, and for those who are building libraries about the Indian, is "The Fighting Cheyennes" (University of Oklahoma Press, $5). George Bird Grinnell, an old hand at spinning true tales of the redmen (this is his 13th book on the subject) gives an interesting and accurate account of the Cheyennes—most warlike plains tribe—which until 1856 was friendly with the whites but then turned to savagery and massacres that were unparalleled in the history of the west. Here is the whole true story of a remarkable tribe, written by a man who, as a naturalist, accompanied General Custer's expedition into the Black Hills in 1874.

NAOMI LANE BABSON'S "Another Sky" (Harcourt, Brace, $3.50) is the story of Annis, New England girl who followed her fiance to the Sandwich Islands in 1820.

Traveling with a group of dedicated missionaries, Annis found herself in a convention-bound world and the transgressions that got her into trouble seem mighty trivial by today's standards. But trouble it was until a handsome sea captain intervened and married the purty gal.

WITH MARGARET TRUMAN'S "Souvenir" (McGraw-Hill, $3.95) the events in the lives of President Harry's family are fairly well brought up to date. Unless, of course, Bess is getting the literary urge.

Margaret, aided by Margaret Cousins, tells of the thrills and chills that come to a young girl when she becomes a princess—the daughter of the president. Best anecdote: Saying goodbye to a swain on the White House porch, while a Secret Service man hovers over the couple.

PAPERBACK originals (never before printed in book form) that make good reading (all Dell First Editions, 25c): "Singapore Passage," an exciting voyage through the South China Seas, by Donald Barr Chidsey; "Be My Victim," violence and suspense in Florida, by Robert Dietrich; "Segundo," a western steeped in vengeance, by Frank O'Rourke.

Dinner, Yes—Lunch, No

THE LADIES — bless their curious little hearts — just can't get used to the idea that they're not invited for lunch at Ricarts Restaurant, 4363 Atlantic Ave.

From 11:30 a. m. to 2 p. m. daily Tuesdays through Fridays this elegant restaurant serves luncheon "for men only." Occasionally a few hungry feminine guests will try to get in, and they become slightly miffed when politely informed that the main dining room and adjacent Petroleum Club facilities are off limits for women during the luncheon hours.

As a result, scads of men eat lunch at Ricarts every day. They enjoy the "freedom" this policy gives them because it means they can be themselves, laugh loudly if they wish over a risque story, engage in serious business talk — and even put their elbows on the table.

ART MORGAN, owner of Ricarts, and Bob Bryan, recently promoted to manager, have devised a menu for these luncheons which is highly appreciated by all males. Served buffet style, the luncheon offers three entrees — choice round of beef, corned beef and smoked tavern ham — all priced at $1.50. The diners get their choice of a dozen cold salads, potato and another vegetable, choice of a wide variety of desserts and choice of beverage. Also available are beef, ham and corned beef sandwiches for 75 cents each.

The ladies know, of course, that they are extremely welcome at Ricarts at all other times. (They are allowed in during the Saturday luncheon period.) And you should see them dig into the restaurant's famed prime rib au jus dinner, served from a gleaming copper cart. They display equal enthusiasm for other Ricarts dinner specialties — such as sizzling grenadine of beef, whole baby lobster, glazed Long Island duckling, or chicken livers and mushrooms on toast.

The restaurant is open daily except Monday from 11:30 a. m. to 2 a. m., with Janet Henderson featured at the piano bar.

—TEDD THOMEY.

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

AT THIS YEAR'S "Blessing of the Animals" in New York's Greenwich Village, Miss Lee — still a pet lover — holds three of her Siamese cats while Father Anthony Philippe gives the blessing.

THE AUTHOR, aged 8 (l.) and her sister, June Havoc, 6, pose during their vaudeville days.

I'll always remember . . .

One day in Omaha

by GYPSY ROSE LEE

My sister June and I spent our childhood trouping in vaudeville. Animals weren't easy to troupe, but Mother believed in children having pets, especially show children. At one time or another we trouped a lamb, a goose, a piglet, a monkey, dogs, chameleons, white mice, rabbits, turtles and guinea pigs. These last were the easiest to smuggle on trains. When they died Mother quickly replaced them, and we were told the old ones had gone to Heaven.

Our pets shared our lives with us. They ate in the same restaurants, slept in the same hotels. When we were invited by the theater manager's wife in Omaha, Neb., to attend Sunday School with her children, we dressed carefully for the occasion. There might have been a bit of makeup behind our ears and our fingernails weren't very clean, but our guinea pigs wore their best striped sweaters.

June and I assumed, of course, that the guinea pigs had been included in the invitation. But the theater owner and his wife took one look and said absolutely no.

I still remember how puzzling this was to me as a child. If our guinea pigs were welcome in Heaven, why not in Sunday School?

Years later I was invited by Alice Manchester, head of New York's Greenwich Village Humane League, to attend their annual "Blessing of the Animals" in Greenwich Village. I didn't know Alice then, nor the wonderful work she was doing in finding homes for stray animals. I'm not even sure why I accepted the invitation, but I'm glad I did. I watched the priest bless the scrubbed, beribboned alley cats, dogs, turtles and hamsters; I saw the proud, happy faces of their little owners. And I heard the words that would have reassured me on that day in Omaha: "... so God formed every kind of living creature and He blessed them . . ."

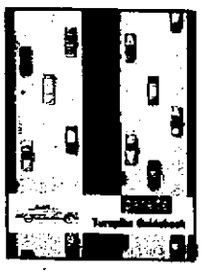

The little boy standing next to me smiled down on his pink-eyed white rat. "See, Pinkie," he murmured. "What did I tell you?" ■

WALLY POST:

Homers but no headlines

by JOHN DEVANEY
PHOTOS BY BEN ROSS

POWER in Post's swing comes from his wrists, as this picture shows. He needs lots of wrist action because his arms are not as muscular as most sluggers'.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

He hit 40 home runs last year, outsocking such famous sluggers as Mickey Mantle, Stan Musial, Roy Campanella, Ted Williams, Larry Doby and Yogi Berra. This season he's been making baseballs disappear over fences at a steady rate, is a good bet to be the home-run king of the National League.

Traditionally, such feats would make Redleg right fielder Wally Post one of the best-known men in America. From Babe Ruth to Mantle, the home-run hitter has been a national idol. He's showered with glory (home-run hitters, for example, will dominate the line-ups for the All-Star Game in Washington this Tuesday); he's paid a salary that may hit $100,000 a year. Ex-homer king Ralph Kiner summed it up best: "Players who hit homers travel in Cadillacs; players who hit singles ride in Fords."

But despite having banged a homer every 18 times up during 1954 and '55 (a rate only slightly behind Mantle's), the 6', 200-lb. Post has neither an astronomical salary nor national fame. He makes about $18,000 a year and his handsome, high-cheekboned face (see front cover) is just a featureless oval to most fans. Moreover, no press agents measure the length of his blows; no sports-writers dub him with nicknames; no TV shows bid for his presence; no sick boys in hospitals ask him to "hit one for me."

The reason? Explains Post, thoughtfully: "I guess it's because in baseball most of the publicity is about one guy on a club. With us, that's Klu [first baseman Ted Kluszewski]; he's the one the fans come out to see. And that's the way it should be, since he's been around longer than I and hits more home runs [47 last season]."

His lack of fame doesn't bother Post at all. "I've never given it much thought," he says. "To tell you the truth, I'm just awfully glad to be up here."

He almost didn't make it. Post was signed to a Redleg contract while still in a St. Henry, Ohio, high school — but as a pitcher. A week after graduating in June, 1947, he was on the mound for Muncie, Ind., a Redleg farm team. He racked up an imposing 17-7 record, was promoted in '48 to Columbia, S.C., where he won 8 games — but lost 11, plus one hurling arm. (A pulled tendon in his right shoulder finished the arm for pitching.)

The Redlegs made him an outfielder and for four years he bounced around the minors with only mixed success, getting three shots with Cincinnati but always being sent back down. In 1953 he turned up at Indianapolis, then managed by Birdie Tebbetts.

"He gave me what I needed," says a grateful Post. "I'd been shipped out so much I was beginning to doubt I'd ever make the majors. But Birdie told me I had a chance to be good; he made me believe in myself."

Post promptly made everyone else believe too by cracking 33 homers for Indianapolis, driving in 120 runs. Up with the Redlegs in 1954, he started off badly; but Tebbetts (brought up also as Redleg manager) stuck with him, and Post finally came around, whacking 18 homers for the season. Last year was his best — a .309 average and 109 runs-batted-in to go with his 40 homers.

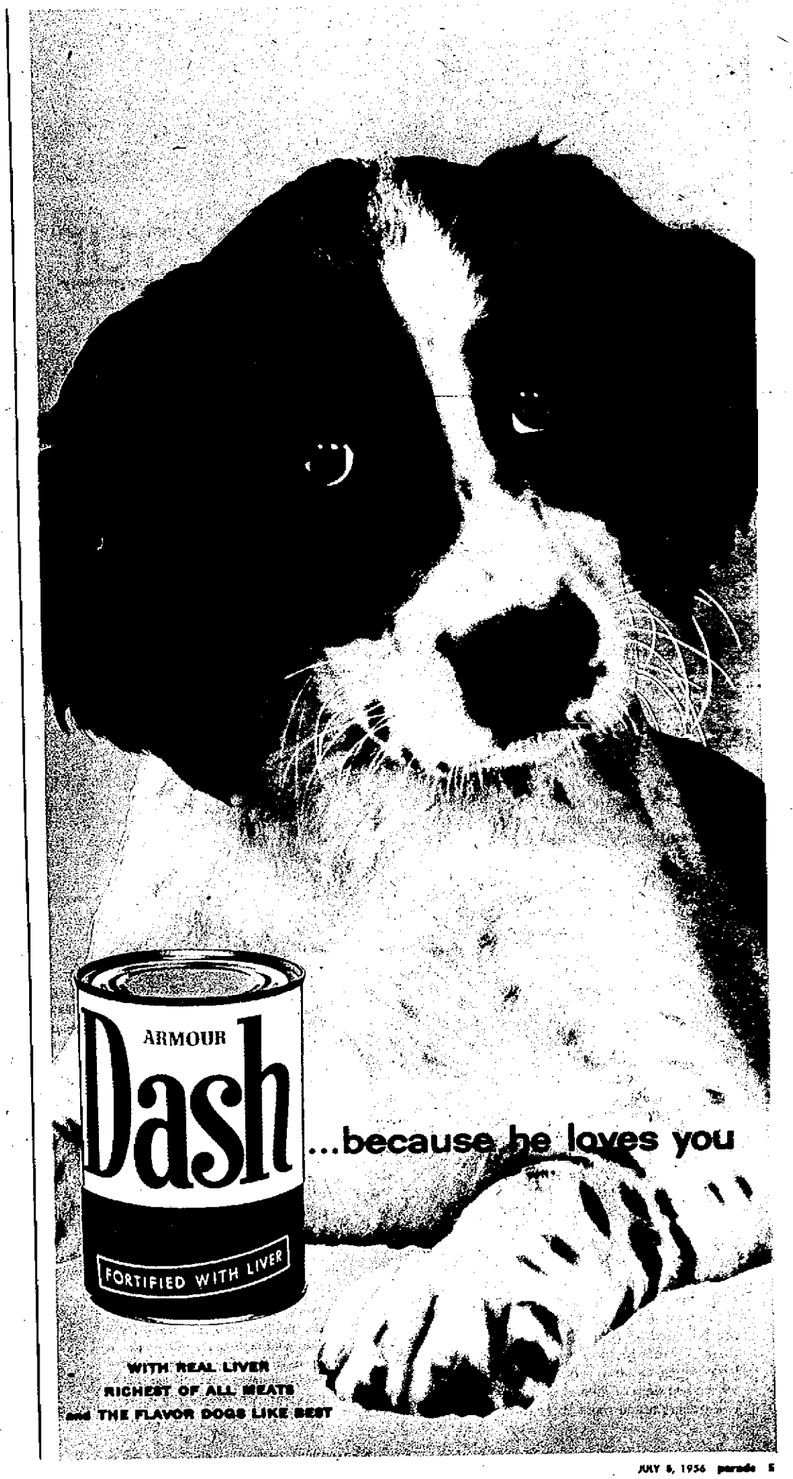

MURDERERS' ROW of '56 Redlegs (l. to r.): Post, Gus Bell and Ted Kluszewski. They hit 114 homers in the 1955 season.

He nevertheless seems surprised and embarrassed to be considered a star, even flushes during interviews when his homers are mentioned. "He's a plain, All-American kind of guy," says Tebbetts, "who goes out and does the job, but does it so quietly that people don't notice him."

During the off-season, Post (he'll be 27 tomorrow) lives with his wife Patsy and their four children in a rambling ranch house near St. Henry, works as a sales representative for his father-in-law's cannery. Though shy and reticent on most subjects, he can talk a blue streak on his favorite pastime — hitting — and has some definite ideas on the subject. Items:

- "Best way to hit homers is to try to hit singles. You don't have to swing for the fences; just meet the ball well and it will go. Four or five times a year I'll aim for a homer — but I've succeeded only once in my life. The score was 5-3 against us in the ninth in a 1954 game with the Cubs and we had two men on. I swung for the homer that would win and got it. Surprised? I almost fell down."
- "Toughest ball parks for me are Milwaukee's County Stadium and the Polo Grounds in New York. There it's almost impossible to hit homers except along the foul lines and I get most of my homers to center and left center."
- "Too many homers in baseball? I think most fans would rather see a free-scoring 10-9 game than a dull 1-0 pitching duel."
- "I never think about breaking Ruth's record of 60 in a season. The guy in this league who's got the best chance to break it is the Giants' Willie Mays. Though he's right-handed like myself, he's got the power to hit homers to right field; I hit only about three to right in a season."
- "A pitcher will throw close to a home-run hitter to keep you from getting too good a foothold. But you can't blame him — he's trying to make a living, too."

And on himself: "I like everything about baseball. There's nothing else I'd rather be doing — with or without the headlines." ■

Don't let your child get lead poisoning

Parents: For your own peace of mind, heed this warning from an expert

by DR. J. EDMUND BRADLEY Professor and Head of the Department of Pediatrics, University of Maryland School of Medicine

BALTIMORE.

ELLEN WAS 4, a lovely miniature of her mother: golden hair, blue eyes, fair skin. Her fair skin, in fact, is one reason she was brought several months ago to our Children's Clinic at University Hospital here.

Ellen was just a little too pale. She was listless, irritable, far more tired than a little girl has a right to be. Her stomach ached. Her mother wanted to know why.

As soon as we learned her home address — a run-down building in an old part of town — we had a working clue. And when we completed our series of medical tests, the diagnosis was positive: "Lead poisoning."

Ellen's mother was thunder-struck. Who wouldn't be? Who, after all, hears of lead poisoning in a child? Yet lead poisoning among the nation's youngsters is arousing increasing concern in physicians and public-health authorities throughout the country. Indeed, there is evidence that lead poisoning is far more widespread than is generally believed. Far too often the result is severe injury — even death.

Statistics on the subject are not too reliable. The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports 231 deaths from accidental poisoning by lead and lead compounds from 1951 through 1954 (latest figures available). But lead poisoning is not an officially reportable disease; most communities maintain no records on it.

Significantly, however, 176 of the 231 deaths just mentioned were children under 5. And here in Baltimore alone, the Department of Health reports 461 cases of lead poisoning among children from 1931 through 1954. Of these, 104 died.

Besides killing them, what does lead poisoning do to children? Sometimes the victim gets the dread, often fatal encephalitis (brain inflammation). In other cases he remains emotionally and mentally crippled for life. Doctors feel that one-third of all children who are poisoned by lead will carry the after-effects with them forever. In fact, in one long-term study of 20 very young children who contracted lead poisoning, 19 showed signs of mental slowness or deficiency when researchers tested them three to nine years later.

At our Children's Clinic we have established a procedure under which every patient who is treated for any reason is also tested for lead. In one sampling of 350 children, we found an excessive lead concentration in 44.4 per cent — more than four out of 10. Although these youngsters had not yet shown any symptoms of poisoning, the basis already existed for serious trouble.

How does lead enter the body of a child? There are many possible sources, among them lead toys, lead foil, drinking water from lead pipes, fumes from fires in which old storage-battery casings are burned. But the most widespread single source is lead paint. And lead paint is part of the inescapable surroundings of millions of this country's youngsters. It covers walls, woodwork, window sills, porches, fences and, sometimes, toys and furniture.

It is true that builders and reputable manufacturers now avoid using lead paint wherever children can come in contact with it. Furthermore, lead paint now costs more than other kinds; this gives builders a reason for using it only on outside work, for its weathering qualities. But millions of American families live in older apartments or houses. On the walls of many such homes there are heavy coats of lead paint under the more recent, non-lead paint. When these walls peel, the fragments contain at least some of the old lead paint from underneath.

Even this wide distribution of lead would hold no perils were children not so curious. Children are natural explorers, and the very young child explores with its mouth. It sucks and chews on thumbs and toys. So, too, with paint peelings and leaded plaster fragments.

This is how we reconstructed Ellen's case. First she nibbled on paint curls. Then she tried her teeth on the window sill. Her mother never noticed the chewed paint peelings. When asked why she hadn't stopped her daughter from gnawing on the sill, she gave us a familiar answer:

"What for? A little dirt never hurt anyone."

The New York City Department of Health had a similar experience when it surveyed the parents of 80 children who suffered lead poisoning. In all 80 cases the parents "saw nothing wrong" with paint-nibbling.

There is an additional element of danger in the current "do-it-yourself" practice, which finds Father taking advantage of the balmy weather to spruce up the back fence and use the left-over paint on the crib or playpen. Perhaps he "does" the porch and then makes Junior a present of a bright, new coat of paint for his pull-wagon — and, with it, the possibility of a severe case of lead poisoning.

Because most victims we see come from old, poor homes, we were startled when a little girl whose family had just moved into a new, expensive private house was brought in with lead poisoning. Obviously, the problem was not one of peeling paint. How, then, could the child gain access to so much lead in such a short time?

Her father racked his brains. And finally he remembered: "There's the picket fence in the back yard, of course. I bought a small can of paint and laid on a thick coat a few days ago."

It wasn't peeling at all. Actually, it was something much worse. The father, being an unskilled painter, had sloshed the paint on liberally. The drippings had hardened into the "candles" characteristic of amateur work. The little girl had broken them off and popped them into her mouth, swallowing a fresh, almost pure dose of lead.

Once the lead enters the body, it finds its way to that body substance with which it has the greatest affinity, the calcium of the bones. If the dose is small, and not repeated, there may never be any real harm. The body will slowly get rid of the accumulated lead, approximately half of the remaining lead leaving in each five-month period.

But it is very rare for a child to content itself with

About the author...

Dr. Bradley and his staff are known throughout the U.S. as pioneers in the effort to stamp out lead poisoning, an ailment still not fully understood even by doctors.

DANGER AHEAD: A child sits on the floor picking flakes of old wall paint. Lead poisoning most often hits children aged 1-2½. There appear to be more serious cases in summer than at other seasons.

a single dose, and so the poison begins to accumulate. Slowly the lead concentration builds up. The potential is created for disaster.

Sometimes the explosion is spontaneous. More often, it is triggered by an infection of some sort, which disturbs the body metabolism. In Ellen's case, it was a simple cold, such as any child might have. But Ellen was harboring lead in her system.

Released by the effects of the cold, the lead flowed from her bones into her blood stream and then to her brain and nervous system. If allowed to go far enough, it would have caused encephalitis, convulsions — ultimately, death. As it was, before Ellen's mother brought her to the Clinic, the little girl's normally cheerful disposition had changed drastically. She found it difficult to keep food down. Her head and stomach ached. These symptoms, coupled with Ellen's unnatural pallor and general weakness, had driven her mother to seek medical advice.

Once the physician starts to look for it, the diagnosis of lead poisoning is fairly standard. X-ray examination may reveal a characteristically greater density at the growing ends of long bones and the growing margins of flat bones, where lead generally concentrates. Blood and urine are tested for excessive lead. The blood is examined microscopically for a red-cell condition known as "basophilic stippling." Spinal taps may provide corroborative evidence, and sometimes scrutiny of the gums reveals the so-called "lead line" close to the base of the teeth.

Until fairly recently, there was no really safe, effective method for removing lead from the human system. One of the better known forms of medication has been BAL (British Anti-Lewisite), a substance which was developed as a means of removing the arsenic which Lewisite war gas tends to deposit in the bones. BAL draws the lead from the bones into the blood stream. But the compound it forms is apparently unstable, tending to break down easily, with the result that lead may actually be sped on its way to the brain and other parts of the body.

Now, however, we have something new, effective and safe. This is calcium disodium EDTA (ethylene diamine tetra-acetic acid), a chemical which, interestingly, was first used as a remover of scale in boilers.

Working under a grant from the Playtex Park Research Institute of Dover, Del., a foundation which has sponsored extremely valuable research in child health, a member of our Medical School staff, Dr. Samuel P. Bessman, Associate Professor of Pediatrics, introduced the use of this substance for the de-leading of humans.

In its first phase, calcium disodium EDTA works in much the same way as BAL. It removes the lead from the bones and passes it into the blood stream. But at this point there is an important difference. EDTA combines with lead in an extremely stable compound and grips it firmly until the kidneys can expel it.

The drug comes in the form of a white powder which, mixed with a salt solution, is injected three times a day for three to five days. (In some cases of mild poisoning, oral dosage may be used instead.) Three to five days of rest then are followed by an additional three to five days of treatment. This was the schedule followed with Ellen. Fortunately, she was treated in time and cured.

The fight against lead poisoning is being waged on several fronts. One is the development of EDTA. Another is through law and the cooperation of progressive paint manufacturers. Few communities, however, have taken effective legislative action. One exception is New York City, which now enforces an ordinance providing for the labeling of all paints sold with lead concentrations in excess of 1 per cent.

Other Cities Please Note

Another is Baltimore, where the use of lead-based paints in interior work is strictly forbidden. Since 1951, moreover, there has been on the books a statute providing that in any apartment where a child develops lead poisoning from eating paint chips, the owner must remove all the old lead paint from the walls and repaint with less toxic material.

Of course, the basic solution lies with the parents. Keeping the child away from lead is the first, most important consideration. Sometimes this is not enough.

The mother who detects characteristic symptoms in the child — pallor, loss of appetite, colic — should consult a physician. These symptoms are by no means specific to lead poisoning, but they always signify some sort of trouble and should be checked immediately. If, even without noting symptoms in her child, a mother sees tooth marks on the window sills or finds bits of chewed paint or fragments of plaster, she should lose no time in consulting her doctor.

The mother who has not until now realized the danger which lead paint possesses for her child may take rueful comfort in a case which was treated at our Clinic fairly recently. The victim was a little boy with the characteristic signs of lead poisoning. Laboratory tests confirmed our opinion that he had taken a very large dose of lead. As usual, we asked the parents whether they had seen the child chewing or sucking on any painted surface.

"Yes," the father said, "he's been chewing on the crib. I repainted it just a few weeks ago."

Like many another parent, he had neglected to check the sort of paint he was using.

And he was a physician. ■

Brainy blonde from Baton Rouge

Actress Cleo Moore has big ambitions

HOLLYWOOD.

"In 1960," says Cleo Moore, "I'm going to run for Governor of Louisiana. I was married to Huey Long's son for six weeks, and while that doesn't make me an authority on politics, I know a lot about Louisiana. Matter of fact, I'm related to 50 per cent of the people down there. I'm sure I stand a good chance of getting elected."

From most actresses, such talk would sound either headline-happy or badly in need of an asylum. Not from Cleo. At 27, this canary blonde of spectacular charms (38½-22-36) is recognized out here as one of the sharpest characters around, one who makes outlandish statements come true.

Ten years ago, for example, when Cleo and her family first arrived in Hollywood, she turned to her worried father. "Daddy," she told him, "don't you fret none. One day your Cleo's going to own this town, and she's going to be a movie star, too."

Murphy O'Moore recalls: "I thought the child was a little tetched in the head. But by gum, she's seen it through."

Today Cleo is not only a full-fledged movie star with 18 pictures to her credit (Bait, Turmoil, Women's Prison, Over-Exposed), she is also a real-estate tycoon. In addition to her own $100,000 estate, she heads an investment corporation which holds property valued at $250,000 and currently is embarking on a million-dollar sports center in the San Fernando Valley. Meanwhile Cleo has wiggled her way out of a contract with Columbia Pictures so that she can freelance for more money.

"I've always had a good business head," she explains calmly. "When I was 13 I did all the buying and bookkeeping for our store in Baton Rouge. Heck, I wasn't even 15 when I was graduated from Gonzales High. That's when I ran off with Palmer, Huey Long's boy, and got married. We went out West on a honeymoon for six weeks. And that's exactly how long the marriage lasted. When we got back I talked Daddy into selling the store and coming out to Hollywood with Mother and my three sisters. Ever since I'd been a kid, I wanted to be a movie star.

"The $2,000 Daddy got for the store was our whole bankroll. When we arrived here, it was right after the war and there was a housing shortage, so I went to a real-estate agent. He had some land for sale with a house on it for $16,000. I asked him real nice if he'd take $2,000 down. He agreed, so I put Daddy to work — he's a wonderful carpenter — fixing the house. The rest of us put in a lawn and painted and did everything. Less than two months later I sold the house for $18,000. Then I divided the rest of the land into six lots and sold them off at $6,500 each."

Before long, Cleo was not only supporting the whole family but spending well over $100 a week for dramatics and dancing lessons. She got rid of her Southern accent after two years' hard work, then landed a bit part with Robert Ryan and Ida Lupino in On Dangerous Ground at RKO. From then on she was "in." Soon Columbia signed her.

She's Been Getting Around

A year ago, because she has the equipment to fascinate photographers and editors, Columbia sent Cleo on the road to exploit her pictures. She didn't mind. "But," she says firmly, "when they had me traveling all over selling Jimmy Stewart in The Man from Laramie, a picture I wasn't even in, and then wouldn't give me any good parts of my own, I rebelled.

"I'm tired of being treated like a dumb blonde. I want parts like Kim Novak gets. I'm sure I can handle them.

"That's one of the reasons why I want to go back to Louisiana and run for Governor. I hope to go back in 1958 and re-establish my residence. Then in 1959 and 1960 I plan to stump the state and campaign."

What will her platform be?

For a moment Cleo's blue eyes grow meditative, then they sparkle. "I'm going to promise the people of Louisiana," she announces, "more of everything, more of the finer things in life. My campaign slogan is going to be 'More with Moore' or 'What Louisiana Needs Is a Blonde in Baton Rouge.'"

Having watched her parlay $2,000 into a fortune and two curves into screen stardom, Hollywood at this point is not selling Cleo Moore's political ambitions short. ■

ON-SCREEN, Cleo has her first solo starring role in Columbia's Over-Exposed. The actor above is Richard Crenna.

Good, hearty food goes in an attractive new basket you can make yourself

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

If yours is a typical American family, you'll picnic often this summer. When you do, you'll want the food delicious and appetizing, neatly packed for convenience in carrying. The menu pictured at left (with recipes below) answers the first requirement. And for packing-and-carrying, here's a practical, attractive picnic basket you can easily make yourself, designed by the lady in charge of Arnold's Recipe Service. For instructions, mail coupon.

DOUBLE-DECKERS

6 slices whole wheat bread
6 slices white bread
Chicken and Ham fillings
Lightly butter bread slices if desired. Use 3 bread slices and 2 fillings for each sandwich. Cut each sandwich in half diagonally. For 2 of the sandwiches, start with brown bread ending with brown. For remaining 2, reverse procedure. Place halves together to make a brown and white topped sandwich.

Chicken Filling:
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon hot-pepper sauce
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 cup ground cooked chicken
½ cup finely diced celery
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
Add lemon juice, salt and pepper sauce to mayonnaise; mix well. Put chicken and celery in mixing bowl; sprinkle with monosodium glutamate. Add mayonnaise mixture and toss lightly.

Ham Filling:
2 cans (4½ oz. each) ham (or tongue) spread
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons finely diced pickle
Combine all ingredients; beat until blended.

PRALINE APPLE-CHIP CAKE

1 package instant apple-chip cake mix
Praline Topping
Prepare cake mix as directed on package. Pour batter into 13"-x-9"-x-2" pan, which has been greased on bottom only. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 35 to 40 minutes. While cake is still hot, spread evenly with Praline Topping. Return to oven for about 5 minutes, or until topping is bubbly and golden brown. Cool; cut in pan.
Praline Topping:
Combine ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cake flour, ¼ cup melted butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons water, ½ cup finely chopped nuts. Mix well.

A new approach to faith

Teenagers now go out to recruit other teenagers for God

by KARL KOHRS

PRACTICING in South Norwalk church, Mission team hands girl playing role of "prospect" a recruitment card, on which she indicates her wish to join movement.

SOUTH NORWALK, CONN.

"We'd like to talk to you about religion."

This greeting has surprised a number of teenagers who have answered the doorbell here recently. At the door, they find two young people — usually a boy and a girl. Asked in, the visitors courteously explain that they are members of the Christian Witness Mission, a project of the Methodist Youth Fellowship. The purpose of their call, they say, is to interest other young people of their own age in thinking seriously about spiritual matters.

It soon becomes apparent that the visitors are not starry-eyed "salesmen" of any particular brand of religion. They are part of a novel and exciting youth movement that can give a new and more profound meaning to personal faith. The photos on these pages show a typical Christian Witness Mission in action, centered at the First Methodist Church here.

The young people shown were among 45 who gathered at the church for a Week-end Mission. First they were briefed on what is called "Evangelical Visitation." This involves the proper approach to a prospect — a teen-age boy or girl who, so far as local church leaders know, has no religious affiliation. Experienced Mission teams demonstrated visitation techniques by playing the roles of the visitors and those visited.

Fourfold Effort

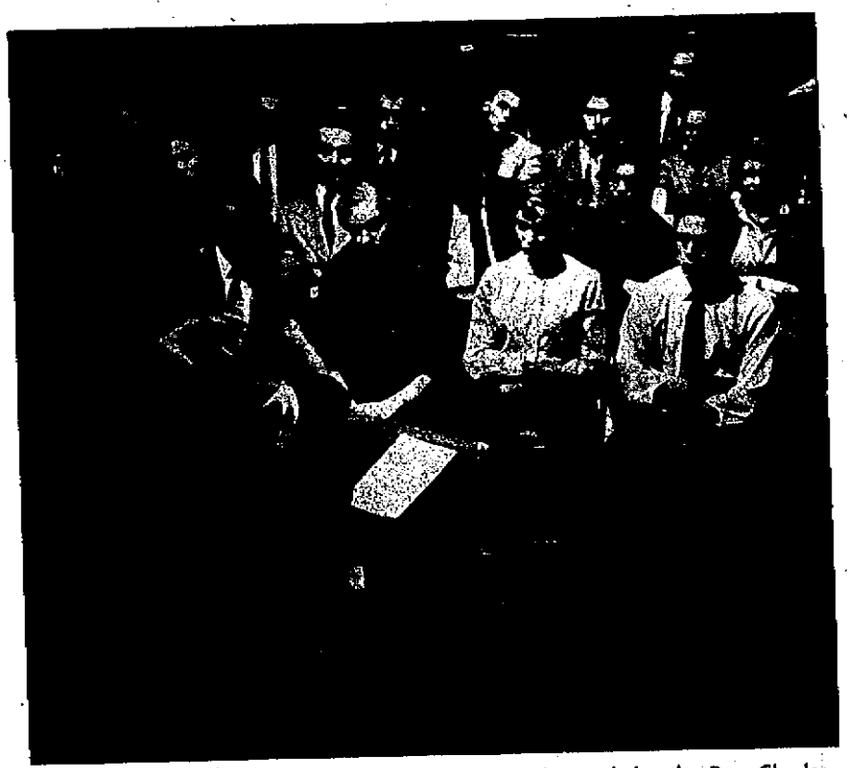

Then the teams started out, two by two, and visited an average of five prospects each. Their objective was fourfold: 1) To find the unchurched youth; 2) To enroll youth in the Methodist Youth Fellowships; 3) To lead young people in commitment to Christ; 4) To help them witness as Christians.

But leaders stress that recruiting as such is secondary. The main reason for talking to the teenagers is to start them thinking about religion. The teams are advised to keep their conversations "Christ-centered."

In South Norwalk — as is generally true wherever the Missions operate — the teams are cordially received. But the job isn't a pushover, by any means. It takes courage to face up to cynicism, indifference or even rudeness. The father of one teenager, for example, interrupted the talk to say he took a dim view of religion and didn't want to see any child

BRIEFING: The Rev. A. E. Berry, a youth leader, explains "Evangelical Visitation" — prospect approach.

"PEP TALK": Teams about to start on visits with teenagers listen to an inspirational speech by the Rev. Charles Barton, another director of youth work.

of his "mixed up in this sort of thing."

Another father termed all preachers "parasites who exploit young people and make them waste other people's time." In this case, the boy of the Mission team quietly asked permission to explain his own viewpoint, and that led to a two-hour discussion. The next Sunday, the father, his wife and his teen-age daughter attended church for the first time. Before the good work thus begun was over, the father himself had become an active church worker.

As for the teen-age prospects, the teams report, the usual reaction is: "It looks all right to me. I'd like to enroll and find out more about it."

This kind of response reflects the current resurgence of interest in religion among the youth of America. As leaders of all faiths point out, the part played in church activities by young people today is one of the things that is making religion an increasingly potent force in community life. One reason is that so many young people share in exerting this force.

The total membership of the six major faiths in America is around 93½ million. Of this number — and only a rough estimate is possible — upwards of 15 million are teenagers. Many more may well be participating in church-directed activities, even though they are not members.

In the nation's 300,000 churches of

PROSPECT Dick Gilbert (center) shows interest as Judy Edwards, Norman Marland explain Fellowship Movement.

Main job lies ahead for Mission teams

all faiths, these youngsters channel their activities into thousands of local and national organizations — study groups, hobby clubs, athletic clubs, fellowship leagues. These bear such diverse names as Youth Honor Group, Holy Name Society, Christian Youth Council, National Young Judaea, Westminster Fellowship, St. Aloysius Society and so on.

Everywhere there is evidence that more and more young people are participating in church life. Adults are giving them more responsibility, naming them as official representatives of the church or appointing them to committees.

One important development, leaders report, is that young people do not regard their church-centered activities as merely recreational. There is an increasing emphasis on religious thinking. Young people are seriously studying the meaning of their faith.

This spiritual awareness is largely responsible, Methodists say, for the fact that the Mission movement, now in its sixth year, is gaining new momentum. Of the 107 Methodist Conferences (regional groups) in the U.S. and Hawaii, about 100 now have Missions.

The teams are not likely to run out of prospects. Churchmen point out that there are still millions of young people in America without religious affiliations. It is those to whom these dedicated teenagers want to say, "Let's talk about religion." ■

SONGFEST climaxes day of visiting as teams gather in church social room during the annual visitation effort.

NEXT WEEK: Teenagers are said to conform, to "follow the herd," too much — so PARADE reports on one who doesn't.

½ cup less 1 tablespoon Spry
1 tablespoon boiling water
2 tablespoons buttermilk
1½ teaspoons honey
1⅓ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons chopped blanched salted peanuts

Put Spry in mixing bowl. Add boiling water, buttermilk and honey and whip with fork until all liquid is absorbed and a thick, smooth mixture is formed. Sift flour and salt together onto Spry-whip and stir quickly into a dough. Pick up and work into a smooth dough; shape into a flat round. Roll between two 12" squares of waxed paper into a circle ⅛" thick and about size of paper. Peel off top paper, sprinkle 2 tablespoons chopped peanuts over pastry, leaving about a 1" border plain. Re-cover with paper and gently roll peanuts into dough. Turn pastry and paper over and repeat process, rolling in remaining 2 tablespoons peanuts. Peel off top paper, place pastry in 9" pie pan, pastry next to pan. Remove paper, fit pastry into pan, trim ½" beyond pan, turn back even with edge of pan, flute rim. Prick shell all over with fork. Bake in very hot oven (450°F.) 10-14 min. Cool at room temperature. For a luscious ice cream pie, chill in refrigerator.

At serving time, fill shell with vanilla ice cream (1 qt. for 9" shell). Drizzle butterscotch sauce over ice cream, serve immediately.

SPRYCRUST IS FLAVORED PIECRUST!

It's the greatest and most original idea in the history of piecrust!

Based on the famous Spry "Water-Whip" pastry method, Sprycrust is an entirely new and wonderful kind of pastry. And it's amazingly simple to prepare. You whip in flavor—you roll in a texture. Important: Do not, under any circumstances, make substitutions for Spry.

Ask any good cook you know. The real test of a shortening is piecrust. So if you've had failures with piecrust, don't blame yourself. Blame the shortening . . . and switch to Spry. No other shortening can top Spry for pure shortening power. And this power is uniformly distributed through every pound. Thanks to homogenizing, plus a patented process of protecting its purity, Spry has the "built-in" safety to guarantee perfect piecrust every time you bake.

Teen-age Topics

Here are some boy and girl problems from my current mail.

Q. I am 17 and have been going steady with a boy of 19 for six months. He calls faithfully every day, but rarely takes me anywhere. I know he likes me; and I like him. Should I tell him I want to go out on our dates, or start accepting invitations from other boys? — S.I., South Charleston, W. Va.

A. There can be many reasons for your boy friend's avoidance of social activity. If it isn't a matter of money, perhaps he is a serious student who, during the school year, has all he can do to keep up with his studies and athletic activities and must necessarily limit his dating. I think you need to examine this situation thoroughly. It may be that you have been going out too much and at too early an age.

Still, it is natural for a girl your age to go out socially. You can always suggest that he take you to parties or join with others of your group in activities, either at your own home or elsewhere, within reason. Don't let him take you out of circulation.

Q. I am 12 and have 6-year-old twin brothers. At 7:30 my mother has us go to bed. I don't think that is fair. What is the correct time for a 12-year-old, who is a straight-A student, to go to bed? — D.J., Waukegan, Ill.

A. A 7:30 bedtime for a 12-year-old does seem early. Perhaps behind your mother's insistence on this hour is her need for a quiet time of her own with your father. If it's possible, compromise with her; agree to follow some quiet activity, such as reading, until say 8:30 or even 9, with lights out promptly then.

Q. A boy who likes me has asked me to go to his birthday party. It is during the summer and I told him I would be away. But he wants to postpone the party until I come back. If I don't like him, how can I refuse the invitation and yet not hurt his feelings? — C.D., Glen Rock, N.J.

A. Tell him you feel he should have his party on his birthday because you cannot tell now what your plans will be in the fall. Say that you cannot accept an invitation for so far in advance. If he still insists on postponing his party, you can refuse in the fall.

A lady need never accept an invitation she does not wish to accept. And she does not have to give any reason for her refusal, although she always should be polite about it.

Q. I have been taking accordion lessons for five years. Last year my accordion teacher moved to another state. Since then, I haven't found a teacher I like. Now I am in the seventh grade and find it difficult to practice my lessons and engage in school activities. My parents insist that I begin taking lessons again. What is your opinion? — M.S., Youngstown, Ohio.

A. I think you would be foolish not to go on when you have devoted so many years to the instrument. When you get to high school, you undoubtedly will be welcomed in the band and find that your accordion will help you toward popularity. With that to look forward to, surely you can find the time for lessons — and practicing, too.

Here's a good idea to remember for your vacation trip: Kellogg's All-Bran.

All-Bran, you know, helps avoid irregularity due to lack of dietary bulk. And so often on a trip we eat differently and don't get the bulk we need (the gentle roughage that helps keep us regular).

Take a box of All-Bran with you, or ask for it in the new aluminum foil "Individual" packages at restaurants along the way.

LANCE

WARREN TUFTS

AT AN OUTFITTING STATION ON THE SANTA FE TRAIL, LANCE MET A YOUNGSTER NAMED KIT CARSON... AND ONE DAY THE LADS DECIDED TO RIDE WEST WITH THE FREIGHTERS.....

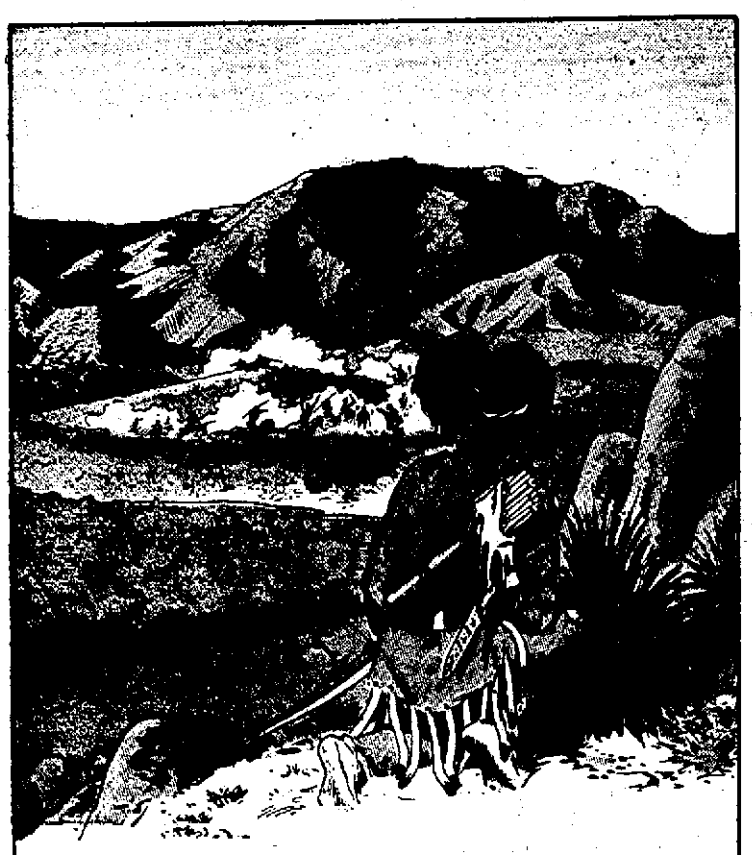

FROM SANTA FE THEY HIRED OUT AS COOKS...THEN AS TEAMSTERS OR HUNTERS.....

THE BOYS TRAMPED THE WEST LIKE A CIRCUS-GROUND, THRILLING TO ITS DANGER AND EXCITEMENT. THEN DISASTER FELL! KIT FOUND HIMSELF A CUTE LITTLE INDIAN AND TOOK A NOTION TO HOUSEKEEPING!

FOR A LONG TIME LANCE WORKED ALONE, TRAPPING, HUNTING, GUIDING EXPLORERS. BUT WITHOUT KIT THE GAY CARNIVAL SPIRIT WAS MISSING, AND LANCE GREW TO SEE THE WEST FOR WHAT IT REALLY WAS.....

...A BATTLEGROUND! RED MAN AGAINST WHITE, IN MOUNTING NUMBERS! THE YOUTHFUL FRONTIERSMAN CLEARLY FORESAW THE ROLE WHICH THE MILITARY WOULD PLAY IN THE FUTURE OF THE WEST.....

...AND SO HE TURNED HOMEWARD, TO VIRGINIA, FAMILY, AND WEST POINT.

THE NEWS CAME WHEN LANCE WAS A YEARLING CADET: CONGRESS HAD SEEN THE NEED FOR LIGHT CAVALRY—THE FIRST REGIMENT OF U.S. DRAGOONS WAS FORMING ON THE FRONTIER! ENCLOSED WERE A LIEUTENANT'S COMMISSION AND ORDERS TO REPORT!

MARK TRAIL

Copr. 1956, The Hall Syndicate, Inc.

EVERY FEW WEEKS, OUR BACK-YARD FRIEND, THE COMMON TOAD, OUTGROWS HIS SKIN AND MUST GET RID OF IT...

BUT HE IS UNABLE TO GRASP HIS SHRUNKEN SUIT AND REMOVE IT WITH HIS "HANDS"...

SO WHEN THE OLD SKIN SPLITS DOWN THE BACK, MR. TOAD PERFORMS SOME COMICAL CONTORTIONS IN TRYING TO GET IT OFF

SUCKING IN THE LOOSENING HIDE OVER HIS LIPS, HE YAWNS, SCRATCHES AND WIGGLES AS HE SWALLOWS THE WORN-OUT SUIT.

AND FINALLY, AFTER SEVERAL MIGHTY GULPS, THE SKIN PEELS OFF LIKE A GLOVE AND DISAPPEARS DOWN HIS THROAT...

LEAVING MR. TOAD BRIGHT AND TRIM IN HIS NEW SUIT

WHERE TOADS ARE PLENTIFUL THE GARDENER HAS LITTLE TO WORRY ABOUT FROM PLANT-DESTROYING INSECTS, FOR THE TOAD IS AN EFFICIENT EXTERMINATOR

THOUGH THE TOAD LOOKS DEFENSELESS, HE IS SELDOM BOTHERED BY BIRDS AND ANIMALS, FOR HE IS A "BITTER MOUTHFUL"

THE WARTY OUTGROWTHS ON THE TOAD'S BACK GIVE OFF A POISONOUS SECRETION WHEN THE CREATURE IS IRRITATED, AND THE WOULD-BE TOAD SWALLOWER QUICKLY GIVES UP HIS CATCH!

EARLY WYNN shows you how to throw his famous "knuckler" ...and how to get quick shaves... easy, clean shaves with comfort!

• "MY BIG PITCH really isn't a knuckler," says Early Wynn of the Cleveland Indians. "I get the butterfly effect of a knuckler with a regular overhand delivery and wrist snap, but I hold the ball with my fingertips as you see in the picture, because I get better control that way."

1. Wash your face (who doesn't!). Soap removes oil and softens beard. Apply a good shaving cream.

2. Then, with the Gillette Razor that's made for your beard, shave with diagonal strokes.

FOR MY DOUGH— THE ONLY WAY TO GET A DECENT SHAVE IS WITH A GILLETTE BLADE IN A GILLETTE RAZOR!
